Rivals Team Up To Raise Awareness For Breast Cancer

By EMILY TAFT

The girl's volleyball teams of North Quincy and Quincy High School teamed up on Oct. 6 to raise money for the fight against breast cancer.

The two rival teams worked together for a common cause during their Thursday night match. They paired up with the Side Out Foundation's Dig Pink Initiative in hopes to raise $5,000.

"We ask the coaches to always do some sort of outreach in the community," said Quincy Public School Athletic Director Jim Rendle. "This event goes above and beyond what we are asking, it's a pretty special event."

dation, a national non-profit organization that unites volleyball players and coaches to work towards a common goal of furthering breast cancer awareness.

"The foundation's name underscores the purpose of the organization," said NQ senior captain Olivia Umoren. "We are all excited to be participating in this organization, we know it was time we made a change in the community, especially since we all know someone who has been affected by breast cancer."

The term side-out on the volleyball court means the team without possession of the ball wants to win the ball back and also get the point.

"These are some of the best student athletes we have in both schools," said North Quincy High School Principal Earl Metzler. "This is a great cause, its nice to see the teams partner up. It not only brings the schools together but the city of Quincy together."

Walking down the North Quincy High School halls, through the cafeteria to the gym it was hard not to notice the bulletin boards decorated for the occasion. One board with the saying "Cancer Bites" and another one saying "cancer is so limited, it cannot shatter hope" with the saying "losing is not an option" separating the two sentences.

Before entering the gym fans were asked to make a donation of five dollars, and no one hesitated to put more then requested towards a disease that has hit over two and a half million Americans.

The stands were packed and the North Quincy gym was painted pink with decorations while the walls were covered with pink ribbons, pink streamers, and pink balloons.

"I think it is great to see the girls take the initiative for such a great cause," said Quincy High Head Coach Jacqui Niosi. "We are glad that we could be a part of it. It was such a wonderful event."

The two teams were decked out in pink; North Quincy wore pink jerseys, with pink socks decorated with pink breast cancer ribbons, and pink ribbons in their hair; Quincy had black warm-up jerseys with pink lettering, and also wore pink socks, and pink knee pads, many of the team members also wore pink bandanas.

The words conquer; hope, and strength displayed in pink, over each section of the bleachers can be connected to the fight against breast cancer and the battle of winning on the volleyball

"Anytime that our high schools can get together to compete athletically, it is an exciting event," said Quincy High School Principal Frank Santoro. "To get together like this for a common cause is even more exciting."

Along with asking for donations, the teams raffled off a few prizes, had a serving contest, and sold pink tie-dye tee shirts, along with snacks and pizza. All the proceeds went towards the Dig Pink Initiative. Some of the prizes included a gym membership, gift cards, and a Vera Bradley bag.

It is a tradition for the two teams to exchange carnations before each game as a sign of sportsmanship; but for this particular game the two teams exchanged pink carnations to symbolize their unity in the fight against the disease.

As the game began both teams put up a fight, but it was North Quincy who came out on top winning three of the four games.

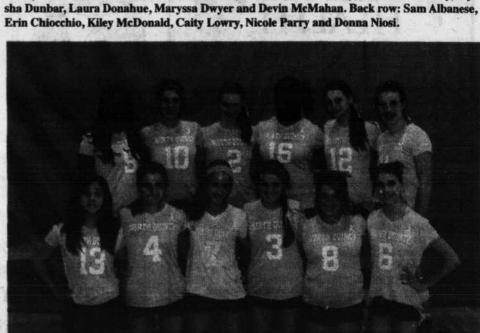

"I think it was a great crowd a good game."

event, there was good energy in the building and in the gym," said North Quincy Head Coach Kerry Ginty. "Emotions were high, because of the rivalry, but this game was a little different, glad we got to show the crowd a good game."

That night the two team raised over $3,000, which leaves them with around $2,000 to meet their see goal. Ginty said they play on brainstorming and find ing other ways to get to the $5,000, with hopes to reach it by the end of October.

Do you ever think about how other people react to you upon meeting you for the first time? Do you project yourself favorably or vice-versa?

FOR THE WEEK

Have you ever thought about how facial expressions contribute to first SCOTT DEWARE impressions? A smile can be so important. It can be warm with eyes sparkling or it can be just a contraction of the facial muscles . . . A smile can be the difference between making a friend or an acquaintance or

We are all aware that friendship is a very precious thing. We need friends in time of trouble just as we need them in our times of joy and pleasure. However, we sometimes forget that just as we may find first overtures difficult, so do other people find them equally hard. The rules of social behavior help us over these awkward moments. But couldn't it be said that it is our attitude, our willingness to be friendly, our interest in the other person that is the deciding factor? This is where the smile comes in . . . Oh, yes, it can say so much more than words . . .

Koch, Mahoney Debate Taxes, Downtown, Old QHS, New Track

By EMILY TAFT

Property taxes, the $1.6 billion redevelopment of downtown Quincy and siting a new city running track at Faxon Field were among the issues debated by Mayor Tom Koch and challenger Anne Mahoney, the vice chairwoman of the Quincy School Committee, at their first televised mayoral debate Oct. 13.

The debate was held in the auditorium at North Quincy High School.

Koch and Mahoney answered questions posed by local media panelists as well as questions directed at one

Here's some of the questions that were posed and how the candidates respond-

The first subject was about a tax increase within the next two years.

Koch said:

In the last two years Koch said that the line on property taxes have been held. After he took office he inherited a number of structural deficits, and they have dealt with most of those deficits. Koch went on to add that each year he presents a budget to the city council, and discusses with them what the tax increase will be in fall. "I believe in being truly transparent and laying it all out there for the public is important," said Koch. "After two years of no property tax increases,

Prescription Drug Disposal Day At Police Headquarters Oct. 29

The Mayor's Substance Abuse Task Force, working in conjunction with the DEA, EDAN, Impact Quincy and the Quincy Police Department, will once again host a prescription drug disposal day at the Quincy Police Headquarters on Saturday, Oct. 29th between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

"This event has grown into one of the most successful drug take back days in the Commonwealth," said Mayor Koch. "Through the leadership of folks from EDAN and Impact Quincy, we are able to help people properly dispose of expired or unused medication. Many young people begin experimenting with drugs by opening the medicine cabinet at home, and this event serves to help eliminate that temptation."

All residents are invited to bring unused or expired prescription and non-prescription medications to the Quincy Police Headquarters at One Sea Street for proper disposal. The process is anonymous, and residents need not bring pills in their original containers.

"Since we began this event in 2009, we have disposed of thousands of expired or unused pills," added Mayor Koch. "Our

$1.18 Million Bill In Dispute

City, National Grid At Odds Over Concourse Wiring

Planning Director Dennis Harrington Monday denounced National Grid's plans to bill the city $1.18 million for underground wiring along the Walter Hannon Parkway and vowed to win a battle over the charge in court if necessary.

"It may result in a lawsuit. We will win," Harrington, an attorney himself, told City Councillors and assured them. "National Grid would lose billions if they lost the case."

Harrington charged that not only was the potential million-dollar invoice bo-

City Worker Killed In Motor Vehicle Collision

Quincy Police, the Norfolk District Attorney's Office and Massachusetts State Police are investigating the death of a Quincy city worker whose bucket truck was apparently struck by a tractor trailer operating southbound on a section of Rte. 3A in Quincy Tuesday morning.

Robert DeCristofaro, 58, of Braintree, an employee of the Quincy Public Works department, was reportedly working in the bucket of the truck at the time of the collision and did not survive. A member of the traffic department, he was apparently working on an overhead traffic signal.

DeCristofaro had worked for the city for 25 years.

"This is a terrible day for the city of Quincy and for his family," District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey said. "The chief of our motor vehicle homicide unit is on the scene, and we are working closely with the Quincy Police Department and investigators from the Massachusetts State Police."

"It is an active and ongoing investigation," District Attorney Morrissey said. The operator of the tractor trailer stopped his vehicle at the scene of the impact and remained in place.

OSHA has been contacted and was present at the "Quincy will be required to provide election materials in Chinese, starting with month's municipal elections," states an Oct. 12 directive from Secretary of State William Galvin's office ordering the city to comply with federal statutes for the first time.

According to City Clerk Joseph Shea, that order means that instructions in Chinese and English will be posted at every polling place and in every voting booth on Nov. 8 and ballots will be available in either English or Chinese for the first time in Massachusetts at the March presidential primaries.

Shea said that he has been informed that all ballots will provide candidates names in were going to see slight increase in this year's tax."

He added that the city's debt service is one of the lowest in the state; where cities and towns have lost their bond rating, he has held Quincy's bond rating. "Our goals are all met with revenue plans, and programs going forward."

Mahoney said:

"We are going to go from the lowest bond indebtedness in the state to the highest in the state because of all the spending Mayor Koch is planning.

"As we take on these projects our homes are actually declining in value not increasing in value. So we have to take all of these things into consideration. We have had two years of no increases in taxes, but what we have had is the highest increase in years since I've been a taxpayer for 17 years. Until the economy comes back we won't be able to meet the demands of the debt that we are taking on. That's poor planning and poor strategy."

The candidates then addressed what they believe should happen with the old Quincy High School.

Koch said the best approach is to demolish the building. He said the cost for bringing up the old Quincy High School to code would be between $30-50 million. "Even if you had the money to do that you still got to continue to heat it, light it and maintain it and quite frankly it wouldn't come with one parking spot so what would you do with it?"

"We took the lead, we do have a plan, we will move forward with that plan," Koch said. "When the time is right we will demolish that building, adding to the campus of Quincy high school."

Mahoney said:

"I ran for school committee because I was waiting for that high school, I was waiting far too long for that high school, and I got on the school committee and we got that high school done." Mahoney said Koch had four years to decide what to do with that high school. "You had no plans other then to board up a building and leave it for vagrants to Mahoney said the city needs a second, contingency plan. "If you can't get it done the way you want to, you have to figure out another plan for that building. There are millions of dollars out there. You have to role up your sleeves and find the money for it."

Candidates were asked about their positions on the downtown redevelopment plan.

Mahoney said:

"There have been a lot of things overlooked in this plan. Something we don't want to look at in the downtown and that's unfortunately the nature of what the downtown is and that's our homelessness population.

Second Mayoral Debate
Televised On QATV Oct. 27
Quincy Access Televilar to the previous debate

Quincy Access Television and The Patriot Ledger will sponsor the second of two debates between the candidates for the Office of Mayor Thursday, Oct. 27th at 7 p.m.

The debate will be moderated by QATV's Government Access Coordinator, Mark Crosby, and it will be held in the QATV studios.

The format will be similar to the previous debate; it will include questions from the panelists, along with two topics to be discussed in open forum. The debate will conclude with the candidates closing statements. Due to the limited size of the studio, the public will not be allowed in.

The debate will be simulcast live on channels 8 & 10 – with replays on channel 8 at 9 and 11 p.m. Oct. 27.

That's something that should have been discussed. There are ways to address it. There are models to look at to address this issue. The deal that's been struck is a great deal but it's the execution I am concerned with. Doing a 1.6 billion downtown it's going to need management and follow through."

Koch said:

"This downtown plan has been called a model nationally. It is a model because we worked hard on how we are changing the way we do urban development. It will not cost one dollar to property tax owners. It will create 15,000 jobs for the region, 5,700 permanent jobs 4,100 construction jobs which are union, which 25 percent will be Quincy residents. "It will generate additional taxes to the city's coffers, which helps us put teachers in the classroom, police on the streets and firemen in the apparatus and keep our services going to the people of this city."

Support or oppose a new running track at Faxon Field.

Mahoney: When came to the school committee in 2008 she went and knocked on neighbor's doors and found they were not only concerned but also scared about the flooding issue. "We need to bring the neighbors to the table and discuss it," said Mahoney. "If they bring it back to school committee I will sit there and listen. But unless they sit down and meet the needs of the neighborhood and not the school committee then I suggest I probably wont'support the Faxon Field situation." She went on to add that a hydrological study needs to be done and an equalization pipe needs to be put into the field.

Koch said:

"(A track at Faxon Field would be a) great addition to the campus of Quincy High School. It is a terrific location, and engineers have dealt with the needs of the neighborhood.

"Not only does the track have no effect on the flooding, we in our capital improvement program, are dealing with that flooding for that neighborhood. The kids have waited long enough – let's get it done."

A question submitted by a Quincy resident asked that after a recent Boston listing that placed Quincy school district at 108 out of 135 how do the two, being a part of the school committee, explain that showing, and what do they propose the city do to improve it.

THANK YOU - Pastor Nathan Pipho and the members of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 308 West Squantum St., North Quincy, thank their neighbors for participating in their fourth annual door-to-door Food Drive. Members of the congregation were in the neighborhood Oct. 15 collecting canned goods and non-perishable food items for the Pantry Shelf of Interfaith Social Services (ISS). Members also received donations dropped off directly at the church. "A big thank you to our neighbors," said Pastor Nathan Pipho. "We filled almost 40 boxes full of food and received many monetary donations as well. It's heartening to see people so generous." In addition to the food, Thrivent Financial for Lutherans, a non-profit financial services organization, participated in the project with an additional cash grant to Interfaith Social Services of $1,000. Anyone wishing to participate may drop donations off at the church Tuesdays from 9 a.m. to noon or Wednesdays from 3 to 6 p.m. between now and Thanksgiving. Contact the church office at 617-328-8348 for further information.

DPU Public Hearing On National Grid Storm Reponse At Quincy High School Oct. 25

The Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities has scheduled a public heaering in Quincy Tuesday, Oct. 25 concerning National Grid's preparation and response to Tropical Storm Irene.

The hearing, at the request of Council President Kevin Coughlin, will be held at Quincy High School Oct. 25 beginning at 7 p.m.

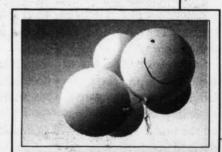

As a result of a detailed formal petition filed by Coughlin with the DPU, the agency has ordered an investigation of National Grid. It is the second time in the last nine months such an inquiry has been ordered regarding the company's performance in the aftermath of storm events.

More than 8,200 Quincy customers were without power, some for up to six days, in the wake of Tropical Storm Irene.

The DPU is seeking public comment with regard to the impacts of the power outages upon residents.

Finally fed up enough to move your checking account to another bank?

The new free checking account customers we're seeing lately have something in common. They're aggravated beyond belief with their old bank. They've had it with not being able to call their branch directly. They're sick of the constant staff turnover. When their old bank dropped overdraft protection and started charging monthly fees, these folks got fed up and decided to make a change too. They came to Colonial Federal - where free checking is convenient, easy and still free. You get everything you're accustomed to, without the aggravation. You can come see us or call any time. We answer our own phones, no call center. We'll even help you move your Direct Deposit/s. Our customers love being with a neighborhood bank that's 100% local, stable and strong. # Ayers And His Long Island Bridge Crusade t's something he hopes he never has to say. "I told you so."

The "it" is the decaying Long Island Bridge. The "he" is state Rep. Bruce Ayers.

For Ayers, who has served the 1st Norfolk District that includes parts of Quincy since 1999, the bridge is more than bad fiscal policy.

It's an accident waiting to happen. Replacing the 60-year old bridge - ranked among the worst in the state – AYERS has become a personal crusade for Ayers. He wants the Boston-owned structure torn down and access to the island – which is a part of Boston – to be replaced by water ferry.

"Boston is wasting money on repairing the bridge. The bridge abuts my district and it's always been an issue for me," Ayers said.

"As a legislator, I'm trying to cut out government waste and I'm trying to expose that. In the City of Boston, they're closing schools and laying off police and firemen, closing libraries but they're spending $3 million a year on patch repairs to a bridge that's served its purpose."

Replacing the bridge could cost taxpayers as much as $50 million, Ayers said. Just the annual upkeep runs well into seven figures.

"They're spending millions and millions of dollars every year to keep it going when a ferry service would be much more economical and safer. We all know the bridge is in terrible condition. I have a report from the Mass. Department of Transportation that it's one of the worst bridges in the state.

"I'm taking information that I have access to that I've researched and putting it on the table so people can see that it's an issue that needs to be addressed. It makes good economic sense and we need to do something before someone gets hurt."

Ayers acknowledges the Long Island Bridge issue is an uphill fight. Keeping the bridge intact is backed by Boston Mayor Tom Menino who wields considerable political influence.

Still, Ayers is buoyed by some common-sense optimism.

"I'm hopeful some of the Boston representatives or councillors will feel the same way (about eliminating the bridge.) That we better address this now before something happens."

Ayers has taken a key step toward bringing the bridge issue to a head. The Quincy Democrat has filed legislation that would require the Massachusetts Department of Transportation to increase the number of inspections on the bridge from three to six annually. If the bridge is deemed unsafe, then access would be stopped and a ferry service would instead be implemented.

The Quincy Sun assumes no financial responsibility for typographical errors in advertisements but will reprint that part of an advertisement in which the typographical error occurs. The bill is currently before the Joint Committee on Transportation.

The Long Island Bridge is the principal means of access to Long Island from Moon Island which is next to Squantum. During the summer months, the city of Boston busses 600 kids through Squantum to Long Island for outdoor recreational opportunities. The bridge also accommodates vehicle traffic for social services on the island including the homeless and the Department of Social Services.

The Boston Bomb Squad has also transported devices through Quincy streets to detonate them on Long Island.

Ayers believes all these groups would be better served by water transportation to Long Island. He also advocates opening the island to the public.

"It could be used much more for recreational use, fishing, hiking, camping. There are historic forts out there. It's a beautiful island and the residents of Quincy and Squantum should have the right to go out there, just like all the other Harbor islands.

"It's not being used to its full potential and that's a shame."

But right now, Ayers' thoughts are focused on the bridge which to him is a taxpayer sinkhole and a public safety liability.

Ayers noted the Long Island Bridge is the same steel truss arch design as the Minneapolis bridge that collapsed in 2007, killing 13 people. Long Island Bridge is 20 years older than the one that collapsed.

"We have 500 bridges in Massachusetts that need to be repaired. Long Island Bridge is one that doesn't have the volume of traffic (to warrant replacing it). To replace that again would be another $40 to $50 million and that would be a misuse of taxpayers' money.

"I hope this bill forces the Boston people to take another look at it and say, 'let's look at the facts. How old is it? Are we getting a return on our investment? What's our contingency plan? There's already a pier out there. There are ferry services up and down the South Shore. You could lease a ferry boat and one could be implemented very easily."

Time, Ayers said, is of the essence.

"Right now, what I'm hearing from my constituents, debris is falling into the water. The (state DOT) report backs that up. There's not enough inspections being done on the bridge.

"Unfortunately, for a lot of people, it's out of sight, out of mind. But if you talk to people who drive over the bridge, and I have, and people who have gone under it in a boat, it's a maritime hazard. It's just as dangerous going over it as it is under it. And it's wasting taxpayer money."

The Long Island Bridge is not the only issue on Ayers' legislative plate.

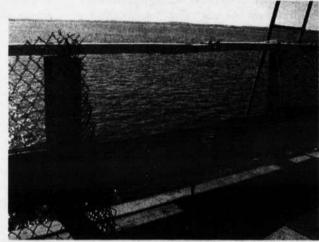

He's also filed a bill that would double the fine for violators who park in handicapped spaces from $100 to $200. The approach is two-pronged: Ayers said the heftier fine should be a deterrent for potential violators, especially repeat offenders. But for those who park illegally in a handicapped space, the fines would generate revenue to make municipalities more American Disability Act (ADA) compliant.

"The bill is going through the process," Ayers said. "It had a hearing before the Joint Committee on Transportation. It seemed to be well received by committee members because it won't cost anything. It's a way to generate funds without costing the state. What better way than to put it on the backs of these people who commit these violations."

Ayers said half of the proposed $200 fine would go back to cities and towns to help make handicapped improvements, such as curb cuts, wheelchair ramps, elevators, parking spots, renovating bathrooms and wheelchair lifts to help veterans and seniors and others.

"I serve on the Joint Committee of Elder Affairs so I hear a lot about access for cities and towns and no way to implement these costs," Ayers aid. "This is one way to start a certain amount to offset these expenses.

"We're not raising taxes, we're not raising fees and we're bringing our cities and towns up to (handicapped accessibility) code."

Public service certainly has a down-side. It can a rough and tumble when budgets are trimmed and resources scarce. But on the positive side, Ayers has maintain a philosophy of lending a helping hand to those in need.

He's active in many fraternal and community organizations including the Quincy Lodge of Elks where he has served as chairman of the scholarship committee for 15 years. He also started a small in-kind program called Quincy Helping Hand that helps defray the cost of healthcare. The program provides free, durable medical equipment to seniors and veterans who can't afford these items.

Ayers is also involved with a Christmas Toy Drive. Every winter, Ayers works with the schools and seniors collecting toys and distributing them to the needy.

He's also forged school partnerships such as a Read to Ride Program with the elementary schools in his disrict.

"We work together focusing on the importance of reading. We have a contest – the student who reads the most books during the summer wins a free bicycle."

Ayers has owned a small business - Ayers Handicapped Conversion Center - for 30 years.

His mind-set is the same whether he's running his business or representing constituents.

"Treat your costumers right, they're going to come back to you. Treat your constituents right, they'll support you, too."

THIS OLD POSTCARD was published in 1912 by Gilbert Shunk who was a local news dealer with a shop on Newport Avenue in Wollaston. The view is of Brook Street looking west from Arlington Street. This street got its name from Sachem Brook, which meandered along here from the Montclair peat bogs to Wollaston Beach. When The Wollaston Land Co. subdivided this area into house lots in the 1890's, the brook was buried in pipes that run under the backyards of the houses on the left. In the 1920's, a business block was built on the lot on the left, now the location of Andre's Variety Store. Brook Street is one of five 50-foot wide streets that were laid out west to east by the land company; they had originally named Holbrook Road, Broadway. At the time there were no automobiles and it doesn't seem there was a need for such width on residential streets. In this view, only one horse-drawn wagon can be seen using the entire street. However, thanks to someone's vision, this street today accommodates parked cars on both sides with ample space for two travel lanes. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Quincy Animal Shelter Road Race, Dog Walk Sunday

The Quincy Animal Shelter, Inc., will hold its third annual Cause 4 Paws 5K Road Race and 1 Mile Dog Walk Sunday, Oct. 23 at DCR's scenic Squantum Point Park, Marina Bay, Quincy.

The event is sponsored again this year by Quarry Hills Animal Hospital, Quincy. Serving as emcee will be Channel 7 News Anchor Sorboni Banerjee.

Registration/check-in begins at 8:30 a.m. with the run starting at 10 a.m. followed by the Walk at 10:15 a.m.

The 5K run begins at DCR's Squantum Point Park, proceeds through picturesque Squantum and then back to the Park. It is a professionally timed, USATF sanctioned run.

The one-mile walk, being lead by dogs adopted through the Shelter, will go through the Park and back to the starting point.

There will be prizes, raffles, vendors, dog agility course, refreshments, pet photo tent and a Quincy Police K-9 demonstration.

Hundreds of participants of all ages and breeds, from all around the Boston metro area, including numerous press outlets, come to partake in this outing in support the Quincy Animal Shelter.

A prize will be awarded to the dog that is judged to be wearing the best Halloween or Celebrity Look Alike costume.

"The Cause 4 Paws is a very special and popular event where friends, families and their dogs all come together at beautiful Squantum Point Park to show their support for the Shelter," said Board Representative Sandra Morse. "In addition to vital financial contributions, it raises awareness about animal welfare and the benefits of adopting.

"We are also delighted to have Dr. Judie Paulauski of Quarry Hills Animal Hospital and her staff—as official sponsor of the event again this year. Their generous contribution, and that of other donors, allows us to continue to care for displaced animals in the area.

"Sorboni Banerjee, Channel 7 News emceeing the event will not only bring attention to the Cause 4 Paws but also to the Shelter itself," Morse added.

Quarry Hills Animal Hospital is delighted to sponsor the Cause 4 Paws ain this year" said Dr Indie Paulauski, Quarry Hills Animal Hospital. "This event not only helps raise funding that is so critical to the Shelter's efforts to provide care and a safe haven for homeless animals but it also offers the community an opportunity to show their support for the Shelter and its mission. Quarry Hills is pleased to have a working relationship with the Quincy Animal Shelter, in addition to other Shelters in the area, and shares their commitment in providing exceptional treatment to animals in their care."

All dogs that enjoy the company of other dogs, are leashed, licensed, in good physical condition and up to date on all vaccinations are welcome. Leave cats and small animals safely and comfortably at home.

Register or make pledges online at quincyanimalshelter.org. The registration fee is a $25 donation with children under 12 free.

The participant who raises the most pledges will be awarded a prize valued at

All proceeds from this event will be used for the direct care and adoption of Shelter cats and dogs, including the cost of food, medications, medical examinations and training.

For more information about this event visit quincyanimalshelter.org or call 617-376-1349.

Just a complaint (YES COMPLAINT) about voters who cannot vote in English??

If somebody Spanish, Chinese, whoever becomes a citizen they are supposed to speak and write in English then why does the city-state-country have to pay the cost for ballots to be printed in some other language?? Hire interperters?? And whatever else? Do we not have a national language of English??

World wide in every international airport tower they use the English language for comunication. Why do we accept people in this country not bothering to learn the national language—they can keep there own language alive in there homes, clubs, churches—wherever but on the steets in the stores, etc it's ENG-LISH.

City Salary Survey Planned By Mayor

By FRANK McCAULEY

A committee will be appointed to make a general salary survey, preparatory to giving all city employees pay raises in 1947, according to plans outlined by Mayor Charles A. Ross at an executive meeting of the city council, sitting as the finance committee, last night in his office.

This Week 1946 65 Years Ago

According to the plan of Mayor Ross, the committee will consist of seven persons. Three will be appointed by the mayor, three will be appointed by the council and Mayor Ross would act as ex-officio chairman.

Several weeks ago the mayor announced his intention of giving all of the city's 1,800 regular employees a general raise in 1947. The rising cost of living makes it necessary. "The purpose of this Committee is to find facts upon which it can make a recommendation for fair general adjustment of salaries," Mayor Ross said.

FERRIS Vs. DICKSON IN WORLD SERIES GAME 7

Little Murray Dickson, a pitcher with a fighting heart and a 14-game arm, and big Dave Ferris, a 25-game winner, went out after the seventh and deciding contest of the World Series today with the St. Louis Cardinals and the Boston Red Sox tied at three games all.

Dickson was Manager Eddie Dye's choice to make his first season as a big-time manager a success. It was the second time in the series the two hurlers faced each other. In the third game Dickson gave up three runs in the first inning, and was charged with the loss as Ferris pitched a 4-0 shutout.

The weather forecast for the final game: clear and warmer. (Editor's note: The Cardinals won the final game of the World Series by a score of 4-3. Enos Slaughter scored the eventual winning run when he scored all the way from first base on an outfield hit. Shortstop Johnny Pesky, who received the relay from the outfield, hesitated before throwing to the plate, allowing Slaughter to score. # Casino Night Benefit Raises $95,000 For Emergency Food Center, Housing Program

More than 250 guests went "all in" for charity at Quincy Community Action Programs' "Raising the Stakes" Casino Night Fundraiser Oct. 6. The event, held at Granite Links Golf Club in Quincy, raised more than $95,000 in much-needed funds that will benefit QCAP's programs.

"On behalf of Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP), I want to extend our heartfelt appreciation to the many friends of QCAP who have given generously of their time, financial support, and inkind donations," said Josephine Shea, QCAP's Board President. "We have been humbled by the outpouring of support."

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti served as the Master of Ceremonies, taking the stage to help to promote the more than 100 silent auction items, including an LCD television donated by Hancock TV & Appliance, artwork donated by Tony Andrade and Richard Sheehan, gift certificates to the Boston Marriott Quincy Hotel, Best Western Adams Inn, and other hotels, sports memorabilia and tickets, gift certificates to many local Quincy restaurants, gift baskets, and a host of other items, all donated by members of the community.

The live auction items featured a private dinner for eight guests prepared at the winner's home by Executive Chef Paul Wahlberg, of Alma Nove and Wahlburgers renown, as well as trips to Aruba and Florida, and coveted suite tickets to watch the Boston Bruins take on rival Montreal. When not placing bids at the auction, guests could also hedge their bets at the number of professional casino tables, using QCAP tokens of "play money" or "funny money," or purchase 50/50 and other raffle tickets.

Facing $300,000 in public funding cuts, proceeds from Thursday's fundraiser will benefit QCAP's Emergency Food Center and its Housing Program, which provides first-time homebuyer counseling, rental assistance, and safe and affordable housing for area families. And, at a time when mortgage default notices in Massachusetts surged 62 percent in the first two quarters of 2011 according to RealtyTrac -QCAP's Housing Program has been an essential lifeline to residents offering mortgage foreclosure prevention and mitigation services.

"We face an unprecedented time of trying to meet high demand for our services while public funding is being reduced," said QCAP Executive Director Beth Ann Strollo.

"Thanks to the contributions from our generous donors, we can continue to support area families and strengthen our community."

Among the evening's guests were Cong. William Keating, state Sen. John Keenan, state Reps. Bruce Ayers and Tackey Chan, Mayor Thomas Koch, City Councillors Kevin Coughlin, Douglas Gutro, Margaret Laforest, Michael McFarland, and Brian Palmucci; Quincy School Committee Member Barbara Isola, former Cong. William Delahunt, and former Massachusetts State Treasurer Timothy Cahill.

The event's benefactors included Bank of Canton, Eastern Bank, Intercontinental Management, the Law Office of George G. Burke, and the Stop & Shop

Supermarket Company, as well as more than 100 partner, supporter, and friend sponsors, program ad book contributors, and other valuable donors.

Amanda Brandi Commended By Merit Scholarship Program

Fontbonne Academy senior, Amanda Brandi of Quincy, has been commended by the National Merit Scholarship Program.

She is being recognized for her exceptional academic promise by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, by placing in the top five percent of more than 1.5 million students who took the 2010 Preliminary SAT (PSAT).

Amanda is not only in many AP courses this year, but is extremely active in the Fontbonne community. She is a member of Fontbonne's Select Chorus, one of the Chief Editor's of Fontbonne's literary magazine, "Stylus," a Peer Educator and a tutor in Math, English and History (she tutors up to four afternoons per week). She is a member of The Good Fountain Players, the drama troupe at Fontbonne, and will be playing the bumbling Detective Fix in the fall production of "Around the World in Eighty Days" in November.

Outside of school, Amanda has been a volunteer for the Blue Hills Trailside Museum in Milton for a number of years, and is an advocate for animal rights and understanding.

One of Amanda's more unusual accomplishments is that she is an Assistant Teacher for grade nine Global History classes, teaching once per cycle. She was recognized at the end of her ninth grade by History Chairperson Liz Pilla because her essays were so highly analytical, and because her passion for the subject was undeniable. Amanda began assistant teaching when she was in tenth grade to leverage her knowledge and enthusiasm. She worked with the History teachers to help write the History curriculum for ninth grade. Amanda has loved it, and continues to assistant teach her senior year.

During the summer of 2010, before junior year, Amanda was a participant in the Bard College at Simon's Rock Writing Program - she had also been accepted by the Kenyon College Young Writers Program, another prestigious and competitive pre-college program. As a result of the quality of her work and participation, Amanda was extended the unique opportunity to attend Bard College beginning at the end of her junior year in high school, an honor which she chose to decline so that she could complete her secondary studies at Font-

Throughout high school Amanda has chosen to consistently challenge herself. She has taken numerous online honors courses in literature and writing, and has earned the respect of many teachers.

As she looks forward to college next year, the one thing she knows for certain is that she will major in Literature, a topic for which she has an insatiable interest. The list of schools she is considering both within the U.S. and abroad is lengthy, and the one she ultimately chooses to attend will be very fortunate to have her.

Suzie's Brown Rice Crusted Vegetable Pizza

Most of us love pizza - I know my family does. Anyway, my daughter Suzie has contrived a most delicious pizza made with a short grain brown rice crust.

She used the short grain rice because it comes out more creamy and easy to mix with the other ingredients.

The topping for this pizza can be either the original one with tomato and cheese or the vegetable one that Suzie made.

BROWN RICE VEGETABLE PIZZA

3 cups cooked short grain brown rice (She used Lundbergs)

2 eggs (beaten)

1/4 teaspoon garlic powder

1-teaspoon basil

½ cup shredded mozzarella cheese and also some for the topping

1-tablespoon olive oil

1 cup or so of tomato sauce

Cook rice according to directions. Cool completely before adding the rest of the ingredients except for the tomato sauce. Mix well and then spread it on a greased cookie sheet the shape of a pizza. Press down until even on the sides.

Bake in 400-degree oven for 8-10 min-

Remove from the oven and then top it and bake also in a 400-degree oven until done. For the topping, Suzie uses thinly sliced zucchini, mushrooms and red peppers. Top it with tomato sauce and then the cheese. Cool before cutting.

Providence Brigade Band Concert Tonight

The Providence Brigade Band will perform a free concert for all ages tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Originally chartered as a community band in 1847, the band continues the tradition by performing in the style of early American brass bands, emphasizing the music of the Civil War era. Band members dress in military uniforms of the period and play period instruments. The band brings to life a critical chapter of our country through its music, along with facts, anecdotes, and the legends of the songs and composers of the time

This free concert is presented as part of Civil War 150, a special program series at the library about this critical chapter in our country's history.

The series has been made possible through a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the American Library Asso-

Garden Club Seeks Entries For National Essay Contest

The Wollaston Garden Club is encouraging entries from high school students from Quincy for the 2011 National Garden Club's Essay Contest.

This year's contest theme is "The Benefits of Community Gardens." Each year, a $1,000 NGC Scholarship is awarded to the nation win-

The contest is open to all high school students attending 9th through 12th grades. If the winner of the $1,000 scholarship is an underclassman, the $1,000 scholarship will be held by the NGC, Inc., without accrued interest, until such time that the student enters college.

The second place winner will receive $100.

Club will sponsor any interested Quincy student essay writer.

The essay must be between 600 and 700 words. All entries must be typed and titled. Essays are judged for content (knowledge of subject, practically of proposal, originality, well organized/ clarity of presentation); composition (vocabulary and conformance to length); and manuscript (entrant's information and neatness).

More detailed information is available at http:// www.gardenclub.org/youth/ contests/essaycontest/aspx.

Students should write the essay so it is suitable to be published in the NGC publication, The National Gardener. All entries be-The Wollaston Garden come the property of National Garden Club, Inc. The theme for next year's NGC Essay Contest is "Ways We Can Protect Aquatic Ecosystems."

Local entries must be mailed to the Wolfaston Garden Club, P.O. Box 147, Wollaston, MA 02170 by the deadline of Tuesday,

The Wollaston Garden Club will send each entrant acknowledgement of their essay submission.

Essays will then be forwarded to the state and national chairs.

'The Colorful, Controversial Career Of John Paul Jones' Program Oct. 27

Quincy Historical Society will present the story of the American Revolution's remarkable naval commander, John Paul Jones, at its next meeting, Thursday, Oct. 27, at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy in Quincy

Bob Begin, who previously presented the story of the first U.S.S. Qincy at the Historical Society, will discuss the many facets of

Jones' character and career; his ambition, his penchant for schemes, his ability to execute ingenious plans, and above all, his courage and ferocity in engaging the enemy.

Jones provoked various reactions among his contemporaries. English writers labeled him a pirate. John Adams once considered him an ambitious intriguer. Franklin and Jefferson admired him.

One biographer concluded: "His devotion to the flag of the United States is as unquestionable as his daring."

Begin will tell Jones' story, noting both strengths and shortcomings and highlighting Jones' significant contributions to the American Revolution.

The public is welcome to attend. Admission is free.

Common Goals And Helping Hands: The Vigilers And The Occupiers

Food for thought.

With the news that the Boston Archdiocese has turned off the heat and turned off the lights at St. James The Great, Wellesley, comes the realization that Vigilers and Occupiers share common issues. I think the common thread between the two groups is an appreciation for the difference between right and wrong.

The Vatican has given Archdioceses and the government has given "Wall Street" the license to to take advantage of their followers and then turn their back and shut their eyes and ears to that reality and, therefore, to those who are the very foundation of their existence. The Archdioceses and "Wall Street" have been given license to practice without accountabil-

Is there a difference between taking the taxpayers money to pay for a bailout or taking the Catholic faithful's churches for payoff for abuse cases?

It is apparent that, not unlike the Vigilers, the Occupiers are in it for the long haul and while they may not yet, as a group, be on the same page as far as agenda and causes are concerned, they have had enough manipulation by a government that has made poor choices, at the people's expense, that has caused loss of jobs, loss of homes, loss of health care and a myriad of other losses

I have a personal agenda. There is a church on the island-like peninsula of Squantum that was shuttered on Sept. 5, 2010. Although I am not a practicing Catholic, can say that this church, Mary Star of the Sea, is an integral part of community life. It should not have been closed. That is the personal side, but I feel that given the reason for the closings, none of the churches should have been closed.

City, National Grid At Odds Over Concourse Wiring

gus, but that National Grid inflated the anticipated cost by tens of thousands of dol-

Harrington said an independent consultant reviewed the project and found "at least a 30-35% overcharge for the National Grid work (estimate)."

At issue is the plan for new wiring for the Revere Road area through the conduit under the newly constructed Hannon Parkway and National Grid's cost estimate of $1.185 million.

"National Grid suggests they are not responsible," Harrington said, citing three months of correspondence with National Grid's New England Project Engineer Avo Osimboni.

"The courts have consistently held that when directed to do so, a utility must remove or relocate its facilities laying in the public way at its own expense," Harrington stated in an Oct. 12 letter to Osimboni.

On Monday, Harrington cited Verizon's action as a good example of a utility. He stated that Verizon absorbed the $2.6 million cost of installing its new wiring under the Hannon Parkway.

However, Osimboni asserted that National Grid is not responsible for the cost in a Sept. 20 letter when he wrote, "We consulted with our legal department and they responded that it is well settled statutory law that Massachusetts Electric Company, d/b/a/ National Grid ("National Grid") is not required to pay for the cost of under-grounding electric distribution facilities."

At Harrington's request Monday, city councillors approved an order abandoning the location of the National Grid poles on Revere Road, thereby withdrawing its permission for National Grid to locate poles and wires.

Harrington notified National Grid of his plan in his most recent letter, "Please be advised that the City of Quincy will not authorize a grant for the installation of overhead utilities along Walter J. Hannon Parkway and it is not required to do

When the underground wiring is installed, that will not require any disruption of the Hannon Parkway, according to city officials.

In an official response on the issue, National Grid's spokesperson Deborah Drew acknowledged the importance of the parkway to the city and said the company will continue working toward a resolution.

ballots as determined by the 2010 census which reported the Asian population at over 22,000 or roughly 24% of the total population.

Under the federal Voting Rights Act, that translates into five percent or more of the "voting age citizens who speak another language and have little or no proficiency in English...." and, therefore, requires that voters be offered a choice of languages.

Shea said Tuesday that he had been expecting the order after the data from the 2010 census was finalized and revealed the growth in the city's Asian population.

However, he said that he had not received any requests from the city's Asian community for the change.

"They can only do it every 10 years," Shea said of the state and federal orders. He noted that the city's Asian population was "a little short in 2000."

Chinese language ballots will not be available for next month's municipal elections, as the state has just ordered the change. The candidates' names will not be translated on these ballots.

"I think they were waiting for the federal government to act," said Shea.

Shea said the city will print 55,000 ballots in both languages for the March primaries and in every election following that until further notice. Next month, the translations will be posted in each of the city's 30 precincts, but all ballots will be in English.

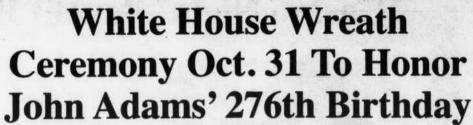

The translations will be handled by Galvin's office, according to Nicole Crispo, Administrative Assistant for elections. Crispo noted that the two major Chinese languages, Cantonese and Mandarin, share the same alphabet as do many Asian languages including that of the Vietnamese. For that reason, only one translation is necessary.

Quincy is one of 11 municipalities in Massachusetts required to provide bilingual access to voting, according to Crispo who said that 10 other cities and towns must provide alternate information and ballots in Spanish.

"We're the only ones (translating) Chinese," said Crispo who attended a daylong forum on the legal aspects of the federal law sponsored by the Massachusetts Association of City and Town Clerks.

Crispo said that the instructions will not only be posted but will also be available for voters with disabilities through Auto-MARK. The AutoMARK system allows disabled voters to choose instructions via headphones and vote by touch screen, a sip/puff device or keyboard. Now those machines will ask the voter to choose a language for instructions.

While the Chinese voting instructions and ballots may be a first for Massachusetts, they've been required for almost a decade in cities in California and Illinois.

By order of the White House, a wreath from the President of the United States will be laid on the tomb of President John Adams to honor the 276th anniversary of his birthday at a ceremony Monday, Oct. 31, at noon, at United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents", in Quincy – where both John Adams and John Quincy Adams are interred with their wives.

Commander Scott Graham, Commanding Officer, Navy Operational Center, Quincy, will speak on behalf of President Barack Obama. A U.S. Navy honor guard will lay the White House wreath on the tomb of President John Adams. Commander Matthew Bonner, Commanding Officer, USS Constitution, will also offer remarks.

Other speakers include Quincy Mayor Thomas P. Koch; Robert Karachuk, Associate Editor of the Adams Papers at the Massachusetts Historical Society; John Adams, Adams Memorial Society; Rev. Sheldon Bennett, Minister, United First Parish Church, and Lilli Ann Plourde, a student at the Woodward School for Girls in Quincy.

The Navy Brass Ensemble, Newport, R.I., and members of the Quincy Choral Society will provide music for the occasion.

Rev. Sheldon Bennett, Minister, said, "We honor John Adams as a leader for Independence, author of the Massachusetts Constitution, and second President. Our task today is to assure that the democracy he helped build 235 years ago remains truly representative, equal, and fair for all of its citizens and those to follow."

Rev. Bennett added, "This church was important to the two Adams Presidents and their families."

The tradition of the White House wreath began in the 1960's. President Lyndon Johnson directed that a large red, white, and blue laurel wreath from the White House be placed with due ceremony each year on the graves of each of the deceased U.S. Presidents on their birthday anniversaries.

President John Adams was born in Quincy (at that time the North Precinct of old Braintree) on Oct. 30, 1735, which this year falls on Sunday. The ceremony will be held at noon on Monday, Oct. 31st.

The ceremony is free and open to the public. Attendees may visit the crypt and tombs of the Presidents and First Ladies after the ceremony.

Business Workshop Oct. 26

The Quincy Chamber of Commerce will host a workshop entitled "Getting Started in Business" Wednesday, Oct. 26 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Quincy High School, second floor Adams Lecture Hall, 100 Coddington St.

The workshop is free but pre-registration required.

Call 617-471-1700 for more information.

The workshop is especially tailored for start-up businesses and individuals thinking about launching a business. Attendees will learn about the different components that comprise a business plan and will learn ways to overcome the many challenges that starting a new business presents.

The workshop will be presented by Michael Dimino, Senior Business Advisor, UMass Boston Small Business Development Center.

And we can't afford his lack of vision

As mayor, Tom Koch laid off hundreds of city workers. At the same time, his own family took home a million dollars a year in taxpayer-funded salaries and overtime each year. Just last week it was reported that Koch's sister-in-law was appointed Associate Director of Nursing at Quincy College—receiving a 37% pay boost—even though she's not a nurse.

Anne Mahoney knows that in the real world, nobody's getting 37% raises—especially when they don't meet the qualifications for the job. As your mayor, Anne will put a stop to outrageous salaries and overtime for well-connected city employees. She'll implement new policies prohibiting patronage and nepotism. She'll publicly post all available city positions and hire only the most qualified applicants. And she'll never lose sight of the fact that her primary responsibility is to represent ALL Quincy residents, not the well-connected few.

At Crane Library Through The End Of Month

Woodward School Art Exhibit Displays Student Masterpieces

By EMILY TAFT

Art students of the Woodward School are happy to be displaying their masterpieces throughout October in the Coletti Reading Room at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center.

Art teacher Erin Massa instructs students from grades 6-12 in creating art of all types through out the school year. As the only art teacher at the Woodward School, Massa has her hands full, but said she wouldn't want to be doing anything

"It has evolved into more than just the art program at our school. English classes came to the library to do a writing assignment on their favorite piece. It has been embraced by the whole school," said Massa. "I am very happy with the end re-

Massa, a graduate of Colby Sawyer College, has been the art teacher at the school for eight years. Although she went to school for photography, she says it has taken a back seat to teaching, and has become more of a hobby than anything else.

This is the first year the works of art have been displayed at the library and Massa hopes it won't be the

"I have always wanted to do an art show at the library. After someone decided to not use the space here I received a call asking if we wanted to do something," said Massa. "I only had about two weeks to put this together. It all came together nicely."

The work on display was picked by Massa, but the ultimate decision she said is left up to the students who created each piece, some were winners of the artist of the month.

"I made the suggestion to the students whose pieces I thought would best suit the event," said Massa. "A lot of my students were humbled, surprised and honored when I asked them if they wanted to participate. A lot of them don't believe they are talented."

Each piece is unique and different from the next, and from different assignments given through out the year, with at least one girl from each grade represented, and even some who had just graduated.

"The art program is a really great program," said seventh grader Lindsey Downey of Quincy. "There are some projects that I enjoy doing that others in my class didn't. There is something for everyone."

Another student from Quincy, 10th grader Katelyn Hegarty, said: "Art is my favorite subject in school. It is so relaxing for me." Standing near the exhibit, Hegarty described her artwork.

"The picture I have here is called 'scratch art.' It's a black piece of paper and underneath there are colors. I found a picture I really liked on my phone and tried to make mine smaller, but I also wanted to make it look like it was melting."

Eighth grade student Jillian Fabiano had four of her pieces on display. The one that stood out, and was her favorite, was made of tiny pieces of paper that came together to make a picture of Venice, Italy.

"This picture took me about a month to make," said Fabiano. "We had to come up with a place, an animal, and a random object to fit into the picture. My favorite type of art to create is water colors."

Fabiano managed to incorporate an owl in the picture as her animal, a boot and volcano as her random objects, but looking at the picture you wouldn't think these objects didn't belong.

For 11th grader Kate Dunn, art has become more than just a hobby or something she is required to create in school.

Dunn is another student of Massa that has more than one piece of art on display this month. Her favorite is an acrylic painting where the assignment was to draw an emotion. She decided to draw a teacup, which she said was something that was calming, and soothing to her, and something she loves to drink.

Dunn said art is something she will continue to explore, and it is something she wants to be serious about in the future.

"I have become more obsessed with art, and drawing this year than previous years," said Dunn. "I spent most of my summer drawing. I want to major in art when I go to college, but I also want to major in another subject as well."

The Woodward School art program also holds an art show every spring, the last Wednesday of April, where many pieces are auctioned off, and prizes are handed out to the pieces picked.

"The evening was a success. A lot of people came to support the student's artwork. A few were surprised middle school students could make art like that," said Massa. "I am very proud of the students artwork, and listening to a student talk about her artwork with friend or family was a great moment. I would like to thank everyone who came and encourage those that couldn't make it to come and see the show. It will remain up until Oct. 31."

Mayor's Cup Raises Over $50,000 For Local Charities

Mayor Thomas P. Koch announces the Mayor's Cup Charity Golf Tournament raised over $50,000, bringing the four-year total to over $200,000.

"We were fortunate to have a beautiful day for our participants, and we were able to once again bring together the business community in a spirit of charity," said Mayor Koch. "The commitment that our sponsors showed to Quincy indicates how dedicated they are to making this great City a better place."

Over the past three years, proceeds from the event have gone to numerous local charities, including:

- · The Mayor's Fuel Assistance Program
- The Quincy Education
  - Local food pantries
- The Quincy Symphony Orchestra
- The Quincy Choral Society
- The Quincy Animal Shelter
  - DOVE
- The North Quincy High School Atrium of Honor
- Vietnam Veterans Combined Armed Forces
- Manet Community
- Health Center · The Quincy Historical Society
- The Wollaston Lutheran Senior Center

"I hear from many local charities how difficult it can be for them to raise money. They get by year to year on the slimmest of margins, and this money helps them deliver great services to Quincy residents," added Koch.

A special note of thanks goes out to the Adams ($5,000) and Quincy Adams ($2,500) Sponsors.

Council Approves $160,000 Transfer For Discover Quincy, Chamber of Commerce

Bright new fliers prepared by Discover Ouincy invite visitors to explore the city's boating, golfing, and hiking adventures, take a walking or driving tour to historic sites or to breathtaking views along the waterfront.

The fliers are part of the most recent promotion of Quincy's tourist destinations, according to Donna Mavromates, Vice President and Director of Tourism. Quincy Chamber of Commerce and Discover Quin-

Mavromates and the agency's director, Dean Rizzo, sought approval of the agency's annual funding at Monday's council meeting

Rizzo introduced Mavromates, who became the Chamber's vice president and director of tourism in June, as councillors considered a transfer of up to $160,000 for the agency's annual budget.

According to Mavromates, Discover Quincy plans more follow-up after tourists visit Quincy through surveys and she said that new efforts are targeting foreign visitors. As an example, Mavromates described her recent meetings with United Kingdom tour agents as well as visitors from Canada. Both she and councillors reported a significant increase in visitors from Germany.

The city's funds are raised through the city's Hotel/Motel tax and account for less than a third of the agency's roughly $500,000 annual budget.

Councillors unanimously approved the transfer after Auditor Sue O'Connor said that the city would collect sufficient funds by the end of December to cover the transfer.

Discover Quincy, the tourism office of the Ouincy Chamber of Commerce, recently produced the new brochures that give visitors to Quincy a fresh look at the many different activities and places that Quincy has to offer.

"Discover Quincy produced a version of the walking and driving tours last year in response to requests from visitors who were looking for things to do in the immediate area while they were waiting to take a trolley tour of the Adams National Historic Park," Mavromates said.

"We revised those brochures and added a third brochure that focuses on the beautiful coastline and recreational aspects of Quin-

The Walking Tour of Quincy takes visitors to the National Historical Park, as well as the Thomas Crane Public Library, the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, the United First Parish Church, Hancock Cemetery and many statues and markers along the way.

The Driving Tour brings visitors to all corners of the City, including Maypole Park in Merrymount, Moswetusset Hummock, Josiah Quincy House, Abigail Adams Cairn, the John Winthrop Jr. Blast Furnace, Granite Railway Incline and the U.S.S. Salem.

Brochures are available at the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, the Adams National Historical Park Visitors Center, or City Hall.

Property Protection Guidance For Winter Weather

The Insurance Insitute for Business & Home Safety (IBHS) offers these guidelines to protect property from severe winter weather.

'Winter weather can inflict substantial damage to your home or business," said Julie Rochman, president & CEO of IBHS. "Preparing now, while cooler weather setting in reminds us that winter is coming, but before freezing temperatures arrive, will help you avoid costly losses.'

Ice Dams

An ice dam is an accumulation of ice at the lower edge of a sloped roof, usually at the gutter. When interior heat melts the snow on the roof, the water will run down and refreeze at the roof's edge, where temperatures are much cooler. The ice builds up and blocks water from draining off of the roof, forcing the water under the roof covering and into the attic or down the inside walls of the house. Take the following steps to decrease the likelihood that ice dams will form:

- · Keep the attic well-ventilated. The colder the attic, the less melting and refreezing on the roof.
- Keep the attic floor well-insulated to minimize the amount of heat rising through the attic from within the house.
- · As an extra precaution against roof leaks in case ice dams do form, when reroofing install an ice and water barrier under your roof covering that extends from the lowest edges of all roof surfaces to a point at least 24 inches inside the exterior wall line of the building.

Frozen Pipes

Frozen water in pipes can cause water pressure buildup between the ice blockage and the closed faucet at the end of a pipe, which leads to pipes bursting at their weakest point. Pipes in attics, crawl spaces and outside walls are particularly vulnerable to freezing in extremely cold weather. Frozen pipes can also occur when pipes are near openings in the outside wall of a building, including where television, cable or telephone lines enter the structure. To keep water in pipes from freezing, take the following steps:

- · Fit exposed pipes with insulation sleeves or wrapping to slow the heat transfer. The more insulation the better.
- · Seal cracks and holes in outside walls and foundations near water pipes with caulking.
- · Keep cabinet doors open during cold spells to allow warm air to circulate around pipes (particularly in the kitchen and bathroom).
- Keep a slow drip of water flowing through faucets connected to pipes that run through an unheated or unprotected space.
- · Drain the water system, especially if your building will be unattended during cold periods.

Is Your Roof Strong Enough?

Building age is a major factor in how much snow a roof can handle. Newer building codes provide much better guidance for estimating snow loads, particularly the increased loads near changes in roof elevations where snow drifts and snow falling from an upper roof can build up on the lower roof near the step. For flat roofs, the step-down area between roof sections is particularly susceptible to snow overload because of the tendency for ice and snow collection, especially during periods of windy weather.

Older roofs can suffer from corrosion of members and connections which can reduce its ability to resist high snow loads. Buildings with lightweight roofs, such as metal buildings or builtup roofs on bar joists generally provide less protection from overload than heavy roofs.

Guidelines to Estimate Snow Weight

- · 10 inches to 12 inches of fresh/new snow equals about 5 pounds per square foot of roof space.
- 3 inches to 5 inches of old/packed snow equals about 5 pounds per square foot of roof space.
- · Ice is much heavier, with 1 inch equaling about 1 foot of fresh snow.

Snow and Ice Removal from Roofs

IBHS recommends that property owners not attempt to climb on their roof to remove snow. A safer alternative is to use a snow rake while standing at ground level.

Visit the IBHS Severe Winter Weather page on disastersafety.org to learn more about how to protect your home or business against winter weather-related perils.

Quincy Oktoberfest Raises $11,000 For Hungry Families

Hundreds of South Shore residents celebrated Oktoberfest in Quincy recently at an event hosted by the Quincy Elks and 8th Masonic District.

The event raised over $11,000 for Interfaith Social Services' food pantry.

Tradition dictates that Oktoberfest starts the third weekend in September and ends the first Sunday of October. But where did it all begin?

According to Ofest's official website the festivities started in 1810 as a royal wedding between Crown Prince Ludwig and Princess Therese in Munich Germany. The wedding culminated in a horse race which all of Bavaria was invited to attend. Each subsequent year the Germans continued the celebration and gathered for an agricultural festival and horse race.

By 1896 that festival had turned into a carnival, and the various beer vendors had converted their small stands into beer tents. Celebrated by Beer connoisseurs the world over this year marked the 201st Oktoberfest. At the heart of the festivities there has always been a spirit of community. Diverse groups of people gather together in a celebration of thanksgiving and brotherhood. That is precisely what occurred at

THE GERMAN TRADITION of Oktoberfest was recently celebrated at an event hosted by the Quincy Lodge of Elks and the 8th Masonic District. The event raised $11,000 for Interfaith Social Services' food pantry. the Tirrell room at the third annual Quincy Oktoberfest.

Event attendees enjoyed traditional German food, various Oktoberfest beers, raffles, silent auctions, door prizes, DJs, karaoke, and bar game tournaments.

"We tried to make the event as fun as we could," said event chairman Steve Ziolkowski. As a member of the Milton Masonic Lodge and the Quincy Elks, Ziolkowski had the unique opportunity to help forge a partnership between the two organizations.

"A few years ago some of my friends and I wanted to start some type of beer tasting event, at the same time we saw a lot of people in our community who needed help. So the Elks and Masons partnered with Interfaith Social Services to start the Oktoberfest. Over the past three years this event has raised over $33,000."

Interfaith's Executive Director Rick Doane said that his organization couldn't be more pleased with the success of the event. "Our food pantry is serving more clients than at any other time in our 60 year history," said Doane. "The Elks and the Masons are fraternal organizations dedicated to fostering community and helping others. We are so grateful that they hosted this event and raised so much money for hungry South Shore families."

Interfaith Social Services is a nonreligious multiservice organization. Since 1947 their mission has been to strengthen family life and offer assistance to anyone in need. In addition to their food pantry, which feeds over 17,000 South Shore residents each year, they operate a counseling center, homelessness prevention program, career closet and thrift shop. "We strive to offer a holistic approach to overcoming poverty" said Doane.

Looking to the future of Oktoberfest and how they can build on their year's success Steve Ziolkowski said "We are already starting to plan for next year. Sam Adams, Harpoon Brewery and Burke Distributing graciously donated the beer for this year's event; and the Tirrell room has provided a wonderful venue with great food.

"However, next year, we are looking for additional sponsors and friends to help the event grow even larger and raise even more money for those in need."

This year's Quincy Oktoberfest sponsors included:
Sam Adams - Boston Beer Company, Harpoon Brewery, Burke Distributing Corp., Tirrell Room, The Green Connection, Montillio's Baking Company and Yale Appliance & Lighting,

Another Job Well Done

On Friday, Oct. 14, at approximately 6 p.m., North Quincy High School student Michael Mullaney was on Facebook when he noticed that a teenager started their comments with "Goodbye" followed by remarks that strongly suggested a suicide attempt.

Michael went to his parents and showed them the page. There were comments from many friends who questioned whether the threat was real.

Mrs. Mullaney called, "911" and told the Dispatcher her concerns about the comments. The immediate problem was that no one knew the address of the despondent youth.

Communications Dispatchers' Laurie Brancaccio and Michael Bowes, with the assistance of SIU Detective John Menz, ascertained the address and a tragedy was averted.

In cases like this, when someone is making statements that they want to, are about to or have harmed themselves, it is imperative that people take the responsibility to contact the Police and give all information available.

Many people commented that "someone" should do something, but only one person took the crucial step of getting that person help.

Nice Work, Michael!

A Job Well Done

On Friday, Oct. 7, at approximately 5 a.m., Drug Unit Detectives Coen, Barkas, Duran O'Brien, Ryan and Ward, along with Officers' Sean Glennon, Steve Rayne, Braintree Officer Siebert and his narcotics trained K-9"Lucky" assembled in the area of Waterston Avenue to execute a search warrant.

During the month of September 2011, the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit (DCU) received information that heavy motor vehicle and pedestrian traffic was occurring at this specific address. The investigation revealed that the tenant was selling crack cocaine from his apartment and this led to Detective Coen obtaining a search warrant from Quincy District Court. The search warrant authorized the police to conduct the search at any time during the night and allowed the search of any person present.

At approximately 5:35 a.m., Detective Ward approached the front door, knocked loudly and announced, "Quincy Police Search Warrant." After waiting outside the front door and not receiving an answer, Detective Ward once again knocked and announced their presence. After waiting a reasonable amount of time without anyone coming to the door, Detective Ward breached the front door. Detective Keenan then breached the rear door and entry was made into the apartment.

The suspect and his girlfriend were located in one bedroom and their 4 year-old daughter and the suspect's mother were located in another bedroom. All four occupants were secured without incident.

Detective Coen informed the suspect that a search warrant was obtained for their residence and provided him with a copy. Detective Coen then informed both the suspect and his girlfriend of their Miranda rights to which they stated they understood.

Detective O'Brien then proceeded to search the suspect and found a plastic sandwich bag containing an off-white, rock-like, substance believed to be crack cocaine, based on its appearance and packaging inside the left front pocket of the suspect's shorts. The crack cocaine amounted to approximately 3.5 grams. Additionally, Detective O'Brien located $736 in U.S. currency in the same pocket.

Detectives involved in this investigation believed that the suspect possessed the crack cocaine with the intent to distribute to others and the money was proceeds from previous drug sales. When asked if there were any more drugs inside his residence, the suspect said, "No, it's all right there," as he referred to the crack cocaine seized by Detective O'Brien. The suspect was informed that he was under arrest.

The suspect then turned to his family and said, "What can I do - I'm wrong. This is nobody's fault but mine. I'm going to change when I get out and get my GED. This (referring to his arrest) is better than being dead."

The suspect's mother then responded, "I heard them knocking, knocking, knocking and I said - this is it, this is the day." At this time, Officer Siebert and his narcotics trained K9 partner "Lucky" proceeded to scan the apartment for narcotics odor. After K9 "Lucky" showed an interest in the suspect's bedroom, the search commenced. A small amount of marijuana was located inside the apartment. Additionally, packaging materials, three cell phones, an additional $20 and residency papers for the suspect were located. The crack cocaine was field tested and tested positive for the presence of cocaine.

A total of $756 U.S. currency and three cell phones were seized pending civil forfeiture.

Officer Rayne transported the suspect, a 27 year-old Quincy resident, to the station for booking on the charges of "Possession of Class B with Intent to Distribute and Possessing a Controlled Substance with the Intent to Distribute in a School Zone."

At approximately 7:20 a.m., the search concluded. The mother of the child was advised that a report would be filed with the Department of Children and Families.

Nice Work!

Radell Pledges Increased Communication And Cooperation On Public Safety

By BRIAN RADELL

In the last six years Ward 6 has had one community meeting on public safety - that single community meeting took place last week in Squantum.

The purpose was to inform the residents of a recent rash of break-ins and attempted break-ins in the ward. Approximately 100 concerned residents attended the meeting searching for information and potential solutions to this problem.

Like my neighbors, I am also deeply concerned with what appears to be a recent crime wave, especially because I live within a block of at least one of the affected homeowners. As residents we deserve to be informed about what is happening in our neighborhood.

As a lifelong resident, I know that this has not been the case. When we are not informed, we are left to rely on hearsay, rumors, and often weeks' old publications in newspapers to find out about what is happening in our neighborhoods.

There are many recent and ongoing issues which affect the safety of our community including home break-ins, muggings in the vicinity of the North Quincy T Station, gang activity in the Billings Road area, assaults in Marina Bay, drug activity throughout the Ward and even a shooting last year at the high school. The future of our community is centered upon our ability to provide a safe and welcoming place for families to

As your next Ward 6 Councilor, I will be proactive in keeping you informed in a more timely manner and working with you to develop solutions to such public safety issues within our community.

I will respond quickly to all issues regarding public safety and quickly inform residents of any incidents that are prevalent in their neighborhoods.

I will work with the local public safety offices to monitor the events on a daily and weekly basis. We will then work together to identify hot spots and increase patrols in the appropriate area. Finally, I'm committed to maintaining the current resources we utilize within the Ward and will always fight to increase those resources.

Having an informed public is our best line of defense; it puts us on heightened alert to suspicious activities and more willing to alert the police.

I will address public safety at monthly meetings and regular newsletters.

I will utilize my website and email list to alert residents in an emergency situation, bringing, a virtual reverse 911 notification system to our Ward.

I will be accessible to you and encourage you to voice your concerns to me and work with me to develop appropriate solutions.

Finally, I will immediately convene a public meeting whenever a specific issue escalates and threatens the neighborhoods of Ward 6 - immediately, not just when it is an election year!

Editor's Note: This week's Candidates Forum focuses on press releases submitted by candidates running for seats on the city council. Next week - Oct. 27th - the Sun will publish campaign news submitted by candidates for mayor and school committee.

McNamee: 'I've Work Hard To Preserve The Character Of Ward 6 Neighborhoods'

By BRIAN McNAMEE

Ward 6 includes North Quincy, Squantum, Marina Bay and some neighboring Wollaston Streets. It is comprised of some of the city's most diverse neighborhoods and business districts.

Ward 6 is also socially and economically complex with over 500 Asian households and median household incomes amongst some of the highest and the lowest in the City. With Boston as our neighbor to the North some of the more demanding issues that face a large city often challenge Ward 6's residential quality of life.

As the ward councillor for the past six years, I have fought hard to preserve the unique character of our neighborhoods. When ever zoning matters effecting residents of Ward 6 were to come before the Zoning Board of Appeals I notified residents and held community meetings. Working with neighbors we placed 14 conditions on Fallon Ambulance's occupancy of the former Interstate Distributors site in North Quincy. With the help of neighbors in Squantum we successfully stopped variances that would have allowed the building of a 40 foot high residence on Bayside Road.

In North Quincy I fought against the sale of a rooming house until there was agreement by the new owner to evict known drug dealers. Elsewhere in that neighborhood, with the help of residents, we prevented the opening of a Burlesque dance "studio" by a former sex club owner. Today, that store front on Billings Road is a children's dance school.

Two blocks away I stopped the Boston Public Health Commission from picking up and dropping off Long Island Shelter client's at the North Quincy T. As a result, North Quincy High School students who use the T or walk by are no longer exposed to individuals with unknown backgrounds.

unknown backgrounds. When the Secretary of Transportation would not answer my phone calls and make commitments to hire State Police details to control traffic during the Neponset River Bridge Construction, I called for his resignation. Immediately thereafter the Mass DOT made commitments on the presence of details on both side of the bridge during construction to override signals and insure the orderly flow of traffic.

I insured that neighborhood opposition to the siting of a Supermarket in North Quincy was heard and led the opposition to the granting a Special Permit by the City Council. Today that very neighborhood has become a successful collection of allied health businesses with low density uses. Currently a new $9 Million health clinic is being built where there was once a proposal to store fuel trucks next to a tow truck "tow lot". The new health clinic will operate on week days only and be open during doctor's office hours 8 to 5 pm. Not only will it provide affordable health care to area residents it will provide jobs for residents of Ward 6.

To insure Marina Bay and area neighborhoods were protected from noise generated by boardwalk night clubs I authored and successfully fought for the passage of the city's first comprehensive noise ordinance. I took this one step further and created a "Special Noise District" at Marina Bay which set stricter standards for permitted decibel levels.

I look forward to the Nov. 8th election and thank the residents of Ward 6 for the privilege of representing them.

CANDIDATES FORUM - WARD 5 CITY COUNCILLOR

McCole Says 'Experience Is The Differentiator'

By NEIL McCOLE

Two weeks ago I wrote about the most common theme I've heard over the years as president of The Friends of Wollaston Beach. president of The Ward 5 Community Association, and as a candidate for Ward 5 councillor. That theme was property values, property taxes, and neighborhood integrity and it applies to every homeowner in Quincy. This week the topic is much more specific to Ward 5.

Over the last year, the most consistent concern I've heard from residents about Ward 5, is simple: Who has the experience to fill the seat being vacated by a 10 year incumbent? To me, the answer is also simple. Below I outline what I have been telling the hundreds I have spoken with at their doorstep during my "Walk the Ward" campaign.

With over 20 years of business experience, I have the real world knowledge that fits nicely into the skills and qualifications needed for an effective Councillor in these trying times. As a leader at BlueCross BlueShield of Massachusetts in Ouincy for over a decade,

I successfully led teams of dozens of people servicing millions of transactions for members, providers, insurers, and legal counsel. These transactions involved problem solving skills for inbound and outbound calls and correspondence, as well as, claim payments and adjustments, all at world class service levels. In this role, I was not only accountable for world class service, but also the oversight of budgets and cost containment activities in the hundreds of millions of dollars. My role evolved to include enterprise wide project management activity on corporate growth, facility relocation, Y2K readiness, HIPAA compliance implementation, paperless processing, disaster recovery, and more. Later, I moved on to roles that supplied me with additional relevant experience as a small business owner and an executive in higher education.

Other related experiences include being a homeowner and taxpayer in Ward 5 for over 11 years and serving as a leader in community groups for over 10 years. These experiences provided me wonderful insight into Ward 5 and the opportunity to have an impact through receiving $150,000 in grants and donations to fund projects in the Ward. Over the last 11 years I have attended hundreds of meetings and events in Ward 5 on many topics, including; Wollaston Beach, water quality, pond restoration, flooding, public safety, open space, development, schools, the downtown project, and much more. Recently, I was the only Ward 5 candidate at the dedication of the Hannon Parkway, a significant milestone marked by the attendance of political leaders past and present who had an impact on the downtown project over the years.

There were many past Ward 5 Councillors in attendance that day, but the reality is: Who has the experience to lead Ward 5 in the future with this once in a generation economic development opportunity that requires experience with problem solving, project management, budgetary analysis, and compliance? The answer is clear. I kindly ask for your vote on Nov. 8th. Preserve the Pride in Ward 5.

Hughes: A Ward Councillor Must Be In Constant Communication With Tesidents

By KIRSTEN HUGHES

A ward councilor is a resident's most direct contact resolving every day issues and cutting through government red tape. With the number of new projects happening in our city right now, it is imperative that Ward 5 have an effective advocate who is responsive and result-oriented.

As your Ward 5 councilor, I will work to resolve issues quickly and effectively. I will listen to your concerns and thoughts and return your phone calls and emails promptly. I will hold "office hours" where residents can meet with me in their neighborhood to discuss issues and ideas.

Over the past several months, I have knocked on more than a thousand doors after work, on weekends, in the sun and even during a few rain storms. I have been privileged to chat over cups of coffee, in living rooms, on porches and to visit our senior housing facilities to gain a true understanding of the issues that concern our residents and how I can help. Whether I am in the middle of Bromfield Street or at the end of Avon Way, people want a ward councilor who will ask questions, scrutinize decisions and work hard on the issues that matter. I will make sure promises made to our residents are kept, taxpayer dollars are used efficiently and those who facilitate their use are accountable.

Many of you have expressed concerns over the condition of our streets and sidewalks, property taxes and the fate of our treasured historic neighborhoods and sites. I believe attracting positive, balanced growth to our business districts will not only help to keep residential tax rates low, but will generate much needed revenue for services to improve these quality of life issues.

I have enjoyed meeting many of our seniors and pledge to work with the city to ensure existing services like transportation, tax preparation and health and safety initiatives are adequately funded and available.

Residents throughout Ward 5 are concerned with the safety of our community. I will work with residents and law enforcement to strengthen community involvement and established programs that keep all of us safe and healthy.

Additionally, I will work alongside local groups to investigate funding options for arts programs and venues that will not unnecessarily burden the taxpayer.

I have been banging away at your doors for weeks because the only way to truly learn about the issues facing Ward 5 is to hear directly from its residents. I will be out there every day fighting for you and promise Ward 5 will have strong representation on the Council

As a Ward 5 native, I have been privileged to grow up and live in the best part of our city. This place has given me so much. It would be an honor to give back as your next Ward 5 councilor. I hope that you will give me that chance, and I respectfully ask for your vote on Tuesday, Nov. 8.

CANDIDATES FORUM - WARD 3 CITY COUNCILLOR

Cain: Activating 'Ward 3 Association' To Boost Ward's Strength, Influence

John Cain's primary focus during this campaign has been to promote communication at all levels throughout the precincts of Ward 3.

Neighbor to Cain's Program pro-Neighbor communication motes among neighbors on a person to person basis. Because Ward 3 encompasses a diverse population, Cain hopes to broaden his focus to connect not only neighbors, but neighborhoods.

Accepting the fact that Ward 3 already has the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association and the Wollaston Hill Neighborhood Association, Cain feels that the communication between these distinct precincts could be improved. Further, in these austere financial times, neighborhoods should be looking to solve common problems by pooling resources and finances.

Cain points out that Ward 3 and its 5 precincts are spread out. Precinct #1 spans from Wollaston to the Highpoint Apartment Complex (6, 8 & 10 Highpoint Circle). Also in the precinct is a large Senior Housing complex, at 99 & 125 Granite St., located near Quincy Center. Other precincts in Ward 3 include large apartment complexes at 2 Hancock Street; 95, 100 and 115 West Squantum Street, 1 and 2 Cityview Lane, 45 Hancock Street, and Elmwood Park.

Further, having only two neighborhood associations leaves many citizens without a voice. Cain would like to create a conduit that connects seniors, students, business owners, parents, home owners and renters. All citizens should have a vehicle through which they can access information and voice opinions. To facilitate this process, Cain has met with some businessmen who are willing to donate slightly out of date computers, and laptops to senior centers and senior housing facilities. In this way, a senior who is less mobile is provided with access to participate in the city government.

In addition, Mr. Cain would hope to centralize and utilize some of the current communication vehicles. Mr. Cain hopes to set up a Ward 3 web site and newsletter and envisions the production of a weekly information program on the Quincy Access Television Cain hopes to institute series of monthly local meetings. Each of the 5 precincts would host a meeting. The meetings could be held at a school, church, or business. Representatives from the precinct would serve as Contacts and Coordinators. The agenda, issues, opinions, and progress would then be reported on in a monthly online newsletter and on QATV.

The agenda could consist of information from the business community, reports from local officials, school news, religious information, and community events. All of these events could be incorporated into the Quincy Ward 3 Association. (QW3A) In this way, each precinct would have equal access to their representatives, pertinent information, and problem solving. The QW3A would represent all of Ward 3 to the benefit of residents and businessmen

Cain will rely on his business acumen, computer experience, and educational background to take this idea from the planning table to viable reality. Count on Cain to listen and give each individual a voice.

A Reminder From Coughlin: 'It's the Economy ----!'

By KEVIN COUGHLIN

The notation, written on a whiteboard in Bill Clinton's 1992 campaign headquarters by his often controversial advisor James Carville, "It's the economy, stupid," although somewhat crass, still resonates, and perhaps even more so, nearly 20 years later. The economy is on all of our minds and one in four of us is either unemployed or knows someone who is.

Carville's invocation is just as relevant at the local level as it is nationally. Local government has always been where the most direct impact can be had, and we have the opportunity to make things happen and improve our own economic stability when we create the right environment.

Job creation through the engaging, supporting and sustaining of business and commercial ventures of various size and dimension, is critical to every resident of our city, including those I represent in Ward Three. Working men and women stimulate every sector of our economy, and sustaining and expanding on the commercial tax base aids in stabilizing and mitigating the property tax burden on residential taxpayers.

Throughout my tenure on the City Council, I have cast pivotal votes on permits and tax incremental financing agreements to bring businesses including Fallon Ambulance, BJ's and Lowes into our community, and to keep businesses like P.V. Sullivan Supply and Boston Scientific in our city. These businesses and others that I have worked with at 100 Hancock Street and at 100 Newport Avenue have infused millions of dollars in private investment in their own infrastructure construction. This has created temporary jobs in various construction trades and led to hundreds of permanent jobs maintained and new ones

The city's private-public partnership to reinvent the downtown brings this effort to an unprecedented level, creating both near term construction jobs that will span a ten year build-out, long term permanent jobs thereafter, and positive impacts to stabilizing the residential property tax burden. The neighborhoods across the city, especially those I represent, will not be forgotten.

To the contrary, the benefits will be felt throughout the city. The revenue generated will provide vital funds for our public schools and libraries, parks and recreation facilities, public safety departments, and numerous public works improvements including streets and side-

The future of our city lies at an important crossroads requiring serious, earnest vigilance by those of us charged with the responsibility to oversee every critical step. Every citizen deserves the best opportunity to make a better life in Quincy. Local government should play a role as the supportive tide that lifts all boats, not as an anchor. Creative beneficial partnerships such as that undertaken with the downtown revitalization, such as with the solidwaste contract and recycling initiative, and wireless communications leases that I have been proud to be a part of and support; all of these will help cut costs and ease the burden. On November 8th I humbly ask for your vote to continue the work begun because after all, as Carville observed, "It's the economy....."

Perdios: Ward 2 Is About Families Both Young And Old

By STEVE PERDIOS

Ward 2 is about families - both old and new. My wife and I have a new family; we own a home on Ruggles Street with our three little girls. They are my motivation for wanting Ward 2 to be an even better place to grow up than it was 35 years ago when I was a kid growing up here. As a father of young kids, issues pertaining to families are always on my mind.

I'm also part of an older family; we live one block dad has been retired from the Sheet Metal Union for about 10 years now. He worked hard every day and came home hoping the economy would stay strong enough to keep him employed. I remember tough times when it didn't. My parents spent their entire lives putting me and my three brothers first. The pride they have in us and their eight grandkids is warming on even the coldest days. They are so proud of their family.

I'm glad my parents still live here. Ward 2 is a special place for our seniors. There are many services available like The Ride and Quincy Elder Services to assist our seniors in getting around and stay active well into their Golden Years. I'm proud that we live in a community that fosters our seniors and doesn't forget them or push them aside.

Luckily, my parents are still able to live in their own home, but I listen as they voice some serious concerns, the same concerns that I'm sure many of you share. Do they still feel secure in their neighborhood? Can they afford the away from my parents. My taxes and bills they have to pay on a fixed income? Will the snow this winter be as bad as last year and if so, how will they get out of the house? My parents are still pretty strong and agile, but these concerns remain.

> During my time speaking with our residents on Martensen Street and in Pagnano Tower, I've learned that safety is among the highest of their concerns. I'm saddened to think that after giving a lifetime to our community, some of these men and women are afraid to come out of their rooms.

As Chairman of Quincy's Community Preservation Committee, I was happy to vote in favor of allocating $125,000 to upgrade the security systems at both of these senior housing facilities, but there is much more work to be done. Residents have the right to feel safe in their home and if elected I'll continue to work hard to improve the safety of these facilities.

1000 Southern Artery is clearly one of the best senior facilities around. Great programs, excellent maintenance, and positive spirit are the norm. We should be able to say this about all of the facilities in Quincy that house our seniors.

To the seniors of Ward 2, I hear you. I will never push your concerns aside. We need to continue to foster a community that values residents who are young at heart, as much as it does the young.

Croall: Public Safety A Top Priority In Ward 2 of a medical emergency. I believe that we have to continue researching creative

By BRAD CROALL

In working with the residents of Ward 2, it has been my experience that under any and all circumstances people want to feel safe in their respective neighborhoods. It is truly amazing when we begin to consider how much public safety impacts our daily lives. My commitment to you as your city councilor is to make public safety a top priority for our ward.

Public safety, particularly when it affects the mature population in our city, is about response time and quality of service. Maintaining a high level of service requires the proper tools and personnel to do the job correctly. It is important to note that Ward 2 is home to two of the city's fire stations which frequently act as first responders in the event financial alternatives to preserve the resources that we have, expand them when appropriate, and assure that our equipment is properly maintained and upgraded. Growing up attending Quincy Public Schools my family made a commitment to help me achieve academic success and involve me in extracurricular activities. Looking back, I realize that this kind of commitment takes tremendous focus by both the parents and the child. In today's school environment, bullying and fighting are top concerns for parents. As your city councilor, I will do whatever I can to ensure that our children are provided with a safe, supportive learning environment which encourages creativity. My goal is to be used as a resource. Whether that means spending some time to come in and speak with the kids or to actually work with the parents to see what we can do together to further implement safety into our schools, it is important for you to know that I'm available.

Finally, like every other big city we also deal with the issues of substance abuse. This is an issue I feel is best addressed by the community as a whole. As past president of the Ward 2 Civic Association, I worked in conjunction with the Parent Teacher Organization (PTO) to roll out our ward's first and now annual drug awareness forum which is designed to create awareness, promote prevention and identify resources to help those suffering from substance abuse. As Ward 2 City Councilor, I plan to work closely with our community police officer to further integrate his services into our daily activities. I also plan to initiate the Citizens Alert Police Program in conjunction with the Quincy Police Department (QPD). The goal of the program is to engage our neighborhoods and discourage criminal activity.

In closing, keeping our schools and neighborhoods safe will be one of my top priorities. I believe that working together to make a safer community is working together to make a more productive community. I'm looking forward to working hard on your behalf and I humbly ask for your support on Nov. 8th.

Rodophele: The City Should Be Run Like A Business

By JOHN RODOPHELE

The residential homeowners can not afford two more years of this current administration.

In the past few months, there have been many negative articles written about the City of Quincy's poor fiscal management.

The issues ranging from inside promotions to the creation of unnecessary new job positions for family and friends.

The taxpayers of Quincy deserve a more open administration of how our tax dollars are spent.

There are too many deals with developers that cost the long-time Quincy residential homeowners their hard earned money.

It's time this administration runs this city like a business, not a family picnic.

Let the residential taxpayer have some say as to how our tax dollars are spent.

Such as repairing roads and sidewalks all over the city, not just concentrated in the downtown.

Quincy is an old city and our tax dollars should be spent on updating all of the city's antiquated infrastructure.

The main focus should not be on the new downtown infrastructure.

The residential real estate taxpayers deserve their tax dollars to be spent updating their neighborhoods first.

It's time this administration makes the citizens of Quincy aware of of every tax dollar spent within every Department. Full and total disclosure of Itemized spending, salaries and contracts, not just budgets with bottom line numbers.

All new job listings should be open to the public, and the resumes of the person who was hired should be public information.

The job hiring process should be based on qualifications, not their connections.

The great City of Quincy is going deeper and deeper into debt, issuing bond after bond.

This administration can not keep borrowing money and expecting the residential homeowners to keep paying it back They must start spending the taxpayers money more wisely, therefore we can stop borrowing more bonds.

Fiscal changes must be made for us to continue to be a solvent city. Spending habits of the past need to change and the people who were spending the money need to be replaced.

The Quincy City Council seats are not owned by the incumbent City Councillors.

New voices are needed in city hall to speak on behalf of the homeowners. I will be that new voice of the residential real estate taxpayers to be heard at city hall.

I am the only unelected candidate running for Quincy City Councillor At Large.

After working over 50 years in the private sector and now being retired,

I will be the only candidate to devote full time as a Quincy City Councillor.

Quincy needs changes and on Tuesday, Nov. 8th, it's up to the voters to make those changes.

McFarland: Investing In Buildings, Equipment And Infrastructure In Quincy

By MICHAEL McFARLAND

The City of Quincy has invested hundreds of millions of dollars in capital assets such as school buildings, roadways and sidewalks, facilities, vehicles and equipment. These are owned by the residents of the City of Quincy. The importance of maintaining and protecting these capital assets has never been more important. As budget dollars for maintenance and repairs continue to dwindle, we must be disciplined in providing a predictable amount of city spending for maintaining and improving our capital assets.

The capital improvement plan for this year included over $25 million for these improvements for a variety of financial resources. Some of the funds are from the Sewer Rehabilitation Fund, the Hotel – Motel Tax, the Community Preservation fund and from City bond funding.

School building repair projects in an amount of $2.4 million on 16 different school facilities. New roofs are in the process of being installed in 10 school buildings. Flashing, roof repairs and masonry work are being done in six other buildings. These capital expenditures will help stabilize and reduce the annual maintenance costs on these buildings.

City building repairs and environmental remediation in the amount of $2.9 million includes repairs to Coddington Hall, roof repairs and HVAC in the City Hall Annex along with various city buildings. Also included are cost associated with the Wollaston fire station and the DPW yard on Sea St.

Public safety equipment purchases in the amount of $1.7 million for a new ladder truck for the fire department, replacement the traffic department bucket truck and new public safety communications equipment.

Repairs to the Edgewater Drive seawall and assessments to over seven miles of city owned seawalls are also included in this year's capital improvement plan. The project cost is estimated at $ 4.5 and includes repairs to two tide gates intended to relieve flooding. Damage from storms over the last fifty years continues to undermine these protective walls.

Other important projects included in the capital plan are the inspection and cleaning of Furnace Brook, the Miller, Cross and Furnace Ave flood control station, the Alrick Road pump station, the Black's Creek tide gate enhancements, the Sagamore Creek tide gate and drainage system cleaning, the Broad Street tide gate and tributary system rehabilitation, upgrades to the Division Street pump station. Drainage improvements to the Spence Ave - Circuit Road system, Centre Street drainage pipe realignment and long overdue improvements to Sachem Brook.

These improvements will go a long way to providing a better quality of life to the residents of the City of Quincy. It is important for the Ouincy City Council to continue to work with the Mayor, the School Committee and the various state and federal agencies to find the funding sources necessary to maintain our buildings, equipment and infrastructure. With annual planning and capital budget review the City of Quincy can and will maintain these valuable resources for the residents and taxpayers of the City of Quincy.

Finn Presses For Return Of City Auditor's Power

Councillor at-Large Joe Finn continues to push for a return of powers to the City Auditor that gives the City Council greater ability to monitor the fiscal governance of the city. He has proposed the following language be added to the city ordinance in Title 2, Administration & Personnel Chapter 2.20 City Auditor Section 2.20.020 Duties: "the auditor shall sign off on all warrants prior to the payment of any bill in order to ensure that such payment is consistent with the annual budget and in conformance with existing law."

Finn contends that the power of the City Auditor, who is an employee hired independent of the Mayor, has been undermined by the creation of a Director of Municipal Finance. The Director of Municipal Finance is hired and under control by the Mayor's office. The previous system, prior to the creation of the Director of Municipal Finance, in place since 1982, has acted as an effective check on the Mayor's ability to spend taxpayers' dollars. "It is within the job of Auditor", Finn says, "as defined by state law, to 'approve the payment of all bills or pay rolls of all departments before they are paid by the treasurer, and may disallow and refuse to approve for payment, in whole or in part, any claim as fraudulent, unlawful or excessive."

Finn contends this is critical to the City Council's role of overseeing the city budget.

"The auditor, without pressure from the mayor, assures the Council that the money is in the budget and that it is a lawful expenditure of city funds. How else are we as a Council to meet our obligation as elected officials to oversee the City budget?"

Some councillors claim the auditor position is more that of an independent analyst, performing similar tests that an independent auditor might conduct.

"This is a misunderstanding of the meaning of the title Auditor as it is in intended in municipal law," claims Finn. "What made Quincy unique was the independence of the City Auditor from the Mayor's office enabling them to sign off on expenditures and ensure that the resources existed within the budget. Without being able to sign off on the warrants, this ability to track the Mayor's expenditures is compromised." The consequence of this change has resulted in a number of occasions where the Director of Municipal Finance has had to come back before the Council seeking allocation for money already spent.

Finn is not alone in his belief in the importance of the City Auditor. Former Mayor and Council President Francis McCauley notes, "the independence of the Auditor and their ability to sign off on warrants before expenditure is a critical check and balance upon a Mayor's ability to spend tax dollars. I support Councillor Finn's amendment to restore this important function to the Auditor's office."

Finn hopes his proposal will come to a vote prior to the end of this session.

Gutro Calls For Establishing A Transportation Commission In Quincy

Doug Gutro, Ward 5 councillor and candidate for councillor at-Large is calling for the establishment of a Transportation Commission in Quincy.

According to Gutro, 'Quincy needs to come into the 21st century and establish a Transportation Commission," pointing to cities of similar size like Newton, Medford, Melrose, and New Bedford, which have long had similar commissions to manage transportation issues. "Today, we manage transportation impacts on a project by project basis. We simply don't have a public venue to evaluate their impacts in a broader context".

"We have four subway stations, a commuter rail stop, many bus routes, major bridge reconstruction on both ends of the city, access to major highways, ongoing road and utility projects, and a downtown development project that will undoubtedly complicate travel to and from our city center for the foreseeable future," Gutro added. "In addition, as a long time ward councilor, residents and businesses call or email me on a weekly basis with neighborhood traffic and parking concerns."

The Neponset River and Fore River bridges are under major reconstruction. Quincy's downtown project will have major implications for traffic throughout our city. There are dangerous intersections that deserve study and improvements: some posing access problems for emergency vehicles. Traffic and parking are frequent concerns for parents and neighbors around many The full public schools. implementation for safety zones near our senior complexes is incomplete and neighborhood traffic studies are needed. Resident Permit Parking around MBTA stations is long overdue to deter commuters from parking in residential areas. News reports periodically highlight vehicle or pedestrian accidents, occasionally leading to fatalities. According to Gutro, "These concerns permeate every neighborhood, business district, school zone, and major roadway in and out of our city. Conges-Gutro noted, "The City of Quincy has 27 boards and commissions which meet regularly to evaluate everything from A (Adams Temple School Fund) to Z (Zoning Board of Appeals).

tion, speeding, and safety concerns are compelling reasons to consider this proposal."

Yet we do not have a body overseeing the one issue that permeates every neighborhood and business district in our city: Transportation."

According to Gutro, a Transportation Commission would: 1.) improve coordination between city departments like Traffic; Police, Fire, and Planning: 2.) enable citizen participation and bring expertise through board membership; 3.) create more transparency and public input on transportation decisions; 4.) create a mechanism to prioritize issues based on safety data and disruption impacts; 5.) ensure more thoughtful, deliberative, and timely decision-making; 6.) allow for the consideration of broader geographic or city-wide implications; and 7.) depoliticize decisions on serious public safety matters.

In 2010, Councilor Gutro put forth a City Council resolution asking the Mayor to consider fulfilling the Council's 1995 order to establish a Traffic and Parking Commission to better manage these issues. Under Gutro's new proposal, the commission's jurisdiction would be broadened to include public transportation, pedestrian improvements, and bike lanes.

Ward 2 Civic Association Candidates Night Oct. 26

The Ward 2 Civic Association will sponsor a Candidates Night Wednesday, Oct. 26 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd.

Candidates running for Ward 2 councillor and those seeking city-wide seats have been invited to attend.

The public is welcome to attend.

Kozlowski Endorses Perdios In Ward 2

(The following letter was submitted to The Quincy Sun for publication.)

Primary Election Day was an exciting day for my family and me, but it also marked the end of my bid for Ward 2 City Council. I'm proud of the campaign we ran. I want to thank all the people that voted for me. I am truly grateful for your support.

I am supporting Steve Perdios as our next Ward 2 City Councillor. Steve will stand up for the interests of our residents. He's lived in Ward 2 his entire life and is a homeowner and taxpayer. He can provide the strong, independent voice at City Hall that we need.

He is committed to making Ward 2 a great place for his three little girls to grow up in. A civil engineer, Steve has the qualifications and experience necessary to be our next city councillor. From traffic, to crime, to potholes, to parks, to senior services, Steve is ready to tackle the issues that are important to us.

I'd like to ask the residents of Ward 2 to strongly consider giving Steve Perdios your vote on Tuesday, Stephen Kozlowski 14 Berkeley St.

Gutro Receives Multiple Endorsements

Doug Gutro announces he has received the endorsement of the following organizations for his candidacy as Councillor-At-Large:

- Norfolk County Central Labor Council - AFL-CIO
- · South Shore Building Trades
- · Carpenters Union, Local 424
- · Electricians Union, IBEW Local 103
  - IBEW Local 2222
  - Iron Workers, Local 7
- Boston Carmen's Union, Local 589

"I'm proud to have earned the trust and support of these valued local organizations, which collectively represent thousands of working families through Quincy and the South Shore," Gutro said.

Gutro has served five terms as Quincy's Ward 5 city councillor, including one term as City Council president. Gutro also served as chairman of the City Council's Downtown Economic Development Committee helping to steer historic votes that will provide the framework for $1.6 billion in private investment in Quincy Center. He's also supported changes to strengthen the city's Responsible Employer Ordinance.

"In a challenging global economy, it is incumbent upon us as a community to spur economic growth that provides good paying jobs with affordable benefits to well trained local residents," Gutro said. "As councilorat-large, I'll continue to work to create an environment for job creation that benefits local residents and taxpayers."

As ward councillor, Gutro represents the Quincy Center and Wollaston Business district and has been a leading voice for local job creation and business and economic development.

Says Koch Has Done Much To Fight Crime

(The following letter was submitted to The Quincy Sun for publication.)

My name is Kathy Deady and I have been a regular contributor over the years in articles regarding keeping our community safe and educated.

I am writing regarding the ad that the Committee to Elect Anne Mahoney had published in the Oct. 13th edition of your paper.

When Tom Koch first announced his intention to run for Mayor against William Phelan four years ago, I was very concerned about the state of our city with regard to crime, drug and substance abuse issues and public safety issues in general. I had been told by the former adminstration that this city "did not have a drug problem." At that time, we were ranked 7th in the state for opiate overdoses. I call that more than a "problem." And so did Tom Koch.

We held a neighborhood meeting and my anti-drug group also attended and invited Tom to tell us how he would address this issue if elected. He asked us what we thought was needed and told us he would do everything he could to help us and the city with this scourge.

He has kept his word. He has done everything and more that he promised. Most of the crime committed in, not only Quincy, but the South Shore, is drug re-

These are drug seeking individuals who need money to support their habits.

I have worked very closely with the Quincy Police, both in a personal and professional capacity, and in my opinion there is not a better force in the state. We have three train stations in Quincy. If you look at the daily court appearances, two people are from Quincy and the rest are from out of the city. Our police are doing their jobs. We are the only Police force in the state with a policy to carry NARCAN, which saves lives from opiate overdoses. Tom Koch went out on the perverbial limb to endorse this program which is now becoming a model for other cities and towns. Lately, this program has been receiving national attention. Tom Koch also formed the first Drug Awareness Task Force to help address all comunity safety issues and educate our community regarding the drug problem. There are numerous other cities and towns using our task force as a model.

The Quincy Police Drug Unit, the Community Policing unit and the Domestic Violence Unit are second to none, are completely accessable to the citizens of Quincy and something we should not take for granted. These are hard times financially for municipalities and in my opinion Tom Koch has directed our resources where they are most needed.

Thank you for your time. Kathy Deady Quincy

Supports Saving Old Quincy High School

(The following letter was submitted to The Quincy Sun for publication.)

I read with interest in the local newspaper that Mayoral Candidate Anne Mahoney is asking the administration to save the old Quincy High School on Coddington

Mahoney is suggesting an alternative, innovative use of the old School. The City is proposing to tear it down for $6-7 million mainly for the lack of parking plus the cost of it bringing it to code. Parking should not be an issue, as there is a five story parking garage next to the school.

To avoid the taxpayer funded costly demolition or bringing the old high school to code, the city could explore the possibility to transfer the ownership to a non profit group or an organization excluding the land. Mahoney also suggests art and culture center, as the Wollaston Theatre initiative failed. There may be entrepreneurs looking for space to be creative and establish their own businesses, or open studio space. Community canning facility also comes to mind, similar to the ones now cropping up throughout the Commonwealth. Possibilities are numerous.

There is a lot going for old historic and architecturally significant buildings, such as this one. Yes, the new construction is more energy efficient, but the old High School's flat roof offers ample square footage for solar voltaic panels to offset the energy cost, and perhaps even raise revenue. In addition, the flat roof is ideal for roof gardens, a greenhouse and even beehives for resurging beekeeping. The splendid Linden trees around the square offer plenty of nectar, as they did when Bethany Congregational Church hosted the hives on their roof top.

The new private notfor-profit or similar entity could boast the history of the school, the famous graduates of the school and even Hollywood came to use it for filming. The impressive front steps alone built of the famous Quincy granite lends to its prestigious past.

In the past, when the city sold many of its elementary schools to private developers, they are now thriving; well maintained residential or office condos. None of them were demolished. If they were not worth saving, they would have been torn

Furthermore, when you walk around Harvard Square in Cambridge, the old buildings are the ones that make it inviting and the sense of place. There is no talk about demolition, more bike racks perhaps

Before we rush into tearing down this old school, let's invite public and historic preservation experts to explore innovative ideas for the school to save the taxpayers hard earned money.

Meanwhile, let's not allow the pipes freeze during the winter so that damage by frozen pipes will give the city officials even more reason to take it down.

The School is in Quincy's Historic District; the Old high school is part of it.

Norfolk County Municipal Employees Endorse Koch, Coughlin, Palmucci

Norfolk County Alliance of Municipal Employees announces it has endorsed three candidates running in Quincy's municipal election.

They are:

Mayor Tom Tom, Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci. All three are seeking re-election.

In endorsing Koch, Norfolk County Alliance of Municipal Employees President Bill Arienti said, "Over the past few years, we have all witnessed failing economies reductions in public services, and steep declines in the values of our homes. Communities across not only Massachusetts but nationwide are failing as government leaders scramble to bring new ideas into their communities.

"One such community at has recognized its potential, seized the opportunity and taken actions to insure its future success is Quincy; and no one deserves more credit than Mayor Thomas

"With less and less local aid coming from the State and reductions in local revenues, Mayor Koch has made the difficult financial decisions necessary to retain acceptable levels of public services in Quincy while keeping an eye on the bottom line. By treating public employees with respect and dignity Mayor Koch has saved the taxpayers of Quincy tens of millions of dollars in employee healthcare costs by bargaining with Quincy unions to join the less costly G.I.C. health insurance plan. His plan to regionalize trash pickup with neighboring communities has also saved Quincy taxpayers millions. Due to the savings realized in these areas, Mayor Koch has been able to maintain personnel to deliver a high level of services to the citizens of Quincy."

Arienti also referred to the $1.6 billion redevelopment project designed to revitalize Quincy Center.

"Within the next few months Quincy center will gin to experience a trans formation that will bring this city into the 21st century. By combining retail, residential and office space within the same area, Quincy businesses will thrive and residents will have the convenience of easy access to shopping and services. This transformation will increase Quincy's tax base, raise Quincy property values and make Quincy even a better place to live.

"It is for these reasons that the two thousand men and women of the Norfolk County Alliance of Municipal Employees endorse Thomas Koch for re-election of Mayor of Quincy. Mayor Koch has proven himself to be an insightful leader who has control of the current situations and an eye on the possibilities for tomorrow."

The Norfolk County Alliance of Muncipal Employees is also endorsing two incumbent city councillors for re-election: Kevin Coughlin in Ward 3 and Brian Palmucci in Ward 4.

"Both men have exhibited an understanding for the political dynamics of Quincy along with a responsive attitude when dealing with the numerous concerns of their constituents.

Both Kevin an have districts that are diverse and kinetic, requiring not only an understanding of government but a genuine concern for the needs of their constituency" Arienti said.

"Their combination of experience and energy make their presence on the Council necessary to face the upcoming changes that Quincy is about to undergo. The 2,000 members of the Alliance are the men and women who have built this city, protected it, educated its young and maintained it. We look forward to facing the future behind the leadership of these two proven leaders."

Mahoney Pledges To Make Quincy Schools Priority

School Committee Vice Chairwoman and mayoral candidate Anne Mahoney said the Quincy Public Schools have suffered under the Koch administration, and pledged to restore public education to a top prior-

Pointing to a recent Boston magazine article that ranked the Quincy Public Schools 108th out of 135 area school districts, Mahoney said the Koch administration has reversed much of the progress that had been made in funding public education in previous years.

"When I first joined the School Committee in 2006, it was a positive, exciting time for public education in the city of Quincy," said Mahoney, noting that the implementation of full-day kindergarten, literacy specialists and the construction of a new Quincy High School were just a few of the accomplishments achieved. "Under Tom Koch, however, that progress has been reversed, and Quincy families are paying the price for the mayor's failure to recognize the importance of having a top-rate public school system."

Under the Koch administration, the city's FY2010 budget saw a $1 million cut to the public schools - a reduction that Mahoney said tory programs, a 50% cut in translated into a $3 million secondary school extra-curshift in the schools' bottom

"Tom Koch doesn't seem to understand the very basic financial implications of making cuts like this," Mahoney said. "After cutting $1 million and laying off dozens of teachers and other staff, the Quincy Public Schools had to pay $1.5 million to cover unemployment costs for those positions, plus shift money from classroom funding to cover maintenance costs.'

The FY2011 budget, meanwhile, saw the deepest cut of all to the Quincy Public Schools: a proposed $9 million cut that was later reduced to $6 million when teachers agreed to defer raises. Even with the deferral, the Quincy Public Schools lost 72 teachers as well as other staff including custodians and security per-

All told, since Tom Koch took office the Quincy Public Schools have endured more than $9 million in budget cuts and lost more than 160 positions. Key academic and extracurricular programs have also been cut - including literacy specialists, middle school reading, SAT Prep, Media, Technology, Health, Art/Music, hisricular activities and more while fees for bus transportation and other programs have been increased. [See detailed list of program eliminations and reductions, and fee increases below.]

"These cuts and program shifts have placed a tremendous strain on our school system's performance," Mahoney said. "Increased class sizes and program reductions or eliminations have a direct impact on a district's graduation rate and dropout statistics, which in turn impacts the percentage of students who go on to college."

Mahoney said that while the School Committee has fought to maintain quality school programs and prevent even deeper cuts by the Koch administration, Quincy's charter gives the mayor the ultimate power to set the city's funding priorities.

"Tom-Koch seems more concerned about handing out six-figure jobs to friends, family and political cronies and funding his pet projects than he does about ensuring that the Quincy Public Schools offer a high-quality, free education to Quincy's children," she said. "As mayor, I will restore public education to a top priority."

When elected, Mahoney said she would draw on her background in finance and private-sector business experience to improve the city's overall financial picture. She also pledged to begin forecasting city budgets a change that would help the city plan for long-term costs and enable city departments, like the schools, to better plan for the future.

"Quincy is one of the few cities in Massachusetts that doesn't do budget forecasting," Mahoney said. "Currently, Quincy doesn't even begin discussing next year's budget until May, which only gives city departments - including the School Committee - about eight weeks to make decisions as to how to prioritize and allocate the budget given to them."

City Mobile Constituent Service App

Mayor Thomas Koch announces a new partnership that will increase and expand how Quincy residents can request city services and report non-emergency prob-

Powered by SeeClickFix, the place-based mobile and online reporting platform allows residents to document neighborhood concerns and improvements alike, ranging from potholes and graffiti to litter and broken streetlights.

"We are hoping to leverage this comprehensive platform to increase efficiency when responding to service requests while improving the city's infrastructure and quality of life along the way," Koch said. "And, more important, SeeClick-Fix will help us empower the citizens we serve and push them to actively engage with each other, their neighborhoods, and us."

Currently residents can submit requests to the Constituent Service system only through the City website. With this partnership, residents will now be able to put their smart phones to use in their participation with local government. The free See-ClickFix app is available on both I-Phone and Android platforms.

For residents, this new tool will enable reporting of service items such as potholes and graffiti in near real-time. Once the mobile app is downloaded, a resident can use the app to take a photo of the problem, select a service category, and report it to the City. The app records location information via the phone's GPS capabilities.

Another benefit of this partnership is to strengthen the existing ties SeeClickFix had with the City. Residents could report issues through SeeClickFix on sites such as boston.com, but prior to this partnership, those requests were not formally logged into the City's system. Now, residents will be able to seamlessly use See-ClickFix to report problems in the same way they had been using the constituent service system on the City's Residents are encouraged to download the mobile app on their Smart Phone, and it can be found by searching for 'SeeClickFix'. More information is also available via www.seeclickfix.com.

Perdios 'Outraged' Ward 2 Candidates Night Won't Be Taped

Despite a request by city council candidate Steve Perdios, a Candidates Forum hosted by the Ward 2 Civic Association Wednesday, Oct. 26 will not be filmed and aired on Quincy Access

"The Ward 2 Civic Association is hosting a candidates night for the residents of Ward 2," said Association President Ann Croke. "The nature of our program has never been a televised event. We have invited the 13 candidates who are running for city-wide office to participate.

"Mr. Perdios has been invited as our guest and he is the only one who has issues with the format," Croke said. "The Ward 2 Civic Association has previously hosted candidates nights and the board has voted to continue to use this format."

Perdios said he is "outraged" by the Association's decision to refuse video taping the forum. The event is scheduled for Oct. 26 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd.

"By refusing cameras," Perdios said, "the debate cannot be aired of QATV - and will not be seen by many of the seniors, people who work evenings, parents of young children, and many others who cannot attend the actual debate but would be very interested to hear the candidates' view on a variety of topics.

"The next Ward 2 city councillor needs to be able to fight for the rights of our residents, and this is a clear violation of those rights," Perdios added.

was conducted over a recent source of back pain. 14-year span, the incidence of chronic low back pain among the study's participants more than doubled. This finding, which included North Carolina residents over the age of 21, should hardly come as surprising news, especially when the contributing factors are taken into account. While the exact cause of the increase in incidence of low back pain remains unclear, researchers suggest that obesity and depression may be at least partly responsible. Both conditions have been previously linked with low back pain. Researchers also posit that a similar trend may be occurring

CROWNING TOUCH

When the portion of the tooth covered by enamel becomes so damaged from decay or trauma that it must be replaced, the dentist prepares a restoration known as a "crown." The first step involves tapering the outside edges of the damaged tooth into the form of a peg (or post, if rootcanal treatment is necessary) that will later accept the overlying "cap." Then, impressions of the tooth and the teeth immediately adjacent to it are prepared, from which the lab will construct the replacement crown. The crown may be fabricated of gold alloy, metal covered with porcelain veneer, or resin. During the second visit to the dentist, the temporary crown is removed and the permanent crown is cemented into place.

Our highly-skilled and trained professionals are more than willing to answer any questions you may have about crowns. To schedule an appointment, please call us at 617-479-6220. showed that Quincy was in the top 25 percent teacherto-student ratio, the top 25 percent spending per pupil, and number three with the amount of AP classes that are offered. "You have to look at whole picture in my view," said Koch. "Belmont has top MCAS scores and they were listed 24th in the list of schools. A strong public education system is important to property values in our city but (also) our families and youngsters of our city." Koch said he is committed to public education, and the goal is good class size, which has been kept within range, with very few exceptions of some AP classes.

Mahoney also said the numbers were disheartening. She said when she was given those numbers she looked at other schools. Framingham was one that stood out to her. Mahoney said it is a city with about same size and same demographic as Quincy and they were listed at 62.

"We have a long way to go." She went on to add that since Mayor Koch took office there have been $9 million in cuts in the school system. "We have lost reading in middle schools, lost foreign languages, lost classroom size, we are staying within the same standards but we have lowered our standards," said Mahoney. "Ninety seven percent of the budget is to salaries, three percent to curriculum. We are not investing we are maintaining. Maintaining is never good for the school system or our city."

The candidates then had an opportunity to ask each other one question.

Koch asked Mahoney: "You've been critical of our public safety department, the police department. What programs do you propose and how would you pay for those programs?"

Mahoney said:

"I've been critical of the fact that we have closed down and browned out the fire station something that you promised the constituents of Quincy you would never do," said Mahoney. "I have been critical of the fact that crime and drugs have moved into our neighborhoods and I think we do have to strategize, not just with police but DA's office." She said to solve this issue she would go back to budget and take out some of the political patronage jobs Koch has given away.

"We can't $100,000 jobs for our friends when we have to have fire stations open, can't afford to hire people that aren't in the budget and then expect crimes and drugs to be taken off the streets," said Mahoney. "We can't afford to Band-Aid things up by putting a substation in the downtown, that's not a solution, crime is everywhere in Quincy." She went on to add that she would go back to the budget, reorganize find the efficiencies, and be more efficient to the taxpayers. "Can't solve a problem by throwing money at it, you have to address them."

Koch said:

"The Quincy Police Department was in disarray when I took office. We reorganized the department and we doubled the size of the unit. We added six K-9's (police dogs), we added five patrolmen, we replaced their

Exercise Science Program Is A Good Fit at Quincy College

Quincy College offers both an Associate Degree and certificate program in Exercise Science/Personal Training.

The certificate program is designed for students who want to work as exercise instructors in fitness centers or as independent personal trainers.

The Associate Degree program allows students the opportunity to hone their skills as fitness professionals; develop their interpersonal communication and critical thinking skills; and become familiar with basic management principles which can be directly applied to their career in the fitness industry.

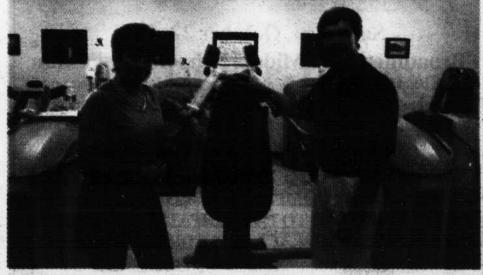

Upon completing either the certificate or Associate Degree program, students will be prepared to pass professional certification exams, such as those offered by the American Council on Exercise

"The education I received Science Program prepared me to change my career after the age of 50. I am now a Nationally Certified ACE Personal Trainer employed at Quincy College, and work as a Personal Trainer, Specialty Class Instructor, and Floor Supervisor at the South Shore YMCA. I also have clients whom I train in their homes. I truly love my job and the fact that I am helping people get healthier through proper exercise," said Quincy College alumna Maggie Faretra.

"The Quincy College Exercise Science Program has achieved national recognition for its research on strength training, and our graduates have attained prominent professional positions locally in the field of fitness", said Wayne Weststudent in the Exercise cott. Instructor for the Exercise Science Program at Ouincy College.

Students who are interested in enrolling in this program must fill out an application form and obtain an advisor's signature prior to registering. For more information, visit www.quincycollege.edu.

With Seven Games Left, Girl's Soccer Team Needs Six More Points; Game Saturday Versus Quincy

NQ: Inching Closer To The State Tournament

By SEAN BRENNAN

It has been three years too many for the North Quincy Red Raiders girl's soccer program. After missing out on qualifying for the state playoffs in 2008, 2009 and 2010, the Red Raiders are inching closer to the requisite point total this season. With seven games remaining North Quincy sits at 6-5-2 overall and needs to collect six points - teams gain two points for each victory and one point in case of a tie - to advance through to the state playoffs for the first time since the end of the 2007 season when the Red Raiders snuck in with a 9-9-4 record.

The 2007 season, which saw North Quincy qualify out of the Atlantic Coast League – the Red Raiders have been a member of the Patriot League since 2008 – marked the end of an 11-year state tournament run by Head Coach Paul Bregoli's program. North Quincy advanced out of the Old Colony League seven times in that span (1997-2003) and four times out of the ACL (2004-2007).

"The team is feeling good about themselves but we still have work that needs to be done with some technical and tactical aspects of our game," said Bregoli last Friday after his team had gone 0-2-2 over their last four Patriot League matches against Scituate (1-1), Pembroke (2-0), Silver Lake (1-1) and Hingham (3-1).

The four-game swing versus some of the best programs on the South Shore may not have produced a single win and, the Red Raiders' 2-0 loss to Pembroke was disappointing, but North Quincy showed its mettle regardless, especially against Scituate and Silver Lake.

"Our ties with Scituate and Silver Lake felt like wins," Bregoli said - any point gets North Quincy closer to the tournament. "Both of those games were away and we were able to hang with both teams. These were impressive showings by the girls."

The Scituate game featured a strong first half performance from senior keeper Sara Sullivan and solid overall games from juniors Danielle Paschall (forward) and Jaclyn Scuzzarella (defender). But it was the resolve of the entire team that impressed Bregoli most.

The Sailors, who had handled North Quincy with ease last fall, winning 3-1, finally cracked the score-sheet 15 minutes into the second half, but the Red Raiders kept battling and were reward for it. Freshman sensation Courtney Campo provided the relief. The shifty midfielder blasted a direct kick from 25 yards out into the top right corner to tie the game at 1-1 and, North Quincy hung on for the all-important point.

"I thought we played (Scituate) evenly in the first half but we couldn't do much," Bregoli said. "Sullivan came up big and our defense played stout. After they scored we kept at it and were rewarded on a great goal by Campo."

Bregoli's troops followed this quality tie by laying an egg against Pembroke. The contest, which was supposed to be played on the grass surface at Teal Field, was moved to the turf at Veterans Memorial Stadium because of flooding issues at the Red Raiders' home pitch. This wasn't an excuse for the team's dismal 2-0 showing. According to Bregoli, his team's focus was elsewhere - notably on that night's big NQHS/QHS girl's volleyball game.

"That was our worst game of the year; we just didn't play well," Bregoli stated matter-of-factly. "The kids were not focused and it affected their play. We talked about it immediately after the game and the team acknowledged that their minds where not completely in the game."

A four-day break between the Pembroke game and the Silver Lake game helped as the Red Raiders reversed roles and "played out of their minds," according to Bregoli against the Lakers.

Leading the charge were junior Lauren Campo and sophomore Haley McKay as well as freshman outside defender Sydney Chang ("played the best game of her high school (career") and freshman forward Ciara Forde. Trailing 1-0, sophomore midfielder Abby Smith lofted a beautiful corner kick through the Silver Lake box where freshman Courtney Campo headed the ball in far post for her third tally of the fall. The assist was Smith's sixth helper of the season.

"It was a great ball by Abby," said Bregoli. "Courtney ran in from 18 yards out and buried it near the far post. We match up really well with Silver Lake. It wasn't a win but it sure felt like it."

Sophomore defender Arianna Viscione played a solid game on the back end and Sullivan finished with a couple of huge saves to keep the game close in the early going.

Against Hingham, North Quincy junior forward Shannon McCleary plotted her team-leading eighth goal of the fall off an assist from junior midfielder Liz Kelly (six assists), but the Red Raiders lost 3-1.

With home games this week versus Duxbury (played Tuesday) and Whitman-Hanson (Thursday, 4 p.m.), North Quincy has an opportunity to cut into their postseason quest. On Saturday, the Red Raiders will play against Quincy in the second of two matches scheduled this season. In the teams' first matchup, the Red Raiders rallied from down 1-0 at halftime to defeat the Presidents by a final score of 2-1.

The girl's game will begin at 4:30 p.m. followed by the North Quincy and Quincy boy's game. Both matches will be played at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

QYFL Week Six Results

The Quincy Youth Football League's regular season is winding down and divisional titles are still up in the air.

In the Desmond Division, the West Quincy Elks and the Milton Mustangs are both 5-1 overall. Milton defeated West Quincy, 7-6, this week, avenging an earlier 26-25 loss to the boys from West Quincy. The Hough Neck Manets sit at 1-4-1 in the division.

The Meyers Division will be decided this Sunday when the Squantum Storm (2-4 overall) plays the North Quincy Apaches (2-3-1) at 1:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium – the winner of this divisional clash will win the division and advance to the playoffs. The Quincy Point Panthers are 2-4 overall.

Storm v. Manets (Oct. 16)
The Squantum Storm (2-4) finally got its offense going with five touchdowns and two extra points in a 32-20 win over the Houghs Neck Manets. The Storm will win its division and reach the playoffs if they defeat rival North Quincy Apaches this weekend.

With smooth play by quarterback Tommy Jaehnig and outstanding blocking from fullback Mac Deegan and the offensive line of Ty Finn, Declan Mayo, Nick Kelly, Connor Cramond, Ryan Manning, Jake Grady and Kevin Mock, Liam O'Connor and Joel Lawless, the Storm's running backs, each scored twice — the team's other score came off a 50-yard Lawless punt return

Deegan, Cramond, O'Connor, Grady, Mayo, Raphy Veras, Colin McGrath, Mark Monahan, Kelly, Manning, Pat Bronske, Troy Shepherd, Pat O'Brien, Mock and Lawless played well on defense for Squantum.

After jumping out to a 13-0 lead, the Storm withstood a furious Manets' comeback started by a 36yard TD run by Joseph Boddie. The Storm responded with a 59-yard drive highlighted by O'Connor's 14yard TD dash that made it 19-7. But after the Manets downed the ensuing kickoff on their own 40-yard line, Boddie broke loose for a 60-yard TD, making the score at halftime 19-13 Squantum.

The turning point in the game came when the Manets, after recovering an onside kick, went on a 12-play drive that used up the entire third quarter and the first minute of the fourth. Houghs Neck then fumbled and lost possession at the Storm 29-yard line. Squantum marched the field and Lawless scored on a 21-yard run.

Then on the second play from scrimmage, the Manets scored on a 70-yard run to make the score 25-20 - the Storm capped off the scoring with a four-yard TD from Lawless.

This weekend the Storm take on the North Quincy Apaches in a showdown for the division title. Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m. at the Stadium.

Apaches v. Panthers (Oct. 16)

In a complete team effort, five different players scored touchdowns for North Quincy as the Apaches knocked off the Quincy Point Panthers, 33-6.

After the Apache defense forced the Panthers to turn the ball over of downs to start the game running back Tysean Moore raced 27 yards for a touchdown – quarterback Aiden Brown's conversion rush made it 7-0.

Brown later scored on a 30-yard dash – Mike Mc-Nelley had the conversion rush – and Allen Lee scored from 18 yards out near the end of the first half to give North Quincy a commanding 20-0 advantage at the break.

The Panthers came out after halftime fired up and on their first play from scrimmage, Garrett Cronin exploded for an 80-yard TD to cut the lead to 20-6, but North Quincy had too much. McNelley scored on a 51-yard run and Anthony Marcello closed the scoring with an 18-yard end around touchdown.

Mustangs v. Elks (Oct. 16)

The Milton Mustangs tripped the West Quincy Elks, 7-6 - no further game information provided.

Earlier this fall, the Elks edged the Mustangs 26-25. These two teams are both now 5-1 in the Desmond Division.

(Game results provided by QYFL President Paul Doherty) North Quincy Freshman Emily Bryson (15:59)
Sets New School Record On The Pageant Course

Cross Country Teams Split With Middleboro

The North Quincy and Quincy boy's and girl's cross country teams split a set of meets with Middleboro High School on Oct. 11 at the Pageant Field course.

The girl's team won easily over the Sachems, 18-41, while the boy's team dropped a close decision, 26-31.

North Quincy swept the top-three girl's spots to clinch the meet. Freshman Emily Bryson took first by running a time of 15:59, which set a new school record breaking the time of 16:04 set by Erica Brady back in 2009. Bryson's time was also only the second time ever recorded less than 16 minutes on the 2.5-mile Pageant course.

The Pageant course record is 15:55 set last fall by Lauren Bittrich of Duxbury.

North's Danielle Mullaney and Julia Bryson finished second and third, respectively. Freshman Marguerite Belcher placed fifth, Mary Zheng was seventh and Amelia Ho and Amanda Yao closed out the top-10 in ninth and tenth overall.

According to Head Coach Geoff Hennessy, against Middleboro every girl ran their best time ever at Pageant in race that was held in perfect conditions.

The boy's team gave it their best with freshman sensation Mike Mullaney finishing in second place and Brendan Cunningham crossing the finish line in third place. Rapidly improving Aidan McMorrow took fifth overall while senior captain Bond Ho claimed tenth overall.

Mike Saccoach and Declan McGaffigan finished in 11th and 12th overall, respectively.

CM Invitational – Franklin Park

In one of the elite meets of the fall season, freshman Mike Mullaney showed his enormous running talent by taking fourth overall in the freshman race of the Catholic Memorial Invitational held at Franklin Park. Mullaney ran the 3K course in an impressive time of 10:45.1. Xaverian's Lucas Taxter took first with his time of 10:33.3.

On the girl's side, freshman Marguerite Belcher finished 25th overall.

Danielle Mullaney earned a seventh place trophy in the varsity race on the girl's side while Brendan Cunningham was 42nd in the boy's varsity meet.

Team Notes

The Quincy teams traveled to Duxbury High School for a league meet on Tuesday. The teams will finish their fall season on Oct. 25 with an away meet with Hanover.

On Oct. 28, the teams will send their ten best boys and girls to Middleboro High School to compete in the Patriot League Championship.

AFC Under-14 Boys Promoted To Division 2

The America Football Club (AFC) Under-14 boy's team was promoted two weeks ago from Division 3 to Division 2 in the Massachusetts Soccer Conference after collecting a 4-0 record and scoring 16 goals while allowing just one goal against.

The Under-14 team is following a developmental path similar to the AFC Under-16 boy's team two years ago. The Under-16 team moved from Division 3 to Division 1, all in one season, before qualifying to play in MAPLE, one of two premier soccer leagues in Massachusetts.

AFC Under-14 teams are considered transition teams: After four years of primarily technical skills development, the teams are trained tactically to beat opposing teams.

According to AFC Director of Coaching and the Under-14 coach, Conrad White, "There is no point on focusing at winning at earlier ages. We want our Under-13 and Under-14 players to be playing skillfully at those ages not just playing. To do that club trainers need to invest time in them and be patient during their younger developmental years."

Coach White is referring to a phenomenon in youth soccer where the pool of youth players is cut almost in half by the preteen years. According to White, most of those players that have dropped out are because they lack the skills to compete.

Red Raiders Riding High Following 28-22 Overtime Win Over Middleboro

By SEAN BRENNAN

Public address announcer Geoff Hennessy summed up last Friday afternoon's North Quincy and Middleboro football game best when he exclaimed, "That was one of the most exciting games ever played at Veterans Stadium!"

The lucky few that came out to support the Red Raiders in the wet weather and blowing winds were treated to a heart-pounding high school football game. North Quincy (1-5 overall) entered the game still licking the wounds of a disappointing 0-5 start to the season, but after the Red Raiders held on to defeat the Sachems 28-22 in overtime, all was right for Head Coach Jim Connor's young team.

And deservedly so. North Quincy earned this victory.

By utilizing the threepronged running attack of seniors Walter Hannon (15 carries, 61 yards, two TDs) and Marquis Chase (16 carries, 133 yards. TD) and sophomore Antoine Allen (six carries, 96 yards, TD), the Red Raiders jumped out to a 15-0 halftime lead on the strength of touchdown runs by Allen (81 yards) and Hannon (two yards). The lead was sliced to 15-8 following a long punt return by the Sachems in the third quarter and completely eliminated after Middleboro quarterback Andrew Card scampered in from eight yards out with 6:46 left in regulation; Card's two-point conversion pass to Matt Kenney put the visitors up 16-15.

But junior quarterback Andrew Minton (5-for-8, 59 yards) did his best Tom Brady impression during North Quincy's next possession. Minton orchestrated an 11-play drive - the first play was a 25-yard completion to Hannon - from his own 30yard line that cumulated in an eight-yard touchdown run by Chase that gave North Quincy a 21-16 lead. Senior place kicker Aris Bega's point after attempt put the Red Raiders up six points with just over a minute left in the fourth.

However, Middleboro's Card rallied the Sachems right back. On six pass plays, he drove Middleboro 75 yards in 59 seconds and after he found a wide-open Lance Henry in the back of the end zone the score was tied up at 22-22 with three seconds remaining. The Sachems eschewed the potential gameclinching PAT and, instead decided to throw for the two-point conversion. Bad idea. Chase disrupted Card's throwing lane and the North Quincy defense held to force overtime.

In the extra session both teams began possession from the ten-yard line with four downs to score. The Red Raiders took the ball first and on first down Chase barreled his way to the two-yard line. On second-and-goal, Hannon walked into the end zone; the two-point conversion failed and the North Quincy defense took the field looking to protect the 28-22 lead.

On first down, Middleboro's Josh Teri rumbled nine yards to the one-yard line to set up second-and-goal to go for the Sachems. But thanks to the collective effort of Hannon, Vinny Tran, Ian Dunphy and Kevin Pappadopolous (sack), the Red Raiders' defensive front stonewalled Teri three straight times from inside the one-yard line to clinch the first victory of the season for North Quincy.

In a game of back-andforth it was the Red Raiders who stood tall when it mattered most.

"Our team is young and even most of our seniors are first-year starters," said, Connor at midfield following the win. "We are learning as we go. We are also learning how to come back and how to play with a lead; there is just so much learning going around."

"This win showed the reliency of the kids and I tip my hat to them," Connor continued as his team celebrated around him in the rain. "We gave (Middleboro) an opportunity and they capitalized and, then more importantly, credit to our kids. They fought back and we finally got that first win and that monkey off our back."

Allen Jump Starts The Offense

An 11-play drive to start the game by Middleboro came up empty thanks to the defense of Hannon, Tran, Pappadopolous, Joey Lawler, Chris Kerin, Joe Brown and Johannes Harten. North Quincy got the ball back on downs at their own 19-yard line with 4:42 left in the first quarter.

On the first play from scrimmage and with the Sachems bunching the box, Minton handed off to Allen. The sophomore back hit the hole before bouncing the play to the left. Allen used his electrifying speed to outrun five Middleboro defenders down the sidelines for the 81-yard touchdown setting the stage for the dramatic finale.

Hannon & Chase: Productive 1-2 Punch

North Quincy's senior captains would not let the Red Raiders lose accounting for 194 yards rushing and three touchdowns. During the team's second possession, Chase broke free on a 52-yard run to set up Hannon's three-yard plunge that gave North Quincy a 13-0 lead at 10:15 of the second quarter.

Trailing 16-15 in the fourth quarter, Hannon had a huge 25-yard catch while Chase rushed for 23 yards including an eight-yard touchdown to cap off the 11-play drive that gave North Quincy the 22-16 lead.

Both players also stood out on defense for the Red Raiders.

Minton Quarterbacks North To First Win

Junior Andrew Minton wasn't asked to carry the North Quincy offense that role went to the running backs, but the lefty signalcaller held his own and he saved his best for last.

With his team trailing 16-15 with 6:45 left in the game, Minton took his offense on an 11-play drive in which he got things rolling by hitting Hannon open in the flat for a 25yard gain.

Minton finished 5-for-8 for 59 yards. Not groundbreaking stats but he stepped up when things looked bleak, which is exactly what a quarterback is supposed to do.

"Andrew did a good job at quarterback," said Connor.

"He is just a good athlete."

Defense Bent

Defense Bent But Didn't Break

North Quincy's defense came up with the big plays when it mattered most. In the first half, the defense forced Middleboro to turn the ball over on downs on the opening possession; Pappadopolous' sack gave North the ball back on the second possession; Tran's tackle forced a punt on the third possession; Pappadopolous fumble recovery ended the fourth possession, and Brown's interception in the shadow of the end zone stifled the Sachems final drive before halftime.

The defense could do nothing about the long punt return and despite allowing Card to drive the field to tie the game at the end of regulation, Chase made the play on the conversion to keep it

In overtime, it was a full unit display. Second-and-goal to go and North Quincy held tight. Impressive.

The Red Raiders travel to Duxbury High School on Friday to play the Dragons.

MARQUIS CHASE (#23) rumbles through the Middleboro defense during the fourth quarter of last Friday's Patriot League game. Chase rushed for 133 yards on 16 carries and scored a touchdown.

GOAL LINE STAND – The North Quincy defensive unit stopped the Middleboro offense three times from inside the one-yard line in the extra session to clinch the 28-22 win. Vinny Tran (#63) along with Ian Dunphy, Walter Hannon and Kevin Pappadopolous held strong along the defensive line in overtime.

NORTH QUINCY DEFENSIVE BACKS Marquis Chase (left) and Antoine Allen (#11) lay the lumber on Middleboro's Matt Kenney on a two-point conversion pass – Kenney caught it. The Red Raiders held on to defeat the Sachems, 28-22, in overtime last Friday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

QUARTERBACK ANDREW MINTON (#9) rolls out of the pocket in the fourth quarter. Minton found fullback Walter Hannon (#45) open for a 25-yard completion; the pass completion started an 11-play drive, which resulted in a eight-yard TD run by Marquis Chase that gave the Raiders a 22-16 lead.

HEAD COACH JIM CONNOR barks out instructions to his team during overtime. The Red Raiders held on to defeat Middleboro, 28-22, in overtime to secure their first victory of the season following five consecutive losses.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

DO YOU HAVE AN UNDER-STANDING HEART? ... Someone once said that the realization that there are other points of view (other than your own) is the beginning of wisdom. Understanding what they are is a great step. ... And the final test is understanding why they are held.

With this thought in mind, let us all work towards "building bridges of understanding." Today, perhaps more than ever in history, we need to "build these bridges."

the need today for understanding hearts is just as great as it ever was. The lack of them explains much of the mindless cruelty at work in so many parts of the world today.

Today we cannot ignore the visible and invisible walls dividing countries, races, and families. We must tear the walls down and build bridges instead. Each bridge is worth building, even in frustrating times and on unknown territory.

Let us get to work today!

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Mars, your ruling planet, begins a journey that will open up a growing number of possibilities. Put that surging Arian energy to good use and explore it to your heart's content.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This is the time to prepare for a career move coming up next month. Update your resume. Get those proposals in shape. And don't forget to buff up that Bovine self-confidence.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your Gemini instincts will guide you to the right people who might be able to help you get over that career impasse that has been holding you back. Expect to make changes.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You're getting closer, but you still have a ways to go before reaching your goals. Continue to stay focused, no matter how difficult it can be for the easily distracted Moon Child.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your Leonine pride might be keeping you from getting to the source of a disturbing situation. Don't be shy about asking questions. Remember: Information is power.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's a good time to shake up your tidy little world by doing something spontaneous, like taking an unplanned trip or going on a mad shopping spree.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) This is a good week to get advice on your plans. But don't act on them until you feel sure that you've been told everything you need to know to support your move.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Be careful. You might be probing just a little too deeply into a situation that you find singularly suspicious. The facts you seek will begin to emerge at a later time.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This is a good week to make new friends and to look for new career challenges. But first, get all those unfinished tasks wrapped up and out of the way.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Relationships need a fresh infusion of tender, loving care. Avoid potential problems down the line. Stay close to loved ones as the month draws to a close.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Aspects favor relationships, whether platonic, professional or personal. On another note: Be a mite more thrifty. You might need some extra money very soon.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) This is the absolute right time to let those often-hidden talents shine their brightest. You'll impress some very important people with what you can do.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are impelled by a need to find truth, no matter how elusive. You would make a wonderful research scientist or an intrepid detective.

Keenan Legislation Targets Prescription Drug Abuse

Sen. John F. Keenan, co-chairman of the Legislature's Joint Committee on Mental Health and Substance Abuse Committee, announced Tuesday his panel has released comprehensive legislation that targets the Commonwealth's growing prescription drug abuse epidemic.

The bill, entitled An Act relative to prescription drug diversion, abuse and addiction, aims to increase consumer education about the dangerousness of certain prescription drugs, reduce the accessibility of unused prescription it more difficult for addicts to doctor shop and obtain prescription drugs illegally, and increase availability of treatment for addicts.

"Prescription drug addictions often don't begin with the drug dealer on the street corner; they begin at home, using pills legally obtained from doctors," said Sen. Keenan. "People need to be aware that, although these medications can be helpful in treating physical or mental afflictions, they also carry an elevated risk of dependency, and can be targeted for theft."

cessibility of unused prescription New statistics show that opioidmedication within the home, make related drug overdoses are now the leading cause of accidental death in Massachusetts, surpassing auto accidents. On average across the Commonwealth, 50 people a month die from opioid-related overdoses. Opioids refer to heroin as well as prescriptions such as OxyContin, Percoset and Vicodin; drugs that contain oxycodone, hydrocodone, or hydromorphone, and are all synthetic cousins of morphine.

"For years our focus has been on combating the use and abuse of illegal drugs. But now, we must redirect our efforts and attention to our own medicine cabinets,"

Council Seeks To End Lax Payments On Details

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The city is owed over $1 million for unpaid police and fire details, according to City Auditor Sue O'Connor who said a major portion of that money will never be paid.

In fact, O'Connor said that most of those funds could be written off as the majority date back more than decade.

O'Connor provided the figures after City Council debated tighter ordinances covering companies and agencies seeking police and fire details at their Oct. 17 meeting

At that meeting, City Council

President Kevin Coughlin outlined his proposed amendments that would levy interest on all overdue bills for police or fire details. In addition, the proposed amendment would attach a late payment fee equal to 10 percent of the overdue funds to such bills.

Moon Island Gun Range Hours Limit

During a visit to Quincy with Mayor Thomas Koch on Monday, Boston Mayor Thomas M. Menino agreed to limit the hours of operation for the Boston Police Department shooting range on Moon Island off Squantum.

Mayor Koch and Mayor Menino spent nearly two hours together touring City of Boston facilities on Moon and Long Islands on Monday, discussing at length Boston's operations on the two islands and a number of issues raised regularly by Quincy officials and residents. Moon Island is owned by the City of Boston and Long Island is actually within its municipal boundaries. Both islands can only be

Ayers Fighting Redistricting Plan

By LAURA GRIFFIN

It's not right to split up Quincy's state legislative districts and drop a few thousand voters into a Dorchester district, according to State Rep. Bruce Ayers who said Tuesday he will fight to keep all of North Quincy in the state's First Norfolk legislative district which he represents.

"I'm going to fight to get it back in my district," said Ayers of Ward 3, Precinct 3 which would be moved to the 13th Suffolk District under a proposed redistricting

Prescription Drug Disposal Saturday At Police Headquarters

The Mayor's Substance Abuse Task Force, working in conjunction with the DEA, EDAN, Impact Quincy and the Quincy Police Department, will host a prescription drug disposal day at the Quincy Police Headquarters on Saturday, Oct. 29th between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The Take Back program, coordinated by the Drug En-forcement Administration in too station with local police departments, municipal offices, and medical facilities, was started last year in response to the growing need to provide safe ways for people to dispose of their prescription medications. So far, more than 305 tons of prescription drugs have been turned in nationwide at take back days held last fall and this past spring. The service is free and anonymous; drugs can be turned in with no questions asked.

"More people need to recognize the high street demand for some of the popular prescription medications out there, such as painkillers, anti-anxiety medicasleeping aids," said ohn F. Keenan, coman of the Joint Com-ec on Mental Health and Substance Abuse. "If these drugs are no longer needed, then this takeback day is a great opportunity to dispose of them properly."

"Flushing medications down the toilet has the potential for releasing chemicals into local water supplies and medicines thrown into the trash can be stolen once placed out on the curb," said Rep. Liz Malia, co-chairwoman of the Joint Committee on Mental Health and Substance Abuse. "Our hope is that people with leftover medications will take advantage of this free service, and reduce the public health and safety risks associated with improper storage and disposal of prescription drugs."

All residents are invited to bring unused or expired prescription and non-prescription medications to the Quincy Police Headquarters at One Sea Street for proper disposal. The process is anonymous, and residents need not bring pills in their original containers.

Needles (sharps) and aerosols cannot be disposed of at this event. Should residents seek to dispose of sharps, Manet Community Health Center sponsors a

The Quincy Police Department also sponsors a drug disposal kiosk at QPD headquarters, and it is open throughout the week.

OVER 150 INDIVIDUALS recently attended a Quincy Chamber of Commerce business breakfast meeting at Granite Links with keynote speaker Richard Heapes from Street-Works Development. Heapes provided an update on the Quincy Center redevelopment project and discussed the recent partnership with National Realty and Development Corp (NRDC), one of the leading retail real estate owner/developers in the Northeast. John Quincy Adams (a.k.a. Jim Cooke) made a surprise appearance, questioning Heapes on whether the streets would be wide enough for the "horse and buggy" to turn around and pondering where the cattle would graze. ### Public Meeting On Wollaston MBTA Station Nov. 2

City Council President Kevin Coughlin has organized a community update and will host a meeting joined by Councillor Doug Gutro and state Sen. John Keenan regarding proposed improvements to the Wollaston MBTA Station.

Representatives the MBTA are expected to attend the meeting set for Wednesday, Nov. 2 at 6:30 p.m. at the Wollaston School Gym.

The meeting will provide an opportunity to share information with regard to a long sought initiative advocated for over the the course of several yaers: accessibility and utilization improvements to the Wollaston MBTA Station and correction of infrastructure deficiencies that contribute to flooding at this site.

On May 6, 2010, after years of advocacy the MBTA Board of Directors voted to approve $1.3 million to undertake the first step leading to the ultimate improvements at the station. An extensive engineering study of the station and surrounding environment has been undertaken over the past year.

The public is encouraged to attend the meeing. The status of the project will be

Sam Horn: The Sports Mentor

ormer Boston Red Sox player Sam Horn knows quite a bit about baseball.

Horn was drafted by the Boston Red Sox in the 1st round (16th overall) of the 1982 amateur draft.

In his major league debut with the Red Sox in 1987, he hit a game-winning, three-run homer in his third atbat. He holds the major league record for hitting 10 homeruns in 82 at-bats.

Besides suiting up as the Red Sox designated hitter, he also played for four other teams during his five and half years in the majors: Baltimore, Cleveland, Texas and Pittsburgh. His offensive numbers are still tops for opening day in Oriole history: two homeruns, three doubles and 7 RBIs in 1990.

From 2003 to 2007 he was a member of the pre and post-game NESN team for the World Champion Red Sox. He proudly wears a ring from the 2004 World Series Championship.

He's also one of the most popular players to ever wear a Red Sox uniform. "The Fenway Fridge" has a tremendous following from his fan club, "The Sons of Sam Horn."

A motivational speaker, Horn is now ready to share his baseball knowledge in Quincy as a sports mentor.

He is the founder and CEO of Sportz Tutor, which will be part of a new sports complex being built at 260 Victory Rd., Marina Bay. The complex will be a training facility for a multitude of sports, including soccer, field hockey, lacrosse, football, basketball and of course, baseball.

Horn says training will focus on five categories: speed, power, agility, hand-eye coordination, and the mental approach to the game. It will be geared for children and adults at all levels.

"This is for sports. I am the sports tutor. You can come to me and say I want to be faster or I want to be more agile. We'll have state-of-the-art equipment like speed ladders and parachutes because I believe different equipment builds different muscles and also builds different skills.

Horn believes all players of all abilities should strive for improvement.

"We believe in improving your game. If you're starting at ground zero, there's a lot of room for improvement. If you're in the middle, maybe less and those in the upper echelon we want to train those kids and not necessarily take over from their training with what their coaches have done up to this point but one of the main things that we're going to be working on is the mental aspect of the game.

of other places because our facility will be top-notch. unity, sportsmanship and perseverance. Everything there is going to be major league."

The Marina Bay Sportsplex will feature 80 by 50 yards of new Astroturf, 50-foot ceilings, large and extra-large batting cages to provide feedback on hitting line drives. Balls will be fielded off live bats; there are no machines. Rent a live batting practice pitcher or doit-yourself.

"This program will allow players to train like the pros and learn their weaknesses, with programs that reveal exactly where you need to improve the most. We're going to have the best nets, the best cages," Horn says. "Even our smallest cage will be larger than most other cages.

Horn says he intends to be on-site as much as his schedule allows.

"I will be there hands-on because I want to deal with the kids and families that are coming in and be on a first-name basis with them," he explains. "Part of the profile that I'm going to be doing with the kids and adults who come into our programs will give me an idea of how and where they break down. Whether it's a kid who starts fast and fizzles out at the end of a game. Or a kid who starts really slow and gets stronger as the game goes on.

"I want to change their mind-set. I have ways of telling them and showing them how to go about building themselves up."

Horn says players will be "graded" on the five different areas of the core training circuit. They will be assigned a number. That grade will provide feedback on what areas of the game need the most work.

"If you have slow feet, you'll go to our agility area because you're already pretty good in the other four categories," Horn says. "What we want to do is be able to gauge you on five basic areas and then be able to tell you what program that we are having or when we do conditioning or whatever we want you working on this part as opposed to another area."

Plans are to open the complex by mid-December. Horn says an open house and "opening day-like" program are in the works.

Horn says he wants to share his passion for baseball with the Quincy community.

"I believe if you have passion to do something, you should be willing to do it the right way. I was able to excel at baseball because I had a passion for the game and everyone has that passion around here."

Horn, who once hit four homeruns in a single high school game and was offered a football and baseball scholarship to USC, then adds:

"I believe I would have been a better ball player had I had the proper techniques and someone telling and showing me and instilling confidence in me that if I keep doing this, I'm going to get better and one day I'll see myself being the best I could be.

"That's what I want do to in this community. It's a very diversified area and I want to help everyone. I feel so good when a little kid comes up to me and says, 'I did what you told me and it worked. I got a hit!' That gives a kid so much confidence."

Horn's Sportz Mentor will also feature an adult singles and doubles league. There will be a skills competition which include a homerun hitting contest, singles/ doubles contest (line drives), infield and outfield drills (ground and fly balls) and throwing for accuracy.

A women's softball league is also planned. Players who sign up for the league will play on a regulation field "under the lights," compete is the skills competition and receive free instructions while training for the

By the time a player completes a training program, "I think that's where we're going to differ from a lot Horn says players will also learn some life lessons like

> "I hope a player says Sam Horn taught me good sportsmanship, he taught me how to play the game the right way, he gave me the right instructions, some great techniques and he's a good guy and taught me if nothing else, he taught me to treat everybody nice.

> "Life is too short to walk around with a frown," the affable Horn says. "Walk around and just be happy and make every day the best that you can make it."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1915 postcard view of Presidents Lane from Adams Street near Quincy Center. Portions of the stonewalls on the sides of the road remain today. The intersection of Glendale Road can be seen where the road rises up the hill in the distance. Beyond that point the road was called Goffe Street at the time of this picture. President John Adams had owned all the land on this hill where he had fruit orchards and he frequently walked up this lane across from his home to watch the sunrise. After Adams died his grandson, Charles Francis Adams, was the first to build a house on the hill in 1836. The land then remained pretty much undeveloped until the 1890's when the Adams family heirs decided to sell the hill and the land development company that bought it divided it into three subdivisions. Wealthy Quincy businessmen who built large homes that command high selling prices to this day purchased many of the large lots on this side of what became known as Presidents Hill. ### Lung Association Urges Influenza Vaccination

Locally, between 327,380 and 1,309,525 Massachusetts residents will suffer from influenza in an average year. Alarmingly, influenza immunization rates fall far short every year.

We all are "faces" of influenza and are at risk of contracting the virus. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommends everyone 6 months of age and older receive an influenza vaccination. The recommendation reinforces annual influenza vaccination as a public health priority and highlights the need for people to talk to their health care provider about getting immunized this season.

Influenza is a serious respiratory illness that is easily spread and can lead to severe complications, even death, for you or someone with whom you come in contact. Each year in the U.S., on average, influenza and its related complications results in approximately 226,000 hospitalizations. Depending on virus severity during the influenza season, deaths can range from 3,000 to a high of about 49,000 people.

We at the American Lung Association urge you to make sure you and your loved ones are vaccinated against influenza this and every year. Additional information about influenza, vaccination and the Faces of Influenza initiative can be found at www.facesofinfluenza.org

New Candidates Urge Programs At Meeting

By FRANK McCAULEY

Although all the candidates for city offices were invited to attend last night's seventh annual Candidates Night held by the North Quincy Koch Club at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Bungalow, it turned out to be a night for new can-

This Week 1957 54 Years Ago

Seeking the office of mayor former city councillor Lawrence J. Curtin took to task Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa for his "insincere bunk." Mr. Curtin referred to the letters sent out by Mayor Della Chiesa to citizens on the occasion of a birthday, a birth or a promotion. (Also known as "Womb to the Tomb" cards.) Mr. Curtin questioned the Mayor's right to use the taxpayers' money in such a manner.

Councillor James R. McIntyre, getting out of a sick bed to attend the forum, spoke on his candidacy for a second term on the council.

CITY WINS IN DISPUTE OVER BALLOT

City Solicitor Douglas A. Randall said that Judge Reuben Lurie had handed down his decision on the city election ballot dispute case in favor of the city.

The court's finding that the petition of Joseph P. Mc-Donough, candidate for city council, was without merit.

The judge ruled that City Clerk Donald R. Crane was correct in his intention to print the names of the candidates now in office at the top of the ballot with the words "Candidate for Re-Election" after them.

McDonough had contested that since the change in government was coming at the end of the year, the present councillors on the ballot were not "incumbents" for the reason that their duties under Plan A would be different than their duties under Production on the United States' first nuclear powered surface vessel - a guided missile cruiser - is underway at Fore River Shipyard, several months in advance of the keel lying scheduled for sometime next spring.

Before production could get underway, the yard had to provide new facilities for the work and it also had to set up a training program for its personnel.

Chosen for two new positions were two Quincy men. They included John A. Wilkins, 35, of Squantum, service engineer in the nuclear power branch of the Central Technical Department and 38-year old William H. Collins, Jr., superintendent of sales of the Quincy Yard's special products division.

BOSTON COLLEGE HIGH SCHOOL CHOIR

At BC High, Choir Hits All the Right Notes

On a recent Thursday morning, weary-eyed teenage boys shuffled into the auditorium before the start of school. Some students carried sports equipment, bags stuffed with cleats and shoulder pads. Others, mostly the younger students, carried book bags that matched their own size and weight. But what happened next separated this gathering from the many others at BC High.

More than 200 young men, who had just commuted from communities across eastern Massachusetts, opened their school bags, placed their black binders in hand, and took the stage. For this was no ordinary student gathering: this was choir practice.

"Many students first come to choir without any musical experience or idea of what to expect. It's amazing to see their development process, their growth in understanding and enjoyment of the pieces we perform," said Dr. Marina Rozenberg of Quincy, who directs the school's choir. "Regardless of where they come from musically, there is an opportunity for every student to broaden his horizons."

This year, the choir boasts its highest numbers, with over 220 students participating in the group. This is up from less than a dozen a few years ago. Students meet twice a week before school for rehearsal, allowing them to participate in other sports and activities.

The choir performs music of all periods, from Renaissance to contemporary, with an emphasis on learning to express and respond to different musical styles.

"In a school of 1,600 young men, it's impressive to see such a large showing in the choir. More impressive is that these students represent such a broad range of our student body and its interests," said Principal Stephen Hughes. "The growth has injected a great deal of energy into our performing arts programs and is something we are really proud of."

David Coletti, a junior from Quincy said, "Being in the choir for three years now, I have been presented with opportunities that surpassed anything I could imagine," said. "For me, choir has been an outstanding experience in which I have made so many friendships and memories."

During the past few years, the choir has traveled extensively.

Nationally, the Choir has performed in Vermont at the Trapp Family Lodge, in Washington, DC at the White House and the National Cathedral, and in San Francisco with the choir at the University of San Fran-International performances range from concerts in Prague, Czech Republic to Dublin, Ireland. During a trip through Russia, they were the first American choir to perform at the prestigious Kazan State University Choir Festival. On a trip to Rome, the BC High Choir sang a liturgy at St. Peter's Basilica in the Vatican.

"By performing, students gain a sense of pride, poise, and confidence. Singing from notes on paper, and often not realizing it, begins to foster discipline and teamwork," said Rozenberg. "These are lifelong skills that go far beyond the concert hall. And just as important: it's fun!"

"The BC High Choir experience has to be one of the most rewarding activities that I have ever done," said junior Brendan Murray of Quincy. "Dr. Rozenberg does a great job and challenges us to do the best that we can."

"Joining the BC High choir has been one of the best choices and best experiences of my life as a BC High student," said junior Matthew Levine of Quincy. "Most of my friends are involved in it and we have a great time singing togeth-

Thank You For Outpouring Of Love

Thank you for the outpouring of love and affection that has been shown to our family during this most difficult time.

I am forever grateful to our family, friends and the entire Quincy community. Last month my husband passed away suddenly at the age of 33, leaving behind two beautiful daughters.

Over the last month I have received hundreds of private donations, been told of fundraisers throughout the city and most importantly have seen the compassion of a community. As hard as this has been, it has been made easier surrounded by so much support.

In particular, I would like to thank: Keller Williams Realty in Braintree and the national offices, South Side Tavern, Eastern Bank, Babycakes, Malachy's Saloon, Sons of Italy, Boston Bowl, Presidents Golf

Supports New Track At Faxon Field

(A copy of the following letter was submitted to The Quincy Sun for publication.)

Dear Quincy School Committee;

I attended the Quincy School Committee meeting Oct. 19 at Quincy High School where the main issue discussed was the proposal to build a track on Faxon Field next to the new Quincy High School. I am writing to convey my thoughts on that meeting as well as the track proposal itself and the related issues.

First and foremost, let me thank each and every one of you and applaud each and every one of you on the work you do on behalf of the citizens, taxpayers, students and student-athletes of the City of Quincy. The work you do is, by and large, thankless and yeoman-like in environment and substance.THANK YOU.

The issues you deal with are not often easy and often require creative and open minds to solving difficult problems. The track at Faxon Field is certainly one of those issues and is a complex and difficult problem on one hand, yet a simple and viable and professional answer has been proposed and awaits a vote by your committee.

I see the issue as having 2 distinct yet separate related problems:

1) the long (to say the least) awaited and vastly needed (again - to say the least) track for all Quincy track athletes.

2) the repair of the pipes and other infrastructure not only near the Faxon Field area homes, but in close proximity to the area, which has seen Quincy residents and taxpayers endure many, many years of flooding due to infrastructure problems not caused by Faxon Field or the proposal to site a track on that location. (I have never endured such a thing and my heart goes out to those who have had to endure the flooding problems.)

The engineers and various consultants did a very and professional good job in outlaying the facts of both the track and related issues as well as the issue of floods due to aging and inferior pipes and infrastructure.

Having attended the meeting, it is clear the track at Faxon Field has been a contentious matter between the School Committee and Mayor Koch. The tone and attitude expressed by some during that meeting made it clear this is a hostile issue.

As a nearly life long resident of Quincy, a former athlete and a longtime taxpayer, my request is simple. I ask that you please shelve your personal and political disagreements and PLEASE think of the school children and taxpayers that you were elected to represent. Disagreements are natural, but to disagree at the cost of progress and at cost to the school children as not toler-

The presentation of Wednesday, Oct. 19 at Quincy High School, showed the site at Faxon Field to be a viable and cost effective solution to the long standing problem of a quality track in the City of Quincy, for use by the students of Quincy as well as the taxpayers.

On Wednesday evening I heard no other viable proposals to the Faxon Field proposal. I did hear some frustration by the committee as well as some disrespect toward longtime Quincy Track Coach Geoff Hennessy. I was disappointed to hear that Coach Hennessy was not utilized by the School Committee throughout the last several years while reviewing the track matter. Coach Geoff Hennessy is an incredible asset to not only the track and field athletes of Quincy, but a wonderful, caring and excellent coach and gem and asset to the City of Quincy he should be proclaimed a City Landmark.

I was also disappointed to hear many non-factual statements by folks who are opposed to the Faxon Field site. If those folks were listening to the presentation, I believe the actual facts are now before them rather than any spin they may have heard or believed previously or was perhaps, sadly generated by opponents of the Faxon Field site al mem

My daughter has been involved in the Quincy Track Club for the past 3 spring / summer seasons. As a longtime youth coach myself, (Quincy Youth Basketball) I clearly see Geoff Hennessey's value to the athletes and city, he is unsurpassed in his coaching knowledge, ability, skills and general compassion and caring for the track and field athletes of the city. This email is not about nor for Geoff Hennessy, yes I'd be remiss to not mention how much of he is to Quincy and an asset that seems to have been overlooked in the track equation and review of site(s) to date. This email is about the students and athletes of Quincy and your making the timely and sensible and most cost effective decision in your upcoming vote.

I write to you to ask that you put away your political and personal animus toward Mayor Koch and vote to site the track at Faxon Field. It is the solution to a long standing problem that makes the most sense both in terms of fulfilling the needs of Quincy athletes as well as the best use of finances available to solve this problem and as a bonus to this plan, the residents in the Faxon Field area and beyond will finally get some long awaited relief to their flooding situations (which are, again - separate from the track matter and flooding really should have been resolved many, many years ago, and blame could be put to various administration's as to why that matter was never dealt with in a positive way to resolve it permanently, yet blame does nothing to solve this problem - those previous administrations know they could have proactively solved the flooding and chose not to do

I ask that you PLEASE move the City forward and do the proper, prudent and most cost effective thing and approve the track for the Faxon Field site for the best interests of the students, athletes and citizens and taxpayers of the City of

Quincy Landlord Admits Three Manslaughters In Fatal Fire

One of the three landlords charged with manslaughter in the deaths of two children and their father in a March. 2009 fire in a Quincy apartment house pled guilty Monday to three counts of manslaughter and all other indictments against her in Norfolk Superior court, according to Norfolk District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey.

Jinny Xue Ma, 34, admitted her culpability as landlord of an illegal apartment that turned into a death trap for three members of a Quincy family when a lamp sparked a fire there on March 25, 2009. The apartment lacked smoke detectors and the mandatory second exit for use in case of fire, among other violations, according to evidence in the Road claimed the life of Oudah Moshah Frawi, 39, his two-month old son Hassan Frawi and his year-old son Ali Oudah Frawi. Frawi's wife and the mother of the children survived with serious burn injuries.

The fire at 100 Robertson

"This was a senseless loss of life and a tremendous shock to the city of Quincy," District Attorney Morrissey said. "We felt that significant state prison time was warranted by the facts and loss of life in this case and based our sentence request

Jinny Xue Ma pled guilty to three counts of manslaughter, four counts of Wanton or Reckless Violation of State Building Code (causing serious bodily injury or death) Chap. 148 Sec. 34B, and one count of perjury for falsifying documents related to the property.

Assistant District Attorney Lynn Beland asked Judge Kenneth Fishman to impose a sentence of 12 to 15 years in State Prison. The Court imposed a sentence of 2 1/2 years in the House of Correction with six months to serve, followed by 3 years of probation. Conditions of probation include performing 200 hours of community service.

Jinny Xue Ma was taken to jail from the courtroom to begin serving her sentence.

"The case against her co-defendants, her husband Jason Huang and his brother Andy Huang, remain open and pending in Norfolk Superior Court," District Attorney Morrissey said, noting that the Constitutional presumption of their innocence is intact. "They are due back in court Nov. 8."

District Attorney Morrissey also lauded the City of Quincy for establishing its Illegal Rooming House Task Force in the wake of the fire, addressing scores of illegal apartments in the ensuing months, and their continuing efforts. He also thanked the Quincy Police and Fire Departments and the State Fire Marshal's office for their work in the investiga-

State Fire Marshal Stephen D. Coan said, "I want to commend Norfolk District Attorney Morrissey for pursuing this case. This is the first conviction under the new statute MGL C 148 s 34B that holds building owners responsible for building and fire code violations that lead to serious injury or death. The statute was part of the comprehensive Massachusetts Fire Safety Act passed in 2004 in response to the Rhode Island Station Nightclub fire."

He added, "I responded to this tragic fatal fire and saw the living conditions and the illegal basement apartment first hand. I personally asked former District Attorney Keating to see if this case met the burden of proof for this new law as landlords who put their tenants at risk must be held accountable."

Coan said, "I also want to commend the excellent work of the State Police assigned to the Office of the State Fire Marshal who lead the fire cause and origin team that provided the district attorney with a strong case to bring forward."

The Quincy Fire Department, Quincy Police Department, State Police assigned to the Office of the State Fire Marshal and to the Norfolk District Attorney's Office, jointly investigated the

'Glory' Film Screening Tonight

The Academy Awardwinning film "Glory," the true story of the first black regiment to fight for the North in the Civil Ward, will be shown tonight (Thursday) at 6:45 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Under the command of Robert Gould Shaw, the 54th Regiment of the Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry served admirably in battle until they made their ultimate demonstration of bravery during the almost suicidal assault on the Confederate Fort Wagner in Charleston, South Carolina, on July 18, 1863.

Matthew Broderick and Cary Elwes are the idealistic young Bostonians who lead the regiment; Morgan Freeman is the inspirational sergeant who united the troops; and Denzel Washington is the runaway slave who embodies the indomitable spirit of the 54th.

The 122-minute film is rated R for brutal war violence. It was released in 1989

This film is presented as part of Civil War 150, a special program series about this critical chapter in our country's history. Funding for the film has been provided by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Bobby DeCristofaro Loved Quincy And His Fam

By EMILY TAFT

Robert DeCristofaro. 58, a worker for the City of Quincy for more than 30 years, was remembered as a devoted father and family man as well as for his love for Quincy by mourners who paid their respects at DeCristofaro's wake Mon-

DeCristofaro was a Traffic and Signals Maintenance Technician/Electrician, who died in a tragic accident while working on a traffic light Oct. 18.

"As a city worker he is irreplaceable," said Public Works Commissioner Daniel Raymondi. "No one knows this city as well as he did. He was a great individual, and it is such a tragic loss."

He is survived by his wife of 27 years Cynthia P. (Mazeika) DeCristofaro and son Nicholas DeCristofaro.

ther to his son, who was his pride and joy," said friend Jennifer Tapper. "Him and his son were really close, it's hard enough to loose a parent as a child, but as a 14 year old child who was close to his dad it is tragic."

There was a line out the door at Keohane Funeral Home on Monday to remember a man who to many was called Bobby.

"I have known Bobby a long time, we go way back. He is a wonderful dedicated city employee," said Raymondi. "As a father and a husband he is irreplaceable."

DeCristofaro was also remembered as a man who loved his job who would do anything to help anyone, as well as devoted family man.

"I worked with Bobby for many years not only with the city but in the union as well," said friend Joseph McArdle. "He had a zest for life that showed no matter what he was doing. He loved his job, but he loved his family even more."

A loved man, from a well-known family in Quincy, 'Bobby' was the man who lit up the Christmas lights display every year in Quincy.

"Bobby was the guy that put together the lights every Christmas," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "He was one of those really special employees, that will be really difficult to replace. His work ethic was just unmatched. It's not only a huge loss for the City of Quincy but for his wife and son."

DeCristofaro was born and raised in Quincy until moving to Braintree with his wife and son. He could be seen watching and assisting at his son's sporting events.

"Mayor Koch and I thought that coming jointly would show how important he was to us, to his family," said Braintree Mayor Joseph Sullivan. "Cynthia is a strong woman. There is a lot of care and concern for his family."

DeCristofaro was a man who knew his job inside and out, and could explain anything about the traffic and lighting systems to anyone who would listen.

"I worked with him on the Christmas lights every year. He was a very nice man," said another friend, former Quincy Mayor Walter Hannon. "Bobby was a tremendous guy, who never had an attitude with anything he did."

All who were privileged to know him will miss him.

"Bobby was a very indispensable man and worker," said long-time friend and Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey. "There has been a large outpouring of people and support. This is a sad day for everyone involved."

John Paul Jones Program Tonight

Quincy Historical Society will present the story of the American Revolution's remarkable naval commander, John Paul Jones, at its next meeting, Thursday, Oct. 27, at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy in Quincy Center.

Bob Begin, who previously presented the story of the first U.S.S. Quincy at the Historical Society, will discuss the many facets of Jones' character and career: his ambition, his penchant for schemes, his ability to execute ingenious plans, and above all, his courage and ferocity in engaging the enemy.

Jones provoked various reactions among his contemporaries. English writers labeled him a pirate. John

Adams once considered him an ambitious intriguer. Franklin and Jefferson admired him

Begin will tell Jones' story, noting both strengths and shortcomings and highlighting Jones' significant contributions to the American Revolution.

The public is welcome to attend. Admission is free.

A Message From Social Security

100 Disability Conditions Fast-Tracked

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Here's some important news if you're applying for Social Security disability benefits for yourself or a loved one. There are 100 condi- Social Security tions which qualify for an expedited process known as Online Services

Compassionate Allowances. * Convenient * Secure * Compassionate Allow- www.socialsecurity.gov ances, which began in December 2007, are a way to quickly identify diseases and other medical conditions that, by definition, meet Social Security's standards for disability benefits.

"We have an obligation to award benefits quickly to people whose medical conditions are so serious they clearly meet our disability standards," said Michael J. Astrue, Commissioner of Social Security. "We are now able to do precisely that for 100 severe conditions."

The Compassionate Allowances conditions are developed from information received at public outreach hearings, and from the Social Security and Disability Determination Service communities, medical and scientific experts, and the National Institutes of Health. We also consider which conditions are most likely to meet our definition of disability.

"By definition, these illnesses are so severe that we don't need to fully develop the applicant's work history to make a decision," said Commissioner Astrue. "As a result, Social Security has eliminated this part of the application process for people who have a condition on the list, and we can award benefits much more quickly."

The Compassionate Allowances initiative is one of two parts of the agency's fast-track system for certain disability claims. When combined with the Quick Disability Determination (QDD) process, Social Security last year approved the claims of more than 100,000 people, usually in less than two weeks. This year, the agency expects to fast-track nearly 150,000 cases. Under QDD, a predictive model analyzes specific elements of data within the electronic claims file to identify claims where there is a high potential the claimant is disabled and where evidence of the person's allegations can be quickly and easily obtained

For more information on Compassionate Allowances, including a list of all 100 conditions, visit www.socialsecurity. gov/compassionateallowances.

Workmen from Campbell Construction Group LLC, in Peabody, recently hoisted new mahogany column casings with a crane up to the bell tower of the historic (Unitarian) in Quincy Center, also known as Church of

The City of Quincy, which for historical reasons owns the bell and clock in the tower, will also be replacing the bell, which is cracked, and refurbishing the four clock faces. This work will be done in the next few weeks in order to use the existing scaffolding and is expected to cost $100,000.

The dome is structurally supported by eight steel columns installed in 1964, but the wood column casings enclosing the steel and made of pine had rotted. The new column casings are made of Central American mahogany, a durable and rot-resistant wood. They were fabricated by W. W. The bell tower restoration work is part of a long range program for building restoration. Major work was done by the church in 1999 and 2000 to install 16 new steel trusses to rebuild the roof structure, install a new slate roof, and restore the interior of the main sanctuary, including its magnificent coffered plaster ceiling. Total costs for work done at that time were $1.7 million. In 2001, the church sold 11 pieces of historic silver to pay off loans needed to finance the project beyond available church and grant

Claire Muollo Taking Stand Against Pancreatic Cancer

'Promises For Purple' Walk Nov. 6

By EMILY TAFT

After battling pancreatic cancer for over three years, Claire Muollo of Quincy is taking a stand against the disease. She has organized a walk, on Nov. 6, in Braintree for the "Promises for Purple" campaign, in hopes of raising $20,000 to go towards pancreatic cancer.

"I want to bring awareness of this disease to people," said Muollo. "It might take me 30 years to get the word out but I am a stubborn red-head and I will get it done."

The name of the campaign 'Promises for Purple' is something that was thought up by Muollo's son Robert.

"It's a name that identifies the disease by its designated color," said Robert. "The name has definitely been brought to life by this event."

Muollo was diagnosed in July of 2009, and after battling the disease for two years doctors found it had spread to one of her lungs.

"During my fight against the disease I realized the passion the doctors have to better detect the disease in its early stages," said Muollo. "They want to provide a means to allow those inflicted with this disease a better quality of life, and ultimately, to find a cure."

The exact cause of pancreatic cancer is still largely unknown; it has been understudied in basic research laboratories and clinics.

The disease is rarely discovered early because there are no early warning signs and no screening tests to find it. Pancreatic cancer is the fourth leading cause of death due to cancer in the United States.

"This is one of the worst types of cancer," said Muollo. "I have seen pink everywhere this month, and wondered why people don't have purple up for November, it was then that I decided to do something."

Muollo along with her two sons, and a number of family and friends, started talking about a walk and ways to fund raise shortly after she was told the cancer had spread.

"I started talking to one of my sons one day about how they should have purple everywhere in November like they do for breast cancer," said Muollo. "He turned to me and said 'don't talk about it Ma, do something about it."

So she did, and after months of planning, and going door to door, to Quincy and Braintree businesses, asking for donations, Muollo has organized a walk that she one day hopes will be as big as the walk for breast cancer. She was even able to get Dana Faber to approve the organization, which will allow all donations to be tax deductible.

"The friends and family that are helping on this committee are helping my mother have a positive attitude and giving her the strength to keep going," said Robert. "They aren't being paid for this, they are giving their time to help, and meet every other Friday."

Robert went on to add he loves being a part of this organization because it not only means a lot to him but he sees how much it means to his mother.

"I could see her passion and determination on having this walk and creating this organization," Robert said. "It is interesting to see this thing through, from when it was just a thought to now when we are getting ready to hold the walk."

With the very little strength Muollo has, she spends every minute she can, trying to raise money in hopes that one day it will help towards finding a cure.

"I hope that what I am doing some day will make a difference in someone else's life," said Muollo. "I figured we could start small and see what happens, we can only grow from here."

Muollo is not the only one in her family who has suffered from cancer. Her husband lost his battle with cancer, and her sister is battling cancer as well, which makes the walk even more

"Cancer patients need the love and support from family and friends," said Muollo. "That's why I a going to crusade for this disease for as long as I can."

Since December of last year they have raised around $17,000, and Muollo said she hopes to raise the remaining $3,000 at the walk in November. Muollo said they have received donations not only from people in Massachusetts but all over the country.

"This cancer has given me a different outlook on life, it reminds me not to forget that we are all on this earth for a purpose," said Muollo. "My faith, sense of humor, and positive attitude, along with family and friends, is what has gotten me through this."

The walk will be held at 128 Town St. Braintree. It is an almost three mile walk to and from Braintree High School. To sign up, make a donation, or receive more information please visit www.promisesforpurple.org. All donations are tax deductible.

"My mom deserves this walk, and deserves this to all come together and we are keeping our fingers crossed that we get a good turn out," said Robert. "This event is really about the people who are living with this cancer, it is bigger then just one family."

ouncil Candidates Seek Support At ANHNA Forum

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Four new council candidates joined incumbent councillors last week in a bid for votes at Candidates' Night at The Neighborhood Club where each briefly outlined their goals and accomplishments if elected to City Council next month.

On Nov. 8, voters will choose three of four candidates running for At-Large council seats and there are contests for council seats in four of the city's six wards. There are open seats in both Ward 2 and Ward 5 and incumbent councillors have challengers in Ward 3 and Ward 6.

John Milgram introduced the candidates at the forum, the third election cycle Candidates' Night sponsored by the Adams National Historical Neighborhood Association (ANHNA).

Finances were a major concern for most candidates as each promised oversight of the city's spending and

One of the forum organizers, Jean Plante of ANHNA, estimated that over 200 persons attended the program.

At-Large Candidates

Voters will elect three at-large councillors from a field of four. Councillor atlarge John Keenan, who was elected state senator last fall, is not running for re-election on the council.

On the ballot for at-large council seats are incumbents Councillors Joseph Finn and Mike McFarland as well as the two new candidates for at-large seats: Doug Gutro, currently Ward 5 councillor, and John Rodophele, Sr., a

"I'm a newcomer. I'm not a politician," said Rodophele who is making his first run for office. He said he would devote full-time to the position.

Rodophele said he believes that residency should be a factor in city employment, as workers "should live in the city that pays

City finances are one of his major concerns as he said, "They're spending. They're borrowing lots of money and we, the taxpayers are going to pay for it."

Also running as a candidate for an at-large council seat is Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro who pledged continued oversight of the Quincy Center Revitalization project and review of city finances as well as continuing his longtime efforts to improve the city's quality of life and encourage growth.

Among Gutro's most recent initiatives is his effort for a traffic commission that would recommend improvements throughout the city and spotlight problems.

At the forum, Gutro described the importance of "neighborhood know-how." He also cited his work with the Environmental Protection Agency and the Massachusetts Municipal Associations as well as his past successes and continuing efforts as a ward councillor.

As an example, Gutro described his efforts to end the overnight parking of a tow truck on Glendale Avenue.

Incumbent Councillor Joseph Finn cited his experience in his bid for re-election, describing his accomplishments on the council and the importance of experience at this time. One of his most recent efforts focuses on restoring oversight power to the City Auditor.

As the Quincy Center project becomes a reality, Finn said oversight is essential and he has "fiscal concerns moving forward. This is where the rubber hits the Finn recounted his efforts to preserve open space, provide help for first-time homebuyers through support of the Affordable Housing Trust and, more recently, work on re-codifying the city's zoning.

Quincy is just a wonderful place. We have to work together," said Mike McFarland who recalled his past work and successes on the School Committee as well as the City Council. McFarland said he'd first entered politics when his children started school and he found unsatisfactory conditions in the public school buildings

During his years in public office, the city has completed a new Quincy High School and is beginning construction of Central Middle School and is now focusing on Quincy Center.

"It's coming together," McFarland said of the Quincy Center plan.

Ward 3

In Ward 3, incumbent Kevin Coughlin, who is also serving as city council president, is facing challenger John Cain.

"I will continue to ensure that our neighborhoods will not be ignored," said Coughlin who recounted his accomplishments as the ward's representative, such as saving the Wollaston Fire Station.

In addition, Coughlin recounted a most recent success that eliminated an accessory housing unit provision in the city's new zoning regulations.

Coughlin started his community work as one of the founders and president of the Montclair Neighborhood Association.

John Cain, Coughlin's challenger, described his work as president of the Wollaston School PTO, as well as his background in corporate management as he sought votes for the council

"We raised three children here," said Cain who described their successes after schooling in Quincy.

Cain said he is concerned about the tax bite and will work for "fiscal responsibility" as well improvements to fire protection, broken sidewalks, poor traffic planning, and the lack of zoning compliance, water bill accuracy and accurate real estate assessments.

"Everyone will be treated equally," pledged Cain.

Ward 5

One of two newcomers to city politics, Kirsten Hughes or Neil McCole, will fill the open council seat in Ward 5 vacated by Gutro who said of the candidates, "Either way the ward is in good hands."

First at the mike at the forum was Kirsten Hughes who described her roots in Ward 5 where she has been knocking on doors for the past weeks.

"This is a very diverse ward," said Hughes who promised regular office hours in each neighborhood as well as stability in the tax

Hughes noted there are significant issues facing Ward 5 residents from the privatization of Quincy Medical Center to "trees

Keenan: Casino Bill Bad Gamble For Taxpayers

By State Sen. JOHN F. KEENAN

I can understand the temptation to vote for a bill that has the potential of creating several thousand fulltime jobs and an additional few thousand temporary construction jobs, as well as reclaiming more than $800 million in economic activity that leaves the state each

But when that same bill also requires the creation of a new powerful state authority with little outside oversight, when the ethics rules governing this new industry are less strict than they should be, and when public dollars are used to pay the pension and health insurance benefits for private-sector employees, it becomes less attractive.

I don't have a moral objection to gambling. We've had the State Lottery for more than 40 years, and horseracing for decades longer than that. And if done right, and on a limited scale, casino-style gaming could be a complementary piece of the Massachusetts economy; another entertainment option competing alongside attending a sporting event, or a shopping trip to the out-

JOHN KEENAN

However, after spending countless hours reviewing the expanded gaming bill before us in the Legislature, debating 182 amendments, and listening to the arguments and concerns of my constituents, I cast my vote against the proposal to permit 3 casinos and a slot parlor in the Commonwealth.

My primary opposition, as I have consistently stated, is that permitting four expanded gaming facilities is too much. We don't know what the impact will be on the state's economy, or on the local business districts near the casinos and slot parlor. By creating four new gaming facilities in a state the size of Massachusetts, combined with the proximity of three other facilities in Rhode Island and Connecticut, and the potential of additional casinos in New Hampshire and Maine, my sense is that we run the risk of over saturating the market and ultimately falling short of revenue goals.

I am also concerned about the potential increase in problem gamblers. There is a fair argument to be made that problem gamblers already live in Massachusetts; except the money to address the problem is left behind in Rhode Island or Connecticut. This is true. However, studies show that the number of problem gamblers doubles within a 50-mile radius of a casino. Massachusetts is not a large state geographically. If four gaming facilities are built, the entire state will likely be located within 50 miles of a casino or slot parlor.

Finally, I am not comfortable with the dozen new spending trust funds set up to receive gaming revenue. These accounts will receive millions of dollars annually in gaming revenue, but there is little detail in the bill explaining how the money will be spent. I proposed an amendment requiring the Gaming Commission to at least file annual spending budgets for these accounts, but it was not successful. I also proposed putting gaming licensing fees and half of the revenue generated in the first year into the state's "rainy day" fund, anticipating that these funds will be needed to head off expected cuts in federal aid to the Commonwealth; this too did not pass.

Several of my other amendments also were not adopted. I sponsored amendments to reduce the number of casinos to two, and to prohibit the permitting of a slot parlor altogether. My amendments also would have strengthened ethics rules to prevent casinos from hiring the spouses or children of gaming commissioners or commission employees; to require an annual public budget-writing process, and to eliminate public money for health and pension benefits for horseracing employees.

I was fortunate to have the Senate adopt a number of amendments I offered in an attempt to improve the bill. These measures include explicitly prohibiting anyone convicted of a felony from opening, managing or working at a casino, levying tougher penalties for individuals who place bets on behalf of someone underage, and requiring casinos to hire Massachusetts residents to build and work at the ca-

In regards to a couple issues of note, I would have supported a five-year "cooling-off" period before legislators can take jobs with casinos, and I voted against the "happy hour" amendment, which will allow bars and restaurants across the Commonwealth to offer free or discounted drinks to pa-

Although there are a few differences between the House and Senate versions, I don't expect any of them to prove fatal and prevent final approval of a casino gaming by the end of the year.

The biggest challenge will then be to make sure the governor, attorney general and state treasurer make good, solid appointments to the gaming commission board. This board is being entrusted with a lot of power, and will be charged with laying the groundwork for how casino gambling is implemented in Massachusetts. They will make decisions that will effect this state for decades to come, and will ultimately be responsible for whether casino gambling succeeds or fails in Massachusetts.

Vote Expected Nov. 9 On Faxon Field Track Plan

By EMILY TAFT

Mayor Thomas Koch presented the school committee, on Oct. 19th, with his plans for a track at Faxon Field along with plans to fix flooding issues in the area of the proposed track site at Coddington Street and Southern Artery.

The two separate plans were presented hand in hand to address concerns many residents have brought up in the discussions concerning the possible track.

Before the presentation was made, local residents were given the opportunity to speak on the subject with school committee members.

According to school committee member Jo-Ann Bragg, 26 residents spoke, and only seven were against the track project. The speakers included coaches, runners, and residents living around the proposed track area, such as the Edgemere neighborhoods. The main concern from speakers was the flooding in that area.

Many also agreed that the flooding issue wouldn't increase with the installation of the track; it has been an issue for many years.

Another concern brought up by some was the fact that the track would be right next to a busy intersection, which causes safety concerns. Faxon Field is on the corner of Southern Artery and Coddington Street.

A team of engineers from both Woodard and Curran and Gale Associates presented the school committee with their designs for the track and drainage system.

The 17 acres of land, on Faxon Field, would cost $936,000 to transform into an 8-lane track, with accommodations for a shot put area, javelin throw, and a discus area.

William Seymour, president of Gale and Associates, designed the track. He has designed more than 60 tracks in the last 15 years.

Seymour said that he believes the installation of the track would help with the flooding in the area, because of the way the track is designed.

The track will have a drainage system that Seymour said can hold up to three-feet of rainwater, underneath the track, before releasing it into the city's system.

The law requires that storm water cannot be released at a rate exceeding today's rate. He went on to add that they are releasing it lower than required and at a lower volume as well.

The track plan includes a four-foot fence surrounding it, and a six- foot fence surrounding the field with a few gated entrances.

The track itself will be made out of a latex material, intended to be run on by adult men with cleats. Seymour said it should last around 25 years, and comes with a 5-year warranty.

Woodard and Curran Vice Chairman Joseph David Shea spoke to the committee about his company's plans to fix and improve upon the 128-acre drain system that leads to the Broad Street Tide Gate.

The system includes Coddington Street, Greenleaf Street, Southern Artery, and goes through the YMCA site, and into the Town River.

The flood-control plan will be a part of the citywide capital improvement plan, costing around $1.24 million, but does not need the school committee's approval to be done.

The two storm water projects that will be done in the 128 acres surrounding Faxon Field will include the Russell Park area and the Broad Street tide gate. According to Shea, some of the pipes in the project will be replaced with larger ones to help with the water flow.

After some observations Shea said they found 10 components for rehabilitation or modifications, one being the replacement of the tide gate at Broad Street.

He said they also recommended that there be an equalization pipe put into the Russell Park area, which is a flow control device, and there will only be benefits in installing the pipe.

Shea said they hope to have the 6-month construction of the plan done from July-December of 2012.

After the two presentations, Geoff Hennessy, head coach of the Quincy-North Quincy High School track team and director of the Quincy Track Club, spoke to the committee of his thoughts on the plan and the proposed site of the track.

Hennessy discussed the track footprint, and said the city needs a track for such activities as Special Olympics, the Senior Olympics, as well as the many track meets and events. Those events are currently done at different locations.

Hennessy said he believes Faxon Field is the right place for the track as opposed to the alternative site that has been mentioned, Pageant Field. He said that Pageant is too windy to hold track meets and after years of experience he knows that any runner would choose a different site because of the wind.

If the wind is above four miles per hour at any meet, it would disqualify any record made.

Both Shea and Seymour agreed that the plans presented would be beneficial to the City of Quincy but some members of the school committee were not convinced, especially with the track plan.

"I am still not convinced that putting the track there will make the flooding any better," said school committee member Elaine Dwyer. "We have two separate projects here, one is good, and one is not so good."

Dwyer added that if the track isn't approved, she hopes the mayor would still continue with the drainage plan.

School committee member Emily Lebo said she believes that the track would be more beneficial than just being a track, but help with the flooding as the engineers suggest.

After almost five hours of discussion the school committee members decided to postpone the rest of the agenda along with the track topic for their next meeting on Nov. 9th.

Laura Owens New School Committee Clerk

Members of the school committee voted Oct. 19 to appoint Laura Owens as their new clerk.

Owens has lived in Quincy for nine years, with husband Mike Gazzola and daughter Julianne who is 10 years old, and currently attending 5th grade at the Wollaston School.

School committee member Elaine Dwyer nominated Owens, with Barbara Isola seconding the nomination. After a unanimous vote, Owens was the new school committee clerk.

"I am delighted to second the nomination," said Isola. "I know she will treat the job with absolute professionalism."

Everyone on the school committee had nothing but nice comments to make about the new clerk, who had been filling in as intermittent since last Dec.

"Welcome aboard Laura," said Mayor and School Committee Chairman Thomas Koch. "Thank you for everything you have done thus far and will do in the future. We got very lucky."

Supt. Dr. Richard De-Cristofaro said he met Owens as a secretary for the school system, and got to know her even better when she came to work as the superintendent's secretary.

"I immediately found her to be energetic and competent," said DeCristofaro. "She learned very quickly, we are lucky to have her."

Owens job consist of answering phones, prioritizing, and lately she has been working on the district improvement plans.

meeting, and sub-committee meeting, and then prepares minutes for each, along with posting them on the school's website.

She is also in charge of maintaining the new public school website and at the moment says she is still playing catch up with putting the notes from past meetings up for the public.

Owens has a background in the publishing industry, and before becoming a secretary she was a freelancer for four years.

"It was logical progression," said Owens. "At first I was volunteering at my daughter's school and it grew from there."

Although a very busy women, Owens seems to have things well organized, and said she loves her job.

"I enjoyed working at all the schools, we have a lot of dedicated people working in the school system. I work with a great group of people," said Owens. "I am the new kid here and they have all been very welcoming."

With a degree in Finance and two decades of experience as a strategic business consultant, Anne Mahoney helps companies identify their challenges, and then develops and implements a plan to take them from poor performance to profitability. That's exactly the kind of experience we need to lead Quincy in this challenging economy.

As a member and vice chairman of the School Committee, Anne Mahoney fought successfully for free, full-day kindergarten. She put literacy specialists in the classroom, helped oversee the construction of the new Quincy High School and was instrumental in getting a new Central Middle School back on schedule. As your mayor, Anne will fight just as hard to make our city the best it can be for all Quincy residents.

On Tuesday, Nov. 8th, vote Anne Mahoney for Mayor!

Koch, Mahoney Face Q&A At ANHNA Candidates' Night

By LAURA GRIFFIN

It was likely a first last week when Mayor Thomas Koch and mayoral candidate Anne Mahoney agreed on the same issue during a candidates' forum at The Neighborhood Club.

Both Koch and Mahoney acknowledged that the city, state and country face a major problem solving illegal immigration and there are no easy answers.

"The countries we are sending them back to aren't them," Mahoney taking

In response to a question focusing on illegal immigration, Koch said, "We need to do all we can to eradicate illegal immigration. We need to take care of our own," and take care of immigrants who enter "the right way."

Mahoney added: "You have to emigrate here properly."

That exchange lasted one brief moment in the evening as the candidates differed on every other question presented by John Milgram who chaired the Oct. 18 forum sponsored by the Adams National Historical Neighborhood Association (ANHNA).

Nearly 200 observers filled nearly every seat and lined the side aisles as the event, the third ANHNA candidates forum, got un-

Finances

Mahoney charged the city is overextended with too many costly projects underway at one time.

"We have to look at our finances in the City of Quincy. We're taking on a lot of projects," said Mahoney, adding, "Debt is debt. We're bonding in a viscously small cycle."

"We can't ignore our infrastructure," said Koch, noting that the long overdue new Central Middle School will cost $50 million, thanks to the state's reimbursement, and the capital improvement bond will address such urgent needs as flooding in West Quincy, sea walls in Houghs Neck, and roofs on schools.

In addition, Koch said that the former Central Middle School building will be sold and go on the tax rolls while Old City Hall will be repaired and renovated through a Community Preservation bond, not real estate taxes.

"I will seek a community preservation bond for the entire cost of that," said Koch who described the mold and asbestos found in the deteriorating building, officially the James McIntyre Government Center.

"That (building) is the icon of the city," said Koch, citing the location, beauty and its history since 1844.

Mahoney charged that the city paid rent for a year before relocating City Hall employees to the Munroe Building.

Quincy Center

"It's time for a bold new vision," said Koch who described the Quincy Center

Revitalization project as the envy of other cities.

As part of the agreement, Koch noted that the developer Street-Works will finance upfront the upgrades to the city's sewer, water and drainage systems and new tax income will eventually cover those costs.

"Today the taxpayers are on the hook for that," said Koch who anticipates the project will create 18,000 construction and permanent jobs, including 4,100 new jobs for Quincy residents and stimulate $8 to $10 million in new tax revenue.

"The problem I see is management," said Mahoney, citing the city's current clash with National Grid over a potential $1.8 million bill for underground wiring. She said that should have been hashed out at the outset.

Mahoney said she was happy the city had hired Attorney Robert Fishman as a consultant, but that should have been done sooner and added she would "micromanage" the project.

"There's no such thing as a no-risk deal," said Mahoney.

"We wrote the master deal," said Koch, adding the project agreement has numerous benchmarks and milestones that protect the

Crime

Mahoney cited the increasing crime statistics, charging that seven streetlights are out on one section of Adams Street and the number of Breaking and Entering reports have spiked.

"You could actually leave your doors open," said Mahoney of years past.

While Mahoney acknowledged the impact of the economy and drugs and "a lot more people struggling," she charged the current system isn't working.

Mahoney said she would work more with surrounding communities and focus on the disease but would jail the dealers.

In response, Koch said the city will hire five new police officers in the coming year and has already added six police dogs to the enforcement teams and two are drug-sniffing canines.

In addition, Koch said two police officers are working with the federal Drug Enforcement Admin-

Other initiatives are "Pill Days" at police headquarters where people should drop off unneeded prescription medication.

"Arrests are up dramatically," said Koch, adding that the city focus is already three-fold on enforcement, education and treatment.

However Koch added that treatment can be elusive. "Quite frankly, the state has walked away. We as a city can only do so much."

Jobs

Koch outlined significant advances in bringing jobs to Quincy, noting that BlueFin robotics technology settled at Fore River, the office tower at 100 Hancock St., North Quincy is full, and Boston Scientific will remain at its Marina Bay location, thanks to his administration's initiatives.

However, Mahoney charged that the city could increase the number of jobs available now and has not done so.

Mahoney, also, focused on municipal jobs, stating that she will post all jobs, job descriptions and sala-

Schools

Mahoney blamed budget cuts as a major reason for Quincy's low ranking of 103 out of 135 state school systems in the state's MCAS (Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System) testing program.

"You have to invest in our schools, make it a top priority," said Mahoney.

Koch responded that his major goal is to keep Quincy students in the smallest class sizes possible and that is working.

"I've always been troubled by the MCAS scoring system," said Koch, stating that valuable factors in education cannot be evaluated through such a test.

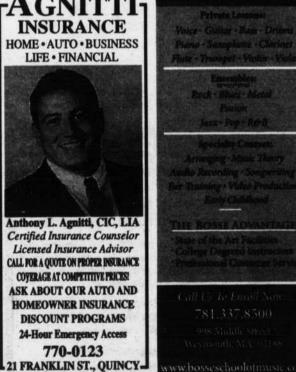

In addition, Koch pointed out that Quincy's schools welcome students with "30 different primary languages" and a significant number of "transient families" which affects, in part, its ranking in a statewide comparison.

Mahoney countered that Framingham, with a similar population, ranked 62nd. Education should be the "top priority," said Mahoney who charged that Koch had cut a

In various statements from opening to closing, both Mahoney and Koch outlined their credentials as candidates with Mahoney touting her 25 years work in the private sector which included finance and management positions.

Koch claimed that he has saved the city millions through the state's employees' health insurance program, saved money on snow-plowing, launched the first overhaul of zoning regulations in 30 years, and initiated the money-saving collection collaboration with Braintree and Weymouth and promised, "As long as I'm mayor, there will not be a trash fee."

said House co-chairwoman Liz Malia (D-Boston). "The drugs found in own kitchens and bathrooms can be just as dangerous and addictive as anything that can be bought on the street. And these prescription drugs are legal."

In addition, studies show that teenagers are now nearly as likely to experiment with highly-addictive prescription medications as they are marijuana.

There is a clear lack understanding among young adults, parents, and even grandparents about the potency and addictive qualities of these drugs," said Sen. Keenan. "We are talking about drugs that are as powerful, if not more so, than morphine, but are being treated as if they were just super-strength aspirin."

A recent survey of parents in Massachusetts by The Partnership at Drug-Free.org, a national antidrug group, found that 45% reported taking prescription pain medication to self-treat physical pain. Another 14 % reported giving these medications to their children without a prescription. Just 30% of respondents knew that the active ingredient in prescription pain killers is similar to heroin.

A key feature of the legislation is to require that every Schedule II and Schedule III prescription filled in Massachusetts to come with an easily-understood pamphlet that clearly explains the addictive nature of the prescription, the signs of abuse and dependency, where to go for assistance with substance abuse, and ways to properly dispose of the medication when finished.

Sen. Keenan said the consumer education piece of the legislation is arguably the most important.

In addition, the legislation requires all who prescribe controlled substances to enroll in the state Prescription Monitoring Program, and to screen patients using the state Prescription Monitoring Program before prescribing a controlled substance for the first time. It also charges the state Commissioner of Public Health to convene a policy working group to study best practices that would promote safe and responsible opioid prescribing practices with the goal of reducing diversion, abuse and addiction.

The legislation also mandates pharmacies to report any theft of Schedule II or III medication by an employee to local authorities, provides some legal immunity to a "Good Samaritan" who seeks medical assistance for someone suffering an overdose, and requires hospitals to contact the parents or guardians of anyone underage treated for a drug or alcohol overdose.

More information about the legislation will be available on Sen. Keenan's Facebook page, www.facebook. com/senjohnfkeenan

READERS FORUM

We Should Encourage Every Citizen To Cast An Informed Vote

lack of language proficiency

I am writing in response to the "Readers Forum" letter by fellow Quincy resident Mike Bennett printed on page 5 of the Oct. 20th ssue of The Quincy Sun.

As a first generation Asian-American and Quincy resident, I find Mr. Bennett's arguments against the new federal mandate requiring Quincy to print election ballots in both English and Chinese, to be highly misinformed.

According to the last census, Quincy has a growing Asian population of approximately 24%, many of which I'm sure are first generation to this country. As a first generation Asian-American and the son of a first generation Asian-American, I can say that most immigrants come to this country on the promise and ideal that America will offer them the opportunity to work hard and prosper, freedom of speech and of political opinion and association, and freedom from oppression.

This promise was not and is still not based on the qualification to speak English. The amazing quality of America that is unique in the world is that we are a "salad bowl" of so many different cultures and peoples. There is a place for us all and even if we don't speak the language, there is still the opportunity to grow and work towards the betterment of the next generation.

Mr. Bennett assumes the in some immigrants is due to a lack of trying. That cannot be further from the truth. In community organizations all around Boston and the South Shore, there are English proficiency classes offered on a regular basis. One such organization that offers English classes is Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. where I currently serve as a board member. These classes are always well attended and fill up time after time. The barrier to English proficiency differs from family to family and person to person. However, some common causes can be attributed to age and lack of opportunity. Imagine an immigrant coming here after the age of formal education, to a new country with a new language and a new culture. Our ability to learn a new language and to assimilate diminishes with age. In addition, many new immigrant families lack the education and language skills needed to find good paying jobs, many of them work long hours or multiple jobs in order to make ends meet. Taking time to attend an English language course might not be practical vs. the pressing need to provide for the family.

There are parallels that can be drawn between the Asian-American immigrant experience and the Irish-American immigrant experience. When Irish-Americans first came to this- country, mostly arriving at Ellis Island in New York, they settled together because they shared a common culture, language and history with each other. As they started to assimilate into American life and subsequent generations of Irish-Americans grew up learning English, there was less of a need for special accommodations.

This is true for Asian-Americans today.

First generation Asian immigrants might not be as westernized as others who grew up and had their formal education in America but they are ensuring that their kids and the generations that come after them will assimilate to the American way of life and that their sacrifice now will pay off for them. But in the meantime, we cannot forget that even though they are first generation Asian-American immigrants, they are nonetheless Americans and as such should be afforded the right to vote and to have their voices heard.

As a democracy, we should encourage every citizen to cast an informed vote rather than encouraging the apathy we see in our elections. That is the spirit and the very purpose of the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

Ayers Fighting Redistricting Plan

Ayers said he will file an amendment if and when the redistricting proposal breaking up Quincy reaches the state House of Representatives. The proposal is expected to be considered by the state senate and house within the next week or two weeks.

"I plan on filing an amendment with the House Clerk to return Ward 3 Precinct 3 to my district," said Ayers, adding he will "... take all the steps necessary to get it back in this district."

Ayers also plans to meet with the architects of the plan, Rep. Michael Moran of Brighton and Sen. Stanley Rosenberg of Amherst. In addition to precincts in Quincy, Ayers represents two precincts in Randolph.

A review of all federal and state voting districts is mandated every ten years after the federal census results are tallied. If a state's population has shifted, the districts must be rebalanced. As a result, Massachusetts will lose one Congressional seat in the redistricting which also attempts to create minority-majority districts.

State legislative districts must be balanced as well. Under the proposed plan, the 3,222 North Quincy residents in Ward 3, Precinct 3, will be moved into the 13th Suffolk District of Rep. Marty Walsh of Dorchester, and the 2,830 voters in Ward 5, Precinct 3, Montclair, will be moved into Ayers' dis-

Also working to stop the proposed plan is Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin who said he sent out a letter to all his constituents describing the proposal and the potential pitfalls.

"I am concerned at severing that precinct from the rest of the city," said Coughlin, stating that he respects Rep. Walsh, but that the interests of one municipality often differ from the interest of another.

As an example, Coughlin outlined the problems regarding the about Long Island Bridge and access to Long Island and Mood Island.

"Clearly, Boston and Quincy have been on opposite ends and that's just one example," said Coughlin who said he understands that redistricting is difficult but he is hoping for a different equation that will keep his ward whole and in Norfolk County.

"It's always better to have a uniform city," Rep. Tacky Chan said Tuesday.

Chan represents the 2nd Norfolk District and his entire district is in Quincy. If the plan is approved, Chan will lose Montclair and gain a Wollaston precinct.

"It's a domino effect," said Chan.

But numbers are numbers and Chan issued a joint statement on redistricting with the House Majority Leader, Rep. Ron Mariano, 3rd Norfolk District.

In that statement, Mariano and Chan outlined the difficulty in creating 160 "fair and equitable" districts of 40,923 residents each in the Commonwealth and note that Quincy's population grew by 4.8% (4,246), requiring four state representatives.

According to the statement, the redistricting had to deal directly with the First Norfolk District (Ayers' district) because of the growth spikes in such areas as Marina Bay and the need to keep and create minoritymajority seats in Boston.

"Quincy is not the only town that had to be split in this new plan," according to Mariano and Chan who also lauded the redistricting committee's open process which included a public hearing in Quincy.

If the redistricting does pass, Rep. Marty Walsh said Quincy residents need not worry.

Walsh said he will represent Quincy's residents with the same vigor he now represents his constituents in Dorchester. In addition, he said members of his family live in Quincy so he knows many issues

"I pride myself on constituent services, being accessible and being visible," Walsh said Tuesday, adding that both areas sometimes have the same focus.

As one example, Walsh cited the Neponset Bridge which affects his constituents as much as those in North Quincy and he has already worked on the bridge's trash issues, traffic pattern and final plans.

No decision has been made nor have the dates for the hearings on Beacon Hill been announced.

CANDIDATES FORUM - SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Perry: Bring The Schools And The Community Together

By LINDA PERRY

I welcome this opportunity as a way to bring the schools and community together so that we can teach our kids the values that our community holds important. I am a suitable candidate for a few reasons. I have a "heart" for all children in the community, not a personal desire to gain a position which may serve my personal interests or ego.

I could list all of my qualifications like education, business experience, athletic prowess or volunteer experience, BUT it really is not about me or any other candidate. I am volunteering to make a difference in the direction the district's budget and activities are heading. I am not an automatic "yes" vote to every item that will come up for vote. I will vote the way the people in our community will want me to vote.

If elected, I will be focused on being a person who unites people and not divides them. I don't believe that it is the role of a school committee member to bring a laundry list of issues that they intend to inflict upon the other members of the committee. Rather, a platform of concerns that have been represented by substantial interest by the community that can be discussed collaboratively by the school committee and decided by the school committee as a whole.

I would like to find more opportunities for the community to express thoughts, concerns, and ideas to the School Committee beyond the time-constraints of the open forum. This will allow the Committee to discern what the community finds important and balance that with available funds. Currently, people in the city are concerned about monitoring class sizes and loss of literacy resources, foreign languages, sports and other activities, all of which should be discussed and addressed as funds become available.

Other items that I think the school committee continually needs to revisit are improving the performance of our schools and evaluating the administration's performance toward this goal. Again, it is important that this be done collaboratively by the School Committee, where the community has a real voice in the matter. I will give every effort to promoting a School Committee that will work together with the same "heart for the kids" that I have. Even though there will doubtless be times of differing opinions, listening with discernment is an important skill which I would bring to every School Committee meeting. As a systems analyst I feel that I can offer a high level of analytical ability, a knack for problem solving, a desire to get to the bottom of a problem, as well as a deliberate decision-making logical process.

Positive relationships need to be formed between teachers, staff, administrators, and the community at large to strengthen instruction. I will work hard for the community, and I have a serious attitude toward cooperation and high expectations. I am an honest, hard worker with no personal agenda. I believe it is truly all about the kids. I respectfully ask for one of your three votes on Nov. 8th.

AARP To Hold Speak Out Forum Against Cuts To Medicare, Social Security At Kennedy Center Friday

As a congressional "Supercommittee" considers cutting Medicare and Social Security to reduce the federal deficit, AARP Massachusetts is holding a series of community conversations, called "Speak Out!," to hear from local seniors and their families about the importance of these landmark programs.

The Speak Out series will come to Quincy Friday, Oct. 28 from noon to 2 p.m. at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy.

The goal of the Speak Out series is to illustrate that retirement benefits are not a AARP will share stories collected at the Speak Out events with the Massachusetts Congressional delegation, including Sen. John Kerry who is a member of the bipartisan Supercommittee.

The Supercommittee has a deadline of Nov. 23 to come up with spending cuts that will reduce the federal deficit by $1.5 trillion over the next ten years. Right now, proposals include shifting health care costs onto seniors and cutting Social Security checks. ### Hubley: Let's Focus On Reading

By KATHY HUBLEY

Over the past few years the Quincy Public Schools have had to make some tough decisions about program cuts. Hit hard by these cuts were the early literacy program at the elementary school level (K-3), and the reading programs at the middle school level, as well as the media specialists in our elementary schools.

Our children's elementary school years are the formative years for literacy. Third grade marks the start of expanded reading efforts for gathering and organizing information. By the time children reach third grade, much of math is logical thinking word problems. A child who struggles with reading in these early years begins to fall behind at a compounding rate across all areas of their education.

Early literacy teachers meet the needs of children on an individual basis by using the various resources available to them. Students who are in this program have scored "at risk" in their DIBELS (Dynamic Indicators of Basic Early Literacy Skills) testing. The students are monitored frequently throughout the program to make sure they are progressing.

A passion for reading is one of the greatest gifts I could wish upon our students. I have been volunteering in the media center at the Wollaston Elementary School for the past six years. As a volunteer with other parents, I have helped to keep books organized and have read to our students each week throughout the school year. Our family donates books to our media centers each school year because I believe strongly in supporting this invaluable resource. It also allows my children to participate in giving back to our schools and community by contributing books they have enjoyed in our home.

On school committee I will promote reading programs, early literacy programs and will continue volunteering my time reading to our students.

Bregoli: Strong Academics, Strong Standards; Let's Raise The Bar

By PAUL BERGOLI

During the campaign, I have knocked over 5,000 doors speaking to many people about education in Quincy. I have heard loud and clear a growing concern about the current academic standards in the Quincy Public Schools.

The perception amongst some in the community is our standards are not tough enough and students are not being challenged academically. Perception often becomes reality and, in some cases, makes the decision to choose private education as an alternative an easier one. What is concerning about this is when the system loses a talented student to the private schools, Quincy also loses a quality family, one which, most likely would be an active participant in the life of the school.

Unfortunately, some of those parent concerns are not without merit. At both high schools, the passing grade for an academic subject is 63. An athlete who participates in high school sports can fail two academic subjects, pass four, and still be eligible to compete during that athletic season. While this is a minimum standard set by the MIAA (Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association) it is by no means a standard Quincy must accept. To further clarify how low a standard this is; if you used a grade point average to determine athletic eligibility, in Quincy that GPA would be 1.0! What type of message are we sending our students when we set the bar that low?

In a recent Boston Sunday Globe Magazine article, Boston English High School has decided to raise the minimum standard for academic eligibility to a 2.0. Quincy should follow Boston English's lead and adopt their 2.0 standard as well. According to the article, students in Boston have responded to the higher GPA requirement and, I am confident Quincy's will too.

At the middle school level, students receive report cards for three terms. What is disconcerting is in grades 6-8 a student can fail two of the three terms but still pass that subject with a "C" in the other term. Again, we are sending the wrong message to our children about the value of education.

Although the MCAS is but a snapshot of student achievement, according to the Department of Education website, last year's 10th grade MCAS scores placed Quincy at 220 out of 358 districts statewide. That means Quincy only did better than 138 other districts. 61% of other districts statewide performed better than Quincy. While parents should be concerned about this, the larger question being asked by parents is the disparity between low MCAS scores but the large numbers of students (over 700) on the quarterly honor roll.

This is not to say the Quincy Public Schools is not doing a good job educating our children, because the majority of our teachers are top notch and care a great deal about their students. We should help the teachers out by raising standards to send a message to our students that education is a serious business in Quincy.

Besides the need to raise the minimum standards of our grading system, Quincy should consider and institute other standards to improve the quality of education. Included in this would be to make community service a requirement for high school graduation. Two neighboring towns, Milton and Weymouth, already have this in place. In Milton, students must complete 140 hours of community service while in Weymouth, that number is 40. What community service does is give the student an opportunity to become active citizens, enhancing their personal growth, develop social skills and build self-esteem. It also contributes to a holistic approach to our children's growth and development.

Finally, instead of just requiring students take four years of history and English (state requirements) at the high school level, Quincy should consider requiring all of its students to also take four years of math and science.

Strong academics, strong standards; let's raise the bar and eliminate the public perception of a school system not doing what is best for its students. Our children deserve nothing less.

CANDIDATES FORUM - SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Davis Promises To Fight To Keep Full-Day Kindergarten

Quincy School Committee Candidate Jay Davis promises to fight to keep full-day kindergarten in the Quincy Public Schools.

"During campaign debates, candidate nights and interviews for endorsement, the issue of eliminating full-day kindergarten from the Quincy Public School has been raised again and again," Davis said. "I have always supported and will continue to fight for full-day kindergarten."

Full-day kindergarten was implemented in the Quincy schools in 2006. "At that time Quincy was one of the first communities in the Commonwealth to have full-day kindergarten," Davis said. "This is not the time to move backwards and eliminate a program that has been so successful. Full-day kindergarten is a huge consideration for young working couples when selecting a community to purchase a home and raise a family.

"In 2002 when our oldest daughter, Madison, entered the Quincy Public Schools she was enrolled in halfkindergarten," Davis "Our next daughter, Meghan, attended the first full-day kindergarten. As a result my wife, Honor, and I had the opportunity to witness first-hand the tremendous benefit of full-day kindergarten. The extra time in the classroom allowed the children not only to get more instruction but also to participate in other curriculum-enhanced social and physical activities."

Davis said he would also oppose any attempt by the School Committee to implement a tuition based full-day kindergarten. "When we require working families to pay for enhanced educational opportunities in our public schools, we defeat the purpose of public education."

Davis would also advocate for the return of full-time aides to kindergarten classrooms. As part of school budget cuts two years' ago, the aide positions were cut from full-time to part-time. Davis said full-time aides are a critical component to the kindergarten classroom.

Marina Bay Candidates Night Sunday

The Marina Bay Civic Association will sponsor a Candidates Night Sunday, Oct. 30 at 500 Victory Rd., Marina Bay.

The evening will begin at 6 p.m. with an opportunity for all candidates (other than mayor and ward six contenders) to do a short presentation followed by a few minutes of questions and answers.

From 7 to 8 p.m., the Association will sponsor a session involving the candidates for Ward 6 councillor: incumbent Brian McNamee and Brian Radell.

From 8 to 9 p.m. there will be a session for the candidates for mayor: incumbent Tom Koch and challenger Anne Mahoney.

The event is being hosted by Marina Bay Marketplace in the cafeteria at 500 Victory Rd. Pizza, coffee and other light refreshments will be served.

The public is welcome to attend.

McCarthy: Chapter 74 Programs Alive, Well In Quincy Public Schools

By DAVID McCARTHY

The Quincy's Public School Trades Program is alive and well located in the new Quincy High School, but do all the parents of up and coming high school students realize that it is still there? Do they really know what it offers?

It has been another focal point of my campaign and a promise to all involved to continue to promote and grow. But it is a concern of mine. How can we promote it better? How can we partner better? How can we better establish a school to work co-op program to line students up with jobs as they graduate? We do an exceptional job right now but how can we improve?

Quincy Public Schools Career & Technical Education Program provides practical instruction and valuable intellectual content alongside academics. North Quincy and Quincy High School foster a stimulating environment where traditional programs exist sideby-side with cutting-edge 21st Century competency-based career pathways, including Culinary Arts, Graphic Design and Communications. Electrical Technology, Early Education and Care, Plumbing Technology, Automotive Technology, Office Technology, Engineering Technology, Information Technology and Carpentry to name a few.

Just look at all these tremendous opportunities and skill sets that are invaluable to everyday life. The staff at Quincy High are professional's and take their trade very seriously. They are all state certified in the career they teach. It will and should be another Quincy Public School "backbone program" driven by state of the art Chapter 74

A very recent CBS story came out about this very subject that everyone should pay attention to. It summarizes the concern I have about this tremendous program. Below is the excerpt on the future of Chapter 74 programs, a future we need to fund and grow back to the programs.

ALLENTOWN, Pa. - John McGlade, president and CEO of Air Products, says 4,000 of his 7,500 U.S. employees are skilled workers. His global company designs and builds high-tech hydrogen equipment and devices.

McGlade is "worried" he won't be able to find skilled workers in the future. He hires about 550 U.S. workers a year. Three-hundred-and-sixty are technically skilled positions that require two years of college or advanced certification. These positions can often go unfilled for 12 months.

According to the National Association of Career and Technical Schools, these students can earn $26 an hour more than workers with only a high school diploma.

This year funding for vocational education was cut by $140 million and President Obama is proposing a 20 percent cut next year.

"Without support and continued development of a skilled workforce, we're not going to be able to fill the jobs," McGlade warned.

"There is going to be more and more of those skilled jobs that are available, that are going to be paying and provide a sustaining career for years and years to come," McGlade said.

It's a career path that McGlade estimates will need 10 million more skilled workers over the next decade.

Quincy Public Schools Career & Technical Education offers multiple educational resources for CVTE students, including both school based and work-based learning opportunities, including career centers, seminars, clubs, internships, job-shadowing, clinical placements, community service learning, and employment experiences which are available to all students. These educational resources open doors to careers, colleges and the future.

"As you can see we are positioned for the future. Let's make sure these programs survive, we need them, the community needs them and the kids need them. Let's not disappoint."

CANDIDATES FORUM - MAYORAL CANDIDATES

Mahoney: Public Safety, Education, Fiscal Responsibility Top Priorities If Elected

Mayoral candidate Anne Mahoney said public safety, education and fiscal responsibility will be her top priorities if elected.

Under the Koch administration, Mahoney said, public safety has suffered, with drugs and crime increasing significantly across the city and cuts made to vital public safety services.

"When Tom Koch first ran for office, he promised to 'keep all neighborhood fire houses open with emergency response times unaffected," Mahoney said. "He didn't keep that promise, and now the Germantown fire station is closed 50 percent of the time, leaving residents in a peninsula neighborhood without local emergency personnel."

With regard to the schools, Mahoney, the vice chair of the Quincy School Committee, said the Koch administration's $9 million in cuts to the schools have resulted in lower test scores and a public perception that the school system is below average. She pointed to a recent Boston magazine survey that ranked the Quincy schools 108th out of 135 area school districts as evidence of the damage done by the current administration's budget cuts.

"Unfortunately, we're now seeing the results of what happens when a mayor doesn't value public education," said Mahoney, whose three children all attend the Quincy Public Schools. "You can't cut 160 teachers, media center specialists and key academic programs and not expect it to have a negative impact on the education Quincy children receive.

"As a School Committee member, I fought successfully for free full-day kindergarten, put literacy specialists in the classroom and helped oversee the construction of the new Quincy High School. As mayor, I will fight to restore public education to a top priority, reversing the cuts made by Mayor Koch in order to fund his unsuccessful lawsuits, pet projects and six-figure jobs for political cronies."

for political cronies."

She also promised to restore fiscal responsibility to City Hall. Mahoney said she would use her degree in finance and experience as a strategic business consultant to conduct a top-to-bottom review of the city's finances, eliminating waste and inefficiencies in order to allocate more revenue to education and public safety.

She also pledged to:

Develop a comprehensive economic development plan for the entire city not just the downtown to recruit new businesses and generate more commercial tax revenue

Institute more stringent oversight of the downtown to protecttaxpayers' investment Assemble a new financial leadershipteambased on qualifications, not connections

Institute budget forecasting to better plan for Quincy's financial future

Eliminate unnecessary six-figure patronage jobs Stop wasting millions of dollars on unsuccessful lawsuits and legal appeals

Eliminate unnecessary positions - including reducing the staff in the mayor's office "Leadership begins at the top and it's important for a mayor to show that he or she is sharing in the sacrifices that are being asked of others," Mahoney said. "It's a simple question of priorities: As mayor, I pledge to put the best interests of all Quincy residents first. Working together, we will restore public safety and education, shore up finances and get our city headed back in the right direction."

Koch: Quincy Has A Future With Unlimited Potential

Mayor Thomas Koch said that by working together for the last four years, Quincy is positioned to become the statewide role model for economic development, education, and financial stability "with a future of unlimited potential."

"We are meeting our challenges head-on together as a community, and there is no city or town in the Commonwealth in a better position to lead the way on so many fronts than Quincy," Koch said. "We are poised for historic economic growth and stability in the coming years, and that is because we as a City rolled up our sleeves and worked together to get it done."

Koch cited the near-daily progress on the City's Quincy Center redevelopment plan, and its 18,000 jobs, as a national model for how urban centers can be revitalized without placing the burden on existing taxpayers. The landmark agreement reached with Street-Works Development requires that the project pay for itself without any funding from the city's existing property taxpayers.

"The country is watching what we've done here because it will fundamentally change the way cities pursue redevelopment. We are taking the risks off the public, and placing them squarely with the developer," he said. "The project pays for itself or it doesn't get built. It's that simple."

The innovative plan is symbolic of other initiatives underway in the City, including:

Construction of a new Central Middle School as a first-of-its-kind model school that will save local taxpayers millions of dollars on the cost of the project under state guidelines.

A Drug Task Force that has become a regional model in the fight against substance abuse.

A sweeping infrastructure renewal plan targeting roads, utilities, seawalls and flood relief that will have minimal impact on taxpayers because more than half of the funding will come from sources other than property taxes.

The largest reform of employee health care in Massachusetts.

Two years of wage freezes negotiated with City workers.

The City's first Senior Center without adding money in the budget to pay for it.

A credit rating that remains among the best in Massachusetts because of millions of dollars of spending cuts coupled with the protection of core services like public safety.

Increases in education spending to protect class sizes compared to drastic reductions in other cities and towns.

A first-of-its kind regional trash collection program that has dramatically increased recycling and saved millions of dollars.

Snow-removal reforms that earned national praise by the Editorial Board of The New York Times.

"These are incredibly challenging times, and our community today is saying in a unified voice that we will come together and take action to secure our Quincy's future," said Koch.

"There will always be those who offer criticism, but what we will continue to offer is hard work, real solutions, and the ongoing commitment to work together for the best interest of this great City."

of parallels between the current economy and Moneyball, the Michael Lewis book recently turned into a movie starring Brad Pitt.

Corley, the executive director of Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore (NHS), noted that Moneyball recounts the business of baseball and how a team like the Oakland A's must compete against the Yankees and Red Sox teams with a $100 million budgetary advantage.

"Today, just like in Moneyball, Neighborhood Housing Services and our partners are asked to produce the same or better results with much less money and resources - and this new reality is not going to change anytime soon," he said.

Yet it was the affordable housing agency's successes on which Corley focused recently, when Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore celebrated its 30th anniversary with a reception and dinner. Held Oct. 13 at the Quincy Marriott, the event featured Neighborhood Housing's first-ever presentation of its new "Good Neighbor Russell, Jr., executive vice president of State Street Corporation.

> Neighborhood Housing President Normand Grenier noted that all three organizations have partnered with the agency over the years to purchase, renovate and create more affordable housing across the region.

> "We wanted to honor those individuals and organizations that took the time to come to know the people they serve - to share a neighborhood with them and yes, their financial resources, too," Grenier said. "America needs people and institutions like these to champion our neighborhoods and lead us back to prosperity. They represent those who have not forgotten that a good customer is also your neighbor."

> Founded in 1981 as a public-private partnership created to revitalize low-and moderate-income neighbor

In addition to building and managing more than 150 units of affordable housing, NHS offers a wide range of affordable housing services, including free foreclosure prevention counseling, home rehabilitation loans and grants, and first-time homebuyer workshops.

At the 30th anniversary event, Corley recalled how when he first started at Neighborhood Housing, its office - located over the Red Line tracks - had just two phone lines and no email or internet access.

"Clearly, NHS changed a lot since then," he told attendees. "But the surroundings didn't matter then and they never really have. It's always been about

"We know what success looks like," he continued. "It's a better neighborhood and world for our families and children to live in. Our goal is to create a positive impact on the people and families that we touch every day and if we do that, we are confident we are winning."

Closing Up for Winter

Last year, • placed weather stripping inside my home's window frames and the door. Yet I still feel that the house is drafty, and my heating bills didn't really go down. Is there more that I can do? - Frank L., Burlington, Vt.

You should do a • home energy audit (or home energy assessment) this fall, before winter closes in, to find out if and where heat is escaping from your house. This can be done using a do-it-yourself kit - often available through your utility company at a reduced price - or by hiring a professional.

Professional auditors often use a blower door as their primary tool in hunting down sources of air coming into the house. The blower door is a fan unit that attaches to an exterior door, and includes a unit to measure air pressure inside the house. The door lowers the air pressure inside the house; then, higher outside air pressure means air will enter the house through unsealed openings and cracks. The auditor hunts down these entry points.

Ask the auditor if the blower door is calibrated or not. A calibrated blower door can provide additional information on how airtight the home is.

Another tool in the professional auditor's arsenal is the thermographic scan. Using this, he or she can determine whether your home needs new insulation and where exactly that insulation needs to go. Proper insulation can go a long way toward reducing energy costs, particularly in older homes.

To find a professional auditor, contact your utility company or visit its website. Ask friends and neighbors if they've had an energy audit, and get recommendations from them. Contact several auditors, and ask if they use a calibrated blower door and whether they do thermographic scans. Get a written estimate before allowing any work to be

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, Oct. 15, at approximately 5 p.m., Officer Bruce Tait was dispatched to Faxon Park to check a male, who was on a motorcycle in the woods by the lower baseball fields "sniffing glue." Three days earlier, a similar call came in and frequent checks were made of the park.

On the way to the call, Detective Keenanreportedhe was in the area and would also respond. After a brief search, the responding units were approached by a woman walking her dog who said that she observed a male with a motorcycle in the woods, and described the location. The officers took a foot path which led to a motorcycle parked next to a concrete bench in the woods. Next to it was a male with his back towards the officers. The male had both hands in front of his face and was bent over.

The officers attempted to sneak up on the male, but the sound of crunching leaves and breaking sticks filled the silent air. Surprisingly, the male seemed oblivious to the Officers, who walked right up to the male from behind. Once there, the officers were immediately hit with the odor of a toxic chemical.

They were able to see that the male held a washcloth in his hands and was sticking his nose directly into it and breathing deeply. The male (suspect) was so captivated with inhaling the substance on the washcloth that Officer Tait had to tap him on the shoulder in order to gain his attention. The suspect then looked at the officer, but he his eyes lacked focus and he appeared stupefied.

Officer Tait started to handcuff the male suspect with the assistance of Detective Keenan, but the suspect refused orders to drop the washcloth and it had to be forcibly removed from his hand. After a brief struggle, the suspect, a 57 year-old homeless man, was placed under arrest for violation of "Inhaling Toxic Vapors."

On the ground next to where the suspect was standing, Officer Tait found 2 metallic cans labeled, "B-12 Chemtool Fuel Treatment," with one can almost empty, and the other being full and sealed. The odor of the almost empty can and the contents of the washcloth smelled identical. Both the cans and the washcloths were taken as evidence and the motorcycle was towed.

As this was occurring, the suspect exhibited bizarre behavior, constantly talking about being saved by Jesus and stating numerous times that he loved both Officers present. As Officer Tait transported the suspect to the station, the suspect continued to act strange, offering to baptize the Officer and then requested that the Officer stop at the McDonald's drive-thru as they approached the Police station.

Nice Work!

www.inhalant.org states that inhalants are addictive and are considered to be "gateway" drugs because children often progress from inhalants to illegal drug and alcohol abuse. The National Institute on Drug Abuse reports that one in five American teens have used inhalants to get high. Inhalation is referred to as "huffing, sniffing, dusting or bagging and generally occurs through the nose or mouth. Huffing is when a chemically soaked rag is held to the face or stuffed in the mouth and the substance is inhaled. Sniffing can be done directly from containers, plastic bags, clothing or rags saturated with a substance or from the product directly. With Bagging, substances are sprayed or deposited into a plastic or paper bag and the vapors are inhaled. This method can result in suffocation because a bag is placed over the individual's head, cutting off the supply of oxygen.

Other methods used include placing inhalants on sleeves, collars, or other items of clothing that are sniffed over a period of time. "There are more than a 1,400 products which are potentially dangerous when inhaled, such as typewriter correction fluid, air conditioning coolant, gasoline, propane, felt tip markers, spray paint, air freshener, butane, cooking spray, paint, and glue.

Most are common products that can be found in the home, garage, office, school or as close as the local convenience store."

Squantum residents have complained about hearing shooting as early as 6 a.m. and as late 9 p.m. During the meeting, Mayor Menino said he would instruct the range operators to reduce the hours of operation by an hour on both ends, to 7 a.m.

"I am greatly appreciative to Mayor Menino for listening to our concerns and acting on them almost immediately," said Mayor Koch. "It was a productive, honest and open conversation, and we are going to continue the dialogue in the weeks and months ahead. I am greatly looking forward to continue working together as good neighbors on issues relative to both of our great cities."

"It was a great pleasure to share some time with Mayor Koch and discuss ways we can work together to help our residents," Mayor Menino said. "I look forward to continuing our conversations to better the lives of all of our neighbors."

Mayors Koch and Menino also toured the Boston Fire Department training facility on Moon Island, which is also used by the Quincy Fire Department, as well as a number of the public health and social service agencies located on the islands. The island tour was prompted by an earlier meeting about a month ago between the Mayors at Boston City Hall.

"I will be 100% available," said Hughes who also pledged to support small and medium-size businesses in the area that runs from Hospital Hill to Wollaston Beach.

Neil McCole outlined his experience in business finances which involved a budget of over $7 million and handling hundreds of millions of dollars in projects. Currently, he is a Boston Public School teacher and union member.

Creative financing is essential now, according to McCole who noted that federal and state funds are drying up. "I know about creating jobs," he said.

McCole described himself as "passionate" about Wollaston Beach and served as president of the Friends of Wollaston Beach. Mc-Cole said he helped locate $150,000 in grant money.

Most recently, McCole said he represented the neighborhood at Conservation Commission and Zoning Board meetings regarding a project on the Strand.

Steve Perdios who supports efforts for city families and senior citizens described his work in preserving Glendale Park and suggested that the former Eventide Nursing Home property could be a city preservation property in the future.

When Perdios found only two Ward 2 voters in the audience, he urged the audience to take his message to their friends in Quincy Point.

McNamee also cited the city's noise ordinance which he initiated and which protects residents citywide, particularly at Marina Bay.

Council duties operate on two levels, neighborhood and city management, according to McNamee who outlined his background and experience in finance.

As for the Quincy Center project, McNamee said, "We have to push the city forward," but at the same time "pay close attention" and "be very careful about the excess levy capacity."

Also on hand for the evening program were Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci. Neither faces a challenger this year and both said they enjoyed the evening very much.

"If we don't pay our bills, we're facing interest penalties, late fines," said Coughlin who asked, "Why shouldn't the city be (charging) late fees as a further incentive to get these companies to pay up?"

The city has already redoubled its efforts to collect overdue fines, reported Jim Fatseas, Chief of Staff for Mayor Thomas Koch. Fatseas said some $176,000 in overdue fines has already been referred to a collection agency.

The agency has collected $72,000 and is working very hard on the largest bill of $42,000 and the city gets the full bill intact while the agency charges the debtor its own fee.

However, Fatseas, like O'Connor, said that all of the overdue bills will never be collected as some of the companies are no longer in business or have filed bankruptcy. "This list starts in 1999. Some of this is bad debt."

"This isn't a new problem." said Councillor John Keenan, adding, "It's been going on for years."

Keenan recommended that the problem be addressed up front with companies seeking police or fire details.

"If a contractor is not current with us, they don't get (a police or fire detail). We get that at the beginning, rather than looking after the fact," Keenan said.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee agreed. "We need to look at this earlier in the transaction."

Keenan responded: "We

Five Games Left: Five Points Needed To Qualify For Postseason; Beat NQ 2-0 On Saturday

Red-Hot Quincy On The Cusp Of State Tournament

SUN SPORTS

By SEAN BRENNAN

The show of emotion by the Quincy boy's soccer team following their big 2-0 victory over North Quincy on Saturday wasn't unexpected. By beating the Red Raiders for a second time this fall under the lights at Veterans. Memorial Stadium, the Presidents had done something to Quincy team had accomplished since the 2003 season – beat North Quincy twice in one calendar season.

But this celebration wasn't based solely on the fact the Quincy had defeated the Red Raiders, again. The Presidents got that monkey off their backs on Oct. 1 when they blanked North Quincy 1-0 for their first victory over the Red Raiders since 2006.

The celebration needs to be looked at in the bigger picture. At the beginning of last week, Quincy was sitting at 2-5-5 overall and Head Coach Mark Spendlove's team was spinning its wheels but Spendlove knew he potentially had something special with this group and, so he challenged his team pull together and win their next three games.

The Presidents did just that. Quincy earned a 3-1 victory over Pembroke and followed that up by knocking off Middleboro 1-0 to run its record to 4-5-5.

The team's gritty win over North Quincy pushed the record to 5-5-5 overall. What this victory has also done is put Quincy in a position to qualify for the state tournament for the first time in a very long time – at least ten years according to Athletic Director Jim Rendle.

The Presidents have five games remaining on their schedule and now need just five points to punch a postseason ticket. Quincy played a weak Randolph squad on Wednesday (the Presidents also play Randolph on Oct. 31) and host Middleboro today after having defeated the Sachems already. The Presidents travel to Bridgewater-Raynham on Saturday (Quincy tied the Trojans 2-2 on Sept. 10) before closing out the fall with a nonleague game at Plymouth South, a team Quincy already beat back on Sept. 17.

Two wins and a tie against programs that have a combined 0-2-1 record versus them this season is all that is needed for the Presidents to make some history. That is why the Presidents celebrated like they did, not to show up the Red Raiders, but instead because they can taste it, with "it" being a playoff berth.

"It was the first time in five years when we beat (North Quincy) in the first game, so to do it double, which I don't think has been done since 2003, is a great achievement in itself," said Spendlove following Saturday's nightcap with the Red Raiders. "The big picture is that we started the week with three games and I said to the kids at the beginning of the week that I wanted three wins. We had a game up here against Pembroke and we played a great game and we had a really tough game when we went to Middleboro to play on one of the worst fields in the Northeast with a gale force wind and we came away with a 1-0 win five minutes from the end of regulation, which was tremendous."

"And tonight we knew (North Quincy) was playing for pride and revenge and it was going to be a battle," Spendlove continued, "and we knew we were going to have to match them for intensity, which we didn't do in the first half, but in the second half we stepped it up."

"We need five points for five games," concluded Spendlove. "It is one game at a time but it is in our ball court, so to speak."

The game against Red Raiders was your typical Quincy-North Quincy affair with plenty of early action that kept spectators on the edge of their seats. The Red Raiders had a golden opportunity to take the lead in the match's first five minutes when a crossed ball was headed in the box cleanly by Quincy keeper Kevin Mullin only to clang off the far post. The Presidents' junior Caique Reginaldo had his rightfooted blast towards an open net cleaned out on a heads-up play by a North Quincy defender minutes later and the rest of the first half played out on a back-and-forth attack.

Players for both teams were flying around the pitch as the first 40 minutes wound down. Several hard fouls kept the intensity up with neither team giving an inch and the teams left the pitch scoreless.

Searching for some additional offensive firepower to start the second half, Spendlove altered his strategy by bringing a player off the backline up into the midfield. The game plan paid dividends right away.

Senior midfielder Dan Mongo gained ball possession at midfield and drove the action up the right sidelines. Mongo spotted sophomore forward James O'Shea with inside position at the top of the box and fed him a beautiful cross. O'Shea spun a North Quincy defender off his left shoulder, turned and flicked a tremendous shot over the outstretched arms of the Red Raider keeper to give Quincy a 1-0 lead at 38:30 of the second half.

Just over a minute later, Reginaldo blasted a free kick from inside the 20-yard line into the top right corner for the Presidents' second goal. "We tweaked (the strategy) it a little bit and took a guy out of the back and squeezed the midfield a bit more," explained Spendlove about his team's second half scoring binge. "We knew it was a case of getting the ball on goal. Those were two fantastic goals to start the half."

Two goals proved to be enough as Quincy locked down North Quincy over the game's final 30 minutes and when the final whistle was blown it was celebration time.

Reginaldo's Goal Beats Middleboro

Caique Reginaldo had quite the week. His goal with under five minutes left in regulation, off a cross from James O'Shea, earned Quincy the all-important two points as the Presidents won 1-0 on the road.

Keeper Kevin Mullin finished with a shutout.

Quincy hosts the Sachems today at 3:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Annual Quincy Animal Shelter Walk/Run Best Yet

By EMILY TAFT

The Quincy Animal Shelter Inc. held its third annual Cause 4 Paws Walk/Run on Oct. 23rd to help raise money to go towards the care of each animal at the shelter.

The fundraiser included raffles, pictures, an agility course, Halloween costume contest, a 1 mile dog walk, and a 5K Road Race. Hundreds of owners and their dogs gathered at Squantum Point Park to help towards a good cause, for the non-profit shelter.

"This is a wonderful event. It is great to see all these dogs getting along so well," said Board of Directors member Lynda Southerland. "We are having a great time as owners, and the dogs are having a great time as well."

The event started around 8:30 a.m. on Sunday and many stayed past 1 p.m.

The fastest male and female along with their dogs received a prize after the race, and raffle prizes consisted of everything from gift baskets for dogs and owners, gift cards, and even a pet stroller.

The event which took around seven months to put together, allowed dogs and owners alike to socialize and have a fun day out. Along with those attending the event, there were many dogs being walked around by shelter volunteers that were looking for a new home.

With a budget of around $100,000 a year, the money donated and paid to adopt a pet, all goes towards the care of the animals in the shelter.

"The shelter has built a reputation for being something that is worthwhile donating towards," said Southerland. "I can't believe the time and dedication that was put in by everyone who volunteered and ran."

According to Southerland there is only one paid employee of the shelter, the rest is all volunteers, and the shelter relies solely on donations and events such as Cause 4 Paws.

Executive Director Siobhan Montague started working as a volunteer for the shelter in 2008.

"I started working here around January of 2008," said Montague. "I wanted to just help the animals and the shelter."

Since 1999 the Quincy Animal Shelter has placed more than 5,000 cats and dogs into loving and forever homes through out Massachusetts and New England.

For Quincy resident Peter Villanueva it was a day to spend with his one-yearold Siberian husky, Feara.

"I am an avid runner, and Feara and I go on 3-4 mile runs every morning, so we participated in the 5K run," said Villanueva. "I was looking for a running event I could do with her, and we found this. Its such a great cause."

QAS is a no kill shelter, and makes an effort to find the right home for every animal there. The capacity at the Shelter is limited to a maximum of 12 dogs and 15 to 25 cats, depending on ages and condition of the cats.

The Shelter's goal is to eventually find a larger facility so they can continue their mission on a larger scale and serve the continuous needs of the community and the animals.

"I had no idea there was this many dogs in Quincy," said Montague. "We had a great turn out today. Thanks to everyone who came out."

The event rose over $10,000 according to Southerland, and $3,800 of that money was from pledges during the walk and run. One person alone was able to raise $1,325 and another

Those looking to help QAS can log onto their website at www.quincyanimalshelter.org.

Horn: Sox Need La Russa-Type Manager

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Former Boston Red Sox player and baseball television analyst Sam Horn says the Sox need a Tony La Russa-type as their next baseball manager.

In a recent interview with The Quincy Sun, Horn also offered his thoughts on the Red Sox historic collapse in September that derailed their post-season plans and gave some insight to the culture of today's Big League clubhouse compared to when he was a player back in the late 1980s and early 1990s

Asked who he would like to see succeed former Sox skipper Terry Francona, Horn said, "Anyone that I would think of is already under contract like (the Cardinals') Tony La Russa. I was thinking that if Albert Pujols (leaves the Cardinals) Tony might say 'hey, I'm done here.""

Both La Russa and Pujols are in final years of contracts with St. Louis. The Cardinals are battling the Texas Rangers in the World Series.

But the Cardinals postseason success could mean both Pujols and La Russa stay in St. Louis, Horn believes.

"For them making it to the World Series, I don't think (Tony) anticipated that. I think he thought he'd be done by the end of the year. That's my personal feelings and observations of the season.

"Now that he (and the Cardinals) got this far, I would say you need a Tony La Russa type manager. He's the perfect kind of guy. He's soft enough meaning with the players that he's not abrasive and you don't want to be a turn-off and be the kind of manager that's going to come in and run it like the Marines. You don't need that kind of guy.

"But you don't need someone who's going to be like Terry Francona was towards the end of his tenure (in Boston) which is letting players slide. If they're talking about the (pitchers on their off-days) drinking beer (in the dugout), he could have said there's no beer in the clubhouse period. He could have put a cap on that because he is the manager.

"Clearly we saw players getting out of shape and you have to be able to put your foot down."

Horn made his Red Sox debut in 1987 as the club's designated hitter. He was called up after the Sox released Don Baylor and Bill Buckner. Horn slugged his way to the Big Leagues from Boston's minor league squad, the Pawtucket Red Sox. Before his call-up, Horn had led the Paw Sox in batting average (.321), runs (57), hits (101), homeruns (30) and RBIs (82) by July 3rd of 1987. Those are the best offensive numbers in Paw Sox history.

Horn says the next Red Sox manager should have "strong shoulders and endure a full season."

He added: "I think Francona was a players' manager and a great guy. I know him well. He's a very nice person but I think he became a victim of the system. You have a team that is winning and everything is fine when you're winning. But when He had access to the Red you lose, they try to depict what it is that made you

"I want a manager who is going to be consistent from day one. If you start off as a hard manager, finish the season as a hard manager. Don't give up."

Horn is also a motivational speaker and sports mentor. He said the Red Sox relaxed down the stretched and that cost them a chance to play for another World Series title.

"The reason I think the Red Sox collapsed is because the Red Sox, up until September, had been playing really well and they took their schedule for granted. They looked at the end of the year and said, 'we can beat these teams.' I think they relaxed and let themselves go.

"A part of being a sports tutor is working on the mental part of the game," Horn explains. "In order to play the game you have to play 100 percent. It's 90 percent ability, and 10 percent mental. The key is the first 10 percent is the mental part, and then the 90 percent ability kicks in. If you don't have that first 10 percent, the 90 percent becomes obsolete and that's what happened with the Red Sox."

Horn says clubhouse culture has changed since he first broke into the Big Leagues some 14 years ago. Sox clubhouse while working from 2003 to 2007 as an analyst for NESN before and after Red Sox games.

"I know some of the core players who are in there now," Horn says. "I believe when you have players who are doing well or have signed big contracts, they become a little more lax. How can you tell a player when he has a guaranteed $70 or $80 million contract really what to do? You can compromise with this player but you can't really tell that player what to do.

"When we were playing, I knew that you didn't want to get caught drinking beer because one, you didn't have that security to be able to say, 'I can do whatever I want whether I get caught or not, who cares?' I think that's the mentality of today's generation of ballplayers because they are secured with their contracts so that when you look at player and they're doing things that they're not supposed to do whether it's going out late, conditioning, their nutrition . . . they're on their own programs nowadays and I think that's difference between ballplayers of today and yesterday.

"We had more of a routine and we we're trying to be prepared for the next day because you never knew when someone was going to take your position if you didn't do the right thing. Now, the players are secure with their position because if you sign for five years, whether I'm sitting over there or sitting in the stands, you come and pay me on the 1st and the 15th."

That's quite a contrast from Horn's playing days.

"Yesterday, we had to abide by rules and worry about our job security and upper management kept a closer eye out on you because they could and when they didn't like something they told you," Horn says. "Now, it's brushed under the carpet a little bit because they don't want to bother someone with a multi-year contract because you have to deal with them over a period of time. When I played you got one or two year contracts; now you have 6, 7 and 8-year deals.

"But it also goes both ways," Horn adds. "Management does the same deal. There have been plenty of times when they've told you a story and said 'play well this year and we're going to hook you up next year.' And then you have an extremely good year and they say 'it's not in the budget' and they trade you off or whatever the case may be.

"I went year to year and even though I had some good years I got only a oneyear deal. Management was content saying 'do it again

Quincy Youth Soccer Registration for Spring 2012

Saturday, November 5th Broad Meadows Middle School Café, 9a – 12p

Quincy Youth Soccer's In-House recreational Spring soccer league is open to Quincy youth born between August 1, 1996 and December 31, 2006. Prior soccer experience is not required. There are no try-outs. Games will be held on the weekends between April and June, 2012.

All players who register are assigned to a team according to age, and are guaranteed playing time in each game. The fee for the U6-Under 6 (players born in the year 2006) is $50. For all other age groups, the fee is $75 unless the player is returning from the Fall 2011 program. The fee is $50 for all returning players from the Fall 2011 program.

TOPSoccer is a program with the goal to enrich the lives of athletes with disabilities through the game of soccer. There is no fee.

Players who are NEW to Quincy Youth Soccer must register in person and bring a copy of their birth certificate.

Men's Drop In Basketball Program

The Quincy Recreation Department and Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, announced this week that the department would supervise a Men's Drop In Basketball program at the Atlantic Middle School gymnasium on Monday evenings.

The program, which will begin on Monday, Oct. 31, runs from 6-8 p.m. each Monday throughout the winter with the exception of Monday holidays. Each week pick-up teams will be formed from those who are in attendance and games will be played.

There is a $5 fee payable each week at the door. New participants are always welcome and locker room facilities will be available. Quincy Recreation staff will supervise all activities.

Atlantic Middle School is located at 86 Hollis Avenue in North Quincy; the gym entrance is at the rear of the parking lot.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the Quincy Recreation Office at 617-376-1394 or by visiting www.QuincyRec.

Sacred Heart Basketball Registration Oct. 29

The Sacred Heart North Quincy Youth Basketball Program plans to hold open registration on Sat., Oct. 29 from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. in the Scared Heart Parish Cafeteria, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy.

The league, which is celebrating its 23rd season this winter, has provided thousands of children in Quincy with the opportunity to learn and enjoy the sport of basketball. The program is open to all boys and girls ages 5-18 (grades K-12) from the Quincy area - you do not need to be a member of Sacred Heart Parish or live in the North Quincy to participate.

Children in grades K-2 will play one hour a week of fun oriented instructional basketball, usually on Saturday afternoons beginning in mid-November at the NQHS gym. Children in grades 3-12 will practice once a week on either Wednesday, Thursday or Friday night at Atlantic MS and will play a schedule of games usually on Saturday afternoon at the NQHS gym.

League fees are $50 for kids in grades K-2, $100 for kids in grades 3-12, and a maximum family payment of $250. No child will be turned away for financial reasons. (Travel teams will be selected from certain age groups and will involve an additional fee.)

North Quincy And Quincy Battle To 1-1 Draw

By SEAN BRENNAN

The Quincy Presidents girl's soccer team has been chasing that elusive victory over rival North Quincy for 17 seasons. In the last 34 meetings, including a 2-1 loss earlier this fall, Quincy teams have gone a combined 0-34-0 against the Red Raiders.

Saturday afternoon's inter-city clash didn't result in a win for Quincy - the Presidents settled for a 1-1 tie - but it was a clear step in the right direction and, could be the type of performance that shifts the tides in coming seasons.

But this fall, it is the Red Raiders, even after tying Quincy, who is team still in contention for their first postseason appearance since the 2007 season. North Quincy has four games remaining, which included a nonleague game at home versus Everett on Wednesday and back to back home-and-away matches versus Boston English today and Lynn Classical on Friday, and needs five more points to qualify for the state tournament.

"I thought it was a courageous comeback by our kids," said North Quincy Head Coach Paul Bregoli after the Red Raiders stormed back to earn the tie after a second half goal by Quincy. "The team was disappointed after Quincy scored to take a 1-0 lead but a timeout was called and that allowed the girls to settle down."

"At this point in the season we just need to keep earning any points we can," continued Bregoli. "This was just another game that you have to perform in and as far as I am concerned it is just another obstacle that gets in the way. We are happy with any point we get."

In the match's first 40 minutes, Quincy (2-9-4 overall) and sophomore keeper Natalie O'Donovan withstood a flurry of North Quincy scoring opportunities including a rocket shot off the right foot of midfielder Liz Kelly and an in-close scoring chance by freshman Courtney Campo late in the half.

With O'Donovan protecting her end of the pitch, North Quincy senior keeper Sara Sullivan was equally up to task at the other end. Sullivan aggressively played a scoring chance from Quincy's Victoria Wallace five minutes into regulation and later made a heady save on a direct kick with ten minutes left before halftime.

40 Through minutes of back-and-forth action, North Quincy (6-7-3 overall) played like a team fighting for its postseason life while the upstart Presidents, fresh off a solid 1-0 win over Middleboro, played like a team with no fear, which made for an exciting and sometimes tense scoreless 40 minutes of soccer.

The Red Raiders came out determined to start the second half. Junior forward Shannon McCleary had a potential scoring bid denied by senior keeper Michaela Walker in the 32nd minute. Walker later denied a volley attempt from Courtney Campo in the 29th

Quincy took every North Quincy push and countered with one of its own.

Sullivan kept the game scoreless with a save in the 26th minute. Her aggressive play allowed her to play the ball out to sophomore midfielder Kayla Sugrue who in turn split two Presidents' defenders with a clever touch pass to McCleary up the middle of the field. McCleary raced in all alone on Walker, CELEBRATION TIME - Members of the Quincy Presidents celebrate after freshman Emma but the Quincy keeper made the save. The rebound landed on the right foot of junior Danielle Paschall whose shot was knocked out of harm's way by a resilient Walker.

As they did on Sept. 30 in the first meeting between the city's high schools, the Presidents broke through on the scoreboard first. With just over 15 minutes remaining in regulation, freshman forward Emma Papile outraced the North Quincy defense along the left sidelines and broke in alone on Sullivan. Papile made a deft move from right to left and tucked a perfect ball into the open net to give Quincy a 1-0 advantage.

But just like that first matchup between the two teams, North Quincy roared right back. Four minutes after Papile had given the Presidents the lead, the Red Raiders earned a direct kick from about 18 yards out. Courtney Campo drove a clean ball aimed for right below the crossbar. Walker made an athletic move to stop the initial shot, but an onrush of Red Raiders allowed freshman Ciara Forde to find the loose ball in space. Forde, who had been a second half substitution, slipped the ball into the back of the net to tie the contest at 1-1 with 11:15 left in regulation.

"The initial shot by Campo was a set play," said Bregoli. "She actually almost scored on the same exact play against Scituate. She just stepped up and drilled one. I had all the confidence in the world she would make it. It was a nice save but Forde was right there to put it into the open net."

Team Notes:

Quincy lost to nonleague Abington, 5-0, on Monday and hosted nonleague Mount Alvernia on Tuesday. The Presidents end the season on Friday with a home match with Abington... North Quincy finishes the regular season with a make-up game at Hingham on Monday... Before the start of Saturday's match, the senior class from North Quincy and Quincy were recognized, as were the players' parents. North Quincy seniors included Kelly Byrne, Kaleen Campo, Jonlyn Lydon (injured), Taylor McKay, Jess O'Donovan (injured), Bethany Routier and Sara Sullivan while Quincy's seniors included

Ophthalmologists Warn:

Risks Associated With Transforming Your Eyes This Halloween

Each year, as Halloween approaches, revelers find new and interesting ways to enhance their costumes.

Many have turned to decorative contact lenses to complete their ghoulish or fantasy-like looks. Topping off a costume with blood-drenched vampire eyes, glow-in-the-dark lizard lenses or maybe even the newest fad, circle lenses are all cool and trendy options.

But most people do not know the sight-stealing consequences behind making these choices. Obtaining decorative lenses including colored contacts and novelty or costume lenses without a prescription is dangerous. And circle lenses, which are becoming increasingly popular with teenage girls, are not FDA-approved.

Websites often advertise decorative contacts as if they were cosmetics, fashion accessories or toys. With whimsical, playful packaging and names like Dolly Eyes, their targets are often teens and young adults.

The Massachusetts Society of Eye Physicians and Surgeons and the American Academy of Ophthalmology are working together to warn Massachusetts parents and teens that purchasing any contact lenses without an eye examination and a prescription from a licensed eye care professional such as an ophthalmologist - an eye medical doctor -- can cause serious eye disorders and infections, which may lead to blindness.

All contact lenses are medical devices that require a prescription and proper fitting by an eye care professional. Even if someone has perfect vision, they need to get an eye exam and a prescription from an eye care professional in order to wear any kind of contacts, including cosmetic lenses.

"This is a serious public health threat. People can lose vision or go blind if their contact lenses do not fit correctly or are not cared for properly," says Michael Goldstein, MD, president of the Massachusetts Society of Eye Physicians and Surgeons. "These decorative lenses, some of which are not FDA approved, may pose an enormous danger and could cause permanent eye damage. Anyone wearing contact lenses who develops redness, pain, discharge or white spots in the eye should remove the lenses immediately and contact an ophthalmologist."

In 2005, a federal law was passed that classified all contact lenses as medical devices and restricted their distribution to licensed eye care professionals. Illegal sale of contacts can result in civil penalties of up to $11,000 per violation. Consumers should only buy decorative contact lenses from an eye care professional or a seller who asks for a prescription.

While Halloween is a popular time for people to use decorative contact lenses, it's important to take proper care year-round. To protect the eyes, an eye care professional measures each eye in order to properly fit contacts for the patient.

There is no such thing as "one-size-fits-all" contact lenses. Contacts that are not properly fitted may scratch the eye or cause blood vessels to grow into the cornea. Additionally, the eye care professional instructs the patient on appropriate contact lens care. Contacts that are not cleaned and disinfected increase the risk of eye infection. Not everyone is a good candidate for contacts (prescription or decorative lenses).

People who have:

- frequent eye infec-
  - · severe allergies,
- dry eye that is resistant to treatment,
- a very dusty work environment, or
- an inability to handle and care for the lenses may not be suitable candidates for contacts.

An eye care professional can assist in helping a patient make a decision that is right for them.

For more information on the safe wearing of decorative lenses as well as regular contacts, visit www.geteyesmart.org. Medical Society Presents Q&A on Seasonal Flu

Physicians Urge Patients To Get A Flu Shot

Physicians of the Massachusetts Medical Society are adding their voice to those of other health officials in urging everyone to get vaccinated for this flu season.

"Vaccines are one of the miracles of medicine," says Lynda Young, M.D., President of the Medical Society and a practicing pediatrician in Worcester, "and we should take every opportunity to use these powerful preventive measures. It's a proven, safe, easy way to protect our personal health, as well as our public health."

"The more people who get immunized," says Dr. Young, "the greater the immunity that is built up within a given community. It is particularly important for children under 5 and the elderly, two of the groups most at risk from the flu. And we shouldn't underestimate this illness; it can be widespread and have serious health consequences."

To remind residents about aspects of this seasonal illness, Dr. Young and her colleagues from the Medical Society offer this Q&A:

How serious can the flu be?

Flu is a contagious respiratory illness that causes up to 36,000 deaths and 200,000 hospitalizations annually. Lost work time and added hospital and health care costs add to the impact of this disease.

How is the flu spread?

It's spread from person to person, principally by droplets from coughing, sneezing, or talking. People with the flu can also infect someone else before feeling sick, as the virus can spread one day before symptoms develop, and spread up to a week or more after getting sick.

What complications from the flu can arise?

Pneumonia is a common complication, as are ear and sinus infections and dehydration. People with chronic medical conditions, such as diabetes, asthma, or congestive heart failure, may see those conditions get worse, posing serious threats to health. And no, you can't get the flu from a flu shot.

Who should get vaccinated?

Everyone six months and older should get a flu shot every year, especially those in high-risk groups: pregnant women; children under 5; those 50 and older; anyone with chronic medical conditions such as asthma, diabetes or heart conditions; people in nursing homes and long-term care facilities; and those who live with or care for those at high risk. Health care workers should also be immunized.

When should I get a flu shot?

The sooner the better. It takes about two weeks after the shot for your body to develop an immune response. Getting vaccinated quickly is best for children who are being protected for the first time, because they need two doses at least four weeks apart.

Should anyone not be vaccinated?

Children less than six months of age should not be vaccinated. People with allergies to chicken eggs (the source of vaccines), those who've had a severe reaction to prior vaccinations, and people with Guillain-Barré syndrome (an immune system disorder) should check with their physician.

What are the best preventive measures?

Vaccination offers the best protection. The flu shot with a needle is approved for people 6 months and older; nasal-spray vaccines, for healthy people age 2 to 49 who are not pregnant. Good hygiene habits, like washing hands often or using hand sanitizers, are also important. Control the spread of germs by coughing or sneezing into your arm, keep children home if they're sick, don't go to work if you're sick, and don't share items, like glasses or cups that canspread germs and viruses.

Where can I get a shot?

Plenty of vaccine is available, but some board of health flu clinics in communities may be eliminated because of budgetary cutbacks. Check with your physician or local board of health to see when and where flu vaccine and clinics will be available.

3,800 mg. If salt is on the label as "sodium," your total daily intake should be 2,300 mg or less. A better goal is 1,500 mg.

Tell your heart doctor about your swelling. He might make changes in your medicines either by increasing the dose or switching to other medicines that make the heart pump with more force.

There are other causes of edema, but this is the one that seems to fit you best.

The booklet on edema explains its causes and treatments. Readers can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue -- No. 106W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S/$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have a problem with my feet swelling. They get so big that they hurt when I walk. My doctor is puzzled. He thinks maybe it's due to my heart pills, but he can't change them - my heart doctor has to. I have had two heart attacks, bypass surgery and a defibrillator put in my chest. When I'm in bed, the swelling goes down to almost normal. When I am up, it returns, even if I am sitting. I'd appreciate any suggestions. - E.L.

ANSWER: I believe I'm safe in saying your problem is chronic congestive heart failure. Your heart is pumping so weakly that blood circulates sluggishly. When you're up or when you're sitting, gravity pulls fluid out of your leg's vessels, and it is the cause of your swelling. In the horizontal position in bed, gravity doesn't have this effect, and the fluid stays in blood vessels. The swelling is called edema (e-DEE-muh).

During the day, take frequent breaks to lie down with your legs propped up higher than your heart. When you sit, rest your legs on the seat of a chair put in front of you. Walk as much as you can during the day. The contracting leg muscles push fluid back into circulation.

Limit the salt you eat; salt makes the body retain fluid. Read food labels. Most of our salt intake comes from the foods we eat, not from adding salt at the table or in cooking. But don't do either. Your total daily salt intake should be less than 5,700 mg, preferably

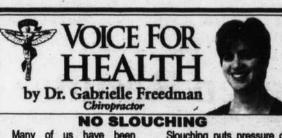

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Several bouts of stomach pain brought me to the doctor. The pain is located in my upper right side. The doctor was certain I was having gallbladder attacks due to stones. She sent me for an ultrasound test of my gallbladder.

I don't have stones. I have something called a liver hemangioma. My doctor says I don't need any treatment. I never heard of this and wonder what your thoughts are. - P.K.

ANSWER: A hemangioma is a small, ball-shaped mass of blood vessels. If 100 people had a liver scan, seven would be found to have a hemangioma. Women develop them more often than men do. They do not become cancers. They're rarely a source of constant pain, unless they grow quite large and press on adjacent tissue. They don't cause attacks of pain. Have you found out what causes your pain?

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Now, a recent study provides even more reason to stop slouching. Research shows that when individuals assume a "dominant" posture (versus a submissive one), they are less sensitive to pain. That is, when people stood (or sat) up straight and puffed out their chests, they had a higher threshold for pain than when they assumed a submissive stance (slouching ith their arms and legs crossed) This finding supports previous earch showing that having a dominant posture increas testosterone production and decreases levels of the stress normone cortisol.

Pot Luck Supper Nov. 12 At Community United Methodist

On Saturday, Nov. 12, Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold a pot luck supper with a Thanksgiving theme.

Everyone is welcome. Those attending are asked to bring an appetizer, main course, salad, or dessert to

Following the pot luck supper, all those who wish to do so are invited to participate in the creation of a "Thanksgiving Tree."

Rev. Dr. Susan Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the church, said, "Everyone will have an opportunity to take as many leaves as they wish, and to write whatever they are thankful for on them. The leaves will be attached to the tree, and, when it's completed, the tree will be moved upstairs to the Sanctuary where it will become part of the altar decorations.

The church is located diagonally across the street from the Wollaston T stop. It is handicapped accessible in the front of the door nearest the flagpole.

Ethel Rita Koretsky, 90 Salesperson, Lab Clerk

A graveside service for Ethel Rita (Weinberg) Koretsky, 90, of Wollaston, was conducted Oct. 12 at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Mrs. Koretsky died Oct.

Born in Brockton, she and her husband, Harold, moved in to their Wollaston home in 1959 and began to raise their three daughters Emily, Paula and Robin. When Harold passed suddenly at age 48, Mrs. Koretsky showed newfound strength and determination, as she became the head of the family. A single mom, she returned to the work force in variety of jobs as a skilled salesperson in several businesses in the Quincy area.

After many years as a lab clerk at the Quincy Medical Center, she retired to begin one of the happiest periods of her life. She loved the freedom of her retirement years; she enjoyed quilting, swimming at the YMCA, playing bingo, visiting with friends and puttering in her yard. She loved animals, whether the pets were hers or her neighbors.

Mrs. Koretsky often walked the few blocks from her home to Wollaston Square, stopping to chat and greet many of the longtime residents like her. She was an extraordinary and supportive friend to Helen Budrevich, Peter Young, Sharon and Paul Jarvie, Pat Racette and the gang on the Foxwoods Casino bus.

Wife of the late Harold Koretsky; mother of Emily Lloyd and Chris Nimrod of CA, Paula and Ken Rys of Bow, and Robin Koretsky of TX; sister of Aaron Weinberg and her late brothers and sisters; sister in-law of Pauline Falkof and Esther Goldenhearsh and Adele Benjamin Brenner; grandmother of David and Brianna Rys and Dianne and Joshua Cantara; greatgrandmother of John Benjamin Rys.

She is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Memorial donations may be made to Angell Animal Medical Shelter, 350 Huntington Ave, Boston, MA 02130.

Carleton A. Kemp, Sr., 83

Mr. Kemp died Oct. 14. Born in Boston, he was raised in Quincy and was the son to the late Chester P. Kemp, Sr., and Bessie (Garland) Kemp.

Brother of Shirley (Kemp) Walsh of Cape Cod, Bruce Kemp of FL and the late Chester Parker Kemp, Jr., and Luella (Kemp) Whittum; father of Carl and Judy

Kemp of FL, Wayne and Janice Kemp of FL, Christine Kemp of Hull, Jeffrey and Anne Kemp of Plymouth, Cindy Wedgewood of Plympton, Lauren (Kemp) Shea and her husband Bill of CA, Stacey Kemp of Winthrop and Brad Kemp and his wife Laurel of CA.

He is also survived by 23 grandchildren, 31 greatgrandchildren and numerous cousins, nieces and nephews.

Memorial donations may be made to the National Brain Tumor Society, 124 Watertown St., Suite 2D. Watertown, MA 02472.

Michael Farquharson

ert Farquharsan of Quincy, Daniel Farquharson Quincy, John Glynn and his wife Bonnie of Plymouth, Barry Glynn and his wife Paula of Quincy and Garry Glynn and his wife Megan of Norwell.

Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Mr. Farquharson served proudly in the U.S. Army and later joined the postal service. He worked for the Post office for 30 years, mostly in the Montclair section of Quincy. He went to Florida a few years ago where he enjoyed retirement. He was an avid Boston sports fan and enjoyed all the recent success.

Being in Florida Michael would always follow the Red Sox, Patriots, Bruins, and Celtics. He Loved his two daughters, Cindy and Stacey, and grandson An-

Michael was just starting his retirement when diagnosed with cancer. Although his condition was terminal he was determined to live a fulfilling life.

Visiting hours are today (Thursday) from 4 to 8 p.m. at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Burial will be Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

White House Wreath Commemorates 276 Birthday Anniversary Of Second President

By EMILY TAFT

A wreath from President Barack Obama was laid on the tomb of John Adams at the United First Parish Church on Oct. 31st to honor the 276th anniversary of his birthday.

"We are inspired by the life and service of John Adams and his wife," said Rev. Sheldon Bennett, Minister of the United First Parish Church. "May his wisdom and guidance inspire us all."

The church was filled with politicians, members of the U.S. Navy, residents of Quincy, and students from high schools and colleges throughout Massachusetts.

Among those who addressed the crowded church was Mayor Tom Koch, Lilli Ann Plourde class of 2012 at the Woodward School for Girls, and Commander Scott Graham, Commanding Officer Navy Operational Center, Quincy, who spoke on behalf of President Obama.

According to Graham, Adams was significant in the building of the Navy, and during his years as President he established a naval department and was known as the father of the Navy.

Rev. Bennett said that John Adams was a life long member of the church and a man of deep faith.

"I believe that some part of John Adams spirit lives here in these stones," said Rev. Bennett. "May we be worthy of the freedom he has provided us."

The common theme throughout the nine speakers was the impact John Adams has had on the education system and what it has become today.

"Doctor Woodward was inspired by the former president and his wife to open up a school for girls," said Lilli Ann Plourde. "We are all direct beneficiaries of their foresight."

Arthur Ducharme, Director of the Visitors Program, was amazed at how many students were in attendance.

"I am so pleased to see so many high school and college students in attendance today," said Ducharme. "Today raises awareness of

Determined to pay off your mortgage as quickly as possible? This loan is for you!

There are so many good reasons to love the 15-Year Mortgage. For some people, it's about being debt-free. Others want the mortgage paid off by the time the kids go to college or before they retire. Some see paying off their mortgage quickly as a kind of "forced" savings. Here's the simple fact: If you can swing the somewhat-higher monthly payments, a 15-Year Mortgage knocks years off your original loan. Your equity builds very quickly. And you pay thousands less in interest, compared to a longer-term mortgage loan. Rates are still at historic lows. How much longer? Who knows If a 15-Year sounds good to you, let's talk. Soon! ### Now, It's Your Turn n less than a week, Quincy voters will elect a may-Lor, nine city councillors and three school committee members.

Election Day is Tuesday, Nov. 8 this year which for some appears a little late on the calendar. But city ordinance requires the city hold its election the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. So, because the first Monday isn't until Nov. 7 (thanks to Halloween being on Monday, Oct. 31), the election is set for Nov. 8 this year.

This year's ballot features seven contested races: mayor, city councillor atlarge, councillor in Wards 2, 3, 5 and 6 and three seats on the school committee. In all, 19 candidates are vying for these offices.

VOTE TUESDAY, NOV. 8

That's a pretty healthy election in terms of ballot choices.

All the candidates deserve recognition and credit for waging campaigns. Running for office - any office requires a lot of hard work and sacrifice. Knocking on doors, producing campaign literature, attending candidates' forums and debates, holding signs, fundraising. .. the list goes on.

More time on the campaign trail means less time with family. Running for office and serving in public life can be a juggling act.

It can be a topsy-turvy time at the local newspaper,

Here at The Sun we've tried to improve our election coverage this year, while keeping our readers informed of other news.

We've given each candidate a forum to speak their mind on issues that they've deemed important to the voters – and citizens – of Quincy.

We've printed letters to the editor from readers who wanted to share their opinion about an issue that they feel is important, too.

We've covered and reported on candidates' forums and debates - especially the mayor's race.

We're tried to focus on their positions on issues including the downtown redevelopment project, a new city track, budget matters and other subjects that the candidates themselves conveyed into public debate.

This week, for the first time in Sun history, we've printed a special supplement on a local election. This Voter's Guide supplement – inserted in this week's Sun offers biographical information on all the candidates running in contested races. We've also asked each of the candidates to respond to this question:

"My goals during my term in office are: ..." Why this question?

While campaigns are about succeeding an office holder who is stepping down or trying to unseat an incumbent, we also think it's a candidate's responsibility to the electorate and citizenry to discuss their ideas if they are successful on Election Day.

Basically, tell us what you will do after you are sworn into office. Or at least give us an idea of your priorities in that new position.

This goes without saying but I want to be very clear on this:

The supplement is not supported by any revenue from a political candidate. And not one candidate asked us to produce this supplement. The guide is a public service provided by The Sun for our readers who are seeking more information on the individual candidates.

Which brings us to you.

The voter.

Think about the time it takes to cast a ballot . . . and then think about the time it takes running for office. They pale in comparison.

While we've beaten the "gotta get out and vote" drum in the past, we think it's imperative that all registered voters consider their civic duty and make every attempt to go to the polls next Tuesday.

Most voters are aware there is a mayor's race next Tuesday - in fact, it's the third straight election with a contested mayor's race.

But there are also two open seats on the School Committee.

And three city council seats are open, too: one councillor at-large and Ward seats in 2 and 5.

School committee members make decisions on school policy, resources, building projects, curricu-

Ward councillors have difficult jobs, too. They are generally the first called when there's a neighborhood or ward problem like flooding, storm damage, snow removal, etc. The ward councillor is your direct link to city government and city services.

But the very first link to government is casting a

The polls will be open next Tuesday, Nov. 8 from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. A list of the polling precincts are listed on Page 9 and on Page 12A of the Voter's Guide sup-

The supplement also includes a sample composite ballot and instructions on marking your ballot using the new opti-scan voting technology.

But what you won't find in the guide or anywhere else: candidate endorsements for any office.

The Sun does not endorse for mainly one reason: we believe the electorate is smart enough to make its own decisions at the polls.

Newspaper endorsements are common elsewhere. But not here. The Sun maintains voters willing to take the time to cast ballots on Election Day are certainly capable of forming their own opinions about those same candidates on that ballot.

The only endorsement will make is this: get out and vote Tuesday, Nov. 8.

The candidates have spoken.

Voters - it's now your turn.

THE NUMBER OF registered voters in Quincy has climbed 473 during a five-week period from Sept. 15 to Oct. 19, according to figures released by the Quincy Election Department.

Some 54,628 voters are eligible to vote in next Tuesday's city election compared to the 54,155 registered for the Sept. 20 preliminary election.

Of those 54,628 registered voters, 25,798 or 47.2 percent are unenrolled voters. Next are registered Democrats with 23,350 or 42.5 percent. Republicans are third with 5,210 registered or 9.5 percent.

The other 0.6 percent of those registered breaks down this way: 240 Libertarians, 62 Green/Rainbow and 68 all others.

Here's the voter registration by ward:

Ward 1: 8,589 registered voters (3,868 unenrolled, 3,856 Democrats and 816 Republicans.)

Ward 2: 9,420 registered voters (4,402 unenrolled, 4,118 Democrats and 843 Republicans.)

Ward 3: 8,951 registered voters (4,405 unenrolled,3,676 Democrats and 805 Republicans.)

Ward 4: 9,339 registered voters (4,343 unenrolled, 3,978 Democrats and 942 Republicans.

Ward 5: 8,774 registered voters (4,145 unenrolled, 3,710 Democrats and 861 Republicans).

Ward 6: 9,555 registered voters (4,635 unenrolled, 3,912 Democrats and 943 Republicans.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1929 postcard was one of a series published by the Granite Trust Company to commemorate the opening of their new bank building in Quincy Square. Theophilus King, president of the bank, built the art deco building with his own money. This is a view of the main entrance at 1400 Hancock St. Four massive Quincy granite columns supporting an even larger lentil dominate the entryway. King claimed that the columns were the largest polished Quincy granite columns ever produced. The granite was taken from the Hitchcock Quarry that was just behind today's Elks building on Quarry Street. The Quincy Quarries Company, of which King was also president, owned the quarry. The tower of the building above this level is made of limestone. Inside this portico, bronze projecting show windows flanked ornate bronze and glass doors. The window on the left was Lawrence Beech's newsstand and on the right was Roy Flagg's Cigar Shop. Those shops are long gone and the flags over the doors haven't been hung for years. Wind blowing through the doors became a nuisance in the banking hall and later a revolving bronze door replaced them. The Bank of America now occupies the banking hall and the building is owned by Street-Works. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Quincy Community United Methodist Church Beale Street Holiday Fair Nov. 19

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its annual Holiday Fair Saturday, Nov. 19 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The fair consists of two floors of tables.

On the first floor, there will be a plant table, crafts table, White Elephant area, silent auction, homemade baked goods, a sports table, knitted goods table, "general store" and candy table.

Morning coffee and pastries will also be available, as well as lunch. The lunch menu changes every year, and always features homemade food.

The second floor has been expanded this year.

"We have two rooms," said Joanne Smith, co-chairperson of the fair. "Karin's Boutique' has a tremendous assortment of clothing and accessories, and, this year, we even have a dressing room. This year there's also the 'jewelry box' with all kinds of jewelry."

The second floor will also feature Miss Kathy's Cookie Corner (all homemade) and the Book and Movie Room.

"The Beale Street Fair is a great place to visit with friends, meet new ones, have lunch - and get some holiday shopping done, too. We try to make each year better than the last," said Gary Smith, Joanne's husband and co-chairperson of the fair. "It's great shopping at reasonable prices in a real holiday atmosphere."

Quincy Community United Church is located at 40 Beale St. diagonally across the street from the Wollaston T Station. The building is handicapped accessible at the Beale Street entrance closest to the flagpole.

Let's Build The Track, Renovate Neighborhood Drainage Systems

Now I've seen everything.

On Oct. 19, I attended a School Committee hearing on the proposed Faxon Field site for a running track. I witnessed more insight and flexibility coming from engineering experts and the community than from certain Committee members.

One School Committee member argued against Faxon Field. Claiming that heavy rains run down from Hospital Hill to Faxon Field and flood the area, he carelessly brought into question the wisdom of spending money on very needed sewer and drainage renovations right in his own neighborhood. Equally, he undermined the supposed threat building a track at Faxon Field would do to drainage in the area.

Despite its questionable logic, his cause was carried on by another School Committee member, who said that she was "not convinced building a track won't add to flooding" after soliciting an impossible guarantee from engineering consultants that flooding could never happen. Funny, she never sought the same guarantee for the proposed sewer and drainage work to be done in the same neighborhood, nor for the recent construction of Quincy High School.

Then there's the issue of realistic alternate track sites by Faxon Field opponents. While too lengthy to discuss here, their arguments contained the same specious logic or any thoughtfulness to consequences. I sensed an agenda of resistance for its own sake. With other issues, I understand that's just politics and egos, and we're all big boys and girls.

But this is about kids, and that's where I draw the line. My difficulty with all the machinations above is simple. People who stone-wall the building of a high school track for three years, after the stonewalling of the high school's construction for six years, stand on grounds of quicksand in claiming to care about our school children. I find it unconscionable that they've used that platform to get themselves elected.

The many kids in our City who have or want to run track have patiently and innocently waited and taken the back seat long enough. So have the residents in the flood plain around Quincy High School. Let's get the track built and the neighborhood drainage systems renovated.

For the past few weeks, undergraduates from Harvard University have been teaching classes at Northand Quincy High Schools about Negotiations and Diplomacy on the international stage. While the Harvard Program for International Education (HPIE) concentrates on global concerns like the Israeli/Palestinian territorial conflict and Central/South American drug trafficking issues, perhaps our bright public school students could assist our mayor, school department and school committee in solving our local track dispute.

Our high school students are being taught to identify the concerns of both sides, to find a common interest, to negotiate a settlement (possibly with a third party), and finally to shake hands and move on.

self falls short of being the absolutely best that can be built. To the first argument we all agree that the building of the track must include the alleviation of the already existing flooding as well as outlaw any new flooding. To the second argument of the track not being the absolute best available, we must remember that we are Quincy and not Wellesley or Newton. A reminder that our brand new high school does not have air conditioning and that the entire school system shares the one pool at Lincoln-Hancock reminds us that we are a city that lives within our means. After all, Business Week magazine in 2009 honored us as the best city in the state to raise a family - this is because we welcome newcomers, live within our means, and have a terrific school system with great leaders -- not over-thetop facilities. On the other side are

On the other side are those in favor of the track at Faxon Field. Having the track there would leave Pageant Field as is for those other activities which already take place there. Furthermore, building it at Faxon Field would clean up the eye-sore next to the new Quincy High (and, of course, the track would then be conveniently located to the high school and be easily accessible to all users by public transportation).

Geoff Hennessy, North- and Quincy High track coach and leader of the very popular Quincy Track Club, is a terrific third-party whose main concern has been to give the kids of our city a proper field for a sport he has been instrumental in furthering in our community. His track program has been an impressive unifier, bringing the different schools and cultures together (you don't need to be a Quincy public school member to be a part of his no-cut -everyone can play- summer sport). I sat behind Geoff at the latest school committee meeting and like a true third-party negotiator, he applauded absolutely everyone who spoke, either for or against the track at Faxon Field.

Quincy Public Schools has graduated the very bright and genuinely concerned school committee leaders that we have today – that is the common interest. Let me tell you that the next generation of negotiators and diplomats are being groomed here in our city. If those in local government can't negotiate and finalize the building of a track, let our educated students do it.

Marita Mackinnon To Take Center Stage At Curry College

Curry College announces Marita Mackinnon of Quincy, daughter of George and Mary Mackinnon, will be directing a scene in John Cariani's magical love comedy, Almost, Maine.

Mackinnon is a 2008 graduate of Quincy High School. A senior majoring in communication, she has been seen on the Curry Theatre Stages in Death of a Salesman, Be Careful What You Wish For, To See the Stars, and Justice Man.

This show marks her directing debut for Curry Theatre's Black Box, but in the past she was assistant director for Actor and the Invader and stage manager for Sex and Education. In addition to directing and acting for Curry Theatre, Marita has also served as publicity director, sound manager, house manager and currently serves as this semester's costume manager.

This delightful comedy comes to the Curry stage Nov. 19-21, at 7:30 p.m., in the Oscar B. and Frances A. Keith Auditorium at the Academic and Performance Center on the Milton Campus, 1071 Blue Hill Avenue, Milton.

Mayor's Race Election Spotlight Next Tuesday

Koch is seeking a third two-year term. He unseated incumbent William Phelan to win his first term in 2007. Koch defeated Phelan again in 2009 to win re-election in a mayoral rematch.

Mahoney was first elected to the Quincy School Committee in 2005, topping the ballot as a political newcomer. She was re-elected to a second school committee term in 2009. Mahoney is seeking to become the first woman mayor in Quincy history.

The mayor's race has been a spirited contest since Mahoney announced her candidacy in May. She has campaigned on creating a "better Quincy" while expressing concern for the city's current direction.

Koch's message has focused on building on the foundation that his administration has established over the last four years.

The mayoral contenders summed up visions for the city's highest elective office during their second televised debate last Thursday.

In her closing statement, Mahoney said:

"I love this city, I was born, raised and educated in this city, and I am raising a family in this city. I know Mayor Koch loves this city, too, but sometimes when you love something you can only look at the good things and not the bad things.

"Mayor Koch doesn't see the things that he's doing. Hiring six figure jobs for his political cronies is not good for the city, having legal lawsuits and appeals not good for the city of Quincy.

"The fact of the matter is we need to move the city ahead."

In his closing statement, Koch said:

"This city is on the move. We've made tremendous progress in economic development of our city, creating thousands of jobs for the residents of the city, creating new opportunities in a very difficult time.

"I am proud of the work we have done, working with our city council, our school committee and our legislative delegation. Elections are about the future; we have built a tremendous foundation during this very difficult economic time.

"This city is on the move and I want to continue that momentum."

Their goals, if elected, are outlined in a special Quincy Sun Voter's Guide that is a special insert in this week's Sun. There are also profiles of the 17 other candidates who appear on next Tuesday's ballot in contested races.

Besides the mayor's race, those contested races are for city councillor atlarge, school committee and councillor in Wards 2, 3, 5 and 6.

Quincy voters will elect at least four new public officials next Tuesday. There are two open seats for School Committee and open seats for councillor in Wards 2 and 5.

City Clerk Joseph Shea predicts 42 percent of the city's 54,628 registered voters (22,943) will go to the polls next Tuesday. Precincts will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

"Turnout for the last two municipal elections were both a tad below 45 percent," Shea said, noting the 2007 and 2009 races also featured heated mayoral contests. "It was 44.7 percent two years ago and 44.2 percent four years ago."

Shea also said he believes open council seats in Ward 2 and Ward 5 could help spike turnout. He described the school committee and council at-large races as "somewhat quiet."

Here are the candidates who are in contested races next Tuesday. The biographical sketch of the candidates, along with their answer to this question: "My goals if I am elected are" appear in the Voter's Guide.

Mayor: Thomas P. Koch,

249 Newbury Ave. and Anne M. Mahohey, 12 Ferriter St.

Councillor at-Large: Incumbents Joseph G. Finn, 15 Williams St. and Michael E. McFarland, 140 Summit Ave.; Douglas S. Gutro, 230 Marlboro St.; and John Rodophele, Sr., 62 Grenwold Rd. Gutro is vacating his Ward 5 council seat to seek one of the three seats at-large. Not seeking reelection is Councillor John Keenan. Keenan was elected state senator last November and is stepping down from the council.

Finn is seeking his sixth two-year term. McFarland, who also served on School Committee, is seeking his fourth term on the council.

Committee: School Incumbent David McCarthy, 48 Whitney Rd.; Paul Bregoli, 80 Willow Ave.; James H. (Jay) Davis III, 33 Shawmut St.; Kathryn Hubley, 44 Marion St.; and Linda M. Perry, 181 West St.

McCarthy is seeking his third four-year term on the School Committee. Bregoli, Hubley and Perry are making their first bid for public office. Davis is a former Ward 4 city councillor.

The two open seats for the school committee were created by two incumbents who chose not to run for reelection. They are: Jo-Ann Bragg and Elaine Dwyer.

Voters in Wards 2, 3, 5 and 6 will also decide contested races for ward councillor.

In Ward 2, Brad L. Croall, 53 Sumner St. and Steven Perdios, 86 Ruggles St., are vying for the seat vacated by longtime city councillor Dan Raymondi. Raymondi stepped down from his council seat in July to become the city's commissioner of Public Works.

Croal and Perdios were nominated by finishing first and second respectively in the Sept. 20 preliminary election. Croall received 604 votes and Perdios polled 465 votes in a three-candidate field. Turnout in the Ward 2 preliminary election was 13.7 percent or 1,278 votes

In Ward 3, incumbent Councillor Kevin Coughlin, 19 Small St., is challenged by John C. Cain, Jr., 192 South Central Ave. Coughlin is seeking his sixth twoyear term. Cain also sought the Ward 3 seat in 2001.

The council seat in Ward 5 is also open this election. Doug Gutro, who has represented Ward 5 since 2002, is seeking one of the three council at-large seats this fall. Vying to succeed Gutro are two first-time candidates: Kirsten L. Hughes of 148 Phillips St. and Neil B. McCole, 79 West Elm Ave.

In Ward 6, incumbent councillor Brian McNamee, 133 Commander Shea Blvd., faces challenger Brian T. Radell, 21 Standish Rd.

McNamee and Radell were nominated by finishing first and second respectively in the Sept. 20 preliminary election. McNamee polled 720 votes while Radell received 562 votes in a threecandidate field. Turnout in Ward 6 for the preliminary election was 15 percent or 1,417 votes cast.

McNamee is seeking his fourth two-year term. Radell is making his political de-

Friday, Nov. 11 Veterans' Day - No School. and page 12A of the Voter's Guide insert.

The city has been directed by the federal government to provide a copy of the ballot in Chinese. Copies of ballot translated in Chinese will be placed in every voting booth.

"There are 15 booths in each of the 30 precincts so there will be 450 copies (of the ballot in Chinese.)" Shea said. "Everyone will have instructions on how to mark the ballot in Chinese."

About 500 voters have already cast their ballot by absentee ballot. The last day to apply for an absentee ballot at the city's Election Department, located 1259 Hancock St., is noontime on Monday, Nov. 7.

The city is also taking steps to educate election workers and voters about the new opti-scan voting technology. Instead of connecting a candidate's name and arrow with a line, ballots now ask voters to fill an oval next to a candidate of choice.

Instructions on how to fill out the oval will be placed in every voting booth.

The new opti-scan technology and voting machines debuted in Wards 2 and Ward 6 on Preliminary Election day eight weeks ago.

"The preliminary election went very well," Shea said. "People understand it's just an oval that they need to fill in. If people put a line before the oval, the ballot is rejected. An election worker can then give the voter another ballot to vote the correct way."

Shea said he hopes the votes are all tallied by 10 p.m. Tuesday night.

Tuesday, November 8th Re-Elect Joe Finn Quincy Councillor at Large

Send Joe back to City Hall so He Can Continue to:

- Serve the citizens and voters of Quincy in an open and collegial manner to ensure the common good of all of Quincy.
- Focus on fiscal issues of concern to ensure the objectives of the annual budget without jeopardizing the long-term fiscal health of the city.
- Stand with the working families of Quincy and advocate for living wages, affordable health care, and safety in the work place.
- Advocate that all development in Quincy focus on prioritizing jobs for Quincy's working families.
- Ensure that any plan for economic recovery is not built upon the backs of those who can least afford it, particularly seniors living on fixed incomes or working families hit by unemployment.
- Oversee the Downtown Development Plan for Quincy and make certain that the Land Disposition Agreement is implemented according to the intent of the City and protects the working families and taxpayers of Quincy.
- Ensure that a planned approach is brought to any future development within Quincy.
- Form the Affordable Housing Trust as an effective and powerful tool to create homeowner opportunities and affordable rentals for Quincy families desiring to remain, live and work in Quincy.
- Bring rational planning and use of modern technology for repairing streets, sidewalks and other important infrastructure within the City of Quincy.
- Be available as much as possible to any Quincy person or family in need or concerned about their life in Quincy.

WARD THREE RESIDENTS AND FAMILIES KNOW...

Kevin Works For Us!

Kevin fought for years and finally succeeded in getting signals at one of the most dangerous intersections in the city, Pleasant and Water Streets, accompanied by road repaying and park improvements. Now pedestrians and vehicles can peacefully co-exist.

Kevin mounted a petition drive with the Montclair Wollaston Neighborhood Association securing over 2200 signatures when a plan was proposed in his first term on the council to close the Wollaston Fire Station. The message delivered 'Over my dead body'.

- Paul Delgrecco, Past President MWNA

Without Kevin, this would not have been possible. He launched a legal challenge to the Mass DOT's failure to install accessibility ramps leading to the North Quincy MBTA station, so that families with children, seniors and the disabled could travel safely.

Kevin has had the courage to take on National Grid and confront their failure to repair gas leaks that are killing city trees. At no cost to taxpayers, he had every street in Ward 3 and throughout the city surveyed to locate gas leaks posing risks to our health and safety, identifying hundreds of leaks, and pursuing of leaks, and pursuing compensation for nearly $900,000 in damages to city trees. He has also challenged their failure to properly prepare for storms that left over 8,200 residents without power for up to a week.

- Anita Kutasz

66 Kevin is tremendously supportive of our schools and our children and we can always count on him regardless of what the issue or concern.

– Eileen and Brian Enos, Wollaston School PTO

66 Kevin has been a dedicated councilor for ten years and has done a terrific job because he really cares. He deserves our vote and we need to re-elect him as our Ward Three Councillor so he can continue to work for us. 99 – Past Ward 3 Councillor, Larry and Karen Chretien and Family

WARD THREE VETERANS AND SENIORS KNOW...

Kevin Works For Us!

66 Kevin has demonstrated the determination and persistence to take on neighborhood quality of life issues, his blight ordinance is a tool used by the city every day and his amendments to the zoning code protected our residential neighborhood and those throughout the city. ??

- Kay Borek and Jo Costello, Wollaston Garden Club

Quincy Veterans Council Supports Kevin

66Whether you are a deployed soldier or a veteran at home, Kevin works for those who serve our country.

- Henry "Hank" Bradley, Quincy Veterans Services Director (Ret.), Past National Vice Commander, American Legion, Veteran USAF

As a senior citizen it has been a great comfort to know I can count on Kevin. He's been there to help everytime I call him.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS

★ Kevin brought Ward Three 50 street repair projects totaling over $6 million dollars with more to come in the Spring of 2012.

★ Kevin secured action and approval of a comprehensive Capital Improvement Plan to address sewer, water and drain repairs, neighborhood flooding, and road work in Ward Three, and repairs to the Montclair, Wollaston, Bernazzani, and Lincoln-Hancock Schools as well as the new Central Middle School project which will receive 80% state funding.

FIGHTING FOR US

★ Kevin led the fight to compel National Grid to repair hundreds of gas leaks across our ward, leaks that pose risks, are killing our community's trees and have caused nearly $900,000 in documented damage.

★ Kevin authored a city council petition that has prompted a Mass.

Department of Public Utilities investigation of National Grid's failed performance in preparation and response to Tropical Storm Irene that impacted over 8,200 Quincy residents. He wrote pending legislation for the creation of a consumer compensation fund paid for by National Grid to reimburse residents for damages.

PROTECTING NEIGHBORHOODS

★ Kevin wrote the city's Foreclosed Property and Blight Ordinances to hold accountable those who diminish property conditions and quality of life in Ward Three neighborhoods and across the city.

★ Kevin advocated for and worked to ensure the first review and update of the city's zoning code since 1971 ensuring amendments that protect Ward Three neighborhoods and neighborhoods throughout the city.

JOBS AND TAXES

★ Kevin took actions and cast votes that secured the commitment of private business investment in our city, creating and sustaining hundreds of good jobs, stabilizing our commercial tax base to help offset the residential tax burden, including Lowes, BJ's, Boston Scientific, 25 Newport Ave and 100 Hancock Street and worked with the administration to bring to the table a $1.6 billion downtown private investment that will create jobs and provide beneficial impact for all taxpayers.

★ Kevin advocated for and supported cost effective environmental initiatives including tapping solar power for city buildings and a focus on increased recycling that is saving taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars.

VETERANS AND SENIORS

★ Kevin wrote and the Governor signed his Citizen Soldiers legislation to benefit our men and women serving our country. He adopted property tax deferrals, supported veterans housing and raised funds for the families of soldiers deployed in Iraq and Afghanistan.

★ Kevin increased the value and expanded the age accessibility for senior citizen tax exemptions, created senior safety zones around senior residential buildings and facilities, and was the first to introduce to Quincy the senior worker abatement program.

During my tenure on the City Council I have operated on one premise, I work for you. I ask for your Vote on Tuesday, November 8th.

Coughlin Our Ward 3 Councillor

READERS FORUM

Save The American Elm Tree On Hancock Street In Wollaston

We write with great concern for the survival of the American Elm tree that has stood next to the Winfield House on Hancock Street in Wollaston for over 100 years.

The Winfield House was razed in 1998, but the thenowners, Eastern Nazarene College, wisely left the ancient tree standing.

Members of the Wollaston Garden Club's Conservation Committee, who have been involved in local Arbor Day projects, has been researching "Century Tree" programs in other cities. Sometimes these trees that have stood for decades have been called "Witness Trees" because they have "witnessed" events, trends, and people in the history of a community.

In many communities the Winfield elm would be considered an important community resource and a "heritage" tree, because of certain unique characteristics: its size/diameter is significant; its species is rare in Quincy, since most of the other American elms of its time were diseased and destroyed during the 50's, 60's & 70's; its age is at least 100 years old, making it among a small group of "century" trees counted in our city; its well recognized for its location, as a landmark in the Wollaston neighborhood; and it serves significant ecological and aesthetic value to an area and a side of a street, not particularly 'green" or visually appealing. Recognizing the elm's significance and importance in our state's history and culture, in 1941 the General Court of Massachusetts designated the Elm tree (Ulmus American) as the state tree of Massachusetts.

The City of Quincy has decided to raze this tree to make way for a parking lot for the new Central Middle School. Both the city and the architect's arborists have declared that the tree is in "decline" - an interesting term most of us senior citizens could relate to. One would have to expect that most century-old trees are in decline. Again it appears that an environmental resource is being destroyed in the interest of "development"; instead of seriously considering ways to incorporate this environmental treasure into the new school

If it were allowed to survive, you can just imagine the lessons in science and social studies that this heritage tree could bring to the Central Middle School students and their teachers.

There has been fairly little vocal opposition to the razing of the tree. We are not sure most citizens, even its Wollaston neighbors, have really understood that the old elm tree's days are numbered. The garden club was contacted about the tree and asked to lend a voice in favor of its survival - we had to respond. We have posted a fact sheet on our web site with information we've collected. This landmark, witness, heritage, century tree has survived storms, elm disease, and hurricanes for over 100 years, but will it survive "development" in the City of Quincy.

We believe the real support for the tree has to come from the Central Middle School community - the students, teachers, families, and friends. Please contact members of the Quincy School Committee, the City Council, and the Mayor's Office and ask them to save the Winfield Elm.

Pat Artis, President of Wollaston Garden Club

Elaine McGrail, Conservation Committee member of the Wollaston Garden Club

Zumba Classes At Montclair School

The Montclair School Playground Committee invites the public to enjoy a night of fitness and dance Friday, Nov. 4 to raise funds for a new playground.

Zumba instructor MaryKate McKinnon will direct two sessions of Zumba classes, which combine both salsa and hip hop dancing moves to burn fat and calories. Zumba is a widely popular fitness class that uses high-energy dancing, strength training, and toning to blast calories while having a good time.

The first session will be held Friday from 6 to 6:45 p.m. Arrive at the school by 5:45 p.m. and enter through the gymnasium door to get checked in by 6 p.m.

The second session will be held from 7 to 7:45 p.m. with check in at 6:45.

The public is invited to attend one or both sessions.

Admission is $10 per person and 100 percent of the proceeds will benefit the Montclair School Playground Fund.

Children are welcome to attend, but must be accompanied by an adult.

Preserving the unique character of ALL of our neighborhoods

Brian McNamee is the ONLY candidate for Ward 6 Councillor who...

- Was able to stop a former sex club owner from operating a Burlesque "studio" on Billings Road, North Quincy. (That location is now a children's dance school.)
- Has held over 100 community meetings, including a recent meeting in Squantum regarding daytime house break-ins. His opponent (a life-long resident of Squantum) did NOT attend this meeting, nor any of the previous 100 community meetings held in Ward 6.
- Strongly opposed development/permits (such as "C-Mart" supermarket) that would increase traffic and negatively effect public safety.
- Successfully fought for police details during Neponset Bridge reconstruction to prevent gridlock.
- Authored and successfully fought for passage of the City's first comprehensive noise ordinance, and created a special noise district to control night clubs from disturbing residential neighbors.

- Closed an illegal day care facility in the former Boston Gear Works building (site of the proposed C-Mart), where children were locked in a room from the inside with overloaded power strips and malfunctioning fire detection equipment.
- Advocated for a $9 million health center in North Quincy which will offer affordable and convenient health care as well as jobs for area residents.
- Stopped Boston's Public Health Commission from using North Quincy "T" to pick-up and drop-off Long Island Shelter clients, thus protecting North Quincy High School students from exposure to individuals with unknown backgrounds.

Koch, Mahoney Debate School Decisions, Downtown

work is by hiring the best and most qualified people to manage the city of Quincy; and making sure we have the right number of qualified people to do the jobs we need to execute in the city of Quincy; and I am not connected in the city of Quincy, so it would not be a problem as far as my family members."

Koch said:

"The reality is, there is no new position at Public Works. We have had a commissioner for many, many years. We restructured our Public Works Department a bit. We have a commissioner who is outstanding, doing a terrific job (and) brings 30 years of government experience to the job. We have a superintendent in the department now, Larry Prendeville, who we brought from Modern Continental with his experience in road, bridge construction and pipe work; so we have a great 1-2 team in public works. I am quite pleased with the team we have at Public Works. In fact, the appointments I have made city-wide bring with them great talent and great backgrounds and qualifications.

The next subject was about what Koch believed was his most costly decision as Mayor and looking back what could have been done differently to mitigate that cost.

Koch said:

He regrets the things he did at City Hall when he first took office.

"Certainly, when I came into office and we did some work at City Hall, much of it was misconstrued and a lot of misinformation out there, so the timing of that was probably poor and that's something I would have changed." As for the financial side, he believes that the city has made tremendous strides.

"We have brought some fiscal discipline to the city as we go forward with a program we lay out exactly how we are going to pay for those things, what revenues will be used to do that."

"We have been very transparent and open on how the government works in this city."

Mahoney said:

The first thing Koch took care of when he took office was the renovation of his office

"He spent $18,000 on a rug and redecorating his office, that was the first thing Mayor Koch took care of when he took office was his office. Now we are looking at an $8 million renovation to the old city hall; maybe that should have been the first thing taken care of when he went into office."

Mahoney was asked to elaborate on her claim that the schools have suffered under the Koch administration.

Mahoney said:

The school system has suffered under the Koch administration, and since he took office there has been $9 million in cuts. "We lost key academic, curricular activities for our students." Mahoney also brought up the classroom sizes and cuts in libraries and media. "Twenty-one (students in a classroom) is not the reality of what our school system is; 38 (students) in a foreign language class at our high school - that's where we are at and that's where we are going right now. It's not the right way and its not the right way to invest in education."

Koch said:

"Actually $9 million was the increase the school department needed to sustain the programs and commitments they had made. We had to make some adjustments as every city in this country did, as every state in this country did."

He also mentioned that classroom sizes are at the lower end.

"We have always focused on the student achievement, that the child is the most important piece. Our class sizes are within range, we have a handful; I believe 8, in the 30 range, for the AP and honor classes, but every aspect of elementary, middle school, and those other classes in high school were within our school committee range."

Candidates addressed how a strict city hiring policy would work. Mahoney was also asked if she would pledge to not hire anyone related to her or anyone on her campaign.

Mahoney said:

She wouldn't pledge that anyone from her campaign would get a job in the city if she were mayor.

"I won't pledge that anyone from my campaign won't work, but I will pledge that you have to be qualified, and what we will do before we actually hire somebody we will create job descriptions." So if someone worked for her campaign and wanted to apply for a job but if they didn't meet the minimum qualifications, they would not get the job, Mahoney said.

She said she would look at other community's policies and create job descriptions for the people being hired.

"Qualifications come before friends and family, it has to, because we have to have the best and most qualified people working for the city of Quincy. The city of Quincy needs to have that separation."

Koch said:

The reality is that many of his family members have had city jobs long before he was elected mayor.

"I've never hired a member of my family on the city payroll. I come from a family that values public service."

He also mentioned that a lot of his family and friends that have a city job had taken a civil service exam and they are qualified for their positions.

The candidates were asked about their political campaign, going door to door, and if they are stopping at homes with their opponent's signs outside.

Koch said:

That he did stop and say hello to many homes with Anne Mahoney signs outside and that he talked to them about city issues and individual issues. He went on to add that he engaged with many citizens about meaningful issues, and that many said they were excited about the transformation of the downtown.

"I find it very, very helpful to me running the city, staying in touch with people going out into the neighborhoods seeing first hand what's going on in those neighborhoods, listening to people and then addressing some of those issues."

Mahoney said:

"I've actually enjoyed my time knocking on doors, probably one of the things I enjoy the most."

She also said she found that a lot of homes with Koch signs on display were not actually voting for Koch.

"I've been told that signs don't vote, because signs don't vote. There's nothing more rewarding to me than to go up to a door that has a Koch sign in it and they're telling me that their not voting for Mayor Koch."

Mahoney also mentioned that while talking with the people of Quincy she found that people were concerned and afraid of the risks that come with the downtown project.

Mayor Koch was asked what else is included in the revitalization of the downtown project. How is he going to revitalize the downtown?

Koch said:

"The downtown has been in decline for a number of years. The (Walter Hannon Parkway) road way is really the first visible sign of what's to come."

He went on to add that it will be mixed use development area, restaurants, entertainment, condos, apartments; there will be an education component, and a health and wellness component that will all be a part of the downtown plan.

"Tremendous mix of retail that the people of the city will thoroughly enjoy."

He said the taxpayers of the city won't pay a dime towards the program.

Mahoney said:

"The downtown revitalization is very exciting, but more importantly what the job as the chief executive is, is to manage the risk, and there is real risk. There is risk in any project, a $1.6 billion project has risk."

She went on to add that the downtown road is a connector from one part of the city to the other. She also said we have lost a lot of businesses downtown as well.

The candidates were asked if they approve of using the TIF (tax increment financing) for new developments?

Mahoney said:

"I do actually. I think if proper development is coming into the city, and it means we can work with the developers coming in, and it can benefit the taxpayers of the city of Quincy by bringing in new businesses that can potentially hire the citizens of Quincy."

"It's important to keep our businesses here in the city and keep generating the revenue of the city of Quincy."

Koch said:

"We have used that tool to sustain three businesses here in Quincy."

"We have used the T.I.F effectively, to sustain business and jobs in the city, and we will continue to use it selectively to do the same."

Ronus Properties announced it will be selling all of its US assets and dissolving, it has been in the past a key financial partner for Street-Works, the firm that is going to redevelop downtown Quincy. Does Ronus dissolving concern you in any way and what can the Mayor do to protect the city if any of Street-Works financing falls through as the project goes forward?

Koch said:

"Well, first of all, that decision doesn't concern me. It wasn't a case of something went bad, it was a case of somebody retiring, and moving on and making good on their investment."

"We built a program, a 65-page document with hundreds of pages of attachments, with our legal team. We wrote the agreement-not Street-Works - and Street-Works signed on. There is tremendous protections, it minimizes the risks to this city, and they have to meet a number of bench marks and prerequisites before we can even move forward to have all their financing in place, all their construction loans in place."

Mahoney said:

"Well that does concern me actually, because Ronus does own the Granite Trust Building along with Street-Works; so Street-Works' skin in the game get a little bit less when the financial backing backs out of the building that we actual partnered with Street-Works."

"My concern is that investors that pull out make you question whether or not more investors will come in."

The next question asked of the candidates was how would they help Quincy to capitalize on tourism?

Mahoney said:

"Tourism has been a discussion in the city of Quincy for quite some time, and it has missed every opportunity I think. We have to advertise the city of Quincy much better than we do."

She added that the city needs to go outside the city to advertise. She went on to say that it would be great if a commuter boat could be brought into Marina Bay.

"Currently right now when people come in to visit the city of Quincy they are commuting into the city of Quincy, they're coming in to see the Adams historic sites and their leaving the city. What we really need to do is capture them, keep them here, and offer them opportunities to be able to see the city and the great riches that we have in the city."

Koch said:

He hopes to bring tourism in with a bigger visitor center. He said right now there is a very limited, small visitors center. To make the experience for visitors better, it needs more space and more interactive programs.

"If we have a beautiful new visitor center that can accommodate programs, can accommodate a lot more folks and film and other things, that will be more of an attraction that will be able to pull all the sites together in a great way. As part of our program for downtown, there will be a brand new park service visitors center."

After questions to each candidate from the panel, there was an 11-minute open forum on two different subjects.

The first topic up for discussion was what risks the city faces with the $1.6 billion downtown project.

Mahoney said:

"We're being told there is no risk, it's the greatest thing since sliced bread, there is no risk."

The reality of it is, there is a lot of promises she said. She asked Koch how could he guarantee there is no risk?

Koch said:

"We put together a program that is going to become the model nationally, it's been called a game changer by The New York Times.

"The plan we put together minimizes the risk on the development, but puts the cost of all the infrastructure solely on the new taxes coming out of the development that's what makes it phenomenal."

Mahoney said:

"You said it's a game changer but what they actually said is if it works it will be a game changer, and if it doesn't the consequences will be significant. I would like you to actually execute the whole quote of the paper not just the 'game changer."

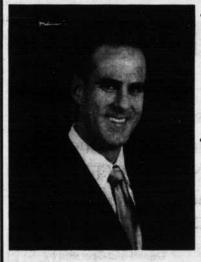

Mahoney went on to add that the plan that Quincy is modeling the downtown plan after, in West Hartford, they are selling because they aren't making the profit they planned on.

Koch said:

"The risk is minimal, what we have put together is a tremendous opportunity for the city of Quincy." He went on to say that the day they pass papers on the first phase, Street-Works writes a check for $30 million to take out the dif-debt, a check for $10 million for a community benefit fund a 1% on construction cost, this has been well thought out.

"Investors come and investors go, and retailers come and retailers go, we're building and we're laying the foundation for the next 25 to 50 years by the project here in Quincy."

The second subject asked: why were 230 pink slips handed out to teachers last year, and could the issues have been handled better?

Koch said:

The law requires the city to hand out pink slips if the budget and jobs are in jeopardy.

"Under state law, those teachers who don't have tenure when going into the springtime and doing the budget they need to be given notice if their job is in jeopardy. These young teachers are just starting out, so the law requires the community to issue the pink slips when there are budget issues and when there are jobs in jeop-

He went on to add that the budget is up 10% in the last few years, and they continue to achieve a decent class size and work with the teachers.

"At the end of the day, it's about the teachers working in the classroom with our youngsters to make sure that every child has that opportunity, every chance to succeed. And our job is to provide them with the tools to do that, provide them with the curriculum resources to do that. Unfortunately, the pink slip thing is a necessary thing, every city and town goes through it, but it does give that young teacher the opportunity to find another position should they not be called back. Most of them in that case were called back."

Mahoney said:

"Most of them were called back because I worked with the teachers to negotiate the deferral. The teachers were called back because we worked at the table. Mayor Koch was not working with us to bring them back. It was going to be a devastating $9 million cut, which would have been $11 million that was cut since Mayor Koch took office." Mahoney said the city of Quincy has a lot of students that are being taught, ELA students, special Ed students, 9,000 kids being taught.

"Level service versus level fund. We have to actually educate kids. We have mandates we have to actually make in the state."

Yes, 230 pink slips went out and if Mayor Koch had actually done his budget and was able to do it a little earlier, we may not have actually had to do that. We were forced into a wire where we were running until the end, when we finally got the budget numbers from Mayor Koch. It's unfortunate that we had to do it that way, but that is how it had to be done because of state law, to let people know that they were going to be let go. Then we had to work very hard to get them back once the teachers had deferred."

The two candidates ended their last debate with closing remarks in hopes to get residents of Quincy to go out and vote on Nov. 8th.

Mahoney said:

"I love this city, I was born, raised, and educated in this city, and I am raising my family in this city. I know Mayor Koch loves this city too, but sometimes when you love something you can only look at the good things and not the bad things. Mayor Koch doesn't see the things that he's doing. Hiring six-figure jobs for his political cronies is not good for the city of Quincy, having legal lawsuits and appeals not for good for the city of Quincy."

"The fact of the matter is, that we need to move the city ahead."

Koch said:

"This city is on the move. We've made tremendous progress in economic development of our city, creating thousands of jobs for the residents of the city, creating new opportunities in a very difficult time."

"I am proud of the work we have done, working with our city council, our school committee and our legislative delegation. Elections are about the future; we have built a tremendous foundation during this very difficult economic time, this city is on the move and I want to continue that momentum."

The debate was scheduled to be rebroadcast on Quincy Access TV Wednesday at 8 p.m. and today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. on Channel 8. Check QATV for other air times

Ayers Still Working To RestoreWard 3 Precinct 3 To District

Rep. Bruce Ayers has been fighting to continue to restore Ward 3 Precinct 3 into his First Norfolk County legislative district.

Over the last week, Ayers has met with House Counsel and the House Clerk to file Legislative Amendment #4 to House Bill 3770.

Ayers urges residents to contact Chairman Michael Moran of the House Redistricting Committee by either phone or email. His Contact information is (Michael. Moran@mahouse.gov) or 617-722-2460. This amendment if passed would restore Ward 3 Precinct 3 into Ayers' district.

Ayers has also met with Chairman Michael Moran to stress the importance of this change to the legislation.

"As a former city councillor and state representative, I strongly believe that this precinct (Ward 3 Precinct 3) should be returned and will be best represented by a Quincy legislator," Ayers said.

"Over the years, working with the residents in this precinct, you understand the history, needs and concerns of the area. It is better to have a uniformed district in the City of Quincy," Ayers added.

Hunting For A Prescription Drug Plan Is No Game

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

It's that time of year again.

"Open season" is here for the Medicare Part D prescription drug plan. Hunting down the best plan for you Medicare beneficiaries, and current beneficiaries who are considering changes to their Medicare Part D plan, should www.socialsecurity.gov mark their calendars.

is no game. Newly eligible Social Security Online Services

The "open season" runs now through Dec. 7.

The Medicare Part D prescription drug program is available to all Medicare beneficiaries to help with the costs of medications. Joining a Medicare prescription drug plan is voluntary, and participants pay an additional monthly premium for the coverage.

While all Medicare beneficiaries can participate in the prescription drug program, some people with limited income and resources also are eligible for "Extra Help" to pay for monthly premiums, annual deductibles, and prescription co-payments. The Extra Help is worth about $4,000 a year.

To figure out whether you are eligible for the Extra Help, Social Security needs to know your income and the value of any savings, investments, and real estate (other than the home you live in). To qualify, you must be receiving Medicare and have:

 Income not over $16,335 for an individual or $22,065 for a married couple living together. Even if your annual income is higher, you still may be able to get some help with monthly premiums, annual deductibles, and prescription co-payments. Some examples where your income may be higher include if you or your spouse:

-Support other family members who live with you;

-Have earnings from work; or

-Live in Alaska or Hawaii; and • Resources not over $12,640 for an individual or $25,260 for a married couple living together. Resources include such things as bank accounts, stocks, and bonds. We do not count your house or car as resources.

You can complete an easy-to-use online application for Extra Help at www.socialsecurity.gov. Go to the Medicare tab on the top of the page. Then go to "Apply For Extra Help With Medicare Prescription Plan Costs." To apply for the Extra Help by phone or have an application mailed to you, call Social Security at 1-800-772-1213 (TTY 1-800-325-0778) and ask for the Application for Extra Help with Medicare Prescription Drug Plan Costs (SSA-1020).

And if you would like more information about the Medicare Part D Prescription Drug Program itself, visit www. medicare.gov or call 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227; TTY 1-877-486-2048).

So this open season (now through Dec. 7), after you track down the perfect prescription drug plan for you, hunt for something that could put about $4,000 in your pocket bag the best Medicare prescription drug plan for you and see if you qualify for the Extra Help through Social Security.

Representative Ayers Visits Squantum Elementary School To Support Literacy

State Rep. Bruce Ayers recently visited Squantum Elementary School to deliver a new bike to 3rd grade student Ciara O'Connor as part of an annual literacy contest at the school.

Ciara was one of many students that participated in the 2nd year of the Race to Read Summer Reading Contest this past summer. Squantum students were asked to track the number of books they read over the summer months as part of the school's summer open library program. The books were then tallied at the start of the school year and Representative Ayers generously donated a bike as the top prize and incentive for students to read over the summer.

"We are so proud of Ciara and all the students that participated in this contest," said Principal Stephen Sylvia. "We are very fortunate to have Representative Ayers supporting this program and our school."

Failures In Faxon Fire

By LAURA GRIFFIN

In a report issued Tuesday, State Fire Marshal Stephen Coan blamed deficient draft-stopping in the attic and a lack of barriers at the balconies for allowing last July's multi-million dollar fire to spread and destroy an entire building with 24 apartments at 500 Falls Blvd.

State investigators found the building, one of seven in the Faxon Park complex, was not built according to approved plans and concluded that such discrepancies "allowed the fire and smoke to travel across the attic unimpeded."

Investigators also found "there was no solid firerated barrier under the vinyl soffits" and that likely allowed the fire to spread unimpeded.

While the sprinkler systems met the building code at the time, they "were not installed according to accepted standard," according to the investigators.

The official statement from Coan's office noted that "Quincy city officials wasted no time in taking steps to order corrective action on the remaining buildings prior to the completion of this investigation. The owners of the building have either completed the work or it is underway."

I am extremely concerned when so many units of housing are lost in a single fire, especially when the building (has a sprinkler system)," Coan said in his

While there were no casualties in the Faxon Park fire, that may have been a matter of timing, according to Coan who said, "...if this fire had happened in the middle of the night, we might not have been so fortunate to have no casualties."

According to the report, the Faxon Park complex was built just as the state was transitioning from requiring partial sprinkling to a more stringent code for sprinklers. The earlier code was designed as a warning property protection."

Since that time, the sprinkler code has been updated again to a 7th edition which now requires "sprinklers in the attics and on the balconies. Such a system is designed for both life safety (giving people adequate time to escape) and building protection."

While new buildings will likely be better protected due to tighter codes, Coan warned that older buildings should be examined, as he stated, "While we have taken steps to ensure these types of buildings are better protected from fire in the future, we need to make sure those already built are as safe as possible.

The fire started when a charcoal grill being used on a balcony ignited the wooden balcony and traveled into the attic of the building and spread unimpeded. No charges were filed and no charges are expected to be Over 130 cars came through the free Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) Medicine Drop-off Day at the DPW on Sea Street last Saturday.

Community members came to dispose of expired, unwanted prescription and over-the counter medicines (OTC) in a safe, environmentally friendly manner.

Over 200 pounds of substances were collected.

Volunteers from EDAN. the Impact Quincy Coalition, a program of Bay State Community Services and the Mayor's Substance Abuse Awareness Task Force joined the DEA and the Quincy Police and Public Works Department to conduct the event.

DEA representatives took the collected items to an undisclosed location to be burned.

We have been fortunate to host five extremely successful take back events. Our residents braved inclement weather to participate in this program, showing that taking the step to dispose of unused drugs is an important one for our community,' said Mayor Tom Koch.

The prescription drug drop-off event grew out of concerns by members of the Mayor's Substance Abuse Task Force that many of today's active drug users began their drug abuse by pilfering drugs at home or from family members. Studies show that children can begin a lifetime of addiction to drugs by simply opening the medicine cabinet at home. Drugs such as Oxy-Contin, oxycodone, hydrocodone, morphine, codeine, Percocet, Darvocet, Vicodin and Lortab have all been linked to opiate addiction.

This was the fifth time the event has been conducted in Quincy; it is now scheduled on the city calendar semiannually.

However, if any community member wants to dispose of prescription or OTC drugs between events, there is a MedReturn Kiosk located in the Quincy Police Station lobby which is available 24/7. Bring the substances anonymously (in their containers or emptied into a zip lock bag), open the mailbox-like slot, and drop the materials.

WARD 5 CITY COUNCIL CANDIDATE KIRSTEN HUGHES would like to thank family, friends and supporters for all their help and encouragement over these past 6 months. I could never have done this without you.

Please join Phil and I on Election Night at 7:00pm at the Common Market Cafe, 97 WILLARD STREET to celebrate the end of a terrific campaign.

Private Company Charging $59.50;
Cost Is $2 At Registry Of Deeds

O'Donnell Warns Homeowners Of 'Certified Deeds' Solicitation

Some Bay State homeowners are still being solicited to pay a private company $59.50 for "certified deeds" they could get directly from the Norfolk Registry of Deeds for just $2.

"It may be legal, but I still think it's outrageous," said William P. O'Donnell, Norfolk County's Register of Deeds, of a direct-mail solicitation Massachusetts homeowners receive.

In an official-looking letter that includes the homeowner's Norfolk Registry Book and Page deed citation, National Deed Service Inc. writes:

"The U.S. Government Federal Citizens Information Center website recommends that property owners should have an official or certified copy of their deed. If you don't already have this important document, you may obtain one now."

The letter offers homeowners one certified copy of their deed for $59.50, and then appears to offer a bargain by charging only $20.00 for a second certified copy. The firm's letters do disclose that many of these records "are available free or at a nominal cost from government agencies," and notes that it is not affiliated with any governmental agency. That doesn't sit well with O'Donnell, however.

"I just want to warn all the residents and businesses of Norfolk County that this practice preys on those who don't realize how easy and inexpensive it is to contact the Registry directly to obtain a certified copy of a deed or any recorded document," said O'Donnell.

"For just $2.00, our Customer Service staff will process your request and mail you out a certified copy of your deed."

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High Street, Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County.

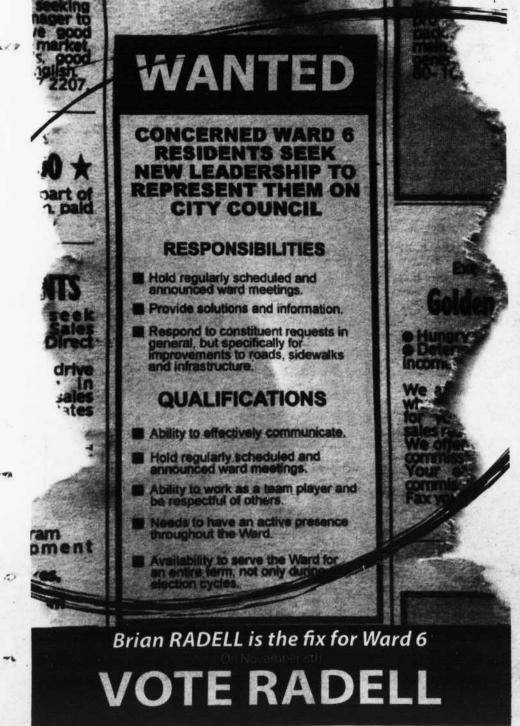

The Registry is the basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

The Registry land records date back to the founding of Norfolk County in 1793 and are available for online viewing.

The Registry's online index is available from 1900 forward and continues to expand to include earlier records. Complementing the Registry's efforts to expand and increase the accessibility of land records the Registry now accepts electronically transmitted documents. "E-filing" allows a real estate professional from not only Norfolk County but from across the country to send and record documents within minutes at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds.

To learn more about this technology and/or the other services offered by the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, contact our Customer Service Center at 781-461-6101, or email us at: registerodonnell@norfolkdeeds.org. The Registry of Deeds website is www.norfolkdeeds.org.

City Qualifies For $50M State Grant For Downtown

Thomas Koch. "I wish to thank Governor Patrick's administration for their work and our state delegation for their efforts, especially Majority Leader Mariano, whose commitment to seeing this to reality has been unmatched."

The Infrastructure Investment Incentive Program, known as I-Cubed, will be used to help pay for public projects that will be the foundation of $1.3 billion in private investment in Quincy Center, including rehabilitating Town Brook, an access bridge from Burgin Parkway to Cliveden Street, and a new civic space between City Hall and the Church of the Presidents.

The preliminary approval by the State means that the City and master developer Street-Works met a series of state revenue standards anticipated for when the project is finished. The City Council must sign off on the City's application, and the grant money from the state will be issued in increments as the project moves forward.

Mayor Koch said the approval means the City has met its benchmark for securing state and federal funding for portions of the overall plan, keeping on an anticipated schedule to begin infrastructure work next year.

The I-Cubed program requires that the new development generate enough new state tax revenue to cover the costs of the state bonds issued for the infrastructure. City and Street-Works officials said that even under its conservative findings, that state revenue would far exceed the financing costs.

The approval comes at a critical juncture for the plan's future, as Street-Works continues its work attracting new private investors and the public-private partnership moves forward on state and federal permitting

Most recently, Street-Works announced that National Realty & Development Corp. has agreed to develop 400,000 square feet of retail space as part of its Quincy Center plan. One of Street-Works' financial partners on previous projects, Ronus Properties, is selling all of its American assets. and Street-Works officials said that it was never anticipated that the firm would be a capital partner on its Quincy project.

Sheriff's Office Earns High Marks In National Audit

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti praised his staff for earning 100 percent and 99 percent compliance ratings in a recent three-day inspection by a team of national correctional facility auditors who will recommend that the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office should once again be accredited by the American Correctional Association (ACA).

"Residents of Norfolk County can be very proud of the men and women of the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office, whose professionalism and attention to detail earned them a 100 percent compliance rating on 56 mandatory standards checked by the ACA and a 99 percent rating among the 284 non-mandatory standards the auditors looked at," Sheriff Bellotti said.

At the end of the three-day inspection, audit team chairwoman Marilyn Heck, a retired deputy warden with the Florida Department of Correction, told Norfolk County Sheriff's Office staff: "You all should be commended for the quality of service you provide to your community and the quality of care you provide to the inmates."

Fellow auditor Lt. Amy Hoolan of the Pasco County (Fla.) Sheriff's Office added, "Your people are very well-educated, very welltrained."

The team's recommendation will be submitted to the ACA, which will officially confer the accreditation status at its annual meeting in January.

The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office is one of only 120 correctional agencies across the country to earn ACA accreditation. The NCSO first earned accreditation in 1994 and has been reaccredited every three years since then.

"We believe strongly in the accreditation process," Sheriff Bellotti said. "It is a rigorous examination of our policies and practices by highly-regarded and impartial corrections professionals. The public can look at it as confirmation that they are getting a quality return on their public safety investment."

Annual Mayor's Prayer Breakfast Nov. 16 At Tirrell Room

'Quincy Gives Thanks' Theme

Last year at this time, members of the Mayor's Prayer Breakfast Committee began to see their vision for the inaugural event to benefit Interfaith Social Services take its final form.

This year, the committee is beginning to ramp up its promotional and organizational efforts for the Second Annual Mayor's Prayer Breakfast to be held on November 16th at 7 a.m. at the Tirrell Room on Quarry Street.

"This was an exciting time for us last year, no question," said Rick Doane, executive director of Interfaith Social Services. "When the Mayor reached out to us with his idea for an interfaith prayer breakfast, I was all ears."

The concept for an interfaith prayer breakfast was born out of a meeting between Mayor Thomas P. Koch and Donald Sautter, a resident of 1000 Southern Artery and community activist.

Last year, the committee began work to plan the event in early June. The group included representatives from several houses of worship in Quincy and was chaired by Rev. Sheldon Bennett, pastor of the United First Parish Church.

The Prayer Breakfast Committee once again will seek to strike a balance in their program between prayer and music while highlighting the various faith traditions throughout Quincy. While the final lineup is undetermined, the chief theme that will be emphasized throughout is 'Quincy Gives Thanks.'

"Given the stark economic challenges that all cities and towns face, it is vital that we take time to step back and realize all of the blessings we do have. The Prayer Breakfast is a way for us to be reminded that God is with us through both good times and bad," added Mayor Koch.

Residents who are interested in purchasing tickets should contact Interfaith Social Services directly at 617-773-6203. Individual tickets cost $35, and tables of 10 are available for $300.

Anyone interested in attending but cannot afford the price of a ticket should contact Chris Cassani in the Mayor's Office at 617-376-1990.

Speakers Urge Officials To Fine National Grid $20M

"utter lack of responsibility" when he spoke Oct. 26 at the first of four public hearings scheduled by DPU officials investigating complaints against National Grid after the Aug. 28 storm.

"There seems little incentive at the corporate level to do better and the repeated deficiencies scream out for improvement," said City Council President Kevin Coughlin, Ward 3 who reported that 8,120 residents were without power on Day Three of the storm and National Grid had only four crews assigned to the city that day.

Coughlin also advocated "a substantial fine, borne not by the ratepayers, but (from) National Grid shareholders' profit..." as the international energy company serves "profits over people."

Both spoke at last week's hearing at Quincy High School, the first step in the state's investigation into National Grid's response to Tropical Storm Irene sought by Quincy's City Council.

Observers and speakers from Norwell, Cohasset and Lexington were among the approximately 30 persons at the session. That number included Sandra Callahan Merrick, Assistant Attorney General, Office of Ratepayer Advocacy, as well as a dozen National Grid employees accompanying Marcy Reed, President of the Northeast National Grid, a division of the London-based energy company.

Coughlin drafted the petition which charged that National Grid, despite sufficient warning, failed to prepare properly for the storm, failed to communicate, failed to coordinate with local officials as required by law and deployed "a grossly insufficient level of staffing" after the storm.

State Sen. John Keenan told Reed that the company should redirect its energy and do a "better job on infrastructure," stating that while such an investment would be costly, it would reduce the financial impact of restoration after storms.

Keenan wasn't alone in citing infrastructure problems as Lexington Town Meeting member Patrick Mehr, a native of France, said these episodes don't occur in Germany, Belgium or France where 75 percent of utility wiring is underground.

Mehr, along with several other speakers, blasted National Grid as a monopoly and he provided statistics indicating that the state's 41 municipal power companies operate more efficiently at a lower cost and install underground wiring at $600,000 a mile versus National Grid's cost of $3 million a mile.

As for the storm impact, Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest outlined the dangers facing her constituents on roadways, in their backyards and in their homes such as 1000 Southern Artery, a senior citizen facility where one building was without power for 30 hours.

Travel was dangerous along dozens of roads, according to Laforest who said cording to Laforest who said the right lane of Sea Street, the major access and egress of Houghs Neck, was closed as late as Tuesday because of a downed line that drivers had to avoid.

Laforest also described an alarming situation after the storm at the home of her daughter's young friend where a live wire lay unattended in a backyard. The youngsters were warned not to touch anything when their mother went to work.

Even more frustrating than those problems, according to Laforest, was the lack of communication from National Grid.

"I had more information than they did," said Laforest who detailed fruitless calls to the National Grid line for city officials and her findings in Ward 1 where police, fire and gas company workers were "baby-sitting" downed wires while waiting for National Grid crews.

While all witnesses faulted National Grid, the same speakers, like Laforest, repeatedly praised onsite workers for their hard work and long hours. "I am very grateful to the utility workers," she said.

Wollaston resident Anita Kutasz described her 15 years battling National Grid until they finally located a two-inch hole in her gas line and said she called the company five times during the storm because she needs a nebulizer (inhaler) to breathe.

"If there's no electricity and I need it, I stop breathing." said Kutasz. "It's very disheartening, the amount of stipend that people at the top are getting."

The first speaker was Northeast National Grid's top executive Reed who provided a detailed report on the company's preparation and response to Irene and pledged to improve the mutual aid system.

"We also will be looking at our 'wires down' practices and how we can continue to improve while utilizing National Grid personnel from departments outside of the electric line department."

Reed said Irene left over six million customers in 11 states on the East Coast without power and that reduced access to extra crews.

"This is why it was so difficult to obtain the number of outside crews we needed since many other utilities from Florida to Maine, need to keep their own crews in place to restore power locally," said Reed who located crews in Texas and Michigan

Reed also said that restoration could not begin until Monday because of wind conditions that would have endangered workers in bucket trucks.

As for communication problems, Read said, "The sheer number of 'wires down calls (over 12,000)' outstripped our ability to monitor them all at once...."

Reed pledged to improve the "restoration process" and speakers said they appreciated her presence but had many issues with her company.

"I will be the pebble in your shoe," said Palmucci, noting that he's been battling National Grid's overloaded and double poles since his election to the council two years ago.

Several speakers like Coughlin cited National Grid's monopoly in the state. "There is no real competition. National Grid is the only game in town," he said.

Mehr also focused on National Grid's monopoly and the state legislature's failure to address the issue.

"It is in the public interest if that monopoly is ended," said Mehr who blamed lobbyists on Beacon Hill for the stalemate. "They have managed to protect their permanent monopoly"

"We'd like a divorce from National Grid," said George Jamieson of Norwell who blamed "the corporate greed mentality" for Norwell's suffering as one of the hardest hit towns on the South Shore and the town where residents lost power for four to seven days.

"If you fine them the maximum, I don't think it will make much of a difference," said Jamieson.

All speakers were sworn in before providing testimony. After the hearings are concluded, DPU officials will move in the adjudicatory phase which includes hearings at their office in Boston where company officials and others will testify and be subject to cross-examination by the DPU and other parties including the attorney general.

Documents that are filed as part of the investigation will be available on the DPU's website and transcripts may be purchased.

The DPU will accept written testimony until Wednesday, Nov. 23 when mailed to Mark D. Marini, Secretary, Department of Public Utilities, One South station, 5th Floor, Boston, MA 02110 and send an e-mail attachment to dpu. efilig@state.ma.us and to Jennifer.M.Murphy@state.ma.us.

Condo Plan Likely To Win Bid For Convent Site

Local developers have signaled their interest in purchasing the St. Mary's Convent property in West Quincy for condominiums or apartments, according to Rev. David Callahan, pas-

"We have several developers, about four, who have made their offers," Fr. Callahan said Monday, adding that the plans are basically for a small-scale condo complex or apartments.

Fr. Callahan said that church officials are looking for a plan with a low impact on the area and said that neither a business nor office space would be considered, "We're not interested."

At this time, all proposals are being reviewed by a real estate committee of the Archdiocese of Boston, according to Fr. Callahan who said that committee must give formal approval to the plans.

"We're on their agenda," said Fr. Callahan.

Fr. Callahan said that no decisions have been made and neighbors and parishioners of St. Mary's Church will be given regular updates on any potential sale.

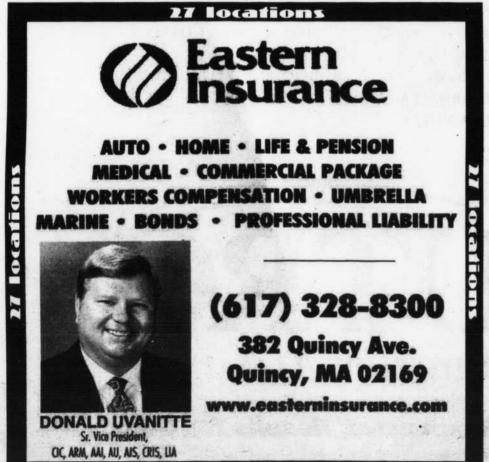

The property, just over one acre, includes the former yellow brick convent built in 1950 and lies adjacent to St. Mary's School building which has served as a parish center since the school closed in 2010.

Fr. Callahan said the school building is fully utilized for parish meetings and religious education classes and serving as a temporary site for use by the parishioners of St. Ann's Church Wollaston whose school property has been sold to the City of Quincy and will house the new Central Middle School.

"They're coming here for their middle school and high school (religious education). It's temporary," said Fr. Callahan.

The convent building and property currently appraised at $750,000 abut both a church cemetery and the city-owned historic Hall Cemetery.

Water Meter Replacement and Automated Meter Reading System Project

Information for Residents

The Quincy Department of Public Works is updating 24,000 water meters throughout the city. The project includes the replacement of both the water meters and external reading system. The completed project will greatly improve the reliability and accuracy of water meter reading operations and will increase the efficiency of the DPW. The city has contracted with Easton Winwater Services, who will be performing the installations. Easton WinWater Services will need access to each water customer's house or business for this work. Please be aware that Easton WinWater Services will contact customers directly via U.S. mail. Residents of Quincy are reminded not to respond to unsolicited phone calls or home visits. All personnel installing water meters are issued identification and will arrive in uniform and in marked vehicles. A link to names and pictures of each installer can be found on the DPW website. If you believe you have been contacted by someone other than Easton Winwater or the city, please call the Quincy Police Department at 617-479-1212.

The meter replacement work will begin in September in the North Quincy/Squantum area, and will progress throughout the city by water meter reading route over the course of a two-year period. There is a systematic implementation plan for this project and therefore customers are asked to not contact Easton Winwater Service or Public Works for their meter replacement until they have received a notification letter from Easton Winwater. For a current update on this program please visit the DPW website at http://www.quincyma.gov/Government/PWD/WaterMeterRepacement.cfm

Not only are golden topaz and citrine both considered to be the modern birthstones for November, the two yellow gemstones are often confused with one another. The fact remains, however, that topaz is the more valuable gemsto and consumers should not allow themselves to be misled by such confusing names as "topaz quartz" or "citrine topaz" to believe otherwise. A reputable jeweler can prove the authenticity of topaz. During the Middle Ages, small wine-yellow topaz was mined in the mountains of Germany. This so-called "Saxonian topaz" was considered to be quite rare up until discoveries of huge deposits in Brazil made this popular gemstone much more affordable. Today, topaz's beautiful yellow hue and

License Commissioners Meeting Minutes

Commissioners of the City of Quincy took the following action at its Oct. 11th meeting.

Chairman Joseph P. Shea presided at the meeting. Also present: Police Captain Alan Gillan, Inspectional Services Director James Duca, Health Commissioner Andrew Scheele, Fire Captain Joseph Jackson, Lt. Peter Turowski, Det. Leo Cop-

· Hearing regarding the request of Besim Myshgeri, d/b/a Elena's Café, One Batterymarch Park for 2 Oneday Beer & Wine Licenses: Nov. 8 and Dec. 7 from 5 to 7:30 p.m. Mr. Myshgeri, present, explained the corporate event is for NFPA employees only.

Commissioner Scheele explained a fee of $100 for each event will be charged as Elena's Café is not a nonprofit and he will charge for the Beer & Wine. Motion to grant the request made by Commissioner Scheele, second Director Duca. All in favor.

· Hearing regarding the request of Ellen Wilson, d/b/a Rock Island Food Company, 1189 Sea St., for a Common Victualer License. Ms. Wilson will serve coffee, tea, homemade doughnuts; fruits, yogurt and premade meals for take out only from 5 a.m. to 8 p.m., 7 days a week. With all inspections completed, Commissioner Scheele motioned to grant the request, second Director Duca. All in favor.

· Hearing regarding the request of Michele Grasso, d/b/a D&D Deli, 101 Liberty Street, for a Common Victualer License. Mr. Grasso, present. He will operate the deli and file for the Wine and Malt license later this year. With all inspections completed, Commissioner Scheele motioned to grant the request, second Director Duca. All in favor.

· Hearing regarding the request of Ms. Laurie Graff for a Gas and Common Victualer License at 507 Furnace Brook Parkway. Attorney Christopher Harrington, present with the applicant.

Attorney Harrington explained his client who operates a dance studio on Franklin Street is seeking the Gas and Common Victualer Licenses to protect the interest in the property.

Ms. Graff will apply to the Zoning Board of Appeals for a change of use to convert the site from a Gas Station to a Dance Studio. Today's request is to secure the licenses if not approved by the ZBA she will seek a tenant to operate as a gas station/convenience store.

Attorney Harrington supplied the Board with Assessors Plans from 1932, 1950 & 1957 and Zoning Ordinances which allow operating hours until 11 p.m.

Mr. Neil McCole, 79 West Elm Ave., president of the Ward 5 Neighborhood Association spoke for the neighbors stating there are concerns and would like to have meetings and be kept in the loop.

Chairman Shea read a letter from (Ward 5) Councillor (Doug) Gutro, Mr. Frank Mahoney and various communications from neighbors.

Ms. Graff noted she has obtained a building permit and has replaced windows and filled two dumpsters with outdated food. In addition, for the past two years her dance recitals have been at Eastern Nazarene Col-

Commissioner Scheele stated he does not think there is any question she needs to preserve the gas license but when and if she returns for the dance license he will be 100 percent for it.

Ms. Graff is planning a neighborhood meeting after her ZBA meeting; Attorney Harrington spoke with Councillor Gutro today - a meeting for Nov. 15 is planned.

Motion to grant the request for a Gas and Common Victualer License, from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m., Monday-Sunday, made by Commissioner Scheele, second Director Duca. All in favor.

The Board accepted and waived the reading of the minutes of the previous hearing of Sept. 27.

The meeting adjourned at

Sheriff Bellotti To Host U.S. Attorney Carmen Ortiz As Part Of Inmate Re-Entry Panel

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti announces U.S. Attorney Carmen Ortiz has accepted his invitation to speak at his monthly Repeat Offender Reentry Initiative panel today (Thursday).

The initiative is part of Sheriff Bellotti's effort to make repeat offenders at the Norfolk County Correctional Center aware that they may be prosecuted under habitual offender statutes which carry enhanced penalties if they reoffend after they finish serving their current jail terms. The initiative also notifies inmates about social service agencies that may help them find employment, housing, substance abuse counseling and health services to help them stay on a law-abiding path upon their release.

Sheriff Bellotti's program has been hailed as "a model for the entire state" by the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office.

"We are thrilled that U.S. Attorney Ortiz is making time in her hectic schedule to come to Dedham and address all of the people who participate in this important initiative," Sheriff Bellotti said. "The U.S. Attorney's Office has been a partner with us in the Repeat Offender Reentry program since 2006, when we began informing inmates about exactly what awaits them if they reoffend.

'Representatives from the U.S. Attorney's Office have been regular panelists, there to talk about the enhanced prosecution statutes that can come into effect if these men are arrested again. But we are especially honored to have the U.S.

Attorney herself attend our monthly inmate panel. I know she will leave quite an impression," Sheriff Bellotti added.

In addition to the U.S. Attorney's Office, Massachusetts Attorney General's Office, Norfolk County District Attorney's Office, Parole and Probation officials, Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission, Department of Employment and Training, the panels include representatives from social service agencies such as the North Cottage residential substance abuse treatment facility in Norton, the Framingham-based South Middlesex Opportunity Council (SMOC), and the Quincy-based South Shore Recovery Program.

"Virtually all of our inmates return to their communities - which are our communities - when they finish serving their sentences with us. It makes sense to increase public safety and reduce crime by trying to make sure these men become productive citizens," Sheriff Bellotti said.

Volunteers Sough To Help Food Pantry

Norfolk County RSVP Volunteer Program is seeking volunteers to assist in food pantry in the South Shore area of Norfolk Coun-

Volunteers help those in need living in the South Shore area by assisting customers and donors in food pantry. Various positions are available, from very light physical duty to heavy lifting, including answering phones and setting up appointments; administrative and data entry; preparation of food bags for distribution to clients; organize/sort/ stock donated food items; pick up food orders from local stores; loading and unloading of vans, freezers and shelves.

Volunteers are needed: Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Norfolk County RSVP is sponsored by the Norfolk County Commissioners and is affiliated with the Federal Corporation for National and Community Service, one of the nation's largest volunteer agencies. ## ON THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

Mahoney: Koch's Plan Would Rack Up A Half Billion In Debt

Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch has put so many large capital projects on Quincy's agenda that the city will amass more than half a billion dollars in debt if the mayor's plans are approved, mayoral candidate Anne Mahoney said in a campaign press release this week.

Mahoney, who has been critical of Koch's borrowing and spending, said a review of currently planned capital projects and Department of Revenue figures shows that if Koch's plans are approved, Quincy will amass a total debt of $508,814,948.40 - a staggering 553 percent increase over the city's indebtedness in 2008, when Quincy's debt was just $77,849,284.

"To put it in simple terms, Tom Koch hasn't just maxxed out Quincy's credit card – he's planning to max out 20 credit cards, and the taxpayers of Quincy are the ones who will be stuck with the bills," said Mahoney, who holds a degree in finance.

When divided by Quincy's population of 91,073 (the 2009 population estimate used by the Department of Revenue), the total indebtedness will come to $5,586.89 per Quincy resident – giving Quincy the highest debt per capita of any major city in the state of Massachusetts, or nearly twice as much debt per capita as Cambridge and nearly three times as much as Springfield.

"Tom Koch thinks he can just borrow, borrow, borrow today and worry about paying the bills later," Mahoney said. "That's never a good plan, but in this economy it's a recipe for financial disaster."

Even more astonishing, she said, is Koch's assertion that because the $289 million to be borrowed for the downtown development project is expected to be paid back with tax revenues from new businesses, it doesn't really count as debt.

"That's an absolutely ludicrous assertion – that's like a homeowner saying, 'I have a $500,000 mortgage on my house, but since I have a job to make the payments I don't really owe that money," Mahoney said. "The problem is, one day you might lose your job and you're still going to have to make payments on that mortgage."

The same is true of the downtown project, Mahoney said.

"From the beginning, Mayor Koch has grossly understated the very real financial risks involved in the downtown redevelopment," said Mahoney, noting that Street-Works' major financial backer recently announced plans to dissolve and sell all of its U.S. assets, which include Quincy's landmark Granite Trust building. "He's made all kinds of promises about thousands of jobs and millions in new tax revenue but if those projections fall short by even a little, Quincy taxpayers are going to be on the hook for all that debt."

Mahoney added that both Koch and Street-Works have pointed to Blue Back Square in West Hartford as an example of one of Street-Works' successful projects. The results tell a different story.

"Street-Works made the people of West Hartford the same promises of jobs, tax revenues and lower property taxes — but it hasn't gone exactly according to plan," Mahoney said. "To date, the Town of West Hartford's Blue Back Square fund has yet to generate the positive cash flow needed to cover its debt payments. Residential property taxes in West Hartford have increased, and Blue Back Square is also now up for sale."

If elected, Mahoney said she would assemble a new financial leadership team based on professional qualifications, not political connections. She also pledged to:

 Conduct a top-to-bottom financial review of the city's budget and planned borrowing to determine whether the city can afford to take on more debt

 Institute budget forecasting to better plan for Quincy's financial future

• Develop a comprehensive economic development plan for the entire city – not just the downtown – to recruit new businesses and generate more commercial tax revenue

 Institute more stringent oversight of the downtown to protect taxpayers' investment

• Eliminate unnecessary six-figure patronage jobs

 Stop wasting millions of dollars on unsuccessful lawsuits and legal appeals

•Eliminate unnecessary city positions – including reducing the staff in the mayor's office

"Quincy needs new leadership that is committed to fiscal responsibility," Mahoney said. "With my background in finance and 25 years of private-sector business experience, I believe I have the skills to turn our city around financially before it's too late."

And Bregoli, McCarthy, Perry For School Seats

Quincy Education Association Recommends Koch For Mayor

For their leadership, commitment to education, and understanding of the issues critical to its members, the Quincy Education Association recommends Tom Koch for re-election as Mayor and Paul Bregoli, Dave McCarthy, and Linda Perry for School Committee.

The announcement was made by Allison Cox, president of the Quincy Education Association. The QEA represents nearly 900 members, including all Quincy Public Schools Pre-K-12 teachers, nurses, specialists, assistant principals as well as Quincy College faculty and professional staff.

Candidates were given an opportunity to provide written answers to questions prior to being interviewed by the QEA Candidate Recommendation Committee. Candidates were asked their views on key local, state, and national education issues. After deliberation, the committee forwarded its list of recommended candidates to the QEA Executive Board for final approval.

Here's the text of the OEA recommendation:

"For four years Mayor Koch and the QEA have worked together, building a collegial relationship and achieving productive compromises. The QEA looks forward to continuing this relationship of mutual respect and understanding.

"It is clear that Mayor Koch has made education a priority for Quincy families and teachers, avoiding drastic budget cuts during challenging economic times, overseeing the construction of the new Quincy High School, and initiating the building of a new Central Middle School.

"Paul Bregoli is a retired educator who has dedicated his professional life to the enrichment of the lives of Quincy's kids. Mr. Bregoli will serve a vital role on the school committee, using his real-world experience and knowledge as a teacher to bridge the world of education and the world of city politics.

"In a time of transition for the Quincy School Committee, with two experienced veterans choosing not to return to their seats. Dave McCarthy's eight years of experience and his detailed knowledge of the workings of the Quincy Public School system will be important elements to keep on the School Committee. QEA appreciates Mr. McCarthy's dedication and principled commitment to the Quincy Public Schools.

"Having spent years as a foster parent to kids from throughout the city of Quincy, Linda Perry has a deep familiarity with a great number of Quincy's schools, which is rare in a non-incumbent candidate. Her involvement, depth of knowledge on issues, and her educational background make her an ideal choice for inclusion on school committee."

Cain Proposes Term-Limits For Quincy Public Officials

Ward 3 City Council Candidate John Cain has proposed term-limits be set for all publicly elected officials in Quincy.

Cain said he believes that term-limits will open up the opportunity for others to come forward, who wouldn't necessarily consider running, based on the current trend of elections.

Cain said he encourages diversity in the election process.

"Too much cronyism creates waste," said Cain. "If we limit the terms, 'fresh blood' will keep the election process vital. Unknowns can become viable candidates, based on good plans and presentations to the community."

Cain said he believes the mayoral seat should be limited to a maximum of two terms, but should be extended to a four-year cycle.

"It really takes about a year to evaluate the existing configuration and another year to implement the new mayor's plan. The mayor's performance can be evaluated in the third and fourth year.

"This process," Cain said, "would provide voters with realistic assessments of the current mayor's performance."

Cain said he also proposes a three-term limit for ward councillors and councillors at-large. He said he believes School Committee should be limited to a maximum of two terms.

Cain also said he believes all board membership openings should be publicly announced, giving all Quincy residents an opportunity to apply. Appointments should preclude sponsors, he said.

The appointments should be limited to a maximum of two terms, Cain added.

Pot Luck Supper Nov. 12 At Community United Methodist

On Saturday, Nov. 12, Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold a pot luck supper with a Thanksgiving theme.

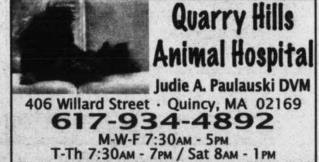

Everyone is welcome. Those attending are asked to bring an appetizer, main course, salad, or dessert to share.

Following the pot luck supper, all those who wish to do so are invited to participate in the creation of a "Thanksgiving Tree."

Rev. Dr. Susan Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the church, said, "Everyone will have an opportunity to take as many leaves as they wish, and to write whatever they are thankful for on them. The leaves will be attached to the tree, and, when it's completed, the tree will be moved upstairs to the Sanctuary where it will become part of the altar decorations.

Real Estate

A Report From The Register Of Deeds

Sales Activity Up, Average Price Down

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell has issued a report on real estate activity in Norfolk County for the first quarter of the fiscal year ending Sept. 30. The first quarter was marked by an upswing in sales activity with little mobility seen in terms of average sale prices.

First quarter sales volume reached 1.3 billion this year, a 13% increase from 2010's first quarter. Integral to this increase is the number of land transfers that took place in Norfolk County from July through the end of September. During this timeframe 3,762 deeds were recorded, an 8% increase from last year.

There were 2,332 deeds recorded that reflected greater than nominal consideration. This total translates to a 16% increase from last year's total. Despite these positive signs of real estate activity the average sale price of deeds over $1,000 (both residential and commercial properties) peaked at $564,445, not quite level with last year's average of $582,055.

Mortgage activity for the first quarter revealed signs of slowing down from last year's flurry which was precipitated by historically low interest rates. There were 8,272 new Norfolk County mortgages during this year's first quarter, down 23% from last year's figures. Total mortgage value stood at $3.3 million compared to 2010's $4 million.

"It is important to note that this total mortgage value amount does not necessarily represent the true increase in indebtedness as some mortgages may be recorded multiple times against different parcels of land, are refinances simply replacing existing debt, or are recorded to secure equity credit lines which may not be drawn to their capacity," O'Donnell said.

Best Way to Treat COPD? Quit Smoking

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My mother is in her early 70s. She has been diagnosed with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, COPD. She had a bronchoscopic exam to remove a mucus plug. She was a very heavy smoker. She still smokes. She thinks her kids don't know, but we have seen the evidence. She is on oxygen. Her doctor thinks she has quit. What does this do to her life expectancy? How long can she live this way? -J.S.

ANSWER: Chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, COPD, is two illnesses: emphysema and chronic bronchitis. Emphysema is a harmful stretching and destruction of the millions of air sacs found in the lungs. Through those delicate structures, oxygen reaches the blood. When they are damaged, a person cannot get enough oxygen and becomes breathless on even slight exertion. Chronic bronchitis is inflammation of the air passageways, the bronchi. They fill with thick, pus-filled globs of phlegm. Air cannot pass through them. A cough that produces of sticky, tenacious sputum is its chief sign.

Cigarette smoking is the major cause of COPD, but not the only one.

It's hard to watch people ruin their own bodies and hasten death. That's what your mother is doing. Tell her that the most important treatment for COPD is total abstinence from smoking. Abstinence allows lungs to recover from the damage done from inhaling cigarette smoke. It doesn't achieve a complete reversal overnight. It does prolong life.

What does this do to her life expectancy? It shortens it. How long can she live? That can't be foretold. Unequivocally, she will live longer and enjoy her life more if she never lights up

ANSWER: A drop in barometric pressure along with an increase in humidity has been demonstrated to cause a flare of arthritis. It's the exact set of conditions that happen prior to ANSWER: That's not a current rumor. It's a piece of misinformation that has been circulating since microwave ovens appeared on the market.

It's not true. Microwaving preserves vitamins and minerals better than almost any other method of cooking. Foods lose some of their nutritional value when they are boiled in lots of water; the water draws out some vitamins. Little water is used in microwave cooking.

FOLLOWING A LOGICAL PROGRESSION

Chiropractic treatment typically follows three general steps of treatment and recovery. During the initial acute stage, chiropractors direct their attention toward eliminating the source of pain, after which the corrective phase of treatment begins. This rebuilding effort is directed at adjusting spinal distortions so that the vertebrae can regain normal function. At this point, degenerative processes are either halted or reversed, and points of nerve interference are manipulated in an effort to prevent future pain. When this corrective effort is conducted to the limit of the body's ability to respond, the patient begins to sustain the healthful gains attained through the earlier phases of treatment. State Soccer Playoffs To Start On Saturday

A Decade Later: Presidents Are Back In The State Tournament

By SEAN BRENNAN Mission accomplished.

The Quincy High School boy's soccer team has done it. The Presidents, following an undefeated 3-0 record last week, have qualified for the state tournament for the first time in a decade.

Not two weeks ago, Quincy (8-5-5) was sitting at 2-5-5 overall. But momentum building wins over Pembroke and Middleboro preceded an emotionally-charged 2-0 victory against North Quincy two Saturdays ago, which placed the Presidents five points from postseason qualification with five games remaining on the schedule.

With a historic achievement in sight, Quincy, last week, reeled off three consecutive victories over Randolph (5-0), Middleboro (3-2), and Bridgewater-Raynham (4-1) - this win over the Trojans sealed the deal - to become the first Quincy boy's team to advance into the state playoffs since the 2001 season.

And the best news for the program and the bad news for potential playoff opponents is that the Presidents are only getting better as the regular season winds down. (Quincy closed out the fall with non-league games against Randolph and Plymouth South this week.) Having gone 6-0 since Oct. 18, Quincy is peaking at the right time.

"It feels real good," said Head Coach Mark Spendlove on Monday about his team's postseason clinching performance. "I am very, very pleased for the seniors who have gone through the grim times recently. But it is a great time for all of the players."

"Since the start of the season they have been working hard to grasp the system that I wanted them to play and it has shown," Spendlove continued. "There has also been a little bit of belief that we could get it done. These kids are very hard-working and they deserve this and hopefully we can continue to push through."

Playing in the ultra-competitive Patriot League, Quincy battled to a respectable 4-5-4 league record, which in a broader view means that the Presidents have garnered twelve points in thirteen Patriot League games. In non-league games, Quincy, not including this week's games, has gone 4-0-1 for a possible nine points out of ten.

"Look at out league record," Spendlove noted. "We finished 4-5-4 but that very easily could have been seven wins because we tied Hanover twice. Credit to the team."

Saturday's 4-1 victory over Bridgewater-Raynham was impressive. Instead of playing it safe – a tie would have been enough – Quincy came out firing and played a "tremendous" game versus the Trojans according to Spendlove. The post-game celebration was deserving for a team that in years past has been an after-thought when it came to the MIAA playoffs.

With destiny in their own hands, the Presidents exploded for five goals against Randolph on Oct. 26. Caique Reginaldo (two goals), Cain Moriarty, Bjorn Armiri and Kevin Paterno provided the offensive fireworks and goal-keeper Kevin Mullin played like a stonewall. Mullin posted his third consecutive in the win.

On Oct. 27, Quincy battled Middleboro for the full 80 minutes. Early goals from Felix Nampanya and Moriarty had the Presidents deadlocked at 2-2 with ten minutes remaining in regulation and when Reginaldo scored Volleyball Tournament Pairings Announced Wed.

NQ, Quincy Gearing Up For State Title Runs

By SEAN BRENNAN For the girl's high school volleyball programs in Quincy, the most wonderful time of the year begins next week when the 2011 Division 1 Central-East state tournament begins.

Based on the performances of both teams the last two seasons, the MIAA tournament committee could just as well call it the "Quincy-North Quincy Invitational."

Back in 2009, the Presidents won the Central-East sectional crown to advance into the state semifinals. Last year, the Red Raiders claimed the sectional title with a exhilarating 3-2-match win over Quincy to punch their ticket to the state semifinal round. Neither team had enough left in the tank to bring home a state title, but both programs came close.

North Quincy (18-2 overall, 15-1 in Patriot League) has been one of the best teams in Eastern Massachusetts since the start. Head Coach Kerry Ginty's seniorladen team has only gotten better as the season has progressed. Behind the stellar play of seniors Lizzie Kelly, Elizabeth Forde, Meghan Leahy, Elizabeth Sullivan, Kara Reardon, Olivia Umoren, Michelle Cole, Emma Ainsley and Rachel Chu, the Red Raiders won the Patriot League championship and had positioned themselves to big one of the top seeds in Central-East when tournament pairings were announced on Wednesday.

The Red Raiders also have a trio of underclassmen in junior Rose Bennett and sophomores Carolyn Schwartz and Maya Umoren who have produced at a high level on the court this season.

"It has been all about showing up and trying to get better and better than in the match before," said Ginty about her team's performance this fall. "This year as opposed to others, I have an experienced team that has played in big matches. Our goal is always to make the state final. Last year we won the sectionals and made it to the state semifinals, we are hoping to get back again."

Ginty recognized her team for their great regular season and heaped praise on her senior class.

'We had a great season and it was because we had a group of kids looking to improve every day," she said. "My seniors are as good as it gets. They have brought that senior leadership to every practice and match and because they are so experienced they have been able to manage their emotions. It has been enjoyable for me because the seniors have all taken on an active role and I have been able to kind of sit back and watch."

And, so far for Ginty, it has been worth the price of admission.

At Quincy High, the Presidents have been equally as good. Quincy (17-3 overall) jumped out to a quick start, but things really didn't begin to jell until midway through the schedule. Now the Presidents dents are red-hot.

Head Coach Jacqui Niosi has seen her team of seniors and underclassmen come together at the right time and the results are in the pudding. Quincy, which ended its regular season against Canton earlier this week, roared back to hand North Quincy its Ione Patriot League loss last week, 3-2. It was a big win for two reasons. First, it gave confidence to her team that they were as good as the Red Raiders - something that could come into play if the two teams happen to meet again in the sectional finals - and secondly, it may have helped bring her team closer together for the stretch run.

"We have had a tough schedule to end the season," Niosi said, "but the girls are getting better as a team and they are excited about how they have been playing. You can see that our defense is better and they now have a better idea of how to play together on the court."

"This is a great group of kids and we have been playing at a competitive, high level," added Niosi.

Quincy will be leaning on the tournament experience of seniors Donna Niosi, Kiley McDonald, Erin Chiocchio, Caity Lowry, Nicole Parry and Sam Albanese when the playoffs start next week.

"The seniors have been doing a nice job of helping the underclassmen stay focused," Niosi said about her senior core. "The seniors are always trying to get better and that has helped the entire team improve themselves. When you have seniors who aren't satisfied, the rest of the team takes notice."

Juniors Laura Donahue, Devin McMahan, Alysha Dunbar and Michelle Connolly as well as freshman Emma Kelly will be asked to shoulder some of the load come tournament time.

Despite finishing their seasons with superb records, both Ginty and Niosi are taking nothing for granted when it comes to tournament success. North Quincy and Quincy have been the teams to beat the last two years, but the expected 2011 Central-East field is loaded with dangerous teams according to the coaches.

"I haven't looked yet at the projected field, but there are so many good teams in Central-East," said Niosi. "We need to make sure that we are focused on the match at hand."

"Lots of good teams," added Ginty. "You have programs like Brookline, Newton North, Boston Latin, Cambridge Ridge & Latin and Quincy to contend with. It is not going to be easy to get back to the semifinals this year."

The MIAA was set to release the Division 1 Central-East tournament pairings on Wednesday. Visit www. miaa.net to find out when North Quincy and Quincy will play next week.

Quincy Rallied Back to Beat North Last week, the Presidents rallied back from a 2-1 deficit to defeat the Red Raiders, 3-2 (14-25, 25-18, 21-25, 25-21, 15-11), at QHS.

Quincy received huge performances from Nicole Parry (14 assists, 14 digs), Caity Lowry (12 digs, three blocks, seven kills), Laura Donahue, Emma Kelly (14 digs), Donna Niosi (14 assists, ten digs), and Sam Albanese (three aces) in the The 3-2-match win helped to take the sting out of an early-season 3-1 loss to the Red Raiders.

Quincy and North Quincy could meet again this fall. If this were to happen, it would most likely be in the Central-East finals, which would be a rematch of last year dramatic sectional final won by the Red Raiders, 3-2.

QYFL Championship Game Sunday 2:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium

Mustangs, Elks To Play For QYFL Championship

The top two regular season teams will play for the 2011 Quincy Youth Football Championship on Sunday at a 2:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Milton Mustangs (7-1) defeated the North Quincy Apaches, 32-6, over the weekend in a semifinal game to punch their ticket while the West Quincy Elks (7-1) earned their spot in the finals with a dominating 33-0 victory over the Squantum Storm in the other semifinal game.

QYFL'S Championship Weekend gets underway on Saturday, Nov. 5 with a Freshman Jamboree starting at 9 a.m. at the Stadium and continues on Sunday, Nov.
6 with a Jayvee Jamboree beginning at noon followed by the QYFL Championship

Game at 2:30 p.m.

The following are the playoff results from the Oct. 30:

Mustangs v. Apaches (semifinal game)

The Milton Mustangs earned their spot in the QYFL Championship game with a convincing 32-6 win over the North Quincy Apaches on a cold and wet night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The duel rushing attack of Akeem Smith and Stephen Timmins got great blocking from a solid offensive line, which ended up being too much for the Apaches' defense to contain as Milton busted out for two first quarter touchdowns.

The one highlight of the night for North Quincy was an exciting kickoff return for a touchdown by Tysean Moore that cut the lead to 13-6. But, that momentum was short-lived as the Mustangs countered Moore's kickoff return with one of their own to keep North Quincy two scores down at halftime: 20-6.

In the second half, costly turnovers hurt North Quincy's chances of mounting a comeback and Milton went on to claim the 32-6 win.

North Quincy Head Coach Tom Burke and Defensive Coordinator Sean Halpin praised North Quincy captain Mike McNelley, who again led his team on the field with great play on both offense and defense. Moore, Aiden Brown, Tom Whooley, John Le, Allen Lee, Seamus Broughton, Paul Bankowski, Colin Maloney, Dan Colarusso and Jimmy Bille played well for the Apaches.

Elks v. Storm (semifinal game)

The Squantum Storm weathered the rain, wind and cold but could not stop the stampede of Elks' running backs Doug Santos, Joe Weinstein and John Teixera, losing 33-0 in miserable conditions at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

After putting up a stout defensive effort on the first two West Quincy possessions, the valiant Storm defenders lost containment on the outside runs by the Elks and it was all downhill for the Storm from that point forward.

The Storm 2011 Myers Division championship team included the following eighth-grade boys, who played their last game for the Strom on Sunday. Patrick Bronske, Connor Cramond, Mac Deegan, Jeremy Downey, Jake Grady, Nick Kelly, Joel Lawless, Declan Mayo, Kevin Mock, Patrick O'Brien and Troy Shepherd were all congratulated for their hard work, dedication and courage and wished well in all their future endeavors by the coaches and fans.

Manets v. Panthers (consolation game)

In a rain-swept consolation game, the Houghs Neck Manets beat the Quincy Point Panthers, 26-0. The Manets struck early and often on a stormy night to end their season on a high note.

Mike Nazzaro scored on a 30-yard TD run on the opening drive and Conor Pound added the conversion. On the ensuing kickoff, Pat Brambrick recovered an onside kick to keep the ball out of the Panthers' hands and a few plays later, Cody Desmond ran on the right end for a touchdown that put Houghs Neck in control.

After a strong defensive stop, the Manets' scoring continued on a 45-yard Joe Boddie TD run – Ryan Tucker provided the conversion on a run to give the Manets a 20-0 halftime lead. In the second half, the lone score was a 60-yard touchdown pass from Boddie to Desmond.

Sean Curran-Cross provided the muscle at middle linebacker for Houghs Neck.

Cross-Country Teams Shined At Recent Meet

The Quincy-North Quincy cross-country teams performed well in their final regular season meet at Hanover.

Rule #1: Don't get Q/ NQ's top runners mad.

After losing to Duxbury by having the top three runners get lost on Duxbury's course, Quincy's top female runners came back with vengeance at Hanover with a 1-2-3 finish and included five of the top-6 finishers en route to an 18-41 win over the Indians.

Emily Bryson went wireto-wire for the win followed by Danielle Mullaney and Julia Bryson. Marguerite Belcher, Mary Zheng and Faith Whooley were also among the top-7 finishers.

In the boy's race it was a close 26-30 loss but Mike Mullaney and Brendan Cunningham finished 1-2. Aidan McMorrow was fourth overall but Hanover put three more finishers just behind him to clinch the victory.

At the Patriot League Championship Meet on Oct. 28, Head Coach Geoff Hennessy put the team in the hands of capable assistants Jim Hogan and Lauren Brooks as he directed the Quincy Middle School Meet held the same day.

The 3.1-mile Middleboro High School course had a challenging hill that had to be covered twice, but according to Hogan, "It was their finest hour. Every kid dug in and worked the hill." The girl's team finished fourth overall, just points away from Hingham and Pembroke; teams that edged them during the regular season. Whitman-Hanson ran away with the title (24 points) by placing six runners in the top-ten.

Room Completed With The Help Of Countless Volunteers And Donations

Steven V. Barrett Media Room Dedicated At QYA

By SEAN BRENNAN

The late Steven V. Barrett loved hockey and, he loved Quincy.

He learned the game from the dedicated volunteers and coaches of Quincy Youth Hockey and later displayed his skills on the ice at the Quincy Youth Arena as a member of the Quincy Presidents hockey team.

Barrett may never have been the best player on the ice, but he always made sure to represent what was good about the game and always conducted himself in a way that would make his teammates and coaches proud.

That was the type of person Steven Barrett was. And even in death, his love for Quincy Youth Hockey and love of community lives on in more ways than he could have ever imagined.

On Sunday morning, Barrett's family along members of the Quincy Youth Hockey family came together at the Quincy Youth Arena to honor Steven with the dedication of the Steven V. Barrett Media Room.

It was an idea that was over a year in the making.

Matt Gibbons, President of QYH, along with the QYH Board had the vision of turning an empty room on the second floor of the Quincy Youth Arena into classroom space. Their vision was for something minimal, just a room where the youth and high school players of the city could meet with their coaches before and after a practice or a game. But that wasn't good enough for the Quincy Youth Hockey family. Word spread about what was happening and volunteers stepped up to transform a blank space into something wonderful.

"It was about a little over the television."

"The last missing piece was a computer and we talked a year ago that we brought up the idea of putting together a classroom and we said we would put up a couple of walls and get a cheap TV and we would have the high school teams and youth teams use it," said Gibbons before Sunday's dedication. "It kept getting delayed, but then people stepped up. This room was all done by volunteers and through donations. Volunteers built and painted the walls and Paul's TV donated to Chris (Steven's father) and CHRIS BARRETT, Steven Barrett's father, thanks everyone who was involved in the construction of the new Steven V. Barrett Media Room at the Quincy Youth Arena at Sunday morning's dedication ceremony.

he put the cherry on top of sundae," Gibbons continued. "We didn't just want to call it the Quincy Youth Hockey Media Room. So when we wanted to put a name to it, Steven's name was the only name I thought to put on it.

"Every kid who walks in here will see that name and we will be able to educate them on who he is. To be honest, I never thought we would be here talking about it. The last year the Quincy Youth Hockey family and the Barrett family stepped up. It was 100% a community effort."

After Barrett's tragic death in 1999 at the age of 22, his family established the Steven V. Barrett Memorial Fund. Over the last 12 years, the fund has raised money for a number of community causes including scholarships and donations to Quincy Youth Hockey. So, when Gibbons approached the Barrett family about helping to complete the media room there wasn't any hesitation to help out in anyway that they could.

"From our point of view when Matt came to us, I said this is perfect (naming the room after Steven) because he was a good hockey player but he wasn't a superstar," his father Chris Barrett said. "But you know what, Steven learned from the coaches in Quincy Youth Hockey about how to play the game the right way. He learned how to conduct himself on the ice and all of that was taught by the volunteers and coaches of Quincy Youth Hockey; that is how he played his game and some of that needs to be taught off the ice."

"We as a family, we do as much as we can for Quincy Youth Hockey and this is just another piece of the puzzle that keeps Steven's legacy alive and it helps the kids," Barrett added. "It is all about the Quincy Youth players. Here they learn to play the game and to be a sportsman on and off the ice at the same time. We are so pleased that they are going to name this room after my son because it is going to be a well used room. We want to thank everyone involved."

For Steven Barrett's sisters, Christine Barrett and Nancy Ceriani, the dedication of the Steven V. Barrett Media Room was bittersweet and, despite the fact that their late brother would have found all of this attention embarrassing, they couldn't be more proud.

"Steven went through Quincy Youth Hockey and then to high school hockey," said Christine, "so I think he might be a little embarrassed but we know that we are proud as a family to have a media room here at Quincy Youth Arena named in his honor. I think the goal of his memorial fund is to give back to the city of Quincy and to different things that Steven was involved in so that others could benefit from it."

"We have tried to raise money each year and donate things whether it be to the school system, to Quincy Youth Hockey or to individual families in need because that was type of kid Steven was," Christine continued. "He was always trying to help someone and (for QYH) to keep his memory alive by (naming the Media Room after him) is an honor to our family."

The new media room is state-of-the-art. It includes a 60" inch high-definition television and Mac computer, both which will be used to review game film by players of all ages. The number of kids who will benefit from the volunteerism of the Quincy Youth Hockey community and the Barrett family will be in the hundreds and that is exactly the type of community outreach that Steven Barrett would have loved. That was the type of person he was.

"He would be embarrassed and yet I think he would be a very proud person to have Quincy Youth Hockey name this room after him," his father said. "It is a great morning for us and for Quincy Youth Hockey. We are a team and that is what this is all about as far as we are concerned."

At a place that helped shaped the man he became later in life, Steven's lasting legacy now lives on at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The Steven V. Barrett Media Room is open for business - just in time for the start hockey season in Quincy.

A Job Well Done

On Thursday, October 20, 2011, at approximately 4:45 P.M., Officer Timothy Simmons was at the Quincy Police sub-station when he observed a female known to him from past crimes, enter a jewelry store on Hancock Street. She was with a male.

The female was involved in an incident concerning a stolen cell phone two days prior and Officer Simmons wanted to question her, so he entered the store and was joined shortly thereafter by Community Policing Officers Roger White and Matt Miller. At this time, the Officers shared their knowledge of the two suspects, that they were both known drug users that sometimes use needles to inject themselves.

Officer Simmons approached the suspects at the store counter as they were preparing to pawn an antique pocket watch and two gold chains with charms. After a brief discussion, the female said that she had an outstanding warrant for her arrest, so she was handcuffed and given her Miranda Rights. Officer White attempted to confirm the warrant as Officer Simmons asked the female about the stolen cell phone. The female admitted that she had used a phone that was not hers to call her mother a few days prior but did not know the person who let her use it. Officer Simmons asked her where the phone was but she would not respond.

When asked, the male suspect said that the jewelry on the counter belonged to his mother. Both suspects were asked if they had any weapons or needles on them. The male said he did not and emptied his pockets on the counter. The female stated that she had needles in her large, over the shoulder purse, then said that the Officer could remove them. As Officer Miller cautiously removed the needles from her purse, Officer Simmons looked inside the purse and observed a small orange pill that was consistent with being a Suboxone tablet. The female confessed that she did not have a prescription for the tablet.

The officers then spotted a large amount of jewelry, coins and three cell phones in her purse along with other items. The male volunteered that the jewelry was the female's and that she made the jewelry as a hobby. The Officers looked at each other with disbelief due to the high end quality of the precious metals. Officer Simmons asked the female if the cell phone in the purse was the one that was stolen two days earlier and she said no, but would not say who the phone did belong to. Officer White told the female the good news -that she did not have a warrant on her, but that she was under arrest for possession of the Suboxone without a prescription. The female suspect was transported to the police station for booking. The male was sent on his way.

Once at the station, the female suspect's property was inventoried. Officer Simmons turned on the cell phone and dialed the "HOME" contact and a female answered. She said that she didn't know either suspect and didn't know how they got a cell phone with her contacts, since she had her phone with her. The victim said she would come to the station to help solve the situation, however, moments later, the victim called Officer Simmons to report that she just noticed her house had been broken into and her bedroom ransacked with multiple items missing.

The victim and her husband, from Hingham, arrived at the Quincy Police station and identified all of the jewelry, coins and the cell phone that were in the female's bag as what was stolen from their house. The cell phone in question was an old one that she never used. The victim said that no one was home from 6:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. After considering the male suspect's comments on the jewelry that the female suspect made it, Officer Simmons suspected that they both knew that the jewelry was stolen and were trying to pawn it for drug money.

Officer Michael Kelly was dispatched to the male suspect's address in North Quincy and was placed under arrest. The female, a 26 year old Hingham resident, was charged with "Possession Class E Drug and Receiving Stolen Property Over $250.00. The male suspect, a 28 year old Quincy resident, was charged with "Receiving Stolen Property Over $250.00." (They couldn't be charged with breaking and entering since that could not be established at the time.)

Officer Simmons contacted the Hingham Police Department, who responded to the crime scene to collect evidence for the court case. At approximately 9:00 P.M., Officer Simmons spoke with the female suspect's mother, who confirmed that her daughter and the male suspect were at her Hingham home from 11:45 A.M. to noon waiting for her (the daughter/suspects) disability check. The mother said that she kicked them out at noon because she does not like the boyfriend. The mother added that at approximately 1:30 P.M., she saw them again at the intersection of Fottler and Beale Streets in Hingham, in the area and in the time frame that the break could have occurred. The investigation is continuing in hopes of putting the two suspects inside the victim's home. Nice Work!

DON McCARTHY

Election Day is a day of decision Each registered voter has the opportunity and the duty to go to the polls and vote. Yet, many do not. They ask: "What good is my vote. The politicians will do as they want. Does my vote mean anything?" Of course it does. . Just think what would happen if these same people were denied the right to vote?

Jignit

A THOUGHT

FOR THE WEEK

During the preceding months the candidates for public office have discussed many issues, offering solutions and making promises. We have had the opportunity to listen to each of them, read their literature, their newspaper advertising and in some cases hear them debate issues on the public platform.

We let our ideas be known at the voting booth. A vote speaks for each citizen. It helps us control government. We lose part of our control each time we do not vote. We risk showing our preference for loss of freedom by not making the effort; we can help protect our freedoms by making the effort.

It may take approximately five minutes to cast a vote - but its result could affect our lifetime . . . Isn't it worth it?

Coping With Loss Workshop

The Kennedy Center will host a six-week workshop on "Coping with Loss through the Holidays" on Mondays from 1 to 2:30 p.m. beginning Monday, Nov. 14.

The holiday sason can be extremely stressful for those who have lost a loved on in death, whether a partner, parent, child, friend or co-worker. Some may find themselves dreading the holidays and feeling unsure or overwhelmed by how they're going to "get through" them this year.

The public is invited to join others in a supportive, confidential setting to share stories of loss, coping strategies and hope in the journey toward greater healing and wholeness.

Pre-registration is required. To sign up, call Diane Christopherson at 857-294-0052.

Anne Mahoney loves the City of Quincy

She was born here, raised here, started a business here and has raised her family here. Anne has tremendous pride in our city — but that doesn't mean there aren't problems that need to be addressed. That's why Anne is running for mayor. Drawing on her degree in finance and 25 years of business experience, Anne will conduct a top-to-bottom review of city finances, eliminate waste and make public safety and education top priorities. She'll address Quincy's drugs, crime and homelessness problems. And she'll make every decision based on the best interests of ALL of us.

On Tuesday November 8th, help make Anne's vision of a better Quincy a reality. Vote Mahoney for Mayor!

As we approach Election Day, and the campaign season comes to a close, I write today for two important reasons.

First, I want to thank the many residents who took time to share with me their thoughts on the issues. As your Mayor, I see every day how much so many of you care about our city, its direction, and its future. The reminder that my work - our work - is undertaken on behalf of so many caring people energizes me more than you can imagine. While my opponent has chosen not to talk about her can imagine. While my opponent has chosen not to talk about her own vision for Quincy, instead engaging in attacks that are all too typical in today's politics, I have focused my campaign on our city's future.

Make no mistake, this great City stands at the precipice of historic opportunity, and it is only by continuing to work together that we will be able to capture that opportunity and continue to meet our challenges head-on.

This leads to my second reason for writing. Please remember that next Tuesday, November 8th, it is very important that you and your family members take the time to go to the polls and vote. We are moving Quincy in the right direction, and I respectfully ask for your vote so we can continue our work together.

Thank you for the great privilege of serving as Mayor,

"My goals during my term in office are:

In the next term, we will continue working together to secure this great City's future. Unlike so many cities and towns, Quincy is today positioned for a future of unlimited potential, whether it is economic development, long-term financial stability, or the protection and enhancement of critical public services such as education and public safety.

We are a city on the move; a city's that is meeting its challenges head-on; and a city that is earning a national reputation as a model for economic development and job creation. We are poised for the future, but we must continue to work hard and work together to meet our challenges and capitalize on our opportunities. We cannot take a step backward.

We navigated the worst economic crisis in a more than a generation and maintained financial stability to a level allowing us one of the best credit ratings in Massachusetts. We did this by bringing people together, rolling up our sleeves, and finding real solutions to our challenges. We sat with our City workers, who agreed to the largest overhaul of health insurance in the state and also agreed to wage freezes. While these issues have given rise to protests and bitter fighting across the country, we have set ourselves apart by working together.

These measures have saved tens of millions of dollars and protected hundreds of teachers, police officers and firefighters. Coupled with millions of dollars of targeted spending cuts, we bucked the statewide trend of skyrocketing property taxes by not raising property taxes for two straight years, which is virtually unmatched by bany community in Massachusetts.

commitment to core public services our residents expect and deserve, including a 10 percent increase in education funding during our administration and the addition of police and firefighters in this year's budget.

While we may be through the worst of this crisis, we are by no means out of the woods. We must continue to look for savings and efficiencies as we go forward, efficiencies similar to our first-of-its-kind regional trash collection program, which has saved millions of dollars and dramatically increased the citywide recycling

Our future depends much on economic development, and we have what has quite frankly become the envy of the Commonwealth with our $1.6 billion plan to redevelop Quincy Center. Our plan represents a new model for urban development and job creation – 18,000 of them to be exact – because our development agreement requires that the financial risk be carried by our development partner, not our taxpayers.

The project must pay for itself, or it does not get built. It is that simple. The plan calls for about $300 million in public improvements, including new roads, sidewalks, and utilities downtown. As part of the agreement, our development partners pay these public costs, which will be paid back only when the new development is generating enough revenue to pay back those costs. The agreement requires that the City must always be cash-flow positive, and existing City revenue will never be used to pay for any part of the project.

We are making daily progress on this vital plan for our future, and we must continue to move forward full steam ahead. This plan has the support of our City Council, our state delegation, the Governor, and our leaders on Capitol Hill on Washington and our working families. Simply, we cannot afford to stop this plan from moving forward.

We are making vital investments in flood-relief, seawalls, schools, and roads in our Capital Improvement Plan. In many of the neighborhoods where these projects are targeted, residents have already waited far too long for relief. The time to act is now, and we are going to continue to move forward in the months ahead. Again, we cannot afford to take a step backward.

With a clear eye on fiscal responsibility, we have been able to identify outside sources of revenue for more than half of these projects. This will allow us to affordably finance these critical projects without a major effect on our City budget. In fact, we will able to maintain a level of debt that is the lowest of any of the 10 largest cities in Massachusetts.

Our plans for a new Central Middle School will be carried through in the next two years with the same focus on taxpayer savings. The new school will be the first "model" middle school built in Massachusetts, which will allow us to have 80 percent of the construction costs reimbursed by our partners in the state government. That is the highest reimbursement of any school project in Massachusetts.

My friends, our great City is moving forward today because we are working together, and I respectfully ask for your vote on November 8 to continue the work we have started.

"My goals during my term in office

My goals during my term in office will be to restore fiscal responsibility, public safety and education to top priorities while professionalizing city government by eliminating patronage, cronyism and nepotism.

The Problem: City Finances

In the past four years, residents of Quincy have experienced the largest tax increase in the city's history. The city has also borrowed more money than ever while downplaying the very real risks associated with the downtown redevelopment.

Quincy needs to improve its fiscal management. In recent years, the city has had a revolving door of finance directors – including one appointee who lacked the stated qualifications for the position. City budgets have been riddled with errors and short on details, making it difficult to ascertain the massive amounts of debt the city is taking on.

The city also has not been forthright with residents about the true state of our municipal finances. Contrary to reports that Quincy has the lowest level of debt per capita of any major city in the state, Quincy will soon have the highest level of debt per capita!

Thanks to the city's out-of-control borrowing, Quincy will owe more than half a billion dollars in debt! That works out to $5,586.89 for every man, woman and child in our city, giving Quincy the highest debt per capita of any major city in the state.

The Solution

Drawing on my degree in finance, I'll implement more stringent fiscal oversight of the downtown project and the tremendous debt with which our city is currently saddled. I'll assemble a financial leadership team based on qualifications — not connections. We'll conduct a top-to-bottom review of the city budget, eliminating waste and inefficiencies. We'll also implement budget forecasting to properly plan for Quincy's financial future.

The Problem: Public Safety

In the past four years, Quincy's drugs and crime problems have grown significantly. One need only pick up a newspaper to see daily headlines about muggings, stabbings, home break-ins and other crimes happening across our city. At the same time, the downtown area continues to be plagued with a serious homelessness issue.

The Solution

ANNE MAHONEY

If Quincy is to successfully remake our downtown, we must first address the crime there and also relocate some of the social services such as soup kitchens and drug programs that attract this population to Quincy Center. I will work with law enforcement to identify crime hotspots and step up patrols to deter street crimes. Working with local social service organizations, we will find ways to relocate those services out of the downtown area to an accessible location that will help those in need without negatively impacting Quincy Center. And we will work with our state legislators to advocate for more drug treatment programs, which will help reduce crime fueled by addicts stealing to support their habit.

The Problem: Education

In the past four years, the city's allocation to the Quincy Public Schools decreased by $9 million, resulting in the loss of 160 teachers and staff as well as key academic programs and extracurricular activities. Sadly, we are now seeing the results of these cuts: Boston magazine recently ranked the Quincy schools 108th out of 135 area school districts, and SAT scores have gone down.

The Solution

As a member and vice chair of the School Committee, I fought successfully for free, full-day kindergarten, put literacy specialists in the classroom, helped oversee construction of the new Quincy High School and got the Central Middle School project back on track. As mayor, I'll work to restore the funding cut from the schools by eliminating waste and inefficiencies in our city budget and by recruiting new businesses to Quincy to generate new commercial tax revenues.

The Problem: Patronage and Crony-

In recent years, Quincy government has become riddled with patronage and cronyism. After the city laid off hundreds of city workers, well-connected individuals have been given unnecessary six-figure jobs for which they lacked the proper qualifications. It's an insult to taxpayers and it has to stop.

The Solution

As mayor, I will implement new hiring policies that prohibit nepotism and cronyism. We'll eliminate unnecessary patronage jobs and publicly post all available city positions so everyone has an opportunity to apply. And we'll hire only the most qualified applicants.

· Above all, as your mayor I will make every decision based on the best interests of all Quincy residents, not the well-connected few. I believe in a better Quincy – and I respectfully ask for you vote for mayor on November 8 so that together, we can make that vision a reality.

"My goals during my term in office are:

It has been a great honor to serve the citizens of Quincy as their Councillor at-Large for the past ten years. I hope I have shown in that time my commitment to the process, my willingness to wrestle with complexity, to ask tough questions, and above all else, to listen to anyone regardless of their opinion or political affiliation. I have a great deal of respect for the opinion of the people of Quincy and have regularly sought their opinion in my deliberation on the important issues of the day. My goals during my term in office are to:

Continue to serve the citizens and voters of Quincy in an open and collegial manner at the City Council to ensure the common good of all of Quincy.

Focus first and foremost on issues of fiscal concern to ensure that the City Council is a true check and balance on the Mayor while working to implement the objectives of the annual budget without jeopardizing the long-term fiscal health of the city.

Apply greater cost benefit and outcomes analysis within city departments as part of the annual budget process in order to justify budget line items and expenditures.

Explore the possibilities of further consolidations of city functions to reduce cost without impacting service.

Stand with the working families of Quincy and advocate for living wages, affordable health care, and safety in the work place.

Advocate that all development in Quincy focus on prioritizing jobs for Quincy's working families.

Ensure that any plan for economic recovery is not built upon the backs of those who can least afford it, particularly seniors living on fixed incomes or working families hit by unemployment.

Continue to oversee the Downtown Development Plan for Quincy and make certain that the Land Disposition Agreement is implemented according to the intent of the City and protects the working families and taxpayers of Quincy.

Remain focused on the sustainable development of the entire City of Quincy to ensure that a planned approach is brought to any future development within Quincy.

Continue to form the Affordable Housing Trust as an effective and powerful tool to create homeowner opportunities and affordable rentals for Quincy families desiring to remain, live and work in Quincy.

Oversee our Public Works to ensure rational planning and use of modern technology for repairing streets, sidewalks and other important infrastructure within the City of Quincy.

And finally, be available as much as possible to any Quincy person or family in need or concerned about their life in Ouincy.

These are my goals. Any set of goals requires commitment in making them a reality. I believe I have demonstrated this in the past and I hope I have your confidence and your vote. Thank you very much.

"My goals during my term in office are the same as they have been since I was originally involved in public office. To continue to make Quincy a great place to live, to work and to raise a family.

Quincy has been my home for many years and I must try to continue to improve the quality of our education system, our public infrastructure, public safety and park, recreation and library opportunities for our residents living within the constraints of a balanced budget.

As the amount of federal and state assistance continues to decline I will continue to work with the Mayor and the administration to seek alternate funding sources. The City of Quincy is fortunate to have partners in our state and federal delegations who understand the importance of our vital city programs. I will continue to work with all of them to keep and improve our quality of life.

Good public schools in the City of Quincy help our property values. Support for education both as part of the operating budget and capital budget is very important. My goal for this term in office is to see Central Middle School completed and the work on Sterling Middle School to begin. The current Central site needs to be sold and put back on the tax roles. I would also like to see the old Quincy High School demolished to complete the project.

Development in the downtown and the start of construction of retail, residential and commercial space is also a goal for the next two years in office. This is the largest undertaking the City has ever taken and it will need continued oversight. Assisting Quincy College's move to a new permanent downtown home would also be a goal. The authorization by the City Council of the lease for up to 100,000 square feet of space downtown is bringing this toward reality.

The shipyard, Crown Colony and Quarry Hills are also areas that should produce new growth tax dollars for the City of Quincy. As a tax goal I would like to relieve the residential taxpayer while expanding the commercial and industrial base.

The reorganization of the public works department is serving the residents of Quincy well. One of my goals for this term in office is to continue to expand the street and sidewalk resurfacing program. We also must continue to put pressure on the utility companies to work with us to avoid unnecessary digging and tree trimming on our public roadways. The preparation for storm events must be coordinated better with the utility companies.

Opening the Thomas Crane Public Library on Sunday and expanding hours of operation on Friday and Saturday is also a goal of mine for this term in office. The taxpayers of the City of Quincy are paying for a state of the art library and it is not open when they are available. Maybe we need some creative scheduling to allow the main branch to open on Sunday.

Public parks and recreation programs go far at a minimal cost to promote the quality of life in the city. One of my goals is continue to find way to fund these important programs and outdoor spaces.

These are ambitious goals and the residents of the City of Quincy deserve no less. Quincy is my home as well as yours and it is imperative that I if elected to continue to make it a better place to live, to work and to raise our families.

"My goals during my term in office are:

Under Quincy's form of government, I believe a Councillor at-Large has a greater responsibility to ask the tough questions, promote transparency, push for innovation, and equitable service delivery, and be a check and balance on the executive branch, regardless of who is elected Mayor.

As Councillor at-Large, I have three primary goals during my term in office; including strong City Council oversight and public participation of our $1.6 billion Quincy Center development project; improving communication and service delivery on neighborhood issues; and comprehensive and sustained scrutiny on all financial matters.

The $1.6 billion Quincy Center redevelopment project is among the largest on the east coast, if not the nation. In 2010, the City Council hired its own outside attorney to scrutinize the Land Disposition Agreement, which is the centerpiece of this multi-faceted project. Moving forward I believe, the City Council as our legislative branch, has an obligation to ensure strong oversight, accountability, and transparency on all aspects of this historic redevelopment effort. That is why I've called for quarterly televised meetings by the City Council throughout the development project to ensure that the master developer, any sub-developers, and the City of Quincy remain on track to fulfill their respective obligations as laid out in the agreement.

Through my experience as a ward councilor, I see and understand the consequences of issues on a neighborhood-by-neighborhood, street-by-street, home-by-home, and family-by-family basis. As Councillor at-Large, I intend to work closely with ward councillors to gain a better understanding of neighborhood needs throughout our city, ensure service delivery is equitable, and communication with residents is valued. The broken window syndrome can apply to many neighborhood concerns such as speeding, blight, code enforcement, crime, or the condition of our local parks, playgrounds, beaches, or seawalls. I intend to look at these and other issues with fresh eyes and a city-wide perspective, and introduce initiatives to help preserve the character and quality of life in all Quincy neighborhoods.

Like many municipalities across the country, Quincy has seen reduced state aid, tapped its rainy day account, and endured impacts in public safety, public works, and education.

As Councillor at-Large, I'll closely monitor spending, overall city debt, and our bond rating. I support a strong audit function on major capital projects and on all aspects of the city budget. I'll explore and advance ideas for efficiencies in purchasing or service delivery recognizing that while our residents value and deserve essential city services, we must manage these needs in a sustainable manner that improves service delivery and doesn't subject residents or businesses to wild swings in annual tax bills.

Throughout my professional life, I have worked with cities and towns across New England and have learned from some of the best municipal minds in the region. I have the perspective to view our city from 10,000 feet, and believe we can learn from other communities. I have the neighborhood know-how to get things done. I'm the only at-Large Council candidate to have served as president of my neighborhood association and as ward councillor. For the past 15 years, I have worked hard to be reliable, responsive, and get results for the neighborhood I represent.

Finally, I've demonstrated a willingness to speak out and lead, having served as President of the City Council, and Chairman of the City Council's Downtown and Economic Development, Veterans, and Ordinance Committees.

On November 8th, I respectfully ask for one of your three votes for Councillor at-Large.

"My goals during my term in office are:

I will be the new independent voice for the residential homeowners of Quincy.

It's time to make a change. We need responsible spending and leadership.

The taxpayers of Quincy can not afford to be the city's ATM machine.

We have to stop the borrowing.

We must be more concerned with the residential taxpayers and less for the commercial developers.

I want to make sure The Downtown Redevelopment Project does not cost the taxpayers one penny, as promised by this administration. I want full and total disclosure of all itemized spending, salaries and contracts.

I want all newly hired Quincy City

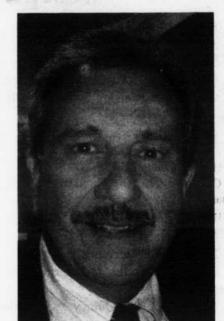

Employees to reside in Quincy.

New job positions should be open to the public and based on qualifications.

All senior residential homeowners should be given a 10% Real Estate Tax abatement.

JOHN RODOPHELE, SR.

I want our hard earned taxpayers dollars to be spent on Education, Police and Fire.

We should be updating the old infrastructure in all residential neighborhoods.

I will give my full support to the elderly and veterans of this city.

I have been a homeowner and taxpayer for the past 45 years and I can fully understand the taxpayers concerns during these difficult times.

I am a citizen, not a politician and very concerned with the future direction of this great city.

If elected as Councillor at-Large, it would be a privilege to represent you.

I will devote full-time to the Councillor at-Large position and will be available to discuss all of your concerns. The City Council seats are not owned by the Councillors. They are owned by you, the voters of Quincy.

Please, vote for John Rodophele,Sr. -Councillor at-Large.

"My goals during my term in office are:

My goals during my term in office will be the same vision I have had since 2004, to be fiscally responsible, continue to make class size a priority, focus on policy issues in Quincy Public Schools, and to continue to be involved and proactive during my time on the School Committee.

Let me touch somewhat on the first subject: The Budget. The budget that any school system receives must be carefully reviewed, discussed and executed correctly to get the most out of the bottom line that the school department receives. The last few years the school budget in Quincy has taken its fair share of budget cuts.

The School Committee and the Supt's leadership team were put in a position that no one wants to be in. Make the appropriate tough cuts and keep the school system operating at its usual excellent level. The committee through meticulous deliberations, discussions and debates were able to determine a feasible path for Quincy.

The budget was cut 9.16 million dollars over the last budget cycle, a huge reduction for any city or town.

Through many meetings the school system was able to bring a 9 million dollar deficit down to 4.4 million as we added back personnel and expenses in 5 phases:

1. Teacher deferrals, 2. Increased Fees, 3. unemployment reimbursements, 4. reconciliation of positions and 5. additional funding.

The 8 years of public sector budget experience has helped me understand municipal finance both at the city and state level. "It is crucial that a school committee fully understand the municipal finance system and its changes every fiscal year.

In order to fund a level service budget last fiscal year we would have needed an appropriation from the City of $91,582,682 (an increase in funding from 2009 of $10,499,120).

The appropriation was $82,413,157 (an increase $1,329,595) resulting in a shortfall of $9,169,525. The original SLT proposed budget had 201.4 positions removed to address the shortfall.

During the budget process we added back personnel and expenses in the 5 phases I spoke about that reduced the shortfall:

Teacher Deferral: $2,325,032
Additional Funding: $500,000
Increased Fees and budget shifts: $785,000

Unemployment Reimbursement:

$ 500,000

Reconciliation of Positions: $ 340,412

Total: $4,450,444

DAVID F. McCARTHY

Those changes brought back 82.8 positions and reduced the shortfall to $4,719,081.

Again budget experience, understanding the system and 8 years of budgetary exposure has improved my municipal understanding of the system.

Secondly, class size has to be at the forefront every year. Our children need the smallest class size we can get to. Over the last several years class size has been the cornerstone of a successful Quincy School System. We all must realize that teachers in the classroom are the most key element for success. Class size is still pretty good but in years past it was exceptional, especially in a city of our size. Whatever administration is in office in Quincy must make this its number one priority. We have had a few tough years financially but I hope we can always work together on this subject as it dictates the future of our kids education.

Thirdly, I like to mention another goal that is ever changing in Quincy Public Schools, School Policy.

The foundation and basic commitments of a school system are the backbone of what you utilize as your policy that determines how your school system operates. "The policy classification system is a repository for statements related to the district's legal role in providing public education and the underlying principles on which the district operates."

Quincy's policy subcommittee reviews many old and new policies that are mandated by Massachusetts General Law and created by the Quincy School system/Quincy School Committee. All policies should be continuously reviewed and updated as we move forward. The outgoing Policy chairman of the committee has done a tremendous job keeping Quincy's policies updated and accurate.

I have worked on many policy subcommittees and have a tremendous amount of experience being involved with these decisions that impact our kids. It's a very important component of the system. I look forward to keeping Quincy policy and procedures straight and to the point addressing any concerns that folks might have.

Lastly, I will continue as I have for the last 8 years getting involved, as a father of 8 children getting involved is never a problem. The City of Quincy's school system is very large, 19 schools, almost 9,000 children, a task that one must be up to in order to succeed. I would never let myself not be involved. The school system is too important to overlook. The school system is the backbone of any city. This school system must be continuously upgraded, corrected when needed and most of all funded. When you move into a neighborhood you ask two simple questions: How's the neighborhood, how's the school system? That should be enough for everyone to understand how important this system of the city is now and in the future."

"My goals during my term in office are:

My goal during my first term in office will reflect the needs of children, parents and teachers in the Quincy Public Schools.

My goals will all be student-centered in nature. I do not and will not have a political agenda. After listening to the concerns of many parents during the campaign, my first goal will be to elevate academic standards in the schools. Currently, a passing grade at the high school in an academic subject is 63 while a student athlete needs to only acquire what translates to a 1.0 GPA (grade point average) to be eligible to participate in sports.

Both standards are clearly too low and must be elevated. Middle school students who fail two terms can pass for the year if they earn a "C" in the third term. While this reduces the failure rate, it sends the wrong message to students. I would also propose we require community service as a graduation requirement. In Milton and Weymouth, their students must perform 140 and 40 hours, respectively, of community service. Additionally, I would propose we require students take four years of math and science instead of the three years they are now allowed to take.

Another issue I would address would be the non-resident students who are attending a school in Quincy. It costs ap proximately $9,600 to educate one student in our school system. This is putting an unnecessary burden on our taxpayers as well as contributing to overcrowding in some of our schools. Our two attendance officers do an excellent job despite the enormous tasks they are asked to perform. I propose we implement another means of indentifying those non-resident students. This past year in Methuen, their school system identified 80 non-resident students by requiring all parents produce proof of residency each August. As it currently stands in Quincy, parents are required to produce proof of residency only at the initial registration of their child. It is conceivable they could use a false address once and then slide by undetected. But, as the Methuen experiment demonstrates, it becomes more difficult to do that on a yearly basis.

For the health and safety of our students my next goal would be to restore health education and certified athletic trainers at both high schools. For two years the Quincy Public Schools have had no health education at either high school despite an acknowledged drug problem in Quincy and nationwide concern about the growing childhood obesity problem and its long-term health effects. Sex education has also been ignored as a result of these cuts. Additionally, neither high school has had an athletic trainer on staff for its hundreds of student-athletes. Coaches are now expected to evaluate, attempt to treat and tape their athletes when an injury occurs. The increased awareness of concussions and their possible short and long-term effects have come to the forefront recently. Quincy has no means to provide a baseline for their athletes. A certified trainer, when this baseline is established, can monitor any student who receives a concussion, thus, taking the guesswork out of the safe return of the athlete.

My solution to both deficiencies would be to have a teacher for each high school who would teach health education from 11:30 to 2:30 and then assume the role of athletic trainer after school.

For years, we have been literally been going around in circles regarding the issue of building and citing a track in Quincy. Politics seem to have entered the equation while hundreds of children wait patiently on the sidelines watching and hoping adults can finally come to a decision. If this is not resolved by January 2012, my fear is it could continue to drag on with the real possibility of an entire school generation (12 years) not having had the opportunity to have a track.

My goal is to help all sides to reach an agreement of where the track should be built and finally give our children a track facility they can be proud of.

These are only a few of the goals I have envisioned and hope to achieve. Other areas of concerns are the QPS hiring process, providing real mentoring to a young teaching staff, improving communication between schools and parents and improving our athletic programs in the city.

One person can make a difference, bringing new ideas and solutions to issues because if you are not part of the solution you are part of the problem. We have a good school system that, with some work in certain areas, can be a better one. With the experience I have had in education, I think I can be an asset to the School Committee come January 2012.

"My goals during my term in office

As a public school graduate, a father of public school children, a school volunteer, the brother of three public school teachers (none of whom are employed in Quincy) and a businessman who works with public school students, I will draw upon my life experiences to advocate for our schools and children.

During the last three years our schools have suffered significant budget cuts. Given the circumstances, I believe the School Committee has done its best to save core student services; however, as the finances of the State and City rebound, I believe it will be critical to address those areas that have suffered as a result of recent budget cuts - areas such as full-time kindergarten aides, librarians and class size Government cannot, nor should it be expected to solve all our schools' challenges. Quincy has a number of resources, including a strong business community, that can help address some of these needs, such as finding meaningful employment for our students and recent graduates. As a member of the

JAMES (JAY) DAVIS, III

Quincy Public Schools Business Partnership for more than eight years, I have worked with several local businesses to develop and expand partnerships with Quincy schools. Over the last 10 years my law firm in Quincy Center has afforded students from Quincy High School and North Quincy High School the opportunity to job shadow, intern and gain employment.

Another resource we can draw upon in our city is the people, namely retired citizens who have much to offer our schools. Our schools are currently relying upon volunteers to staff libraries. Most schools ask parents to fill the void, but there still remains a need for volunteers as most parents are working. While campaigning I have met with a number of our city's senior citizens. There has been a great deal of interest expressed by some seniors to volunteer in our schools; however, we have to facilitate and improve the volunteer process. Most seniors do not readily identify with a particular school; they need to learn what opportunities are available throughout the system. Creating a centralized school volunteer referral service will make it easier for seniors to volunteer and easier for schools to fill voids.

Finally, I plan to learn more about and develop strategies that our schools can use to increase parent participation, especially as it relates to underperforming students. The foundation for academic success needs to start and end in the home. Parents must be encouraged to take an active role in their child's academic performance. School districts across the country have started to focus on strategies to address this issue. I believe Quincy should do the same.

Having been a city councillor for six years, I understand that not everything a candidate desires or promises can come to fruition. Based upon the financial situation of our city, it is unlikely that promises based upon increased revenue are going to happen. That is why I will focus on projects and programs that draw from business, community and the home that have little to no price tag but can prove to be invaluable.

On School Committee, I will advocate to make anti-bullying a priority. Part of our children's school experience is to learn appropriate social skills and to make important social decisions. It's encouraging that our schools have grown in their understanding and have updated their anti-bullying policy, but its time to take the next step. We need to take a more proactive approach, instead of waiting for problems to occur. Parents need consistent support on what to do when bullying occurs. Bullying has many victims and our special education students are at a particularly high risk.

On School Committee, I will work to fully restore the early literacy program at the elementary level, as well as the reading & technology programs at middle school level. Recent performance results show that our children are paying for the cuts made to these programs. More needs to be done.

On School Committee, I will work to make sure we focus on issues that impact families and teachers day to day. That comes down to having the right priorities. Often we may disagree, but if we work as a committee with respect we can overcome any differences in opinion. This is my first time running for elected office. I am not a politician; I am a concerned parent who wants to help our schools be the best they can

School Committee will be my fulltime job. When starting our family years ago, with a premature child and a child with severe hearing loss, my husband and I decided that I would stay home with our children. This has been challenging at times, but worth it. Now they are older and doing great! Next to my family obligations, School Committee will be my main focus.

"My goals during my term in office are:

I see running for School Committee as an opportunity to work in collaboration with all the members of the district's school committee, the school administration and the wider community in helping to maintain and sustain the high quality of public education that is offered here in Quincy.

If elected, I will work toward: 1) Maximizing educational opportunities for all Quincy students; 2) Building positive relationships with the school community; 3) Improving the communication between the schools and the community; 4) Developing and regularly evaluating short and long-term goals for Quincy's schools and school system.

Maximizing educational opportunities for all Quincy students to me means providing a quality educational experience for every student. We accomplish this by recognizing and encouraging each student's individual potential, interests and level of ability. This goes for every one from the college-bound to the homebound – every Quincy student deserves a quality education. Across the district and in our neighborhoods, we need to insure that all schools are equally effective and that students, teachers and staff who need supports get them.

I believe that teaching is truly a calling. Building positive relationships with the school community and working respectfully with educators at every level requires that we draw on the expertise of our staff. Growing that expertise with professional development means growth for our programs and that translates to student performance growth in our classrooms and personal satisfaction for our teachers, students and the community itself.

We must address the issue of bullying in its every form. Feelings of isolation reduce a child's ability to feel safe at school and affect their whole emotional life. Recent analysis of over 200 social and emotional interventions in schools has found compelling evidence that educational approaches utilizing social emotional learning increase achievement test scores by as many as 11-17 percentile points. The new social-emotional curriculum requirements from the department of education are yet another unfunded mandate, that's true, but there are many cost-effective methods of addressing social-emotional learning. In a world at war we need to encourage peaceful, non-violent communication and collaborative problem solving- in our classrooms, our homes and in our streets. As a school committee member I would use my training as a mediator in that effort.

In the public sector, budgets are policy, planning and communication tools, not just a set of numbers that delineate income and expenses. We must have short and long term fiscal planning to weather these tough economic times. We must ensure that the students of the Quincy Public Schools are the focus of every fiscal decision and every budget conversation. If we always keep the students and their education foremost in our minds, we will continue to best serve our students and move our schools forward.

As a School Committee member, I will serve with integrity, openness, honesty, and independence. I have exceptional analytical and problem solving abilities, and will use these skills to make deliberate, logical, and compassionate decisions that are in the best interest of our children, our schools, and our community. I respectfully ask for one of your three votes on November

"My goals during my term in office are:

Ready to get it done from day one.

Every good outcome begins with a good plan. I have spent the last six months canvassing the ward and speaking with residents to determine what the issues are, and if elected, what I can do to address them. Coming down the stretch I now believe I have a firm grasp on the constituent compass, but more importantly I know where I would like to go with it. My focus will be in three areas: communication with residents, promoting safety in our ward and practicing fiscal responsibility.

I'm looking to have a progressive relationship with our community based on communication. To begin, I will be initiating a community contact system which will feature an e-newsletter of the happenings in our ward. I will be conducting ongoing community meetings to inform the residents of situations affecting our neighborhoods and I will also be hosting consistent office hours at the Fore River Clubhouse, 1000 Southern Artery, 95 Martensen St. and Pagnano Towers. As your city councillor, your issues become my follow-through, which means it is very important for me to attend Zoning, Planning and Park and Recreation Board meetings when decisions are being made that affect our ward. My aim is to continue to improve our community through communication with the end goal being a well informed ward that we all contribute

Secondly, I will focus a lot of my energy into making our streets and neighborhoods safe. To do this, I plan to continue working with our community police officer to further strengthen his relationship with residents. In addition, I will partner with our public safety officials to create a Citizens Alert Police program. This itinerary is designed to engage and motivate residents to get involved and use crime prevention techniques which sometimes can be as simple as picking up the phone to report suspicious behavior. As your city councillor, I will build on what I have already started with the drug awareness forums and continue to focus efforts on cost-savvy ways to address substance abuse and prevention. I believe these methods are effective, but we need community involvement to spread the word and contribute toward their success. It is also critical to consider the part our fire department plays in the community. Ward 2 houses two fire stations that carry us through life and death situations. I will be fighting hard for the preservation and expansion of these resources.

My final thought is about practicing fiscal responsibility. As we all know there is some heavy development coming soon to our city. I believe it will bring life to our sleepy downtown. Anytime you have a project of this magnitude there is always going to be money in motion. I believe working in the financial services sector; following numbers, managing money and minimizing risk will make me a likened addition to our city council. I have experience working in the municipal bond market, an understanding of how markets move and the capacity to monitor our cities debt burden. I do favor responsible growth projects that will put people back to work in an ailing economy and I frown upon short sighted work stoppages. As we progress through this multi-dimensional build out of our city, I will work hard on your behalf to ask the tough questions. advocate for accountability and make this project a reality in the hopes that we can re-create Quincy as the economic powerhouse it once was. You can count on me when there are decisions being made at the city council level; I will always have the taxpayer's needs at heart and I will vote with my wallet for the good of the residents of Ward 2.

In closing, every good outcome begins with a good plan. I have worked tenaciously over the past six months to acquire a knowledge base that will help me make decisions with you, for you, and for our future. I feel that I am ready to get it done from day one. You can expect from me that you will be kept informed about what is going on and that your questions will always receive an answer. You can expect from me that I will always go to bat to make sure your street, your neighborhood, and your child's school will be as a safe as possible and you can expect from me that I will always keep the taxpayer as my first priority.

I humbly ask that on November 8th when you go to the poll, Vote for Brad L.Croall.

Family: Wife, Courtney; three daughters – Casey, Molly and Hannah; parents – Mary and Jim.

"My goals during my term in office are:

The Quincy Sun has given me three great opportunities over the past few weeks to bring my campaign message to the voters in articles side by side with my opponent's. This exposure has been a great benefit to my campaign and a service to the voters of Ward 2. My thanks goes to the Sun.

For this article, the Sun has asked me to write about my goals during my term in office. First and most importantly, if elected to represent Ward 2 on the City Council, my goal will be to be responsive to the residents of Quincy Point and South Quincy. I have knocked on well over a thousand doors, and from one end of the Ward to the other, people have consistently credited former Councillor Dan Raymondi's responsiveness. We have come to expect that our concerns will be answered quickly. I pledge to continue this tradition of service. I will return your phone calls and emails within 24 hours. Just as Dan Raymondi gave people his home phone number, I will give you my personal cell phone number (617-877-5975) and my email address (SPinQuinzy@aol.com).

Our next City Councillor will have to do more than just respond to your call. My goal will be to resolve your issues quickly. For the past sixteen years I have been a volunteer and community activist. I have learned much during this time about getting things done. I have stopped bad development on Falls Boulevard abutting Faxon Park, and brought the Community Preservation Act (CPA) to Quincy. Through the CPA I was able to secure $3.5 million for the first expansion of Faxon Park in 70 years. And I obtained $170,000 to restore the Souther Tide Mill. Each of these efforts were long, hardfought battles that, in the end, made Ward 2 a better place to live. I will bring this same level of tenacity and focus to bear on the issues most important to you. Whether it's the gentleman on Norman Road with three sets of double utility poles in front of his house, or the couple on Union Street that have been asking for granite curbing for 35 years, or residents of Beechwood

STEVEN PERDIOS

Street where water main construction has completely disrupted their lives, or the storm debris from Hurricane Irene that has yet to be cleaned up at Bradford Park, or the removal of graffiti on the play equipment at Elm Street Park, or the crosswalk button that does not work at 1000 Southern Artery, I'll fight for your concerns and dedicate myself to serving you.

Responsiveness and progress on residents' issues are the most important aspects of a Ward Councillor's job. However, the last item that keeps a community strong is public safety. No one person can ensure a community stays safe but our next Ward 2 City Councillor will play an important role in that. Fortunately, Quincy has a great police force. Coordination, communication, and interaction between the residents and our police department can bring swift results. My goal will be to keep our hard working police officers focused on the concerns our neighborhoods. As a father raising my three little girls here, a safe and secure community is first on my mind at all times.

An effective City Councillor must not only be to able resolve the day to day issues of the residents quickly but also stay focused on the many major projects impacting the Ward. In Quincy Point and South Quincy we have three impending very large projects right around us. The Fore River Bridge replacement and the redevelopment of both the Downtown and the Shipyard, are all poised to begin in the near future.

As a civil engineer I have the skill set to understand the intricate details of these projects and how they can adversely impact our residents. It will be my goal to make sure that these projects are built providing the economic and aesthetic benefits to the city that their proponents boast. You can count on me to keep my eye on the details of these projects.

Ward 2 has been my home for my entire life. This is where my parents raised me and my three brothers. This is where my wife and I will watch our girls grow up, attend school, and learn their life lessons. I was given so much from this great community when I was growing up - I want to make certain my family and yours will be just as happy here.

I respectfully ask for your vote on November 8th to be your next Ward 2 City Councillor.

"My goals during my term in office are:

My goals, during the forthcoming term, span the gamut of responsibilities inherent to my role as your Ward Three Councillor, with the simple premise, I work for you.

First, I will continue to build upon my record of dedicated responsiveness to each and every citizen I represent, in my most fundamental responsibility of constituent service. I will continue keeping residents informed about matters of interest and concern that affect their street, their neighborhood, and the city as a whole. I will continue to defend the integrity of every neighborhood, as I have throughout my tenure, by ensuring that the city has the tools necessary to carry out this obligation and creating those tools where necessary ( I have a demonstrated history of authoring legislation when needed to do just that) that the revised zoning code, which I participated in reviewing and amending, serves to protect our residential neighborhoods against inappropriate development that the Foreclosed Property Ordinance and Blight Ordinance I wrote are utilized effectively to stave off the deterioration of community standards and decline in quality of life, which contribute to depreciated property values, a weakened sense of security and criminal

Second, I will build upon my record of delivering public works investment into Ward Three. Although I've secured 50 street projects totaling over $6 million, as well as sewer, water and drain, and flood control projects, the construction of a pump station, and repairs to the Montclair, Wollaston, Bernazzani, and Lincoln Hancock Schools, without a doubt much work remains to be done. Repair of our sewer/storm drain system will save on our MWRA

Third, I will work to ensure transparency and accountability, and advocate for performance based budgeting that measures our expenditure of taxpayer dollars against performance and results. I will continue to think and act creatively in terms of adjusting to and working within our financial constraints, as I have when I refocused our attention on recycling and reducing our solid waste stream saving taxpayer dollars engaged the city in leases with wireless communication providers that have netted the city over $345,000 in revenue supported city employees moving to the GIC Health Plan, where I have been enrolled for over 32 years, saving millions in taxpayer dollars advocated for the installation of solar panels on the roofs of all our schools including the new Central Middle School and Quincy High School which will contribute to energy self-sufficiency and save tax payer dollars.

Fourth, I plan to participate in oversight of the Land Disposition Agreement, the blueprint for the future of our downtown. I am proud of the role the council took under my tenure as Council President to ensure that the LDA was scrutinized to the highest degree. This supervision included retaining of private counsel experienced in these matters to review and make recommendations that improved the city's position in the partnership, and offered greater protections for the city. The downtown revitalization is the most significant undertaking in the city's history with beneficial impacts to every neighborhood. In the next term, I plan to be actively involved with its implementation. For this to be successful it is critically important that my institutional knowledge and experienced leadership is at hand.

Fifth, I will build upon my record of job creation through taking action and casting pivotal votes on the Council to bring new businesses like BJ's and Lowes into Quincy while keeping present businesses like Boston Scientific and P.V. Sullivan Supply here. In order to stabilize our residential tax rate we need to strengthen our commercial tax base.

As your city councillor, I have committed myself to hard work and persistence, and fought for the best interests of you who placed me here to be your voice. I have done this in partnership with you. During my first term when a plan was discussed to close the Wollaston Fire Station, I secured the support of more than 2200 of you with a petition that essentially conveyed the message, over my dead body. With natural gas leaks destroying our streetscape trees because of failed maintenance, and their poor preparation for and response to Tropical Storm Irene, this councillor took the fight to National Grid, prompting a statewide investigation of their performance. When MassDOT failed in their obligation to install sidewalk ramps for the disabled, the elderly, and families with children in strollers, this councillor mounted the successful legal challenge resulting in the work being done. And it was this councillor, joined by my colleagues on the council and at the state house, who secured a commitment and funding in 2010 to undertake the process that will lead to long overdue improvements to the Wollaston

On November 8th I ask for your vote to continue the work I have begun.

"My goals during my term in office are:

Hello, I'm John Cain. I ask for your vote. I will be the kind of City Councillor that you will be proud of.

As some of you know, I was originally inspired to run by my late Mother-In-Law, Mary O'Hanley. Her family has been a part of Quincy for over 130 years.

She was actively involved in expressing her views on local, state, and federal issues that affect the family.

I married her daughter, Kathleen, over 30 years ago, with the commitment to remain in Quincy.

We raised 3 children here: Ian is 29 years old, on leave from international work, and attending Duke's MBA Program; Erin is 23 years, a post back, pre-med student, attending Northeastern, and working at Brigham & Women's Hospital; and Liam, who is 18 years old, and a freshman, majoring in Golf Management, at Johnson & Wales, in North Miami, Florida.

Over the years I've had the opportunity to meet and talk with 1,000's of you in our Ward 3 neighborhood. I have come to the realization that many of your interests and concerns are similar, and must be met!

You have talked to me about:

Lack of fiscal responsibilities'

The loss of the fire truck at the Wollaston Fire House, Inaccurate real estate assessments,

Better protection for our Veterans & and Active Duty Soldiers, Crime prevention & safety,

Solutions to flooding problems,

Broken sidewalks and overgrown trees,

Poorly repaired sidewalks,

Non-compliance of Quincy's utility providers,

Limited handicap access for some of our public locations,

Poor traffic planning,

Shopping cart issues,

Safety concerns for retirees and seniors, and

The lack of zoning compliance and enforcement.

I want each of you to know that I have issued well over 10-press releases, which clearly define some of my issues, positions, concerns & actions, through:

My website, blog, local newspapers, Facebook.

A city councillor should be a facilitator, representing the interest of Ward 3 residents and Quincy, as a whole.

I am also reaching out to Quincy residents, homeowners & renters, that have never voted, or former voters that haven't voted in a while, because of broken promises, or open-ended answers.

My goals during my term in office are:
Making sure the Quincy utility providers are accountable;

Investigating all methods to reduce water bills, real estate taxes, and the promotion of accurate assessments;

Assisting and supporting the needs of local businesses, while being sensitive to the needs of the neighborhood;

Making the Wollaston MRTA station

Making the Wollaston MBTA station handicap accessible;

Promoting a respectful atmosphere of success for all municipal employees;

The empowerment of Quincy's retirees and seniors;

The empowerment of all Ward 3 citizens by creating a neighbor-to-neighbor program to promote simple solutions to simple problems;

Enforcing zoning compliance; and educating all Ward 3 constituents regarding the efficient use of the city's resources.

Based on the size and configuration of our ward, when elected, I propose that precinct meetings be held at schools or churches, to validate current issues, and establish precinct goals and priorities; and to setup timelines to accomplish them.

These goals and their status will be published on:

A Ward 3 website,

A Monthly newsletter.

Quincy Access Television, and Radio and in newspapers.

Ward 3 residents are frustrated with political promises made by candidates, during a campaign. They are also disappointed by their responses, after the election, regarding important resident and business issues.

We must not lose sight of the priorities important to Ward 3, and Quincy residents. When you cast your vote for me, John Cain, you will have a City Councillor that you elected, that is consistent with the commitment and promises made, during the campaign.

"My goals during my term in office

My goals during my term in office are to ensure that Ward 5 residents have a strong voice on the City Council to represent them during this crucial time and to quickly and effectively respond to residents on the quality of life issues that affect Ward 5 residents every day.

This election comes at a particularly significant time for Ward 5 residents, as the city embarks on a number of major projects that will impact our neighborhoods. The billion-dollar downtown development slated to begin in the near future will occur almost entirely within the borders of Ward 5, which spans from the edge of the new Quincy Center Concourse all the way to Wollaston Beach. The new Central Middle School project is currently underway and will offer a beautiful state-of-the-art school for Ward 5 children yet at the same time is understandably generating concerns over traffic congestion related to the school's construction and later operation. I will make sure promises made to our residents regarding these projects and others are kept, taxpayer dollars are used efficiently and those who facilitate their use are accountable.

The newly approved transfer of Quincy Medical Center to Steward Health Care is also on the minds of Ward 5 residents. Again, this issue not only impacts the many residents citywide who rely on Quincy Medical as a health care center and major employer, but also the Ward 5 neighbors whose homes abut the facility and who no doubt have concerns about how the transfer will impact their quality of life. I will work with the Mayor, Steward officials and the neighborhood associations in the area to ensure that the new owners respect and listen to the concerns of the residents as well as honor the historical and environmental characteristics of the neighborhood.

As Ward 5 Councillor, I look forward to working on a zoning plan for the Wollaston Business District. I believe by taking a fresh look at current parking restrictions and use regulations, we can ensure that the district's growth is carefully balanced to minimize residential impacts. Providing clear and reliable standards for the review of improvements to existing businesses or permitting of new ones will ensure that the abutting residences are not burdened by traffic, parking and litter concerns.

I have enjoyed meeting many of our seniors and pledge to work with the city to ensure existing services like transportation, tax preparation and health and safety initiatives are adequately funded and available.

As a fine arts major and performer, ensuring that visual and performing artists have the ability to share their craft with Quincy residents is extremely important. I look forward to working alongside local groups to investigate funding options for arts programs and venues that will not unnecessarily burden the taxpayer.

The ability to appreciate the concerns of the local neighborhoods while also seeing the broader picture will be critical in the future if Ward 5 is to have a strong voice representing residents on such issues as:

Economic Development: I will advocate for policies that attract small- and medium-sized businesses to Quincy's business districts, creating jobs and providing property tax relief for residential homeowners.

Public Safety: I will work with our police and fire officials to ensure that our ward remains a safe place to live, work and raise a family.

Constituent Issues: From trash pickups to snow removal, a ward councillor is a resident's most important point of contact in getting so-called "bread and butter" issues resolved. I will address your issues and problems quickly and effectively. I will listen to your concerns and thoughts and return your phone calls and emails promptly. I will hold "office hours" where residents can meet with me in their neighborhood to discuss issues and ideas.

As I've made my way around the ward over the past several months, knocking on doors and meeting residents, I've had the privilege to listen to my neighbors as they shared their pride in our city and the issues that concern them the most. This was a wonderful place for me to grow up and it's my sincerest goal to give back. I would consider it a great privilege to have the opportunity to represent the residents of Ward 5 on the City Council, and I respectfully ask for your vote on November 8th.

"My goals during my term in office are:

As your next Ward 5 Councillor, my goals during my term in office are based on the needs of my fellow residents and those of our neighborhoods across Ward 5. Between a 'Decade of Dedication' in Ward 5 through community group involvement and a year of my 'Walk the Ward' campaign, I feel I possess a very keen awareness of what is happening around Ward 5. For the purposes of this article, I have aligned my goals at a high level to include; Constituent Advocacy, Financial Accountability, Neighborhood Integration, and Ward Appeal.

As a homeowner and taxpayer for the past 11 years, I have had the opportunity to attend hundreds of meetings across our city, with particular focus on Ward 5. The meeting topics included; water quality, development, open space, flooding, schools, public safety, and more. These meeting have afforded me the opportunity to learn what it takes to be a leader in the community. I have attended and testified at numerous Licensing Board, Conservation Commission, and Zoning Board meetings. It is from these meetings, my 20 years of business experience, and my 10 years of community involvement that I have grown to be a strong advocate for our Ward and our fellow residents. If elected, one of my goals will be to continue to grow as a leader by continuously advocating for our residents and helping to solve the problems on our sidewalks, our streets, and our neighborhoods to the benefit of all Ward 5 constituents.

As a professional with over 20 years of business experience in the corporate and small business settings, I have an eye for detail when it comes to the bottom line of projects, finances, revenues, and resource allocation. Our city is undergoing some magnificent changes with much of the major development planned for Ward 5. In the coming months and years we will see the demolition of St Ann's school, the construction of a new Central Middle School, the demolition of significant parcels in Downtown Quincy, tremendous construction in Downtown, as well as additional infrastructure improvements, some planned and some unforeseen. It is imperative that the next Ward 5 Councillor have the real world business experience to be able to scrutinize the details of large scale projects, ongoing infrastructure improvements, and everyday City spending. If elected, one of my goals will be to leverage my business experience with hundreds of millions of dollars in budgetary and cost containment initiatives and planning to keep a watchful eye on City spending and revenues to insure increases in property values, the containment of property taxes, and the preservation of neighborhood integrity.

In the last year of my 'Walk the Ward' campaign, I have come to know and love all that Ward 5 has to offer. From our coastline at the Wollaston Waterfront, to the central artery of Hancock Street, to the inclines of Hospital Hill, to the marshes of our low lands, to the nooks of neighborhoods that crop off of our main roads - Hancock Street, Furnace Brook Parkway, Newport Ave, and Adams Street. In all of my travels around the Ward, I have found a common theme: Neighborhood Pride. I have been fortunate enough to be the President of the Friends of Wollaston Beach and The Ward 5 Community Association. I have also had the pleasure of working with members of The Hospital Hill Neighborhood Association and the Adams National Historical Neighborhood Association to better understand their mission and passion. If elected, one of goals will be to leverage the power of these groups, and others, by holding an Annual Ward 5 Neighborhood Summit with the intent of bringing together these groups to share successes, challenges, and goals in an effort to help chart a new path to preserving the pride in Ward 5.

The last of my high level goals is what I call 'Ward Appeal'. This encompasses everything from sidewalk repairs, street paving, damaged trees, street lights, double telephone poles, blighted residential and commercial properties, park maintenance, preservation of open spaces, and everything in between. In speaking with hundreds of residents in recent months, I have learned that these are the everyday issues that face our Ward. I have already begun tracking these issues and in some cases acting upon them. In one recent instance, I leveraged my relationship with the Commonwealth of MA to document the need and create a work order for light pole replacements along Furnace Brook Parkway. If elected, I will continue to be responsive to these issues.

In closing, I look forward to leveraging my decades of experience in; business, as a homeowner, and as a community leader, in the effort to lead Ward 5 as your next Councillor. I kindly ask for your vote on November 8th. Together, we can Preserve the Pride in Ward 5.

"My goals during my term in office

I hesitate to say whether anyone can have a goal in government. In a strict sense when goals are set and subsequently achieved, any further efforts cease. Government and governance are ongoing processes that can only come to an end when there is revolution or anarchy. I advocate neither.

The only goal, if it is possible to have one in government, is to advocate and see to it that we have "good government." This is the only goal I seek as an elected representative. I believe I have a record that demonstrates "good government" is something I strive for.

When necessary I have spoken out strongly when I thought the actions of the Council or the Mayor were at variance with good government. In many instances I spoke out alone. I was the only City Councillor who did not vote for the 2012 City Budget. I opposed it because it created a duplicative position in the DPW with a $110,000 salary for a colleague on the Council.

In looking to further achieve the goals of good government I will continue my efforts, if re-elected, to preserve and protect the unique character of the neighborhoods of Ward 6.

I will continue to strive to recognize the diverse and unique needs of the Ward. My goal will be to continue to develop flexible service plans that fit the unique needs of the neighborhoods of

BRIAN F. McNAMEE

Ward 6. One size does not fit all when you have distinctly different neighborhood characteristics. The neighborhoods of North Quincy, Squantum, Marina Bay, and parts of Wollaston have unique needs. By continuing to notify neighbors of developments that effect them and holding neighborhood meetings I will continue to stay abreast of the needs of my constituents.

The hard work of a City Councillor is on the street, not publishing self-promotional news letters or sitting behind a computer screen interacting with social media.

As an accounting and finance professional who oversees a $26 Million annual budget I have an enduring goal of making sure the city is pursuing sound fiscal practices. As we move forward to pay the borrowings related to the new High School and a new Central Middle School I will demand that the City's financial team understands the restrictions imposed by such fixed costs.

In the years ahead we need to fully understand the implications of borrowings and what financial demands they place on the generations that come after us.

My goal for the term ahead, if I am re-elected, is to make sure we (those in city government) are mindful of the burdens that have been placed on the taxpayers by a difficult economy. My promise will be to make sure that future bonded indebtedness be incurred only if it is absolutely impossible to defer the expenditure. My goal is to make sure the burdens associated with the cost of government are kept to an absolute minimum as working families look for ways to stabilize their financial lives.

These should always be the enduring goals of "good government" now more than ever.

Family: Single, Mother Barbara "My goals during my term in office

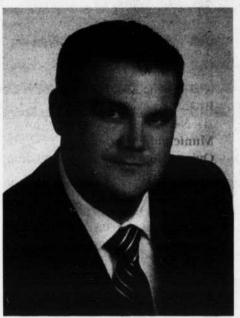

Thank you for the support you have shown me over the last 6 months. Running for Ward 6 City Council has been one of the most rewarding experiences of my life, and I am grateful to have had this opportunity. Regardless of the election results, I know that meeting and talking with all of you has made me a better person, and it is my hope that I have impacted your life a similar manner.

I chose to run for the office of Ward 6 City Council because of my fondness for the community in which I was born and raised and out of concern for the future of the community where I hope to someday raise a family. I ran because I noticed a lost sense of community and a lack of leadership. And I ran because of my passion for people and doing anything I can to help them.

I believe in a better, more effective government for the residents of Ward 6; a government focused on your needs, one that listens to you and works with you, our elected officials and public departments to improve our ward and city. I know that I can provide Ward 6 with the type of active, open and effective leadership we deserve.

As your next councillor, it is my goal to lead Ward 6 through hard work, dedication, communication and cooperation. I will proactively plan to determine and meet our short- and long-term needs. I hope to build trust by completing tasks that result in an improved quality of our lives. I will provide accurate descriptions of approved projects and their status, and improve public relations through a better flow of information.

My first order of business as your next city councillor is to open the lines of communication. I have committed to providing new communication tools for our Ward to utilize. Effective communication is essential to understanding your needs and concerns, to listening to your potential solutions, and to working together to solve these concerns. I have vowed to produce a monthly newsletter, an interactive website and hold monthly ward meetings, not just on zoning issues. These tools will help to properly inform you, hear you and, in turn, get results for our future. I will always be an ear for your concerns and a voice for your needs.

Leadership is about bringing people together to work and collaborate with each other. This will be my ultimate goal as your next councillor. Over the last few years, the leadership of Ward 6 has gone at it alone, leaving us at a disadvantage when it comes to providing services and installing ordinances that better our lives. In order to be an effective councilor, it is imperative to work with others to accomplish more for our community.

My professional experience as a group benefits advisor provides me the ability to know that I can accomplish my goals. Because a significant part of my position involves working with clients to provide cost effective solutions and risk management for their employees, I will bring a new set of eyes to our city budget. I know the value of working within a budget, listening to needs, adapting to changes, educating a person, and then working together to provide the best possible solution. As someone who must provide excellent customer service, or risk losing a client, I know the value of returning calls and emails promptly, discovering problems and resolving issues quickly. My clients will attest to the level of attention and care they get from me, and I will bring the same level of service to you as your

I will provide the leadership that you deserve.

On November 8th, I humbly ask you for your support and vote.

Resident Receives Phone Call From One Number But Shows Another Number In The Caller ID

Police Phone Number Part Of 'Spoofing' Scam

A Quincy resident recently reported to Quincy Police that she has received numerous harassing phone calls demanding that she pay back owed money.

The calls came from 877-848-4135, a toll free number. The citizen recognized this as a scam, but she attempted to gather more information from the caller by asking what the name of the company was and where to send money. Each time, the caller hung up.

On the following day, the same resident received five calls from the same person, however the caller ID showed 617- 479- 1212 (The Quincy Police Department number). The caller ID did not show it was the Quincy Police. The resident stated that the caller had a foreign accent.

The caller said that he was at the police station and wanted the money sent now. The resident finally told the caller that she would meet him at the Police station, which resulted in the caller hanging up. The caller recognized that the resident was on to him, so just before hanging up, he unleashed a volley of foul language at her.

The tactic of "spoofing," utilizing software technology to send a call from one number but showing another number in the caller ID was used.

Lt. Dan Minton of the Quincy Police Department's Crime Prevention Unit placed a call to the toll free number and a recording identified the company as the "Morris Law Firm." After a few moments, a man with a foreign accent answered and Lt. Minton, using a false name, told him that he needed to make a payment for money owed. When asked where the company was so that a payment could be sent, the employee said it was in Florida, but when asked where specifically, the employee hung up.

By searching the telephone online, it appears that many people have complained about the toll free number, the demand for Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan said, "These types of scams occur daily and sadly, there are victims who lose substantial amounts of money. What concerns me most is that Quincy residents may lend more credibility to the call if they see the police department's phone number.

"Right now, this is an isolated case in Quincy, but we want to get this information out so that there are no victims here. The best courses of action are to hang up on these predators and then contact the Police."

Community Leaders Fear Federal Aid Too Weak For Winter Heating Needs

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Keeping the house warm may be a lot harder for lowincome families this winter if Congress fails to allocate more funding for heating programs, according to local community and state leaders.

While the state received $77.6 million in federal funds for winter heating programs last week, that sum is 40% lower than the 2010 allotment of over $183 million, according to federal records. Those funds will be allocated to 22 agencies across the state, including Quincy Community Action Program (QCAP) which serves Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Milton.

Cong. Bill Keating said the current allocation will help, "but more support for this important program is needed." He pledged to "fight for heating assistance even as some short-sighted members of Congress try to cut it."

At the State House, Governor Deval Patrick "has advocated for and will continue (to seek) the full amount," according to a spokesperson Mary-Leah Assad.

Such a potential reduction sends a chill to QCAP Executive Director Beth Ann Strollo, whose agency helped over 4,100 local families and individuals last year at a total cost of $2.8 million.

As of last week, QCAP of last year's aid total or $1.4 million this year despite the growing number of unemployed and underemployed residents in the district and the soaring charges for heating oil with an average cost of $3.82 a gallon as of Nov.

1.

"There are more people will only receive about half

"There are more people eligible now," said Strollo whose agency has been processing applications since August. "We have already committed 60% of our current client benefit allocation...."

However, Strollo said it's important not to discourage applicants and urged potentially eligible persons to file applications as soon as possible by contacting QCAP at 617-479-8181 or visiting the office at 1509 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

If federal funding does not get a bigger boost, that means less help for more people, according to Strollo. As an example, applicants may receive funds for one half a tank or three quarters of a tank of oil rather than a full tank as in the past.

Strollo is optimistic that Congress will meet the need as it has since 1984 and encourages all eligible persons to apply to QCAP. "We encourage people to come in now as quickly as possible."

The program called LI-HEAP (Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program) administered through the state's Department of Housing and Community Development has aided individuals and families for the quarter of a century Strollo has been working in community service and she doesn't expect it to stop now. "We just go back to Congress."

Last year, 34% of those aided throughout the state had elderly residents, 21% had young children and 19% of the recipients were disabled.

The LIHEAP program also allocates funds to aid households using gas and other utility heating systems and last year's allocation was $285.

In recent years, Joseph P. Kennedy's Citizens Energy Corporation has offered those in need a second source of heating oil aid and, in past years, had "helped thousands of Massachusetts families," according to company spokesman Brian O'Connor.

However, there are no details available on the Citizens Energy program which does not generally launch until January when those eligible can apply for a voucher for a tank of heating oil through Kennedy's private company.

"What we do know is the prices are up and assistance is down," said O'Connor. "It's going to be a squeeze on the people who need help."

Three New Thermal-Imaging Cameras

By LAURA GRIFFIN

It's got a tongue-twister name, but the three-pound thermal imaging camera, now in service at the Quincy Fire Department, serves the simple purpose of saving lives and property, according to Deputy Chief Joe Jackson.

Jackson said Monday that the department was able to purchase three of the $10,000 cameras in August, thanks to donations by three Quincy business owners who readily responded to his request.

"Everybody was really generous," said Jackson at Fire Department headquarters Monday as he demonstrated, with one hand, the camera that detects objects in the dark and, also, reports heat temperatures on its screen.

"We have them on all three ladder trucks," said Jackson of the high-tech cameras that help firefighters spot victims in smokefilled rooms and test walls for overheated wiring or hot spots

Thermal-imaging cameras are not only used at fires, but also in search-andrescue operations where victims are lost in darkness in the woods or in waters and at accident scenes where the cameras can help tally the number of victims thrown from a car.

"They're incredible now," said Jackson who described earlier unwieldy models that weighed 10 to 12 pounds and offered less technology.

In contrast, the new cameras produced by ISG Thermal Systems USA of Georgia provides heat sensors, color and high resolution images that can either be printed or transferred to computers, according to Jackson.

Jackson said the technology has really advanced since the 1999 Worcester fire that claimed the lives of six firefighters who were looking for victims in a darkened warehouse. Tragically, there were no victims in the building.

As an example, Jackson said that some of the more frequent calls signal a problem in an office building where there may be the scent of overheated electrical wiring or smoke but no way to pinpoint the problem.

"Back in the day, they'd just start pulling down walls," said Jackson who said the camera "gives an instant temperature reading" and exact site of such problems as an overheated ballast that can be speedily corrected.

Now that technology can help so much, the problem is locating funding, according to Jackson.

Jackson said he'd like to add nine more cameras to service all vehicles and bring in new technology, such as the $40,000 monitors for hazardous materials that are also available but he understands the economy. Just as technology has grown, funding and grants for such equipment have dried up.

HIGH-TECH CAMERA held by Fire Lt. Dan Coletti may be small but it offers firefighters major help in spotting victims in smoke-filled rooms, wooded areas and electrical hot spots in office buildings. From left are Lt. John Carroll, Coletti, Firefighter Nicholas Levins and Deputy Fire Chief Joe Jackson who raised $30,000 for the thermal-imaging cameras from anonymous business owners.

NOBLE

Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Bob Noble - A Proud Veteran And Proud Ex-POW

It was Dec. 16, 1944 and Pfc. Bob Noble was two days shy of his 19th birthday. The Battle of the Bulge was underway in the Ardennes mountain region of Wallonia in Belgium.

Ninety miles to the south, Noble – an infantryman with the U.S. Army – was positioned on a hill in Alsace-Lorraine in France.

In the darkness he heard someone speaking German and a group of men standing together about 10 yards away.

But he couldn't make out their identity.

Noble had a decision to make.

"I had an automatic weapon in my hands with 20 rounds. If I had fired it would not have been one or two guys (killed)," he recalls today.

For some reason, he didn't pull the trigger. As it turned out, they were Americans.

"I'm really grateful that I decided not to fire my weapon," Noble says sitting relaxed in a chair in The Quincy Sun office. "I made a lot of decisions – sometimes I don't know why I made them - but they always seemed to work out.

"I always felt," he says, tapping his right shoulder, "there was a guardian angel on my shoulder through all those activities."

The Americans were captured soldiers and soon Bob Noble was captured, too.

Two days after being taken prisoner, he turned 19 years old. He was liberated 122 days later, on April 16, 1945.

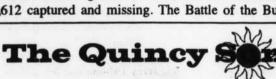

He didn't consciously mark the days but he remembers certain occasions during his captivity. For instance, on Christmas Eve, he and his fellow POWs made candles with string and waterproof drubbing. The men of all faiths also sang Christmas carols and said prayers.

It was a special feeling of being alive and being together.

"I think at that point, we had been prisoners for almost two weeks," Bob recalls. "We probably came to realize that what we had come through and where we were and that we were together to celebrate Christmas. It was just about the time that we learned about the Battle of the Bulge and we got some prisoners that were taken there. We associated with them."

The Battle of the Bulge raged on until Jan. 25, 1945. Prime Minister Winston Churchill called it "undoubtably the greatest American battle of the war and will, I believe, be regarded as an ever-famous American victory."

One of the major turning points of World War II was also among the most costly. An official report by the United States Department of the Army lists some 108,347 casualties including 19,246 killed, 62,489 wounded and 26,612 captured and missing. The Battle of the Bulge

PFC BOB NOBLE, September, 1945, at Lake Placid, N.Y was the bloodiest of the battles that U.S. forces experienced in World War II.

For Bob Noble and the rest of his POWs, they were glad to be alive. "Being together was significant," he says softly.

Bob also remembers New Year's Day 1945 because one of the guards tramped out the year in the snow as he made his rounds.

"We knew when it was colder and when the weather got warmer. We also knew that the war was ending and hoping it was soon."

Two days before Bob was liberated, "we could hear the artillery and saw the search lights in the skies to illuminate the battlefields and we knew we would be liberated so we sort of partied in the sense that we sang songs and we were very happy. The Germans came in and told us to shut it down."

But before he was freed, he had endured an ordeal.

Bob was forced to dig trenches in frozen ground for anti-aircraft emplacements. Nearby, American -47s fired upon rail yards. One day, a fighter aircraft shot its 50-caliber machine guns near Bob's group. He took cover in a trench. The bullets came close but not close enough to harm Bob.

He also spent four days in a box car with another 120 men. The POWs were let out of the car only once.

"We didn't have room for all of us to sit down at the same time but I knew that once we had a chance to sit or lay down, the floor was so cold that we couldn't stay down there that long anyway," he says.

The time as a POW went slowly. He suffered frostbite in both feet. He lost 35 pounds off his 135-pound frame. But he tried to take it in stride.

"My attitude was that I took whatever came and did the best that I could and whatever happened, happened. There wasn't anything that I could change so I rolled with the punches."

Today, Bob Noble is a very proud veteran and a very proud ex-POW.

"I am glad that I am a veteran. I'm glad I enlisted and did my duty at the time.

But there was a long time - perhaps 40 years - when Bob didn't talk about his war experience. It wasn't until he got involved with the American Ex-Prisoners of War Organization that he stopped feeling ashamed about being a POW.

"When I came out of the war, I never felt proud that I was a POW. That was something that I never really wanted to talk about. I figured I was fortunate that while I was a POW, some of my friends were out there being killed or wounded.

"In the mid 1980s, I hooked up with the Ex-POW organization and the VA Hospital in Boston. A psychiatrist there put us all straight as to what happened to us and why it happened to us and why we shouldn't be reticent about saying we were POW. At least we put ourselves in harm's way before we were captured. There was nothing to be ashamed of."

He considers himself one of the "lucky" ones.

"I was younger than a lot of other POWs. I know of one guy who came home and lived in a cellar for years. I'm pretty sure that because he was part of the (American Ex-Prisoners of War Organization), he changed his attitude. I'm proud of this organization that helps so many other POW get over their traumas and problems."

Today, Bob is also grateful that he's met and associated himself with many veterans and veterans groups.

"I appreciate what they do and what the veterans' organizations do other than marching in a parade. What they do for the community – what they do for children – and I'm glad to be a part of that."

He says veterans are one of the strong strings deeply woven into the fabric of American society.

"This country is what it is because of everybody. Some people think veterans are a special group – and they are in a sense – but there are a lot of people who make this country what it is. Politicians I don't consider a dirty word. They get a lot of benefits for what they do but they also pay a lot of penalties, especially with their families. They take a lot of guff – and there are so many people who make the country what it is including volunteers."

Asked what he hopes people understand about Veterans' Day, Bob replies, "I put Veterans Day a little ahead of Memorial Day. To me, Memorial Day was Decoration Day. That is when you went to your family's graves regardless of whether they were a veteran or not. When I was growing up, I had two cousins who were in World War I but there was no emphasis on Memorial Day being a day to remember veterans.

"I think Veterans' Day is the day to remember veterans. I would hope that those people who weren't fortunate enough to be able to get the benefits of serving their country by being in the armed services would reflect on why they have the country that they have and think about those people who have passed on and maybe think about those people who are still here because they can see them.

"I think Veterans' Day is a day to appreciate veterans."

Bob Noble will celebrate his 86th birthday Dec. 18. He and his wife, Gloria, have been married 61 years. They are parents of a son and three daughters. They also have 10 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. Bob attended Boston College on the GI bill that also helped him buy his first home. A retired engineer at a screw machine company, he's been taking photos for The Quincy Sun for many years as a free-lance photographer.

Does he ever think about how his life may have changed had he not been captured?

"It doesn't really cross my mind. I suspect that I probably would not have survived the war. I was in the infantry. There were a lot of casualties. I never dwell on anything.

"I had a boss who once asked me, 'doesn't anything ever bother you, Bob?' And I said, 'Yeah, it bothers me but I do the best I can, work it out, and whatever develops, develops. If I don't like it, I'll do something else.

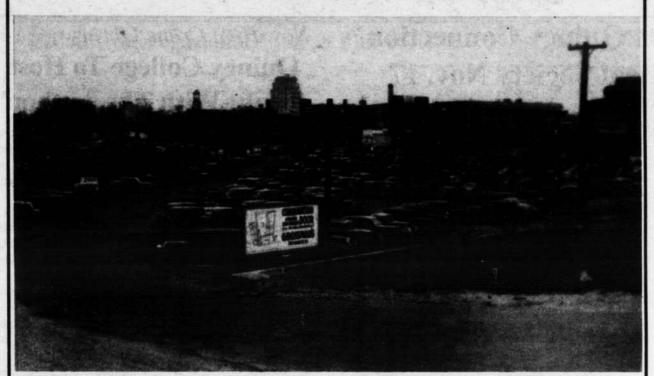

"I think this attitude has sustained me my whole life. .

It will work out. Things are as never as bad as you think they're going to be."

It may sound like a cliche but thank a veteran on Veterans Day. Think about all our veterans - living and those who have passed one - who have served this country defending democracy and preserving our freedom.

They're much like Bob Noble's "guardian angel."
They watch over us and keep us safe — and free.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A late 1930's view of Quincy's first large offstreet parking lot that later became known as Parkingway. This view is looking north from Hancock Court. In the center distance is the Granite Trust Building and the large building towards the right is the Cliveden Building. In 1929, the Grossman Company purchased this land known as the James Edwards Meadow. It was a swampy meadow with the Town Brook running through it. The Grossman's filled the swamp and built the road shown here from Hancock Court to Cliveden Street. They allowed free parking for up to 500 cars. In 1931, the city leased the lot from the Grossman's and then in 1939 they purchased it. But agreeing on a price took litigation that wasn't settled until 1949. Mayor Charles A. Ross finally dedicated the Parkingway in December of that year as he was leaving office. It was later named in his honor. The city received nation-wide recognition for its innovative off-street parking. Over the years, concrete garages were built above the ground level to provide additional parking. These aging structures will be replaced as the downtown redevelopment proceeds. The new Walter J. Hannon Parkway has been constructed just to the rear of the old Grossman billboard shown here. # Remembering America's Heroes On Nov. 11

Friday, Nov. 11 is once again Veterans' Day across America. A time once again to remember those men and women who took time out of their lives to risk their own for the sake of their country and our freedom. Many seem to have forgotten the significance of this national holiday. Our freedoms with take for granted rest on the shoulders of those who serve America in the military.

This country was born in 1775 with the Battle of Bunker Hill on the backs of those who fought for the liberty of each of us too often takes for granted. I can remember shortly after enlisting in the U.S. Air Force back in 1966 getting a phone call from my uncle Joe Harrington congratulating me on enlisting but I thought I should have joined the U.S. Navy like he did back in World War II.

I can also remember two other combat veterans. One was a good friend of my father who walked with a limp which resulted from an injury he suffered during the attack on Pearl Harbor. He forever remembered Dec. 7, 1941 and considered himself very luck to have survived that day of infamy as President Franklin Roosevelt called it.

My best memory though goes back to 1962 when I lived on East Canton Street in Boston's South End and lived next door to an 82 year-old veteran of not only World War I but the Spanish American War, too. He even showed me his photo of him and Teddy Roosevelt when he rode with Teddy up San Juan Hill as a member of the Rough Riders. I also listened to his stories but his actions were even more impressive. Every year and 1962 included he marched in the large Veterans Day parade in Downtown Boston in full uniform with his rifle on his shoulder. He was proud to be a veteran and proud to be an American.

He was an example for me growing up of what the word sacrifice meant. By the time I knew him the Spanish American War was over 64 years previous. As I listened to him, I was given a picture of those days I could never learn in a classroom. I remember him, my father's friend and my uncle and all veterans who served their country when called and needed. Their sacrifices should never be forgotten. Their patriotism honored.

Opposes Shortening, Straightening Of Town Brook

I am opposed to the shortening and the straightening of the Quincy Center portion of the Town Brook.

Maps from the 1850's (can be seen online as part of the Boston Public Library collection), show the Town Brook meandering through Quincy Center, pretty much as it does today.

This is a prime opportunity to daylight the existing Town Brook, clean it up and landscape it. It would then be an attractive downtown asset as well as a productive smelt spawning ground.

Shortening and straightening the brook would save the developer money in the short term, at a cost to society and the taxpayer in the long term. The realignment of the brook will destroy the smelt spawning run and cause major flooding "downstream". Not too long ago, the Deep Rock Tunnel was opened. The result was alleviation of flooding, but it lowered the water level in the brook so much, the smelt spawning numbers crashed.

The recent paving and grading of the new Concourse is already causing additional flooding and runoff to the properties abutting the brook.

The proposed Town Brook "enhancement" to run parallel to the Concourse is a 1950's type solution. The Wetlands Protection Act was put into place to avoid these "cheap and dirty" solutions.

If the developer and the city had a truly "big picture vision", the Town Brook would be cleaned up, daylighted and landscaped where it is today. This solution is also more of a jobs creator than straightening and shortening the brook.

The permitting agencies should require the city and the developer to treat the Town Brook properly-not politically.

Mah-Jongg At Kennedy Center

Beginning today (Thursday) the game of Mah-jongg will be played at the Kennedy Center. The group will meet every Thursday at 10 a.m. in the Game room.

The Chinese game of Mah-jongg is similar to gin rummy except it is played with tiles, not cards and the familiar suits are replaced with Chinese symbols.

The public is welcome to join the group or just observe. For more information, call the Council on Aging at (617)376-1506.

mission to be accomplished and the staff and board is more than pleased to recognize these efforts with this year's award.

Because of Geraldine's commitment the agency's has built a long standing relationship with the River Bay Club. This Brookdale Senior Independent & Assisted Living Community has graciously accommodated numerous of the agency's fund raising projects; each one more lavishly hosted than the other. The depth of this generosity most definitely indicates a commitment to the community far beyond expectation and for that commitment the agency honors River Bay Club as well. Both Dussault and Brookdale Living believe in "enriching the lives of those they serve with compassion, respect, excellence and integrity;" a concept that so completely mirrors the mission of the Maria Droste Agency. Since the agency's opening in 1992 the staff and volunteer professionals have provided critical support to individuals, couples and family groups on an adjustable fee scale based on the client's ability to pay. The sliding fee scale is made possible by the generosity of community support from people and businesses in the community not unlike Geraldine Dussault and Brookdale.

Tonight At The Crane Public Library

Free Presentation On The Assassination Of President Lincoln

The assassination of President Abraham Lincoln took place on Good Friday, April 14, 1865, as the Civil War was drawing to a close, just five days after Confederate general Robert E. Lee surrendered to General Ulysses S. Grant.

Learn about this national tragedy at a free illustrated presentation by historian and teacher Christopher Daley tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane-Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Beginning with the backdrop of the Civil War, Daley will examine the plot to kidnap Lincoln and explain how that plot developed into a plot to assassinate. Utilizing photographs of the period and modern photographs, the assassination will be recounted in stunning detail. The presentation will also cover the escape and capture of John Wilkes Booth, with photographs and video footage of where he hid and waskilled, and a vivid description of the trial and execution of the conspirators to the assassination.

Christopher Daley currently teaches history in the Silver Lake Regional School System in Kingston. He has formerly served as a member of the Board of Executives and chairman of the Educational Outreach Program at the John Alden Historic Site in Duxbury, and as the Chairman of the Pembroke Historical Commission and President of the Pembroke Historical Society. He has written several articles on local history and has been lecturing on historical topics throughout New England for close to 20

This program is presented as part of Civil War 150, a special program series about this critical chapter in our country's history. The series has been made possible through a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the American Library Association.

Officials: Fire Sprinklers Save Lives, Homes

By EMILY TAFT

Members of the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), along with representatives of every major fire service organization in the state, stressed the value of the installation of sprinklers in new one and two-family homes during a recent demonstration in the NFPA headquarters parking lot in West Quincy.

The demonstration was to protest the new building code in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts that omitted the provision to require home fire sprinklers in new construction of one and twofamily homes.

Two mock living room models were set up side by side, and set on fire outside NFPA headquarters. Each contained curtains, a couch, lamp, a TV and end tables.

One living room was equipped with a sprinkler system, the other without. Quincy firefighters lit the fires then extinguished them.

The first one lit was the room not protected by a sprinkler. After around a minute and a half the entire room was engulfed in flames. It took two Quincy firefighters around nine minutes to fully extinguish the fire.

The second room - installed with a sprinkler was then lit. After 20 seconds of the fire being started the sprinkler went off extinguishing most of the blaze.

"Your risk of dying in a home fire decreases by more then 80 percent with sprinklers and property damages is reduced by 74 percent," said NFPA President James Shannon. "By allowing substandard housing to be built in Massachusetts, the BBRS (Board of Building Regulations and Standards) puts firefighters, and citizens, at unnecessary risk."

The demonstration showed how important and useful a room equipped with a sprinkler is and in some cases they can effectively control or extinguish a home fire. The lack of a fire sprinkler allowed the demonstration room to go into flashover, which is the point in which everything in the room burns.

"It is sad that this type of effort has to be put forth on an issue that is frankly a no brainer," said Joseph Di-Franco, fire vice president, Fire Prevention Association of Massachusetts and inspector, Peabody Fire Department. "Fire sprinklers save lives. Sure there is a cost to installing them, but the cost of not doing so is much greater."

The NFPA, in a nationwide effort, started the Fire Sprinkler Initiative. The initiative encourages the use of home fire sprinklers and the adoption of the fire sprinkler requirements for new homes.

"If the we (firefighters) are not safe then the public isn't safe. This (bill) will certainly save lives," said Edward Kelly, president of the Professional Firefighters of Massachusetts. "We must see that this legislation gets passed, so we have the safest Commonwealth we can."

Over 400 communities in the U.S. now require home sprinklers. California, Maryland and South Carolina have adopted the provision statewide.

"I look forward to casting a vote for the bill, I can cast my vote with confidence and pride," said Chief Kevin Gallagher, a member of the BBRS, and Acushnet Fire and EMS. "Now is the time to take a stand. Now is the time to fight for basic homeland security."

Each year there are around 54,000 fires in one and two-family homes, causing $753 million in property loss, and inuring 2,300 firefighters and 1,500 civilians.

"Every home, every family, deserves the protection sprinklers can provide," said Massachusetts State

North Quincy Youth Selected To Receive Grant To Fight Big Tobacco

North Quincy SADD of North Quincy High School has been awarded a $2,000 grant from The 84 Movement to work on an initiative to assess youth and adult perceptions of the price and packaging of other tobacco products, such as dissolvable tobacco.

North Quincy SADD is part of The 84 Movement which helps mobilize youth to take action to protect their communities from the influence of the tobacco industry. The grant is one of fifteen awarded to youth groups from across the Commonwealth who are committed to fighting Big Tobacco in their neighborhoods and schools.

"Smoking is the number one preventable cause of disease and death in Massachusetts and in the world today, and we want our young people to realize that they have the power and the creativity to help prevent a new generation of people from becoming addicted to tobacco," said Alejandro Rivera, Director of Impact Quincy.

The 84 movement is funded by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health Tobacco Cessation and Prevention Program and is managed by Health Resources in Action.

For more information on the work being done to combat Big Tobacco around the State visit www.makesmokinghistory.org and .

Funded by the Massachusetts Tobacco Cessation and Prevention Program, the Greater Boston Tobacco-Free Community Partnership serves as a resource for local coalitions, health and human service agencies, municipalities, and workplaces on tobacco intervention efforts.

Crane Library Opens 'Good, Old-Fashioned' Book Store

Located In The Basement Of Richardson Building

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

These days many people do their research on the internet, or their reading by using electronic media, like the wildly-popular 'kindle.' But good, old-fashioned book reading is not dead, as evidenced by the throng of people who flocked to Saturday's opening of the Crane Library's new bookstore.

A steady stream of booklovers, young and old, gave high marks to the open and sunny space located in the basement of the Crane Library's Richardson building with books and nonprint media attractively stacked on newly-purchased shelves.

100% of the proceeds from bookstore sales will be used to provide the many community programs funded by The Friends of the Crane Library, including lectures, concerts, storytellers and other special events for children.

Hundreds of programs supported by the 620-member Friends of the Crane Library are offered annually, including the popular museum pass program that Bookstore Brainchild Of Friends Of Crane Library Story - Page 11 paper backs, Novels. CD's and DVD's, classic fiction, reference books, hobby and crafts books, are just a few of the categories of reading, watching and listening materials which are offered at very reasonable prices.

There are sections dedicated to health and fitness, women, family, large-print books, and a language section containing many books on Chinese.

Naomi Zottoli from Squantum, who is a member of The Friends described her bookstore visit as "wonderful...I'm taking my little grand nephew to the train store today in Malden, every time he comes to my house he has to watch The Polar Express, and look at what got today...the book, in pristine condition! And the prices-I think they could actually charge more!"

Also available for sale are gift-shop type, Crane Library merchandise like mugs, note cards, cookbooks, bracelets, maps of Quincy, umbrellas, T-shirts, and prints of the Crane Li-

One of the first patrons when the doors opened was James Dillon, a Crown Colony resident, who learned of the bookstore opening when he saw a sign inside the Crane Library.

Although he noted there weren't quite as many books for sale as were offered at the semi-annual sale, he appreciated that he "could come here every Saturday to check out what's new. The prices are good, for sure--I'm coming back."

Because of the abundance and flow of donated books to the library, committeemember Eunice Charles emphasized that she and other bookstore volunteers always have a wealth of new materials to be examined and sorted and eventually offered in the store.

She says,"I hope the public will understand that this is an ongoing thing and that we have new books coming in all the time and that the store will be restocked, so it's not a one-shot thing... we want to encourage people to visit frequently."

Anastasia Wade of Wollaston, who attended the opening with husband Ben, purchased a whole bag of books. "We thought the selection of books was varied, it was well-organized and clean, the people were nice and I felt at home."

Debbie Ormon, a career librarian for the Crane Library is retired now and claims to have even more time to-what else?-read. Ormon praised the choice of books and the staff and commented upon the clean, and spare open space and joked that she had bought so many books, that she may have cleaned the place out!

The bookstore is located in what was years ago the Children's Room in the oldest section of the library. A major renovation of the space was accomplished with a Community Preservation Act grant from the City of Quincy, and the cost of new shelving was provided by State Aid to Public Libraries funds, which "It was wonderful today...I can't believe how beautiful it is...I can't believe that was a cellar...it's bright, the floors are wonderful, the shelving...I really enjoyed my visit."

Bonnie Gorman, Houghs Neck resident and a Friend of the library described the opening as, "Fabulous...this is a wonderful achievement that they have been able to pull the bookstore together out of what was a raw cement basement into a lovely, lovely facility, so I encourage everybody to come...it's got a great stock, you can't beat it, do your Christmas shopping here!"

The Crane Library Bookstore will be open Saturdays from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. The entrance is in the rear of the Richardson Building, on Spear St. and is handicap accessible.

New Bookstore Brainchild Of Friends Of Crane Library

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

The recent opening of a bookstore in the basement of the Richardson Building section of the Thomas Crane Public Library is the brainchild of the Friends of the Crane Library, a group of 620 members who support programs which are not included in the library's cityapproved budget.

What began as a fundraising, semi-annual book sale about eleven years ago eventually evolved into conversation and meetings proposing a permanent space to establish a bookstore. Former library director Ann McLaughlin is credited with the vision to see this use for the wasted space in the basement and for her incentives in getting the project moving.

Located in the original section of the library which was constructed in 1882 with a foundation of Quincy granite, its highly-regarded design by Henry Hobson Richardson was considered his masterpiece and was ranked 43rd out of 150 favorite works of architecture in a poll conducted in 2007.

Funded by Albert Crane as a memorial to his father Thomas, a wealthy stone contractor who got his start in the Quincy quarries, this basement room had been out of use for years.

The renovation was accomplished with a Community, Preservation Act grant from the City of Quincy, and the custom shelving for the bookstore was purchased with State Aid to Public Libraries funds that the library receives annually from the

Mass. Board of Library Commissioners.

A committee of 12 volunteers amongst The Friends was created to execute the establishment of the store and worked closely with the library's Assistant Director, Megan Allen. Several members traveled to existing library bookstores to collect information and to assess their facilities and management.

A serious lover of books, Elizabeth Solomon, Montclair resident and long-time 'friend' of the Crane Library has recently busied herself in the enormous task of sorting all the books which will be sold.

Categorizing by genre the thousands of gently-used books which have been donated to the library does not daunt Soloman, who takes her volunteer job seriously.

As a child, Elizabeth recalls reading with a flashlight under the blanket at night when she was supposed to be sleeping. Of all the thousands of books which have passed through her hands, Solomon cites Snow Flower and the Secret Fan, a novel by Lisa See set in 19th century China, as a recent favorite.

Bookstore Committee Co-chairman Bill Mackey is thrilled to see this bookstore dream of The Friends come alive. As a child, Mackey frequently visited the tiny Squantum Street branch of the Crane Library in North Quincy, and took the advice of long-time resident librarian Mrs. Sheehan for his reading choices.

Mackey has been actively involved in the library's semi-annual book sales for years, and enjoys seeing the funds-earned support the library's programs.

"I love to see the usage, I love to see the library being filled with kids, every little bit helps to support the library. We all know the budget has been a problem for the last few years with the city—I think the budget is down something like 18% in the last two years, so a lot of things wouldn't happen unless The Friends were involved."

When asked about his adult reading habits, Mackey replied, "I own a lot of books, I guess Jane Austen's Pride and Prejudice is probably my favorite -- I've actually re-read it every couple of years -- but I cannot compete with my father who is in his 90's and still reads a book a day."

One hundred percent of the proceeds from any fundraisers are used to provide the many community programs funded by The Friends, including lectures, concerts, storytellers and other special events for children, and for the popular museum pass program that allows Quincy residents to visit many area museums and zoos for discounted admission.

Library Director Harry Williams feels that use of public libraries has not been negatively impacted by electronic advances. He cites a variety of events sponsored by The Friends at the library, including musical programs and historical lectures and "even mini-operas" which have been instrumental in bringing the public to the library.

"One of the things that happens is you constantly hear discussions about whether the concept of the library is obsolete, and has the internet and technology like it made the library less relevant in most people's lives."

Although this may prove true for some families, Williams points out that some library visitors come because of a Friends-sponsored program which has piqued their interest or curiosity. Once there, they discover that the environment is not the staid and stodgy library they may have remembered or assumed.

Williams says, "It's almost impossible to describe how much good is done for this community by The Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library, and

"Clearly, especially at a time of austerity there is no way we could justify in our budget paying for entertainers and musicians and storytellers and things like that when we are struggling to keep the library doors open and to buy all the books and materials that we need to provide.

"Nationwide all the media have been reporting this trend – that as tough times grind on and on – people in increasing numbers turn to the library because it is a place where you can go when you don't have a lot of free cash."

Retired Quincy school teacher Harold Crowley, bookstore committee co-chair, became actively involved with The Friends when the group experienced a rebirth about twelve years ago.

"Friends had been in existence and we felt the library needed more support, which we knew the city couldn't do, and we thought we could contribute through The Friends by raising money. The value of Friends contribution generally averages about 25K to 30K per year...I remember one time it was over 150K."

Also an avid reader, Crowley, who has been doing his reading in the same house in Wollaston since he was five years old, cites his favorite author as William Martin, an author of historical novels.

Committee-member Eunice Charles, who moved to Quincy in 2003 had been a friend of her library in North Carolina, so she was anxious to become involved in the Quincy incarnation of this national movement to support local libraries.

A key figure in executing bookstore guidelines and in assembling a staff of volunteers to man the store, Eunice—who counts Henry James as her favorite author—and her co-volunteers did some dedicated research of other bookstores before devising a plan for the Crane Library's.

"We visited several libraries to see if they had sales like we had, things that might be appropriate. Not very many libraries had a manned book store....a lot had a sort of book sale space within the library on an honor system with books out, or they just had a corner where there were books on a shelf."

Friends President Betty Molloy expressed her excitement about the new bookstore. "I think this is a wonderful room, the committee did such a wonderful job, the books are arranged in such an attractive manner, and we have such a wealth of books.

"We have been planning this for maybe three or four years, you know a grant had to be written for the restoration of this room, a preservation grant, and all of that takes time. Ann McLaughlin was the initiator of that grant and was able to follow it through to fruition during her tenure at the library."

The bookstore will be open Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The entrance is in the rear of the Richardson Building, on Spear St. and is handicap accessible.

VNA Of Boston Celebrates 125th Anniversary At Crane Library

To commemorate the agency's 125th anniversary as the first and oldest visiting nurse organization in the nation, the VNA of Boston (VNAB) is exhibiting a traveling display at a number of sites located in the heart of the communities it serves.

While on display at the Thomas Crane Library in Quincy, State Representative and House Majority Leader Ronald Mariano presented the organization with a citation in recognition of the agency's 125th anniversary and in appreciation of its commitment to public health nursing in the Boston community.

"The VNA of Boston is more relevant now than you ever have been in your 125 year history," Mariano said to an audience of VNAB employees and nursing students from Quincy College. "You are going to play a big part in controlling health care costs."

The traveling exhibit includes a timeline illustrating the VNA of Boston & Affiliates' (VNABA) compelling history and how its clinicians provided health care services during some of the most difficult crises the community has ever faced. It shows how nurses were on the front lines during the Spanish flu epidemic of 1918, the care given to veterans returning home from war, the education provided to families on proper nutrition during the Great Depression and how VNABA nurses and therapists were vital caregivers during public health crises such as polio epidemics and the emergence of HIV/AIDS.

The exhibit also displays how the VNABA is relevant today and how its current services and programs are aimed at keeping people of all ages healthy and at home.

Volunteer Drivers Wanted For Veterans Transportation Program

The Disabled American Veterans Transportation Program is seeking volunteer drivers to provide free transportation to veterans who need a ride from home to any VA hospital for a medical appointment.

As World War II, Korea and Vietnam veterans age and more and more Iraq and Afghanistan veterans return with disabilities, the number of drivers available decreases. As a result, more volunteer drivers are needed.

Volunteers should like to drive and have one or two free days each week. For more information, call 508583-4500 ext. 62264.

Volunteers drive the DAV vans – not their own cars. These are six and eight passenger vans and do not require a special license.

The transportation service is available to all veterans (but the program does not have wheel chair vans.)

to create new jobs, protect our historic industries and preserve Social Security and Medicare. The current fight for our hardworking families isn't about me or any one district map. It's about changing the direction of this country so that all residents can benefit from the opportunities America has to offer," Keating added.

Keating's decision to run for the 9th Congressional seat averts a primary showdown with Cong. Stephen Lynch from South Boston. That's because Quincy - under the new restricting plan - would be placed in the 8th District that would also include South Boston. Lynch is expected to seek re-election in the new 8th district next year.

The new 9th district is an "open seat" since there is no incumbent representing that district so Keating may avoid a contested primary. However, several prominent Republican legislators - including Sen. President Therese Murray of Plymouth - is among the potential GOP contenders mentioned as challengers to Keating in a general election.

The state is losing one of its 10 Congressional seats because of a shift in population according to the 2010 federal census. Massachusetts' population did not increase as much as other states. Therefore, the Bay State will have nine Congressional seats as of January, 2013.

The new Congressional redistricting plan must be approved by state lawmakers before the legislative session ends Nov. 16. It would also require the governor's signature.

Ward 3 Precinct 3 In 13th Suffolk District In 2012, Ayers Says He Will Work With Walsh On Issues

Boston Legislator Will Represent 3,222 Residents

By LAURA GRIFFIN

State legislators last week swiftly approved a redistricting map that lopped off Quincy's Ward 3, Precinct 3, and moved those residents into a Boston voting district.

As a result, those 3,222 North Quincy residents will become part of the 13th Suffolk District as of Jan. 1, 2012. That district is now represented by Dorchester's Marty Walsh.

Although they will be constituents in the 13th Suffolk District, voters in Ward 3 Precinct 3 will continue to cast ballots in Presidential, state and local elections at the Montclair School on Belmont Street in Quincy.

The precinct's current legislator, Rep. Bruce Ayers of the state's First Norfolk District, said he will work with Walsh on district issues and expects that Quincy's voice will be heard. The redistricting also moves one precinct in Wollaston into Ayers' district ents at the State House. I am sure he will use that same vigor with his new precinct in Quincy," Ayers said Monday in an official statement from his office.

Ayers continued, "I will be reviewing the district and the issues with him shortly to give him a better understanding of how we can work together for the betterment of the precinct and its residents."

Both Ayers and City Council President Kevin Coughlin sought to halt the redistricting plan that legislators approved, but state and congressional legislative districts had to change after the last census.

According to the 2010 federal census, Quincy's population increased by 4.8% between 2000 and 2010 and some of that growth was in North Quincy.

Federal statutes require "fair and equitable" state representative districts of 40,923 residents each in the Commonwealth, said House Majority Leader Ron Mariano who cited growth spikes in such areas and Marina Bay and the need to keep and create minority-majority seats in Boston.

Walsh himself pledged to be accessible to Quincy residents and fully represent their interests.

But seasons are not the only things that change. When it comes to some changes, we at Social Security need to know

If you receive Social Security benefits, there are certain things that we need to know about you in order to continue paying your benefits. Here is a reminder of some of the most important reporting responsibilities for people who receive Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI).

Fundraiser Helps Support 'Senior Night Out'

QHS Students 'Flock' To Raise Money

By EMILY TAFT

Quincy High School students are still "flocking" around Quincy, to raise money for "Senior Night Out" even after some negative responses to the fund-

"The only way to deal with those who don't like the fundraiser is to deal with the situation and move on from it," said Quincy High Parent Advisory Council Treasurer Ursula Schulte. "This year we have had two people ask that the (plastic) flamingos be removed, and in the three years of doing it we have had no more then 10 complaints."

Linda Monaco of Glendale Road, a mother of two Quincy High graduates and one Quincy High student, has been flocked at least three times over the past three years.

"The fundraiser is done very quietly and you don't even know anyone is outside until you open the door later that night or the next morning to see the birds," said Monaco. "I am very shocked that anyone who walked out and saw it wouldn't smile at the fact. It's a great fundraiser and a heartwarming experience."

The bigger issue at hand seems to be that some flamingos - if not the whole flock - have gone missing this year.

We have had some birds mysteriously flying off the lawns they were placed on," said Schulte. "Their disappearance has nothing to do with the family who has been flocked, I am sure of it. But each time one or 12 go missing we have to re-order which costs us, and can get expensive."

Schulte said these incidents have happened more in the last year and this year they have already had to replace flamingos twice, which is causing the fundraiser to lose money. To order 50 birds, $130 has to come out of the money raised.

This year alone we have had a whole flock disappear. There has been times where we have found flocks in the middle of the street," said Schulte. "So far we have lost three signs, and 30 birds."

Despite some of the negative feedback, and missing birds, students and parents continue to participate in the event.

"It's for a great cause, and allows seniors to have fun and stay out of trouble," said Angela Walker, a volunteer and mother of QHS senior Michaela Walker. "People really get into it, we even have a waiting list."

The fundraiser is to raise. tend an all-night party that is held after the Senior Prom in hopes to keep the students safe, and allows for the one senior and their guest to attend the all night party for

According to Schulte, the waiting list has more then doubled since the negative press a few weeks ago.

"We usually have around four houses on our waiting list, but now we have around 12 people waiting to be flocked," said Schulte. "It has come to the point now that we have to maybe even go beyond the seven weeks of flocking to hit those 12 on the waiting list."

For seven weeks, a handful of students and parents, head out a few nights a week to 'flock' an unsuspecting resident of Quincy. Flamingos along with two signs that read "You have been flocked" are displayed on the "victim's" lawn.

In most cases, the person whose house was selected was because a neighbor, family member, or friend had donated $20 to have them be next.

Schulte said that not everyone flocks it forward and that no one is required to donate. If someone decides to not partake in the fundraiser money so seniors can at they just look to the waiting list on who to flock next.

> Those who have been flocked have the flamingos and signs in their yards for

> When asked what her favorite part about going out and 'flocking' a yard is, Quincy High School senior Michaela Walker said, "It's so much fun, and we get to act like ninjas."

> Michaela along with her mom have helped since the first year the fundraiser was done. Michaela, a sophomore at the time, and her mom, wanted to help because of the cause, and now that Michaela is a senior they are participating in it more frequently.

Although their third year participating, Michaela and her mom said they are still finding new places in Quin-

"The adrenaline gets going, and one of the fun parts about it is getting lost," said Angela. "We have learned a lot about Quincy this way."

One night, dressed in a black hoodie sweatshirt and in 'ninja' mode. Michaela and her mom stopped to pick up the flamingos and signs at a house that had been 'flocked' the night before. They checked the back of the signs that had been placed in the yard to see where the next house would Ursula@quincyhighpac.org.

be, finding two places listed they went with the one closer to their location. They proceeded to head down the street and 'flock' what can only be assumed as a friend of the last 'flocking' victim.

"We have had several people recently giving a larger donation and asking to flock more then one home," said Schulte. "In cases like that we pick one and place the other house on our waiting list."

When they arrived at their destination, they walked slowly and quietly sneaking up to the yard on Kimble Street, and before reaching the lawn, Michaela dropped the box of flamingos making a loud bang as it hit the sidewalk OHT DVOMA

Everyone stopped in their tracks hoping those inside didn't hear. Suddenly a porch door squeaks open, but no one appeared outside. After waiting another minute Michaela and her mom quickly set up the flamingos and signs and ran to their

"The fun part of going out is getting into it and trying to be quiet," said Schulte.

Originally the flocking was set to end around Nov. 18, but because of the spike in interest and more homes waiting to be flocked, the end date might change, depending on volunteers and

Last year, the fundraiser made around $3,500 and this year they hope to make $4,500 but Schulte said that the amount of money donated depends on the amount of volunteers they get to help each night.

A total of around $11,000 has to be raised for "Senior Night Out" to happen, and Schulte said there are a number of different fundraisers they will do following the 'flocking' season.

If you would like to donate towards "Senior Night Out" you can go to http:// www.qhsseniornightout. com/ for more information, or contact Ursula Schulte at

DISCUSSING THE LOGISTICS for an oil spill clean-up training exercise at Fore River are Elise DeCola (left), operations manager for Nuka Research, an environmental consulting firm; and Richard Packard of the Department of Environmental Protection.

Firefighters Train For Possible Oil Spill On Fore River

By SCOTT JACKSON

Over a year of planning came to fruition Oct. 31 as firefighters from Quincy, Braintree, and Weymouth were on hand to train for a possible oil spill on the Fore River.

The rehearsal was part of the Massachusetts Geographic Response Plan (GRP) Exercise Program. Similar sessions have been held in coastal communities elsewhere in the state over the last year, and additional ones are planned for the spring.

The GRPs were prepared by the State Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), local towns, and Nuka Research, an environmental consulting firm based in Plymouth. The state began to formulate GRPs after an oil spill in Buzzards Bay, according to DEP official Richard Packard.

Local communities "felt like [they] don't have enough training and equipment," Packard said.

In response, cities and towns now have their own specially outfitted trailers. Each contains over 1,000 feet of boom, plus anchors, buoys and other supplies for dealing with spills. Packard said the equipment is for "giving [communities] capacity to deal with the early stages of a spill" before private contractors take the reins. Trailers from Braintree and Weymouth were used Oct. 31 while Quincy's wasn't.

This was the first training involving the three communities, according to Elise DeCola, Nuka's operations manager. But she did clarify that Quincy had past experience dealing with spills.

The Oct. 31st practice run was prefaced by an hour-long briefing at the Quincy Fire Department's training center at the Fore River Shipyard. During the meeting, Packard and De-Cola went over the basics of oil spill containment with the two dozen or so firefighters on hand. The different booming techniques, exclusion, deflection, and diversion, were detailed. The technique practiced Oct. 31 was diversion, in which oil is redirected to another location for clean-up. Though not practiced, exclusion booming, where the spill is blocked from a sensitive area, is also called for in the full GRP.

During the briefing, De-Cola said the goal of each training exercise was "standardize tactics and terminology" between the different towns and agencies and to "create realistic expectations. She also said they'd "take the information we get today and modify the GRP."

Packard also added that communities "don't need to get permission" from the state to use the trucks. He then said local officials should gather information on who caused the spill because the "DEP is going to look to the responsible party to reimburse costs."

Following the briefing, DeCola, Packard, and a representative from Moran Environmental, the contractor who made the boom, went through one of the trailers to familiarize the participants with it.

During the actual drill, the bright orange boom was deployed from a pier in the shipyard on the Quincy side and a site adjacent to the Weymouth Power Plant on the opposite side. Boats from the Quincy Police, Braintree Harbormaster, Weymouth Fire Department, and Weyprogramment of the first the first the second of the first terms and programment of the p mouth Harbormaster laid the boom across the river in a "V" shape. Observers from the Coast Guard as well as Sprague Energy and Citgo, who both have locations on the river, were also in attendance.

All told, it took about in hour to place the boom. The process was delayed briefly after the originally deployment site on the Quincy side was found to be too difficult, which meant they needed to pack up and move to the next pier.

One of the goals of the exercise was to work on communications between the cities involved. That part was a success according to Nuka project manager Jooyi Ryan, who said afterwards "interagency coordination was wonderful."

DeCola echoed her colleagues sentiments. "It was successful," she said. "We got towns to work together."

But it wasn't all smooth sailing. There were grumblings among the Braintree firefighters, who helped their Quincy counterparts send out the boom from the shipyard, about the deployment point.

DeCola agreed, saying "there will be some recommendations for technical changes; it was a really tough site."

Ryan also felt there were issues with the location. "We realize there were some hitches," she said but noted it any proposed changes would need to be workshopped before being finalized.

But the state won't be organizing any additional sessions on the Fore River. "We have 65 communities to work with," Packard said. "We need to give everyone an opportunity to train."

Fire Marshal Stephen D. Coan. "The results of a fire in a home with a sprinkler system are much different from one without. Sprinklers can save lives and save homes from a fire."

A home with a sprinkler system installed can help to save property and the building itself. According to Coan, sprinklers help contain the fire to one room and in most cases there is no sign that a fire has occurred on the outside of a building with sprinklers installed.

According to Thomas Burnett, president of the Massachusetts call/volunteer Firefighters Association and call firefighter, Whitman Fire Rescue & Emergency Services, home sprinkler systems respond quickly to reduce heat, flames, and smoke, and around 90 percent of the time just one sprinkler operates. Each individual sprinkler is designed and calibrated to go off when it senses a significant heat change. Only the sprinkler closest to the fire will activate.

A public hearing will be held in Boston on Dec. 13th. Testimony will be accepted on the code action, time and location have yet to be determined, additional information can be found at www.firesprinklers.org

The exercise demonstrated the difference in fire spread and development in unprotected and sprinkler protected private homes. The mock living room without sprinklers (above) was engulfed after a minute and half. It took the firefighers about nine minutes to put the fire out.

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, Oct. 29, at approximately 5 a.m., Officers' Steve O'Donoghue and Tom Gaeta Jr. were dispatched to the area of Adams and Beale Streets for a report of an intoxicated female.

Upon arrival, the officers located the female and inquired if she needed help. The female emitted the odor of alcohol, was unsteady on her feet and had bloodshot eyes. She immediately began swearing at the Officers about being left on the corner by a man she met in a Boston bar. She said that she began chatting with the man at the bar, who called himself "Tony" and soon after they agreed to go to his house in his vehicle.

The female could not provide any further information such as a description of the man or his vehicle. The Officers attempted to get the full story of what occurred by asking question after question—because the female was being elusive, ranging from hostility to calmly answering the questions, then ranting about how bad Massachusetts is.

Attempts were made to assist the female in getting her home to Holbrook by notifying family, friends or coworkers, but she would not provide this information She just rambled about how "@#$%^& up cops" were and how she left her pocketbook in the man's vehicle.

Officer O'Donoghue tried numerous times to offer options to assist the female but was met with verbal insults and hostility during each attempt. The female let out another angry outburst, then said she was done talking to the Officers, didn't want any help and then went into the store. Since the female did not want any help, the Officers cleared the call. Officer O'Donoghue repositioned his cruiser at the Dairy Freeze parking lot in an attempt to let the female calm down.

A few minutes later, the female left the store and walked down Adams Street in front of the Officer's cruiser, where she flipped her two middle fingers at the Officer. The female then began yelling that she needed the State Police to help her. Officer O'Donoghue notified QPD Communications and updated his location and requested that the Sgt. Patrick Buonaugurio respond to his location.

After more rantings, the female took the offer from Sergeant Buonaugurio where Officers' Gaeta and O'Donoghue would drive her to her residence in Holbrook. During this transport, Communications would contact her landlord to provide a spare set of keys to assist her in getting into her apartment. As the female began getting into the cruiser, she unleashed a volley of verbal assaults directed at the sergeant.

Once in the cruiser, the female continued the tirade of insults at the two Officers. As they reached the intersection of Furnace Brook Parkway and Copeland Street, the female threatened to jump out of the cruiser if they didn't let her out. Fearing for the female's safety, Officer O'Donoghue decided that she was high risk of harming herself and protective custody was now the only option.

The 42 year-old Holbrook resident was booked at the station and kept for the minimum of 4 hours to the maximum of 12 hours before she was released after sobering up.

15 Steps For A Leaner, Greener And Easier Way To Manage Oilheat Bills

Oilheat consumers can save on winter heating costs by tuning up their heating oil systems now, enrolling in a budget payment plan with automatic delivery from their heating oil supplier, as well as taking other simple steps to conserve energy.

Today's oil furnaces are highly efficient, and according to the heating oil industry's Energy Communications Council (ECC), an annual tune-up keeps existing equipment functioning at top performance. Home owners should schedule a tune-up now, if they have not had one done already, as the cooler temperatures sweeping the Northeast will have consumers turning up their thermostats.

The U.S. Department of Energy maintains that properly serviced boilers and furnaces will burn less fuel, thus reducing heating costs by up to 10 percent. Priced relatively low, the expense of a system tune-up can be more than recovered over the course of a typical winter, which makes regular maintenance a good return on investment.

Tuning up their heating system before the bitter cold winter temperatures set in is a great way for-consumersto lower their heating costs, conserve energy, and help the environment," said ECC Spokesman Kevin Rooney. "Just as a failure to perform regular maintenance on the family car lowers miles per gallon (MPG) and uses more gasoline. The same theory also applies to the family's heating system."

Regular tune-ups are not the only way homeowners can save money this winter. Wrapping pipes with proper insulation to prevent both heat loss and freezing, eliminating gaps around windows and doors with caulking, and replacing your manual thermostat with a programmable model are also among the practical steps that home and business owners can take to save energy and lower their bills.

In addition to the ease of automatic delivery based on usage, consumers should also consider the financial benefits of a budget payment plan for their energy purchases, which spreads fuel oil costs across twelve months, as opposed to higher bills during only the winter heating months. Budget plans make it possible for a customer to anticipate their monthly bills and budget accordingly.

"Many Oilheat consumers across the country use budget billing because they like the convenience and certainty of having one heating expense figure to plug into their monthly home or business budget," Rooney

HEAT SAVING TIPS: EASY DOS

- · Get a heating system tune-up - it will ensure you get the maximum performance out of every drop of heating oil burned.
- Open shades and drapes when the sun is out to help warm your home. Close them when the sun goes down to reduce heat loss through drafty windows.

- Turn down the thermostat at night and when you are away from home; even slightly lowering your thermostat during the day may save you up to two percent on your heating bill.
- Insulate pipes to guard against heat loss and to prevent them from freezing.
- · Stop heat loss by eliminating any gaps between your door and threshold. Use a seal that can be attached to the bottom of the door - it should brush up against the threshold to fill any gap.
- · Caulk or re-caulk exterior spaces between the windows and walls of your
- Close your kitchen vent, fireplace damper and closet doors, and remove, cover or close air conditioning units and vents when not in use.
- · Do not place furniture in front of radiators; it will block heat from circulating. HEAT SAVING TIPS:

SHOULD DOS

- Consider replacing heating systems that are more than 20 years old. Modern versions can cut heating costs by 15 to 25 percent.
- Talk to your, heating fuel supplier about installing a programmable thermostat; it will pay for itself through lower energy costs in about
- Make sure you have good insulation in exterior walls, ceilings with cold spaces above, and floors with cold spaces below.
- Install and close storm windows. Consider new glass designed to decrease radiant heat loss without lowering visibility. A lower cost option is sealing windows with a window insulator kit, which can be found at your local hardware store.

HEAT SAVING TIPS: "GREEN DOS"

 Ask your local heating oil dealer about Bioheat®, a cleaner burning, renewable product that can be blended seamlessly with the heating oil you already use. It lowers emissions.

- · In states where ultralow sulfur heating oil is sold, biofuels can be blended creating a fuel suitable for burning in the world's most efficient heating equipment.
- Consider having a solar water heating component installed. This small, easily installed system is virtually maintenance free and heats the water your family uses on a daily basis, using the free heat from the sun.

Presidents Fall To King Philip In Penalty Kicks

SUN SPORTS

By SEAN BRENNAN

It is not often that a team receives a standing ovation following a loss.

But this fall's Quincy boy's soccer team wasn't just any team. The Presidents were more like a revelation. This team brought boy's soccer at Quincy High – forever an afterthought – back into the spotlight, and they did so through absolute teamwork and hard work.

Quincy, which earned itself a place in the Division 1 South state tournament following a 9-6-5 regular season, becoming the first Presidents' team in ten years to do so, hosted King Philip in a preliminary round game on Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Those expecting the Presidents to cave under the pressure of tournament soccer didn't give Quincy enough credit. Ouincy not only held its own against a tournament-tested opponent, they played with a passion not seen around these parts in a long time.

The final result was almost unfair. Quincy and King Philip battled through a scoreless first half, a scoreless second half and two scoreless ten-minute overtime periods. A winner and loser were decided by dreaded penalty kicks and, in the end the Presidents came up just short, losing in penalties, 4-2.

Despite losing in the worst imaginable way, these Presidents left the pitch with their heads held high. They didn't choke under postseason pressure but instead rose above it and played the type of game that should resonate for seasons to come.

"I think both teams showed their nerves and it was ugly at times, but I couldn't have asked for more effort," praised QHS Head Coach Mark Spendlove. "We knew (King Philip) were strong defensively; we knew they didn't give up many goals and we knew they didn't score many goals."

"I said to the guys at halftime that this was going to go the whole way," continued Spendlove. "We just couldn't find the answer, but I couldn't ask for any more. I mean these kids worked their butts off."

King Philip (6-5-5) out of the Hockomock League came in as the lower seed, but the Warriors had the biggame experience that Quincy was lacking. The Warriors' roster included 17 seniors, all of whom were members of King Philip's 2008 Division 1 South semifinal team. On paper, Quincy was the better team, but King Philip was no slouch. Many observers figured the Presidents would be run off the pitch. That did not happen.

Instead it was Quincy who came out firing to start the game. The opening ten minutes of the first half saw the Presidents carry play. Several runs by forwards Caique Reginaldo and James O'Shea kept the Warriors on their heels, and when Quincy's Bjorn Armiri deftly maneuvered down the left sidelines and cut back to the inside before ripping a beautiful right-footed blast from about 18 yards out it looked like the Presidents may strike first. Armiri's shot was punched safely over the crossbar, but the aggressive move let King Philip know that Quincy would not lay down.

With the offense causing havoc on the Warriors' backline, the defense of Quincy seniors Nick Dolan, Duy Vo and Jev Valfor kept a dangerous King Philip offense in check. The Warriors had a difficult time getting anything productive going when it had possession and, the times they did force pressure, Quincy keeper Kevin Mullin was up to the task.

The Warriors, to the disappointment of the visiting crowd, had a goal waved off at 31:00 mark. The call on the field was a handball. The

The second half was more of the same as neither team could crack the opposing side's defense. King Philip's Ian Pimental had his team's only legitimate scoring chance swept away by Mullin late in regulation while the Presidents' best scoring chance came in the waning minutes when a corner kick was lofted into the box only to be knocked out of harm's way by James Murphy, King Philip's senior keeper.

Soccer playoff games are tense. Contests that end in a regulation tie first move into a ten-minute golden goal format (first team to score wins). Quincy and King Philip played the majority of the first ten-minute overtime at midfield with both teams being overly cautious. Following a four-minute break, the Presidents and Warriors played another ten-minute overtime period, which King Philip dominated. However, Mullin, again, made several solid saves including a game-saving stop on Jonathan Keys in the final minute that sent the preliminary round game into penalty kicks

At this point, five shooters for both teams huddled at midfield.

King Philip's Matt Hootstein stepped up first and drilled a shot past Quincy's Connor Dane – Dane replaced Mullin in net for the penalty kicks – to put the Warriors up 1-0; up next, Quincy's Kevin Gomes missed high. The Warriors' Aaron Morrissette attempt was stopped by a diving Dane to hold the score at 1-0 and the Presidents' tied it at 1-1 when Reginaldo beat Murphy high side.

A successful PK by Keys gave King Philip a 2-1 advantage and following a miss by Armiri; the Warriors grabbed a 3-1 PK lead after Connor Smith beat Mullin – who had replaced an injured Dane. Quincy senior Kevin Paterno converted his PK (3-2 King Philip), but the Warriors closed out the Presidents when Will Purdue beat Mullin far side.

For the majority of Quincy's roster, this loss will provide some motivation when the 2012 season kicks off next August. The bar has been set. For the seniors who played in their final high school game, the loss will hurt, but according to the team captains Daniel Mongo, Nick Dolan and Jev Vaflor, the program should be proud of what it accomplished this season, which included setting the new standard for boy's soccer at OHS

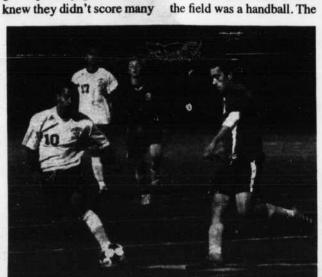

"Special doesn't even show how I feel about this team and this season," said Mongo. "It has been more than I could have expected from these guys. We worked together since day one; we had tough times at the beginning of the year and we fixed that. We are just going to be together for the rest of our lives – we did something special this year."

"Absolutely unbelievable season," added Dolan. "This team put 110% effort this season; coming from last year when we had one win and one forfeit to nine wins, amazing. I am so proud of everyone on this team."

"I don't even know what to say," said an emotional Vaflor. "I love my team. They have always been here for me and every single player stepped up."

The 2011 Quincy Presidents boy's soccer team is what high school sports is really all about. The Presidents were the definition of team. This loss hurts but the future of soccer at Quincy High is bright because of what this group of kids accomplished.

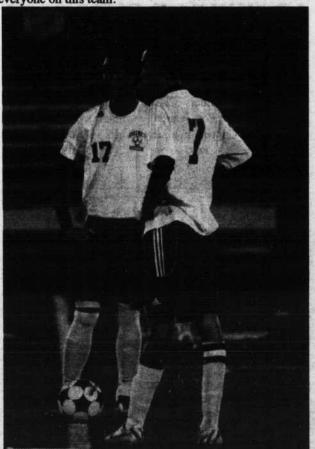

"I couldn't be more proud of them," Spendlove said about his 2011 team. "Like I just said to them, Quincy High soccer has been a joke for ten years. They have put it on the map and they have created something. Ten years and never been to the playoffs – tremendous. It will hurt tonight but when they go and reflect on it they will understand what this all means. They are great kids, all of them."

CAIQUE REGINALDO (#10) carries the ball in to the offensive zone versus King Philip.

SENIORS DUY VO (#17) and Dan Mongo (#7) wait for the whistle that will start the second half.

Presidents Dominate Chelsea In First Round Volleyball Match

By SEAN BRENNAN

Quincy's road back to the Central-East Division 1 sectional finals began last Friday with a first round match against Chelsea - the Presidents cleared their first hurdle with relative ease, dominating the Red Devils in every aspect of the match to win going away, 3-0 (25-10, 25-12, 25-10).

After finishing the regular season with a 16-4 record, Quincy entered tournament play seeded fifth in the field of twelve - Chelsea was the No. 12 seed - and against the Red Devils the Presidents came out and played like the heavy favorite.

Behind nine service aces in Game One, including two by junior outside hitter Alysha Dunbar, Quincy broke open a 4-4 score with a 21-6 scoring run to finish the game.

The Presidents were just too technically sound on both the offensive and defensive side of the court and, were in total lockstep as a unit, for the Red Devils to stay competitive with the favored home team.

"We played pretty well and we were aggressive," QHS Head Coach Jacqui Niosi said following the first round win. "I thought that we served spots well and so I was happy with that. (The team) seems like they are ready to go and we seem to be mentally focused, so hopefully we can go out on the court and continue to play good volleyball."

At the start of the pivotal Game Two, senior middle hitter Caity Lowry made her presence known. Lowry gave Quincy a 1-0 lead with a vicious kill and, after Chelsea rattled off a 5-1 run to take a 5-2 lead, Lowry calmly settled onto the back line and served three straight beautiful serving aces to put the Presidents up 8-5.

Mid-game aces from senior Sam Albanese, two blocks from senior middle hitter Kiley McDonald, and a late-game kill from senior outside hitter Erin Chiocchio helped Quincy end the game on a 20-5 run.

In the clinching Game Three, the Presidents suffocated the Red Devils from the start and jumped out to a commanding 13-6 lead behind the solid play of Lowry and McDonald. After fellow senior Nicole Parry served three consecutive aces to push Quincy's advantage to 16-6, Niosi began subbing out her seniors and replacing them with her underclassmen.

The coach's move was two-fold. Firstly, the in-game strategy allowed Niosi to give her younger, less-tournament-experienced varsity players some valuable playing time, and, more importantly, it gave her senior class of McDonald, Chiocchio, Lowry, Parry, Albanese and Donna Niosi an opportunity to be recognized by the home fans for all that this class had accomplished throughout their successful high school

It was a nice touch by a coach who understands and respects what this core group has done for the Quincy program over the years and, for what they will hopefully continue to do as the state tournament moves into the deeper rounds.

"It nice to be able to give the seniors a round of applause at home - this will be there last home game," Niosi explained. "This is a group that has worked extremely hard and they have been good leaders for the underclassmen."

With their 3-0 win over Chelsea, the Presidents advanced into Tuesday's quarterfinals against No. 4 Boston Latin Academy. A victory against the Dragons (14-3) would have Quincy playing today against the winner of the first round match between No. 1 Newton North and No. 9 Somerville.

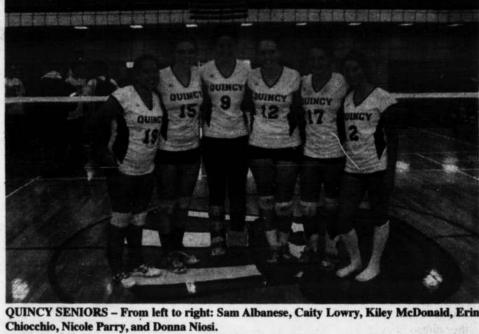

The Central-East Division 1 sectional finals will be held on Nov. 12 (TBA).

Road Back To The Sectional Finals

North Quincy and Quincy learned which road would need to be traveled in order to get back to the Central-East Division 1 sectional finals late last week.

The Red Raiders and the Presidents played last season in the finals with North Quincy edging Quincy, 3-2, to earn a trip to the state semifinal round. This year, both of the city's teams are on another collusion course to play for the sectional title for a second straight season.

The Central-East Division 1 field included 12 teams. North Quincy, which finished the regular season with an 18-2 overall record and won the Patriot League regular season championship was seeded second while Quincy (16-4) was seeded fifth – the teams are on opposite sides of the Central-East bracket.

The Presidents opened the tournament with a first round home game against No. 12 Chelsea last Friday. Quincy easily defeated the Red Devils, 3-0, and played in a quarterfinal match on Tuesday at Boston Latin Academy. The No. 4 Dragons finished their regular season with a 14-3 record.

A win by Quincy on Tuesday would set up a semifinal match today (Thursday) against the winner of the quarterfinal match between No. 1 Newton North and No. 9 Somerville with the winner of this match advancing into Saturday's sectional final (TBA).

The Red Raiders earned a first round bye and played a home quarterfinal match on Tuesday against No. 7 Cambridge Ridge & Latin (12-4). A win by North Quincy would mean that the Red Raiders play at home today (Thursday) in a semifinal match versus the winner of the quarterfinal match between No. 3 Brookline and No. 6 Boston Latin School with the winner moving on to the sectional finals on Saturday.

The 12-team field included: No. 1 Newton North, No. 2 North Quincy, No. 3 Brookline, No. 4 Boston Latin Academy, No. 5 Quincy, No. 6 Boston Latin School, No. 7 Cambridge R & L, No. 8 Madison Park, No. 9 Somerville, No. 10 Newton South, No. 11 Revere and No. 12 Chelsea.

North Quincy Eliminated From Postseason By Falmouth

By SEAN BRENNAN

After qualifying for the Division 1 South girl's soccer tournament on the last day of the regular season, the North Quincy Red Raiders where sent to Falmouth on Saturday to play the Clippers in a preliminary round game.

North Quincy came up just short in their bid for an upset victory. The Red Raiders allowed two second half goals and were eliminated from the state tournament following a 2-0 loss to heavily favored Falmouth. North Quincy ended the season with a 9-9-3 record after advancing into the playoffs for the first time since 2007.

"There are no excuses," said NQHS Head Coach Paul Bregoli on Monday. "The girls played a terrific game and didn't quit. We went out and played but Falmouth was just a little bit better."

Playing in adverse conditions, the Red Raiders lost a pre-game coin flip, which Falmouth used to its advantage. North Quincy was forced to play directly into a strong wind in the game's first 40 minutes. Unable to generate much offense - North Quincy crossed midfield just eight times all half - the game remained scoreless at the break mainly due to the outstanding play of senior keeper Sara Sullivan and strong defense from sophomores Arianna Viscione and Haley McKay and freshman Sydney Chang.

"Sara made some spectacular saves in that first half," Bregoli said about the play of his senior captain. "Our defense behind the efforts of Viscione, McKay and Chang did a great job of holding Falmouth in check. They are a skilled team and we did a nice job slowing them down in the first half."

In the second half, injuries and depth issues finally caught up to the Red Raiders. Thirteen minutes in, Falmouth pushed the action into the North Quincy end of the field, and the Clippers capitalized to take a 1-0 lead. Four minutes later, Sullivan made the initial save on a Falmouth shot from in close, but the rebound landed on the foot of a Clipper forward and was tucked into the a back of the net for the 2-0 advantage. "We had a finger in the

"We had a finger in the dyke most of the game and when (junior) Kayla Sugrue went down with an injury we had to play with one less player," explained Bregoli. "I think it all caught up to us. It was an emotional game and the girls played hard but Falmouth had just a little too much speed and physicality. They are an excellent team."

Bregoli's team may have gone one-and-done in the state tournament, however North Quincy should be a soccer force for seasons to come. The Red Raiders graduate seven seniors, but its core of underclassmen including juniors Jaclyn Scuzzarella, Caitlin Bulger, Lauren Campo, Liz Kelly, Shannon McCleary, Briana Mullaney, Danielle Paschall, and Sugrue along with sophomores Delia Devane, Haley McKay, Abby Smith and Viscione and freshmen Courtney Campo, Ciara Forde and Chang will be back.

This group was critical to the success North Quincy had this fall be it on the backend with Viscione and Chang playing at a high level, at midfield where Courtney Campo put in a solid first year to the front end where McCleary scored a team-high eleven goals.

Replacing the production of players like Sullivan, Kaleen Campo and Taylor McKay – seniors Jonlyn Lydon and Jess O'Donovan missed most of the season with injuries – as well as the leadership of team captain Kelly Byrne and senior Bethany Routier will be a tall task, according to Bregoli.

"Sara Sullivan made herself into an all-star keeper," Bregoli said. "She walked in here her freshman year and said she wanted to play goal and for three years she was a rock. Sara finished with 21 career shutouts and is one of the best keepers we have had."

"Taylor McKay was a great leader and Kaleen Campo was a four-year player who loved to stick her nose in there and was so steady," continued Bregoli. "The whole senior class will be hard to replace but the experienced gained by the underclassmen should only make them into better players next season."

North Quincy qualified for the tournament following their 7-0 victory over Boston English High School back on Nov. 1.

Leading the way for the Red Raiders were McCleary (11th goal), Courtney Campo (three assists), Sugrue (two goals – four overall), Taylor McKay (third goal), Forde (sixth goal), Devane (goal), and Mullaney (assist). Sullivan recorded her seventh shutout of the season in the win.

Team Notes: Senior Sara Sullivan (keeper) was named to her first Patriot League All-Star team... Junior forward Shannon McCleary – team-high 11 goals – was also named to her first Patriot League all-star team... Senior Jess O'Donovan was recognized for her leadership and class by the league's coaches with the Individual Sportsmanship Award.

West Quincy Elks Win Second Straight QYFL Title

The West Quincy Elks and the Milton Mustangs played in the Quincy Youth Football League's 61st annual Championship Game Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

West Quincy prevailed 26-20 on a last second touchdown catch by Michael Ortiz from Doug Santos to capture their second straight OYFL title.

Both teams entered the final with identical 7-1 records and the teams had shared (cochampions) the QYFL Desmond Division crown; both team had also exchanged one-point victories during the regular season.

Milton got on the scoreboard first as running back Stephen Timmins went offtackle for a 17-yard touchdown score on the Mustangs' first drive; running back Joe Quinn (three carries, 61 yards) ran for the conversion to make it a 7-0 game.

West Quincy fired right back late in the first quarter when running back Joe Weinstein scored on a 36yard run - quarterback Santos rushed for the conversion to even the game at 7-7 at the end of the opening quarter. The Elks held the Mustangs on fourth and one on the next series and proceeded to mount a six-play drive that was capped off by a 32-yard TD pass from Santos to John Teixiera - the conversion rushed failed, and the Elks held a 13-7 lead.

In the closing minutes of the half, Milton's Timmins (13 carries, 139 yards, three TDs) scored from 52 yards out and also rushed in the conversion attempt to give Milton 14-13 lead. Timmins later recovered a Elks' fumble and scored on a 48-yard run, his third of the game, to push the score to 20-13 Mustangs at the break.

In the third quarter, both defenses held the highpowered offenses scoreless. Elks' defensive tackle Devonte Brown (11 tackles, fumble recovery) was a force as was Santos, Teixiera, and Weinstein. Milton's Akeem Smith (ten tackles), Devon Nzepuome and Timmins (nine tackles, two fumble recoveries) came up large for the Mustangs on defense.

Trailing 20-13 entering the fourth quarter, West Quincy's spread offense began to gain momentum. The Elks' tied the game at 20-20 after Santos (128 rushing yards) scored on a 59-yard run - he also successfully converted the conversion. Both defenses were strong for the rest of the quarter and it appeared that the game was headed into overtime.

However, the Elks' defense had Milton pinned deep in their own territory with just ten seconds to go in regulation. Facing fourth and eight from their own ten-yard line, the Mustangs, rather than risking a bad snap or a blocked punt, opted to run a fake punt to run out the clock. The Elks' defense stopped the fake and took possession first and goal from the ten-yard line with four seconds left on the game clock.

With just one shot at the end zone, West Quincy Head Coach Justin Thorley decided to use Santos' arm rather than his legs. Santos (3-for-4, two TDs) threw a play action pass to an open Ortiz as time expired giving the Elks their second straight QYFL title, 26-20.

Following the conclusion of the championship game, QYFL President Paul Doherty awarded the West Quincy Elks with the "Founders Cup" Trophy. Fans and staff members that have followed the league over the past 61 years said "this was one of the most exciting games in Quincy Youth Football League history."

Fitness Unlimited Opens Athletic Performance Center

By EMILY TAFT

Fitness Unlimited, located at 364 Granite Ave. in East Milton near the Quincy line, has opened a brand new Athletic Performance Center on the second floor of their facility.

"It was just natural progression to open the center," said President Paul Maduri. "We wanted to bring athletic training to a local facility."

The largest health club facility for women in the South Shore, Fitness Unlimited caters to an individual's needs

"This is a well established facility," said Manager Beth Whitney. "Over the course of 30 years since our opening, we have grown leaps and bounds."

The new center has opened up a whole new area for the business, Whitney said. She said she also uses the trainers at the facility and they push her far more then she would push herself.

The center has been added to the lower level of the building, which also offers other programs for members, and non-members.

The new Athletic Center offers women the opportunity to work locally with personal trainers in a professional sports setting.

"We wanted to bring this kind of exercise locally," said Maduri. "We offer classes that are always unique and never the same."

One of the new programs that take place in the Athletic Performance Center is TRX suspension training.

and flexibility for the total body by implementing one's own body weight and manipulating gravity.

"This is an opportunity for women to increase their current fitness level," said Ann Marie Boylan, the director of Personal Training. "It allows them to sharpen their skills using the drills and training programs that professionals use."

The room allows for a number of participants to hang from the ceiling with the straps that are dangling above.

"It's not only a work out. but the people in the class enjoy themselves as well. They form as a team in these classes," said Boylan. "We want to take everyone comfortably out of their comfort Kevin O'Neill's daughter, Carolina, has noticed a big improvement in her athletic skills after participating in the program.

"Carolina noticed a marked improvement in her speed as well as her cardiovascular conditioning after training with Ann Marie Boylan in the Athletic Performance Center at Fitness

Fitness Unlimited, on top of the new Athletic Performance Center, provides a variety of group exercise Pilates, to cycling, and box-

"The possibilities are endless with this new center," said Whitney. "We have a top notch facility here, and we are here to serve the programs, from yoga and needs of our clients and future clients.

Dental Society Urges Mouthguards For Children

The Massachusetts Dental Society (MDS) wants to alert parents to the necessity of also protecting your children's mouth and teeth with a simple piece of equipment-a mouthguard.

Mouthguards help prevent injury to the mouth area, especially to the teeth, lips, cheeks, and tongue. Even athletes who wear helmets or face shields should wear mouthguards, since they also protect against head and neck injuries by helping to cushion blows.

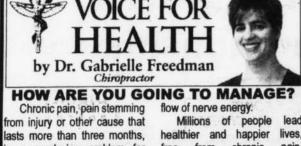

In the court of public opinion, some have argued that mouthguards are not necessary in some sports, such as basketball and soccer, since they are not contact sports. However, players can easily receive blows to the face from an elbow, soccer ball, or basketball. They can also fall face-first onto a hard gymnasium floor or on the field.

There are three types of mouthguards available: the custom-made mouthguard, the boil-and-bite mouthguard, and the stock mouthguard that one can buy in a sporting goods store. Dentists usually recommend that athletes wear custom-made mouthguards. In terms of fit, comfort, and protection, a custom-made mouthguard is by far the best because it is made from a dentist's impression of the teeth. As a result, athletes breathe better, speak more clearly, and most importantly, receive the best protection from an orofacial injury.

Parents, coaches, and athletic directors can help prevent avoidable injuries to students by strongly encouraging their student athletes who participate in contact sports to wear mouthguards during games and practices.

In this way, if players do have to lose, it won't be more than the game.

David B. Baldassini, 53 Retired From US Postal Service; Worked In Healthcare Services

A funeral Mass for David B. "Baldo" Baldassini, 53, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. Baldassini died Nov. 1 at Weymouth Healthcare.

Born in Quincy, he was raised and educated in Quincy schools and was a graduate of Quincy Vo-Tech, Class of 1976. He was a lifelong Quincy resident.

After retiring from the United States Postal Service, he chose a career in healthcare. He was a chair car driver for Fallon Ambulance Company in Quincy for several years. His love for the ill and elderly was one of his best attributes and he received many compliments for his kindness, compassion and never-ending sense of humor.

Mr. Baldassini was an avid motorcyclist and lover of Harley Davidson motorcycles. He lived on the edge and to the fullest. He started riding motorcycles at the age of 15 and was often told he was "fearless" and "one of the best motorcycle riders around."

He built many of his own motorcycles and rode many different types throughout his life. He owned as many as four motorcycles at any given time. He made several trips to Europe with his friends in the Red Emeralds Motorcycle Club. His most favorite places were the Isle

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Let us on Veteran's Day take time to pause and reflect and pray. Let us, as a nation, pause to honor those Veterans living and dead - men and women who have served in the United States

SCOTT DEWARE Armed Services in time of war. They served it well. Many gave up their lives for their country and for the freedoms we enjoy. Let us pray for those who have shed so many tears for those who gave so freely of their lives. On this Veteran's Day let us, also, honor those who have lived to make those freedoms meaningful by post-war service to the disabled comrades, to their neighbors, to their community, to their states and to their nation.

Let us on Veteran's Day, as Americans, stand up and be counted. Let us stand and honor this nation and what it stands for . . . Let us be thankful of all the privileges and advantages we enjoy. . . Let us count our blessings.

ABOVE ALL, let us on this day reaffirm our dedication to the cause of peace with honor throughout the world. . .

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Some changes might seem confusing at first, especially to an Aries whose impatience levels are pretty shaky this week. Take it one step at a time, Lamb, and soon all will be made clear.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) That difficult situation you've been dealing with continues to call for careful handling. Avoid quickly made choices that might not stand up when they're finally put to the test.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You still have lots of evaluating to do before you can consider making a commitment. It's better to move cautiously than to risk stumbling into a major misunderstanding.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A previously peevish partner offers to be more helpful with your problems. But remember: The final choice is yours. Be guided by what you feel is the right thing to do.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) As the Big Cat, you can sometimes be pretty rough on those you suspect of betrayal. The best advice is to pull in those claws and listen to the explanation. It might surprise you.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your inner voice usually guides you well. But a note of caution: This is a period of mixed signals for you, so be careful you don't misunderstand the messages you're getting.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Cupid's call beckons both single Librans looking for a new love, as well as couples hoping to strengthen their relationships. A workplace problem is quickly resolved.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) It's been a hectic time for you, and you might want to take a break to restore both body and soul. You'll then be set to face new challenges later this SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It's a good idea to take a more conservative approach to your financial situation right now. Some plans made earlier this year might need readjusting.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This is a fine time to move boldly into those new opportunities I promised would open up for you. Check them over, and then choose the best one for you.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Congratulations. Your self-assurance is growing stronger, and you should now feel more confident about making that long-deferred decision about a possible commitment.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're very close to reaching your goal. But be wary of distractions that can lure you offcourse and leave you stranded far away from where you really want to be.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have an inner sight that helps you see into people's hearts. You would be an excellent psychologist or social worker.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assis me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mother, place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer 3 consecutive days, and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. M.B.

what's going on in Washington, but the people of this city rejected deception and negativity. I want to take a moment and say thank you to my family members, who chose public service long before I chose to run for mayor, for the great job they do for our city."

Koch said he received a call from Mahoney earlier in the evening congratulating him on his victory. "We want to thank Mrs. Mahoney and wish her well," he said.

The mayor also told supporters:

"We're making great progress because we are working together. Quincy is going to be successful within the next two years because we will continue to work together. Isn't that the way to go?"

Tuesday's election also saw four political newcomers win seats in city government.

They are:

Brad Croall (Ward 2 councillor); Kirsten Hughes (Ward 5 councillor); and Paul Bregoli and Kathryn Hubley (both School Committee).

Five incumbents won reelection in contested races: Joseph Finn and Michael McFarland (councillor atlarge); David McCarthy (School Committee); Kevin Coughlin (Ward 3 councillor) and Brian McNamee (Ward 6 councillor).

Another current office holder - Doug Gutro, who vacated his Ward 5 council seat to run at-large - was elected a councillor at-

In the race for Ward 2 councillor, Croall narrowly edged Steve Perdios by 56 votes. Croall, age 31, of 53 Summer St., collected 1,428 votes. Perdios, age 43, of 86 Ruggles St., polled 1,372

Croall, who works in financial services, will succeed longtime Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi who stepped down before being appointed the city's commissioner of Public Works.

In Ward 5, Hughes made an impressive political debut defeating Neil McCole by 516 votes. Hughes, age 34, of 148 Phillips St., received 1,804 votes. McCole, age 39, of 79 West Elm Ave., collected 1,288 votes as a first-time candidate.

Hughes, an attorney, is the Deputy Finance Director for Sen. Scott Brown. She will succeed Gutro who was elected a councillor at-

Two other first-time candidates made successful debuts Tuesday winning seats on the School Committee.

Paul Bregoli, age 63, a retired Quincy public school teacher and guidance counselor, finished second in the five-candidate school committee race with 8,800 votes to win a four-year term on the board.

Also winning a four-year term was Kathryn Hubley, 41, a homemaker and president of the Quincy Citywide Parents Council from 2009 to 2001. She took the third seat with 7,212 votes.

Incumbent David Mc-Carthy was re-elected to his third four-year term on the School Committee. McCarthy, age 50, a security manager for General Dynamics, topped the School Committee ballot with 10,101 votes.

Finishing in the fourth and fifth spots respectively in the school race and not winning seats were Jay Davis, 46, a former Ward 4 city councillor; and Linda Perry, 57, a member of the Quincy Parent Advisory Council and the Citywide Parents Council. Davis received 6,585 votes while Perry polled 6,257 votes.

Two incumbent ward councillors were re-elected Tuesday.

In Ward 3, incumbent Kevin Coughlin easily won a sixth two-year defeating challenger John C. Cain, Jr. by 1,665 votes. Coughlin, of 19 Small St., and assistant chief probation officer for the state, received 2,367 votes. Cain, of 192 South Central Ave. and a Boston school teacher, collected 702 votes.

In Ward 6, incumbent McNamee Brian his fourth two-year term over Brian Radell by 277 votes. McNamee, age 54, of 133 Commander Shea Blvd., received 1,864 votes while Radell, age 30, of 21 Standish Ave. polled 1,587 votes in his first run for public office.

In the council at-large race, incumbents Joseph Finn and Michael McFarland won re-election as did Doug Gutro who gave up his Ward 5 seat to run at-large.

Finn- who won his sixth term - was the top vote getter city-wide with 11,007 votes. McFarland finished second with 10,143 votes to win his fourth term. Gutro received 10,823 votes to take the third seat.

Finishing fourth in the council at-large race was John Rodophele, Sr. of 62

Two ward councillors were also re-elected Tuesday without opposition. Winning their second two-year terms were Margaret Laforest (Ward 1) with 2,691 votes; and Brian Palmucci (Ward 4) with 2,102 votes.

City-wide voter turnout was disappointing with only 34.91 of the city's 54,632 registered voters casting

The Sun was able to reach some of the winning candidates for comment before going to press late Tuesday evening.

Here's what some of them had to say:

my life."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin: "I want to thank my opponent, John Cain, for running an honorable campaign. He took the high road. I look forward to working with my old colleagues who have been re-elected and we'll have some new councillors who I look forward to working with."

Ward 2 Councillor-elect Brad Croall: "This close race shows every vote counts. I'd like to thank my team, my family. It's not just the candidate who gets involved, it's the family."

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee: "I want to thank the voters for re-electing me and I want to thank Brian Radell for giving the voters a choice. He should be very proud of his efforts."

New City Track At Faxon Field Clears Final Hurdle

School Committee Approves Project By 4-3 Vote

By EMILY TAFT

The proposed city track at Faxon Field cleared its final hurdle last week after the Quincy School Committee voted 4-3 to site the long-awaited track at the site adjacent to Quincy High School.

Supporting the track at the corner of Coddington Street and Southern Artery were Mayor Tom Koch, the chairman of the school committee; and members Jo-Ann Bragg, Emily Lebo and Barbara Isola. Voting against the site were School Committee Vice Chairwoman Anne Mahoney and members David McCarthy and Elaine Dwyer.

"Obviously we are extremely thrilled with the vote," said Geoff Hennessy, head coach of the North Quincy and Quincy High Schools track teams, and director of the Quincy Track Club.

"This was not a sprint, it was a marathon, and like a track meet it had some twist and turns. We finally hit the finish line. This was a long time coming," Hennessy said.

Bragg said the track would compliment the Quincy High School campus.

"I do believe the children have waited long enough," said Bragg. "The kids deserve a track and we need to move forward on this."

The $936,000 track project calls for developing 17 acres of land at Faxon Field with an eight-lane track. There will also be accommodations for a shot put, javelin throw and discus area. The project also entails implementing new drainage systems in the area.

Before the vote, a number of residents of Quincy spoke to the committee about their concerns not only with the way some committee members might be handling the vote, but concerns about doing what's right for the children.

"The track issue has been so emotional for so many people," said Isola. "I've walked the area, I know the area, and my son played baseball at that field. So I know that children have been there for many, many years. It would be a good thing for the city, and the runners out there."

One speaker during the open forum said that certain school committee members need to, "stop the delay in tactics, and the petty politics."

Some even questioned if committee members were thinking of what is good for the children of Quincy and said "do what those who voted you in your chairs would want you to do."

Dwyer said she took offense to the comments that the committee doesn't think about what's best for the children of Quincy.

"There is nobody more that supports children in the Quincy Public School System than the people sitting at this table," said Dwyer. "I agree we need a track, and it's perfectly okay to disagree where the location is."

McCarthy brought up the issue of whether or not the committee needed to rescind the previous vote done in July of 2008. City Solicitor James Timmins said that because it is a different committee and different plan being presented, rescinding the previous vote is not necessary.

"A prior vote of a prior body is not binding," said

Timmins. "This is a different plan, and we never presented an actual plan to any prior committee."

Committee member Bragg said she agreed with what Timmins had said, and that in the last couple of months she has done a lot of research on that particular issue.

"In my opinion we did not have a full presentation, that is what I was asking for in 2008," said Bragg who abstained from the track vote three years ago. "We never heard the detailed information like we did in the last meeting. I have been around for a long time, and this is the most comprehensive flooding plan that I have ever heard for the neighborhood. When I heard from people in the neighborhood, I promised that we needed some type of drainage plan before I voted for the track."

During the school committee's meeting Oct. 19, Mayor Koch presented a plan to build the track at Faxon Field as well as plans to fix the drainage system surrounding Faxon Field.

"After a lot of thinking and deliberating on my own, and after trying to understand all of the things presented to us at the last meeting; a very long meeting, I really do believe that the situation is going to be better for all the residents," said Lebo. "I don't think this track is going to make anything worse for the residents. It is going to be a beautiful section of the city, for everyone to enjoy."

William Seymour presi-

William Seymour, president of Gale and Associates, designed the track and said on Oct. 19th that the track itself will have a drainage system underneath, that can hold up to three-feet of rainwater.

After the 4-3 vote the North Quincy High School Auditorium filled with applause.

"When the vote was taken the place went nuts," said Hennessy. "The top loading phase (of the track) is almost complete, and it looks like it might be ready by June. I am thankful to those who voted to affirm the project. It took a lot of hard work and a lot of individuals to get this passed."

There are so many good reasons to love the 15-Year Mortgage. For some people, it's about being debt-free. Others want the mortgage paid off by the time the kids go to college or before they retire. Some see paying off their mortgage quickly as a kind of "forced" savings. Here's the simple fact: If you can swing the somewhat-higher monthly payments, a 15-Year Mortgage knocks years off your original loan. Your equity builds very quickly. And you pay thousands less in interest, compared to a longer-term mortgage loan. Rates are still at historic lows. How much longer? Who knows. If a 15-Year sounds good to you, let's talk. Soon! Come see us or call Angela Blanchard or Richard Coleman at 617-471-0750. Or apply at colonialfed.com - click the Loans tab. (Also available for debt consolidation and for new home purchases.)

mity Election 2011 is in the books.

This week we're taking a closer look at some of the final numbers from last Tuesday's voting.

Perhaps the most surprising number was the disappointing low turnout.

Only 19,070 of the city's 54,632 registered voters – 34.91 percent – went to the polls last Tuesday. That's about 10 percent lower than the 2007 and 2009 elections.

Of the city's six wards, just one made it above 40 percent voter turnout.

And it wasn't in a ward where there was a contested race for ward councillor.

It was Ward 1 with 40.94 percent.

The rest of the turnout by ward:

Ward 2 – 31.01 percent (contested ward race, open seat); Ward 3 - 35.37 percent (contested ward race, incumbent); Ward 4 – 27.85 percent (no ward council contest); Ward 5 – 37.8 percent (contested ward race, open seat); Ward 6 – 37.16 percent (contested ward race, incumbent).

The precinct with the highest voter turnout was Ward 6 Precinct 5 in Squantum with 58.8 percent. Historically, that area of the city has been among the highest in voter turnout.

Another strong turnout area over the years has been in Ward 1 (Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Merrymount.) Ward 1 had three precincts over 40 percent: Ward 1 Precinct 1 – 49.33 percent, Ward 1 Precinct 4, 45.83 percent and Ward 1 Precinct 5 – 48.09 percent.

If you thought last week was the lowest turnout for a city election with a contested mayor's race in recent history, you'd be right.

And you'd be wrong.

It depends if you look at the percentage - or the actual number of voters.

Percentage-wise, last week's 34.91 percent was the lowest turnout for a city election with a contested mayor's race since the Sun began circulating in September, 1968.

But in terms of the number of voters who actually went to the polls, it is not the nadir.

That dubious distinction goes to the 2003 city election when 18,545 voters went to the polls. That year, then Mayor William Phelan defeated Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton to win a second term.

But the turnout for the 2003 election was 35.20 percent. Even though the number of actual voters was lower in 2003 compared to 2011, the turnout percentage was higher because the city had fewer registered voters eight years ago: 52,684.

It's interesting to note that the turnout was higher in 1983 – 36 percent – when Frank McCauley was unopposed for a second term and in 1999 when Jim Sheets faced token opposition for his sixth term – 36.15 percent.

Why the low turnout?

Couldn't have been the weather. Nov. 8 was unseasonably warm and sunny.

Some say the public has grown more cynical of government, especially at the federal level. And cynicism leads to voter apathy.

But four years ago, 70.65 percent of the city's registered voters went to the polls in the Presidential Election.

Perhaps it will require an open mayor's seat to generate a turnout higher than 50 percent in a city election.

Consider the last three times that's happened:
• 1989 – Jim Sheets elected to the first of six terms – 60.2

- 1989 Jim Sheets elected to the first of six terms 60.2 percent turnout.
- 1981 Frank McCauley elected to his first of four terms 62.9 percent.
- 1971 Walter Hannon elected to his first of two terms 72 percent.

Or maybe the lower turnout is just a sign of the times and the fact that people in general are working longer and harder just to put food on the table. And if they don't have the time to fully educate themselves on local races and candidates, maybe they shy away from the voting booth.

Here are some other numbers that you may find interesting from Election Day:

· MAYOR'S RACE

Mayor Tom Koch was re-elected to a third term by a comfortable margin: 2,140 votes or nearly 12 percentage points over School Committee Vice Chairwoman Anne Mahoney. Koch polled 10,510 votes to Mahoney's 8,340.

There were 162 blanks cast in the mayoral voting with another 58 write-ins.

Koch won 27 out of 30 precincts and five out of six wards. Koch's largest plurality was in Ward 6 where he won by 679 votes. There he polled 2,097 votes to Mahoney's 1,418 votes.

The rest of the mayor's race by ward:

Ward 2 - Koch 1,604 votes, Mahoney 1,275 - margin 329 votes.

Ward 3 - Koch 1,828 votes, Mahoney 1,281 - margin 547 votes.

Ward 4 - Koch 1,381 votes, Mahoney 1,196 - margin 186 votes.

Ward 5 - Koch 1,865 votes, Mahohey 1,415 - margin 450 votes.

Mahoney won Ward 1 by 20 votes. She polled 1,755 votes to Koch's 1,735. She took Ward 1 Precinct 4 by 32 votes, Ward 1 Precinct 5 by 30 votes and Ward 4 Precinct 2 by four votes.

• WARD 2 CITY COUNCIL

This race was last Tuesday's "barn-burner."

A mere 56 votes from the 2,800 cast separated winner Brad Croall from runner-up Steve Perdios. After giving a recount some consideration earlier this week, Perdios opted against it. (A Letter to the Editor appears on Page 5.)

On Election Night, the final numbers showed Croall the winner with 1,428 votes to Perdios's 1,372 votes.

Croall won three of the wards five precincts, Perdios the

Here's the Ward 2 vote by precinct:

- Precinct 1 Perdios 278 votes, Croall 253 votes.
- Precinct 2 Croall 434, Perdios 371.
- Precinct 3 Perdios 291, Croall 197.
- Precinct 4 Croall 221, Perdios 211.

Precinct 5 – Croall 323, Perdios 293.
 Voter turnout in Ward 2 was 31 percent (2,921 voters out of 9,421 registered.)

• WARD 6 CITY COUNCIL

This was another close race with incumbent councillor Brian McNamee holding off an impressive showing by first-time candidate Brian Radell. McNamee kept the seat and won a fourth term with a 277-vote victory. Radell defeated McNamee in Ward 6 Precinct 5 by 118 votes but McNamee finished first in the ward's other four precincts to secure reelection.

Here's how Ward 6 voted in the council race:

- Precinct 1 McNamee 266 votes, Radell 187.
- Precinct 2 McNamee 248, Radell 184.
- Precinct 3 McNamee 480, Radell 279.

- Precinct 5 Radell 684, McNamee 566.
   Turnout in Ward 6 was 37.2 percent (3,550 voters, 9,552 registered).

WARD 5 CITY COUNCIL

The race to fill Ward 5 council seat vacated by Doug Gutro also featured two strong first-time candidates. In the end, Kirsten Hughes made a big political splash on Election Night, winning the seat by 516 votes over Neil McCole. Hughes won four of the five precincts in Ward 5:

- Precinct 1 Hughes 377 votes, McCole 291 votes.
- Precinct 2 Hughes 407, McCole 186.
- Precinct 3 Hughes 288, McCole 140.
- Precinct 4 Hughes 399, McCole 282.
   Precinct 5 McCole 389, Hughes 333.

Turnout in Ward 5 was 37.9 percent (3,322 voters out of 8,733 registered.

· Councillor at-Large

In the Councillor at-Large race, the order of finish was Joseph Finn first (11,007 votes), Doug Gutro second (10,823) and Michael McFarland third (10,143). First-time candidate John Rodophele, Sr. finished fourth with 5,250 votes.

Finn – the top vote-getter in the election – finished first in 17 precincts. Gutro topped the ballot in seven precincts (including all five in Ward 5 where he served as a ward councillor for 10 years) and McFarland was first in five precincts.

Gutro piled up a big cushion in Ward 5 – 851 votes more than Finn and 869 more than McFarland – enroute to his second-place finish. The vote totals in Ward 5 were 2,464 for Gutro, 1,613 for Finn and 1,595 for McFarland.

THE INAUGURATION CEREMONIES for Quincy's re-elected and newly-elected officials will be held in the evening Tuesday, Jan. 3 at Quincy High School. It will be the first swearing-in and collation held at the new high school since opening its doors in September, 2010.

It will also mark the second straight inaugural with four new elected officials being seated. They are Croall in Ward 2 (unless a recount shows Perdios the winner); Hughes in Ward 5; and School Committee members Paul Bregoli and Kathryn Hubley.

So, when you factor in the new faces from 2009 (Margaret Laforest (Ward 1), Brian Palmucci (Ward 4) and School Committee members Emily Lebo and Barbara Isola, city government is experiencing 50 percent turnover of the 16 local elected officials the last two elections. (You could say more than half if you consider Gutro the fifth new office holder since he'll move from a ward councillor to councillor at-large.)

NORFOLK COUNTY COMMISSIONER John Gillis appears he will most likely seek his sixth term next year. Gillis, the long-time Quincy city clerk, was elected a Norfolk County commissioner in 1992. An official announcement is expected in January.

ANOTHER FORMER city official – former Ward 1 councillor Greg Hanley, will announce today (Thursday) that he is a candidate for Plymouth County commissioner. Hanley will host a kick-off at J.P. Ryans Tavern in Abington from 6 to 9 p.m.

Hanley moved from Quincy to Pembroke some time ago and is a member of the town's Board of Selectmen.

BELATED WEDDING WISHES to Chris Cassani, director of Constituent Services for Mayor Tom Koch, and his bride, Laura. They were recently married at St. Paul Parish in Cambridge followed by a reception at the Hyatt Regency Cambridge.

Laura is originally from Seattle and attended Boston University and Georgetown. She works in the defense industry as a contractor in Waltham.

Chris is a Weymouth native, attended BU and is enrolled in the MBA program at the University of Massachusetts in Boston.

The couple honeymooned in California with stops in San Francisco, Monterey and Napa Valley.

Chris also brought home some fond memories from a round of golf at storied Pebble Beach.

"As an avid golfer and sportsfan, playing Pebble Beach was more than just another round of golf," Chris said. "There's history at every turn, and the sheer beauty of the course causes you to have to cope with goosebumps while trying to play your next shot."

He was able to contain his nerves. Chris chipped in for par on the famous 8th hole, and birdied the par four 13th hole on his way to carding an 83.

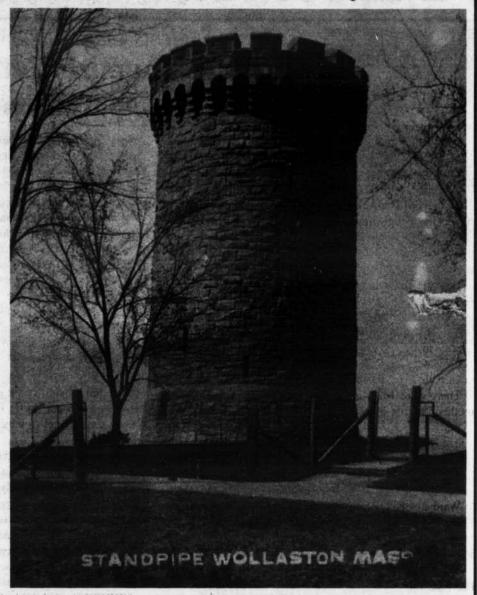

Congratulations, Chris and Laura.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1911 real photo postcard view of the standpipe that rises 77 feet above the top of Forbes Hill in Wollaston. Also known as Third Hill, the hill itself is 190 feet above sea level. Inside this tower is a 30-foot diameter steel tank that is 64-feet tall. It was built to hold 330,000 gallons of water. The inside edge of the granite shell is actually a little over three feet from the outside of the steel tank and in the gap a steel and cast iron spiral staircase is enclosed winding around the tank to the top. The mostly Quincy granite shell is 4 3/4 feet thick around the base and tapers to twofeet thick where the overhang protrudes. It weighs several thousand tons. Some Rockport granite was used at the top of the tower where many pieces weight six tons each. The Metropolitan Water Commission built the standpipe and a now filled-in adjacent reservoir as a backup water supply for Quincy in 1902. ## QCARE Gives Thanks For Support

QCARE would like to thank certain individuals and organizations/businesses who contributed to the success of our Anti-Bullying Event on Nov. 4th at Broad Meadows Middle School. The State Street Corporation was our generous event sponsor who made the evening possible. Kaleidoscope Theatre and their amazing cast members performed the play, B.U.L.L.Y. which was educational and fun for all audience members. The Quincy Parent Advisory Council to Special Education was ready and willing to join forces and represented their organization at the event with a table of adlitional resources and information. Also, Quincy Public Schools and Mr. Taglieri were very kind to allow us to host the event at Broad Meadows Auditorium.

Joe Catalano and his crew at QATV assisted us in the promotion of our event and warmly welcomed us into the studio for our radio and television interviews. Officer Bill Mitchell, of the OPD Community Policing Unit, who's presence showed QPD's commitment to Quincy's Anti-Bullying efforts. QCARE's Board of Directors Treasurer and School Committee Member, Jo-Ann Bragg, for representing Quincy Public Schools and spoke about their AntiBullying policies. We also were happy that newly elected School Committee Member, Kathy Hubley and her family, were able to attend the event.

Businesses and organizations were very kind to allow us to advertise at their locations and we thank: Thomas Crane Public Library, Richard's Convenience, Coffee Break Cafe, Fratelli's Bakery, Quincy Youth Arena, BabyCakes, Balducci's House of Pizza, Atlantic Dance Studios, Red Apple Convenience, Petco, Bay State Community Services, and Wollaston Beauty Box. We also thank QCAP and QPS PTOs across the city for their promotion of our event to their families.

Additionally, QCARE would like to thank Broad Meadows Middle School's custodians, Joe Bianchi and Mike Campanelli, who were welcoming from the time we entered the building and extremely helpful through-

A Thank You To Ward 2 From Steve Perdios

On Tuesday, Nov. 8th, 49 percent of the voters that went to the polls in Ward 2 voted for me. That's a very humbling experience.

Thank you to all of you. My family and I really appreciate the support. Many of you have reached out to us this past week with words of support and for that we are grateful as well. To all those that worked on my campaign, you will always have the gratitude of my family and I. Thank you from the bottom of my heart.

Many have suggested that we ask for a recount with only a 56 vote difference between the candidates out of more than 2,800 ballots cast.

While I believe it is highly unlikely that the outcome of the election will change at all, there have been some good arguments made in favor of asking for a recount. However, history shows that very few recounts ever change the outcome and those that did have a smaller difference in the vote separation and more total ballots cast.

Although the cost for the recount would have only been a few thousand dollars, it is more than I am willing to ask of the city with such low chance of changing the outcome.

And to all of the many

Ward 2 residents that I met on the campaign trail that were generous enough to open their hearts to tell me about stories of their lives, you have changed me as a person. The stories of dealing with difficult economic times, near foreclosures, or health issues, battles with cancer or other debilitating conditions, or the many frustrations felt in dealing with city government – all of these stories have touched me.

I will never forget them.

I have thoroughly enjoyed meeting all of you.

Thank for your generosity and your kindness.

18-Year Old Drinking Law: 'A Nightmare'

By FRANK McCAULEY

Passage of the 18-year old drinking law has helped create what Quincy Police Chief Francis X. Finn calls "an absolute nightmare for the police force."

Since July 1, 1973 when the state's legal drinking age was lowered, Chief Finn said, Quincy has witnessed:

Finn said, Quincy has witnessed:
The doubling of juvenile drinking arrests; an increase in the assault of Quincy police officers by intoxicated youth;

the consumption of liquor by children as young as ten, and an increase in automobile accidents involving teenage drivers.

Chief Finn commented, "The assault and battery on police Chief Finn commented, "The assault and battery on police officers is unbelievable. It is not uncommon for 15 and 16-year olds to whack an officer."

Now," says Finn, "with the lowering of the drinking age the 18-year olds are buying liquor for the 11, 12 and 13-year olds, sometimes for the 10-year olds."

COUNCIL VOTES TO BOYCOTT SUGAR

Ward One Councillor Leo J. Kelly successfully sponsored a Council resolve for a citywide boycott of sugar during the Thanksgiving week.

Citing that the price of sugar "has tripled within a matter of days," Kelly also urged neighboring cities and towns to join Quincy in the sugar boycott.

Through the boycott Kelly said, government officials and citizens could "work together in a united effort to abate this injustice in our economy."

Laraia survey shows opposition To NEW NQ HIGH SCHOOL

A total of 116 out of 219 respondents to a questionnaire sponsored by Quincy City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, oppose the construction of a new North Quincy High School, according to LaRaia.

LaRaia printed the questionnaire in a local newspaper "to check on reports of public opposition to the new school." It also appears in today's edition of The Quincy Sun.

LaRaia says he still remains "open minded" on the matter but will "probably vote along with public opinion."

Culinary Students Cook Turkeys, Host Pie Sale

QHS Supports Father Bill's Thanksgiving Community Dinner

Career and Technical Education Culinary Arts Program will cook more than 70 turkeys at the school's new culinary facility to serve at the FBMS Thanksgiving Community Dinner held at Christ Episcopal Church in Quincy on Thanksgiving Day.

Additionally, the culinary arts students will host a pie sale Tuesday, Nov. 22 at Quincy High School from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Proceeds of $1 from the sale of each pie will go to support programs at FBMS.

For nearly 20 years, FBMS has hosted a Thanksgiving Dinner in the Quincy community, providing a Thanksgiving meal to over 300 individuals and families in need during the holidays.

Coordinated by Father Bill's Place Kitchen Coordinator Paul Anderson, generous donations of turkeys are made each year helping support more meals for more individuals. Partnering with FBMS for the second year, the culinary students learn how to properly cook, carve a turkey and give back to the community, led by instructors Mark Kelly, Patrick Noe and William Gulvna.

A variety of pies and baked goods will be on sale on Nov. 22 at the high school. Pies will be sold for $7 each. Orders of five or more pies can be made in advance by calling William Gulvna at 617-376-3328.

"We are thrilled to partner with Father Bill's & MainSpring once again this year," said Keith Segalla, Quincy Public Schools executive director of Career & Technical Education and Instructional Technology.

"Not only does this partnership give our students a wonderful learning opportunity to enhance their culinary skills, it also teaches them about civic responsibility and community service. We are proud to be a part of Father Bill's & MainSpring's mission and help support those in need in the Quincy community.

Potato Crusted Halibut

Most fish need some kind of enhancement or they are bland- with the exception of scallops and shrimp that have such a distinctive flavor of their own they hardly need anything else.

Today's recipe for halibut has a few other ingredients to make a delicious treat and so different. Other fish can be used, but halibut usually comes thicker sliced and makes this dish unique as you will see.

POTATO CRUSTED HALIBUT

1 large potato (sliced on a Mandoline slicer)

4 pieces of halibut Salt and pepper Olive oil for drizzling Parchment paper Vegetable oil for sautéing

First slice the potato and set aside. If you don't have a slicer, try it by hand and make them very thin.

Season the halibut with salt, pepper, and a little olive oil.

On a piece of parchment or waxed paper, arrange the slices of potato. Over the potato, place the halibut in the center of the potatoes. Roll the potatoes around the halibut until the potato fully covers the fish. Refrigerate for

In a large frying pan, heat the vegetable oil. Sauté the halibut turning carefully until the potatoes resemble potato chips. It seems like a lot of work, but well worth it.

Cub Scout Pack 42 of Quincy was busy in October selling popcorn for their annual fundraising. Their combined efforts raised $6,100 to send Popcorn to

The boys worked hard towards their individual goals selling popcorn at local supermarkets and to their neighbors, family and the Military overseas.

This achievement could not have been accomplished without the young scouts, their parents, leaders and the commitment of all involved in Pack 42. The group thanked the citizens of Quincy who have been kind enough to support the fundraising efforts whether they bought popcorn or offered $1 - it all helps.

Trails End and the Boys Scouts of America have teamed up for 30 years providing a great fundraising tool for local scouting. Selling popcorn helps local Packs provide fun events for the boys, pay for Cub Scouts to attend summer camps, and many prize incentives depending on level of selling, including college scholarship funds.

Push On To Preserve 'Heritage Elm' In Wollaston

Wollaston Garden Club Makes Plea But City Says Tree Is In Decline

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Wollaston Garden Club is pushing to preserve an elm tree on the site of the proposed new Central Middle School.

The tree in question is considered a "heritage elm" by the club's members because of its age and size; it's thought to be over 100 years old. The city's plan is to cut-down the tree to make way for a parking area for the school.

The group's members have been writing to the mayor to voice their concerns. In a letter obtained by the Sun, WGC member Edith Sheehan urged the mayor to reconsider his

"Please, please Mr. Mayor, don't deprive us of our very strong hearty, elm tree

But the garden club's members disagree with that assertion. "I've done some research on the elm," said Elaine McGrail, who sits on the club's conservation committee but admits she has no formal arborist training. "I took a small branch from the tree, I checked the inner portion and it had lots of sap and it had buds for next year."

She also wants an outside expert to investigate the tree and plans on contacting UMass Extension's forestry diagnostics lab. "They can take wood from the tree," she said, "and determine if it's diseased."

The club's president, Pat Artis, said she spoke with the mayor at the beginning of the month and was unsure what he meant by saying the tree is in decline. "The word of the arborist is 'decline'

"We have no idea what it means."

The tree was originally planted outside the Winfield House Restaurant. The restaurant, where Sheehan said she went to once a week with her mother, closed in 1988 and was razed 10 years later. The city purchased the land from Eastern Nazarene College as part of the $50 million Central Middle School project.

ect for Downtown Quincy." As part of the agreement between the group and the City of Quincy, there must be three Core Public Improvements made: streetscape improvements between City Hall and the Church of the Presidents, a new bridge connecting Burgin Parkway and Cliveden Street, and rerouting the Town River culvert.

The city's legislative delegation called the grant another significant benchmark for the downtown revitalization project.

This money is another sign of the state's growing support and enthusiasm for the Downtown Quincy project," said Sen. John F. Keenan. "This project is being viewed as a critical piece of the state's economic recovery, as well as a template for future downtown redevelopment efforts."

"I would like to thank Executive Office of Housing and Economic Development Secretary Greg Bialecki for his commitment to Quincy and this project through the MassWorks program. Moving the Town Brook is essential to the future of this project, one of the most important in the Commonwealth," said Rep. Ronald Mariano.

"We are pleased to secure this additional funding, which moves the project one step closer towards its goal," said Rep. Tackey Chan, D-Quincy.

"During these tough fiscal times, it is paramount that we secure the necessary funding for the city's infrastructure needs for future growth. This investment will pay dividends towards future businesses and emopportunities" ployment said Rep. Bruce Ayers.

Street-Works' $1.6 billion investment plan calls for one million new square feet of office space, 700 new residential units, 570,000 square feet of retail space, 4,100 temporary construction jobs, and 5,700 permanent jobs.

Street-Works recently announced it has signed a deal with National Realty Development Corp., the nation's largest developer of retail space, to recruit tenants for the new downtown area.

The Third Annual Glennon Family Christmas Party to Benefit the Jimmy Fund will be held Friday, Dec. 2 from 7 p.m. to midnight at the Tirrell Room, 254 Quarry St., Quincy.

Tickets are $25 and all proceeds will directly benefit the Pediatric Patient Assistance Fund at The Jimmy Fund/Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. The event will feature a live auction, silent auction, and raffle prizes. This year, the door prize is an iPad2.

In the past two years, the event has raised over $50,000 that has gone directly to the Jimmy Fund. The fundraiser is organized by Sean and Jo-Anne (Hidalgo) Glennon in honor of their eight-year old daughter, Avery.

Shortly before her first birthday, Avery was diagnosed with optic glioma, cancerous tumor that is growing around the optic nerve in her brain. Avery endured 13 months of chemotherapy, which has successfully shrunk the tumor by 30 percent and Avery is now a happy; healthy second grader.

Because they have experienced firsthand what it's like to have a daughter with cancer, the Glennons wanted to do something to "pay it forward" for other families who find themselves in a similar situation.

"We have always considered ourselves to be extremely fortunate to have the support and assistance of our family, friends and community," said Sean Glennon. "It's great to be able to give something back to another family who needs the sup-

City Partners With State, Local Non-Profit On Affordable Housing Project

A vacant single-family bungalow on Winter Street in South Quincy has been demolished to make way for a 25,000 square foot affordable housing development called "Winter Gardens."

The project has been made possible through a partnership between the City of Quincy's Department of Planning and Community Development, the Massachusetts Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD), and Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore.

"This is a perfect example of how the federal, state and local governments work in tandem with a non profit to achieve our common goal of creating affordable hous-

The new development will consist of a wood-frame, three-story building with an elevator, and will include 24 family-affordable rental units, with parking for 38 cars.

Eighteen of the units will be reserved for households with a maximum income of 60% of area median income, while six units will be reserved for extremely low income families and individuals whose income are expected to range from 15-30% of area median income. There will be six Section 8 project-based vouchers provided by DHCD.

The City of Quincy has supported the project since its inception by allocating $475,000 in local HOME Program funds through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, and $250,000 for acquisition and early development costs from the local Affordable Housing Trust Fund Committee, Chaired by Dennis E. Harrington, Quincy Planning Director.

Other funding sources include $1,000,000 from DHCD's HOME program; $1,000,000 from DHCD's Affordable Housing Trust Fund; $60,985 from Quincy's Community Development Block Grant Program; and $535,884 from the Community-Based Housing Loan Program of Community Economic Development Assistance Corporation (or CEDAC). The Quincy Crisis Center, a program partner of the Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion, is preparing for its "Help for the Holidays" Thanksgiving deliveries.

The deliveries will be made Saturday, Nov. 19 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Volunteers are needed to deliver bags of non-perishable food and a turkey to more than 300 households throughout Quincy and the South Shore.

Families and youth groups may participate together.

Delivery help is also needed Nov. 21-23.

Anyone who is interested in volunteering should call 617-847-6967 to schedule a delivery time.

In preparing for the holiday deliveries, the following food is needed: Gravy, stuffing mix, cranberry sauce and desserts.

Food donations are being accepted at 282 Billings Rd., Quincy, Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Seasonal Frozen Yogurts Flavors Added To Common Market Yogurt Bar

The Common Market Restaurants announce they have added seasonal flavors to their popular self serve yogurt bar, located inside their food court at 110 Willard St. (across the street from the main restaurant).

For the Thanksgiving holiday season they have added Spiced Apple Pie and Pumpkin Pie. After Thanksgiving they will have Candy Cane, Chocolate Mint and Eggnog for the Christmas season.

The "Yogurt Bar" has proved extremely popular with local residents. It showcases a self-serve concept via a row of yogurt machines encased in a wall of glass tiles that have 18 yogurt dispensing levers. The levers feature 12 rotating delicious flavors or premium quality frozen yogurt. All flavors are fat free or low fat and feature probiotics, which can help promote a healthy digestive and immune system. They are also a great source of protein and calcium.

Yogurt Bar (at The Healthy Kitchen) offers an equally impressive array of serf-serve market fresh fruit, fun toppings like Fruitty Pebbles®, Gummi Bears®, Oreos®, and an assortment of sensational sauces. In all, they feature over 50 toppings, and in conjunction with the unique yogurt offerings, you are guaranteed thousands of flavorful combinations. Predetermined portions are a thing of the past. Since you pay by the ounce, you can have as little or as much of everything as

The Common Market's fast casual food court is located across the street from the restaurant company on Willard Street. In the food court they operate The Fish'n Chicken, The Pasta & Pizza Caffe, The Healthy Kitchen and their catering company.

ENC Winter Commencement Dec. 10

Eastern Nazarene College will hold its winter commencement exercises Saturday, Dec. 10 at 2 p.m. in the Cove Fine Arts Center located on the college's East Elm campus in Wollaston.

ENC President Corlis McGee will lead the commencement exercises, at which students will receive associate's, bachelor's and master's degrees from the Christian liberal arts college. The program also will feature a commencement address by Kenneth Mills,

A graduate of ENC, Mills is the Nazarene district superintendent for the Mid-Atlantic District, where he has served since 1997 after five years as the New England district superintendent. Those leadership roles followed many years of ministry in the Church of the Nazarene as a senior pastor in Nashua, NH, Danvers, Mass., and Newton Falls, OH; as minister to college and youth in Nashville, Tenn.; and as minister to youth and music in Canton.

Mills has been chairman of the ENC Board of Trustees since 2006. He graduated from ENC in 1966 with a BA in psychology and a minor in biblical literature. He then received the Master of Divinity degree with a concentration in theology from Nazarene Theological Seminary and the Doctor of Ministry degree with a concentration in Preaching and Worship from Boston University. In October, Mills was honored with Eastern Nazarene College's Alumnus of the Year Award, presented during the college's annual Homecoming Celebration.

In the event of inclement weather, the commencement exercises will be held Sunday, Dec. 11.

Double Utility Poles Spark Debate At Council Meeting

By SCOTT JACKSON

Double utility poles sparked quite a debate at Monday's city council meeting.

Ward Four Councillor Brian Palmucci called the adjacent poles, left behind when a utility company replaces an existing one, a "blight on our neighborhoods." Under state law, the poles must be removed within 90 days.

As part of the "Utility Responsibility Package" proposed by Palmucci, the pole's owner would face fines starting at $100 after 90 days. Thirty days after that, the fine would increase to $300 a day and then reach $500 a day after another 30 days.

Councillor-at-Large Mike McFarland contrasted their overdue removal to consumer's being late on their bills.

"We have in the city of Quincy about 25,000 house-holds," he said. "Every month they get electric bills, telephone bills, cable bills. Every month on those bills they have a date [to pay by] and if you pay your bills a day late you get a service charge."

But Verizon spokesman

Rick Colon told the council the 90-day deadline for removal isn't feasible.

"I don't think it's reasonable to expect a poll to come out in 90 days," he said.

Colon also noted that the city has fewer double polls than comparable municipalities. "The city of Quincy," he said, "has a very small double pole problem compared to other cities of similar size."

But that didn't please Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro. "It brings me no comfort that we have fewer double poles than other communities," he said.

Colon refused to divulge how long each double pole had been in place, telling the council he "wasn't going to go there" with them.

Other parts of the package were also on the agenda. One of the proposals calls for using paint that removes more easily to mark sidewalks and roads.

"One of the worst things I've seen since I've been a councillor," Palmucci said, "is that we repave a road and shortly after there's this permanent spray paint from the utilities and even from the city...that marks up the street for years."

Colon noted his company wasn't the one responsible for the markings but also said the request was fair.

"I don't think it's an unreasonable request to use a paint that is less durable.
Those Dig Safe marks are only good for a period of 30 days anyway. At the end of that time if the project hasn't started they have to be re-marked so there's no sense having a paint that last six years if you have to go back out and re-mark."

When asked by Palmucci if Verizon would switch paints without being told to do so by the council, Colon said the company would talk to its contractor, On Target Utility Services, about the issue.

The package would also require companies to obtain permits before digging up streets or sidewalks, except in emergency situations such as water main breaks. The initial proposal called for the Building Department to issue the permits, but that was amended to the Department of Public Works at the request of DPW Commissioner Dan Raymondi.

Another amendment obliges those who seek the permits to notify residents of a street affected by construction and the ward councillor, or councillors, representing them to be notified at least ten days before ground is broken.

Council President Kevin Coughlin, who represents Ward 3, proposed the notification amendment. "The one thing I hate receiving is a phone call from a constituent saying 'councillor, what's going on my street' and we don't know," he said.

Raymondi also inquired about using digital signs, similar to the ones used to tell drivers when the Fore River Bridge is going up, to notify people about projects. He admitted that his department can't fund it, but he said contractors could be made to purchase them as part of the permitting process.

National Grid was also invited to the meeting but they were unable to send a representative as they deal with aftereffects of last month's nor'easter.

The council delayed a vote on the package until their Dec. 5 meeting.

At the end of the meeting Coughlin and Raymondi also discussed a possible mail scam. They each received letters from HomeServe, offering insurance for water breaks on their property. Raymondi asked that residents who receive the letter read it entirely and recommended they not signup for it.

Coughlin also noted some of the exclusions listed on the back made him suspicious. "There's general exclusions on the back of it, he said. "One of the things it talks about is pre-existing conditions, you're excluded if they're pre-existing conditions, well I'm assuming if you have pipe that's been there 30 years there may be some pre-existing conditions."

Veterans' Day Speaker James Fratolillo: 'America Owes A Debt To Her Veterans That Can Never Be Repaid'

By EMILY TAFT

Veterans' Day keynote speaker James Fratolillo, a U.S. Army Vietnam combat veteran, said America owes a debt of gratitutde to its veterans that can never be repaid.

Fratolillo, a past state commander of the American Legion, also spoke of his experience during and after the war as the keynote speaker at last Friday's Quincy Veterans' Day ceremony at the Adams Academy.

As Fratolillo spoke to the crowd on Veterans' Day he pointed to the World War I "doughboy" statue at Adams Academy, where a wreath and Gold Star were placed during the ceremony.

"If you can read the inscription (on the doughboy), thank a teacher, because it's a dough boy and it's written in English.

"Thank a veteran. America owes a debt to her veterans that can never be repaid."

Fratolillo enlisted in the Army at the age of 17 with a friend from school.

"I had the great idea of quitting high school and joining the U.S Army," said Fratolillo. "They had a special back then, a buddy system, where you were guaranteed to be with a friend if you both signed up."

In 1966 the two young men, Fratolillo, 17, and his friend named Larry, 18, shipped off to boot camp.

A year later, both ended up in Vietnam, but in different units and different parts of the country. After sustaining injuries Fratolillo was sitting in a base camp when he picked up an old Stars and Stripes paper and saw an obituary for his best friend.

"My only coping skills at the time were either to deny or at least consciously not acknowledge the fact that it happened, pushing it back in my mind," said Fratolillo. "To face reality of the grim prospect of your own death, and to see your buddies die, it took me 25 years to deal with the anger and guilt."

Fratolillo said there are more then just the casualties of war than what is listed on the memorials. There are those who have died after serving, because of the impact the war had on them.

For Fratolillo it was a difficult journey to deal with the anger and guilt and one day he decided he didn't want to be a victim of war.

"I no longer wanted to be a victim. I did not want to give the enemy the satisfaction of keeping me on their casualty list," said Fratolillo. "When I first put on that uniform it was not because of a sense of obligation or zealous patriotism, and I certainly did not understand the commitment."

About a year after joining, on a rainy, dreary evening on a base camp in Vietnam reading a crumpled newspaper, Fratolillo said he finally understood what the true cost of duty was. "I understood commitment, and I understood the price we pay for freedom."

Fratolillo served with the 1st Field Forces Vietnam (Forward) Division, and received the Purple Heart after being wounded in 1968.

Before the ceremony at the Adams Academy, veterans, elected officials, high school students and scouts of all ages walked the parade route from Scammell Street along Quincy Avenue to Hancock Street. The route was lined with supporters for local veterans who have served in the armed services.

"As a son of a World War II veteran and a brother of a U.S. Army Vietnam era veteran, it has more of a personal meaning," said Mayor Tom Koch.

"It's a great day to pause and to say thank you, express our gratitude to the veterans past and veterans today that continue to serve around the world,

"It's not a day to celebrate; it's a day to recognize and express our thanks."

Quincy resident Trish Farulla and her mom Lucy have attended the parade for more than 15 years. Each year they hold signs that say thank you to the veterans.

Lucy and Trish have a number of family members who have served or are serving, but said they would have come anyway because they wanted honor those who have kept us free. The pair was among many others to hold signs that day showing appreciation, and the common theme between every sign, and every speech given was "thank you" to all the veterans that have served and those who are still serving our country today.

"How could we not (make signs and honor the veterans)," said Lucy. "It is such a significant day. We have to say thank you. They are the reason we walk around."

tanzanite, you will never forget it. Discovered in 1967 in its namesake Tanzania, this gorgeous blue-violet gemstone may be young, but it has become so popular that the American Gem Trade Association announced in 2002 that it joined turquoise and blue zircon as a birthstone for December. The most prized color of tanzanite is blue surrounded by a hint of purple. Those fortunate enough to come into possession of this lovely gemstone will soon realize that it lends itself to cutting in just about any shape, from classical round to any number of designer shapes. When wearing tanzanite jewelry,

Sons Of American Legion 294 Veterans Day Observance

The Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Cyril P Morrisette held a Veterans' Day at the Flags for Veterans Island in Fort Square on Veterans' Day.

Commander Paul Moody opened the program by thanking Mayor Thomas P. Koch, elected officials and guests for coming. Commander Moody then announced that the Sons had donated a flag at the island in memory the mayor's late father, Richard J. Koch, Sr.

The program was turned over to master of ceremonies, Larry Norton, past commander, American Legion Post 294 and the commander of the Vietnam Combat Veterans.

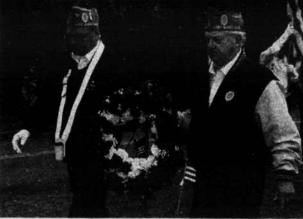

Joe McDonald, chaplain for the Sons, gave the invocation.

Mayor Koch brought the greetings from the city, then the raising of the flags by Sgt.-at-Arms Thomas Stansbury and Adjutant Steven Fowles.

The guest speaker was George Bouchard, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council. Bouchard spoke of what the Sons do for the veterans, including

'Saving The Reality' WWII Documentary To Premiere Dec. 7 At 305 Port, Marina Bay

The World War II Foundation will premiere in Quincy a new documentary entitled Saving the Reality on the 70th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor and America's entrance into the war.

The event will be held Wednesday, Dec. 7 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Port 305, Marina Bay, North Quincy.

Saving the Reality chronicles the life work of renowned historian and collector Kenneth Rendell, owner and curator of the Museum of World War II in Natick. The museum houses the largest private collection of WWII artifacts in the world.

The documentary was directed by filmmaker Tim Gray and narrated by Hollywood star Dan Aykroyd.

Guests will have the opportunity to meet veterans featured in the film. There will also be a silent auction of items including autographed mementos from the HBO series "Band of Brothers" and members of the legendary 101st Airborne Unit.

The event will be hosted by acclaimed journalist Josh Binswanger, award-winning host of History Channel's series "Saving History." The event will feature a discussion with the filmmakers and veterans of Pearl Harbor, D-Day and the Battle for Iwo Jim.

Tickets for the event are $100 each and include dinner, cocktails and valet parking.

Tickets can be purchased at 617-302-4447.

All proceeds will benefit the World War II Foundation.

The foundation's mission is to produce educational films and create initiatives recognizing the bravery and enormous contributions made by the men and women of the United States military during World War II so that future generations of Americans appreciate the determination and sacrifices that enabled perpetuation of our basic freedoms.

Marina Bay Civic Association Annual Meeting Sunday

The Marina Bay Civic Association will hold its annual meeting Sunday, Nov. 20 at 5 p.m. in the Cafeteria at 500 Victory Road.

The meeting will begin at 5 p.m. with a discussion involving the proposed SportsPlex Athletic Training Center, together with an update from Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee on items of interest to Marina Bay residents including time for questions and answers. This portion of the Marina Bay Civic Association Meeting will begin at p.m.

The proposed location of the indoor Soccer Field known as the SportsPlex is in the Boat Storage Building behind 500 Victory Road. This indoor soccer field proposal was once put before you two years ago but the operator encountered financial difficulties during the build out of the leased property and withdrew. The new proposal is a resumption of the earlier initiative.

Association members, directors and officers are encourage to attend the Marina Bay Civic Association Annual Meeting, especially to hear a discussion of the SportsPlex matter.

Anyone with questions on this portion of the meeting should call Brian Mc-Namee at 617-770-0678.

Following the discussion of the SportsPlex and Q&A with McNamee there will be a general discussion and election of the MBCA Board of Directors for 2011-2012.

Only those who are 2011 paid members of MBCA are eligible to vote for the Board of Directors. Members may join or renew membership at Sunday's meeting.

Coffee and other light refreshments will be served.

The Marina Bay Civic Association was incorporated in 2002. Its purpose is to enhance the quality of life in Marina Bay through a strong sense of community.

Boston firefighter Glenn McGillvray, a Wollaston resident, received a commendation from Doug Gutro after helping save a child last month.

During a six-alarm blaze in Roxbury on October 17, McGillvray caught six year-old Xavier Lara when Lara's grandmother dropped him out of their third floor apartment. The story soon spread across the country and McGillvray and Lara would appear on Ellen Degeneres' show; Lara's family received $15,000 and McGillvray was given an all-expenses-paid trip to Directors for 2011-20, abirol7 moving the nursing department from Temple Street to the new space, as soon as the start of 2012. Though their current lease agreement for that building runs until December 2012, Grindlay said he doesn't expect to be penalized for leaving early. Facilities from the Newport Avenue campus are expected to be finished moving into the new space by next fall; the lease for that property expires next October.

The school will be able to accommodate more students starting next school year. Grindlay says the board expects to increase enrollment by about 4 percent, approximately 800 students. They also plan on adding more full-time professors. "Right now we have a lot of adjunct faculty who only teach one class," Grindlay noted, "it's the President's [Peter Tsaffaras'] goal to replace them." # Salvation Army Needs Help Helping Others This Season hopes that they will be able to help every one who needs it.

The first thing that comes to mind for most when the name Salvation Army is mentioned is the kettle and bell ringers outside of retail and grocery stores such as Wal-Mart, Stop & Shop and Roche Brothers.

This year's kettle and bell season started Wednesday, and Odom says they hope to raise $170,000. Last year, they raised around $160,000 with the kettle bell fundraiser alone. The funds raised go towards toys for children, clothes for children and adults, food, and other necessities.

"This is our one major fundraiser for the year," said Odom. "Donations during this time really help us throughout the whole year."

There will be approximately ten kettle and bell stands in Quincy alone, and Odom said that they also would cover Weymouth and Braintree with nine other kettle bells. They have already had 10 different volunteer groups sign up to help ring in the holiday season, but Odom said they need a lot more volunteers.

This year's look to the kettle and bell sign is slightly different from previous years with a Q.R. code placed on the front of each sign. The Q.R. code will allow donors to scan it with their cell phones to make a donation online.

Jim Buchan, of Quincy, an Army National Guard Veteran, has been donating to the Salvation Army for over 40 years. Jim and his wife Fran are among the many volunteers that help on a regular basis.

"It is the right thing to do," said Jim about volunteering to help. "They do great work here, and help a lot of people."

Along with volunteering, Jim is called upon to repair the hand bells.

"He is the man that keeps the bells ringing," said Odom.

Odom, moved to the Quincy location in June from her hometown of Tennessee, said many of the phone calls they receive around this time of year are for volunteers who have helped in the past.

Along with food and the kettle and bell fundraiser, Odom is asking for help with donations of all kinds, this holiday season. One item in demand is toys for those children who otherwise might not be able to receive a present.

Odom said that so far they have been able to provide help to everyone that has applied for it. If more people apply and need help they will continue to provide the things people need to make everyone's holiday season enjoyable.

They are also asking for donations of clothes for all ages including scarves, gloves, hats, and other winter outdoor wear.

"We do our best to make sure people get what they need," said Odom. "It's an amazing thing that we are able to help."

Odom said that each year they allow those who have applied for help during the holiday season to stop by on designated days to pick out toys for their children to give the gift a more personal touch.

"Once you have been through one of those events, and see the faces light up you can't help but want to continue to help," said Odom. "Its just one way to spread Christmas cheer. To help those who need it and give them hope."

Along with asking for donations and helping those in need, the Salvation Army also offers other services such as pre-school, caseworkers, youth camps, and disaster relief, among other things.

The preschool located downstairs from the main office on Baxter Street provides a learning experience for up to 15 children three days a week in the morning from September to June. The young students, all residents of Quincy, enjoy the beginning of their day with projects, circle time, story time, learning time, and of course snack time.

"Our goal here is to serve the community," said teacher Christine Koch. "We make the best of what we have and it's a great program; very fun and colorful."

The room covered in toys and art projects is a little kid's dream and the impact on the community is obvious, with a waiting list already started for next September and with a diverse group of children the program is one of the most affordable in the city.

"There is a lot of good in this city, we offer a lot of great programs," said Koch. "I love working here because its such a community based program."

The Salvation Army is also asking for help with Christmas Stockings for kids. Those who would like to participate can pick up a stocking and fill it with school supplies and then return it to the Salvation Army by Dec. 12th. The stockings will be distributed to children in the community.

To make donations or volunteer, visit the Salvation Army website or visit the Quincy headquarters at 6 Baxter St. from 9 a.m to 4 p.m Monday through Friday, or call 617-472-2345.

'Take A Stand, Lend A Hand STOP Bullying'

QCARE Program Focuses On Keeping Children Safe From All Forms Of Bullying

By EMILY TAFT

Residents of Quincy along with students of Quincy Public Schools gathered recently to learn the most common methods of bullying and strategies to eliminate aggressive behavior to help keep youngsters safe.

QCARE (Quincy After Child Care) presented the program B.U.L.L.Y. ("Better Understand by Listening and Learning About You") by Kaleidoscope Theatre at the Broad Meadows Middle School. State Street Corporation sponsored the event.

"QCARE presented this event as a free opportunity for Quincy families to learn and discuss the prevalent issue of bullying," said Sara Pateras, a licensed social worker and macro social work administrative intern.

"Bullying impacts almost every kid whether they are being bullied, are a bully, or act as a bystander. Through this program, QCARE is continuing its efforts to keeping kids safe, whether they are in the QCARE program or not," Pateras said.

After a survey found that student and parents were interested in finding more information about bullying, how to deal with it, and the different types, QCARE decided to hold the program for the first time, with hopes to continue it in the years to

"The event was great, we had about 270 people in attendance," said Pateras. "On programs to compete with, we had a great turn out."

During the survey of students, parents, and teachers, QCARE found that bullying was happening not only in the after-school programs but out of school as well.

"Quincy After-School adopted the Quincy Public School's Anti-bullying Policy and this event shows a cooperative effort by sending the same message as the students' schools," said School Committeewoman and Board of Directors Treasurer Jo-Ann Bragg. "Bullying affects all ages and we as adults need to offer tips for age appropriate responses to stop bullying."

The anti-bullying policy has a no tolerance policy. QCARE - along with Quincy Public Schools - does not tolerate any type of bullying. Any bullying seen or heard during an after school program is reported to the school system.

The Kaleidoscope Theater's B.U.L.L.Y program has many levels to it, and those presenting it choose which levels they want in the presentation. For the program presented on Nov. 4, they covered level one and parts of level two. These levels included topics like physical bullying, emotional bullying, gossip, and cyber bullying. The program also included solutions, strategies, and consequences of bullying behavior.

The biggest subject that most parents wanted to learn about, according to Pateras, was cyber bullying, because it is something that is happening more and more with the proliferation of social media and access to com-

The skits performed by Kaleidoscope Theatre were interactive showing strategies on how to handle bullying whether you are the victim or a witness to the bullying, said Bragg, "Several students from the audi a Friday night with other ence were invited on stage and participated in the skits, giving them a better understanding on how hurtful bullying is and what they can do about it."

After the performance, audience members asked questions and discussed things that have happened or things that were brought up in the performance.

"What a great time it was, the program ended up being very enjoyable," said Gayle McLaughlin, of Hanna Street, and a parent of two Quincy Public School students. "The kids could relate to the actors and the play. Even the little kids got it. You could see that every child there just got it, and got what was going on."

McLaughlin said that the program helped open the communication lines with her and her chirdren and at dinner that night she found the topic of bullying come up in conversations. "My family got a lot out of this program," said McLaughlin. "At dinner that night the kids really opened up about a lot of things I didn't realize. It's hard for kids to deal with this on their own."

McLaughlin said she also learned a lot herself and might even bring some ideas to her children's schools.

"After the program, my daughter went up to one of the young actresses to ask her how to report bullying if you were to afraid to do it," said McLaughlin. "The young women gave her some great advice to maybe have a anonymous box in her school, which is something they don't have at her school right now."

At the end of the program students and parents were given a number of different information pamphlets, a resource guide, a pledge card and a bracelet that said 'lend a hand and stand up against bullying.' Before leaving, students were asked to sign an anti-bullying pledge banner titled "Take a Stand, Lend a Hand STOP Bullying." The banner was offered to the City of Quincy in appreciation for their continued support of the program and families citywide. Pateras said Mayor Tom Koch was happy to accept the banner and it will hang at City Hall.

'We know that bullying has been going on, and will continue to go on," said Pateras. "We are committed to an open discussion on a way to educate and give a way to start talking about bullying, and to help keep our children safe."

A Job Well Done

On Wednesday, Nov. 2, at approximately 4:34 a.m., Officers James Menz and Ed Bagley were dispatched to the Willet Street area for an unknown person ringing the caller's doorbell.

Upon arrival the officers did not see anyone around, but did interview the female caller. She stated that she was awoken to the sound of her doorbell ringing. She glanced out of her window and observed a male looking around in the front of her home. She stated that although it was dark, she didn't know this male. She described him as wearing sweat pants with double stripes down the side. She added that she was fearful so she called the police and watched as the male entered a side door a few houses away.

Officer Menz used his flashlight to light up the door that the caller said the male went into and she confirmed it was the same door. She said she didn't know anyone who lived in the building.

The officers knocked on the door in question and a male answered the door. Because he was wearing sweat pants with double stripes, Officer Menz asked the male why he was knocking on his neighbor's door. The male said that he didn't but that his friend did. The male said that his friend is from Milton but drove away a few minutes earlier. When asked if he had ever been arrested, the male said he was arrested in the 1990s in Boston on a "Soliciting a Prostitute" charge.

Officer Menz accessed his cruiser computer while Officer Bagley stayed with the suspect. Officer Menz quickly determined that the suspect provided a false date of birth and then confirmed the correct date of birth with the criminal charge the male mentioned. After confirming the male's parents names and former address (listed on criminal record), it was determined that there was an active default warrant for the male.

Officer Menz returned and spoke again with the male, asking him about a marijuana charge (default warrant was for the marijuana charge in Boston in 2008). He stated, "I was caught up in a sting and they found marijuana on me." The male was very evasive but then went on to say that it was some type of prostitution sting in downtown Boston.

It appears that he was only charged with the drug possession. The male stated that he resided there alone and that his wife had left him. He stuck to his story that his friend was the one who rang the doorbell and loitered outside. When asked by Officer Menz how he knew it was his friend, the male replied, "I get confused sometimes because I have MS." He then said that he and his friend were walking back from the "packy" when his friend rang the bell.

When Officer Menz advised the male that the package stores closed about six hours ago, the male did not reply. The officer then asked the male if he knew the neighbor. He stated that he knows her from simply living in the area.

The suspect, a 39-year old Quincy resident, was Bagley said that he observed the male walking around alone earlier in the evening with a hood pulled over his head. The officers were confident that the male was alone when he rang the doorbell. It is unclear due to his evasiveness/lying what his intentions were at 4:30

Nice Work!

In this particular case the female took the best course of action by calling "911" to report this suspicious man. It is unknown what his intentions were, but by his own admission, he knew that a female lived there. Remember, no matter who is ringing the doorbell or what he/she is saying is the problem, calling "911" is the best option.

The suspect/victim may be part of a ruse to get you to open the door, or it could be a legitimate situation occurring outside your door. The best action is to let the police respond and handle the situation. When the caller safely watched as the male suspect walked away, she was able to describe him and provide a direction to

Conway Agents Rally Around New Tools

A partnership with Realtor.com and an on-line continuing education campus were among the new perks and benefits for Jack Conway Realtors announced at the recent Conway Country "WOW" Rally held at Lombardos in Randolph.

More than 300 agents attended the event and learned about the news tools and opportunities to become better at servicing customers. CEO Carol Bulman explained the exciting changes to the agents, and said, "We heard what you asked for and we responded. You, our agents in the field, are the reason for our company's success and it's our goal to help you to succeed. You are our front line in Conway Country and we thank you for what you

On the agenda at the rally was the announcement by Conway's Director of Marketing Al Becker, of an agreement with Realtor. com, the largest real estate database in the world. The plan calls for all Conway listings to be advertised as "enhanced listings," which include up to 25 photos and 500 words of text, on the site. "This is fabulous news to me," said agent Joanne Mecke who has purchased the enhanced listings from Realtor.com for years at significant personal expense. "The new company-subsidized plan represents a huge savings to me. I'm very excited about it."

The WOW factor continued as attendees at the fall rally heard from Conway's Director of Agent Services Chris Haraden about a virtual continuing education campus that will allow Conway agents to take all of their state-mandated courses to renew their licenses online.

Bulman wound up the event with the announcement of a new longevity bonus for her associates. "My father, Jack Conway, and I recognize the value of loyalty and longevity among our associates," said Bulman. "And we want to reward you for it."

For information on joining the Conway Country sales team, contact Director of Agent Services Chris Haraden at 781-871-0080, ex. 335 or email charaden@ jackconway.com.

Raiders Finished Season At 19-2; Lost In Sectional Semifinals, 3-2

North Quincy's State Title Dreams Dashed By Brookline

By SEAN BRENNAN NORTH QUINCY - And just like that it was over.

A season that was filled with high expectations ended suddenly for the North Quincy girl's volleyball team last Thursday in a Central-East Division 1 semifinal match when the Red Raiders lost in dramatic fashion, 3-2, to Brookline High School, effectively closing the book on the high school careers of North Quincy's talented senior class.

The Raiders - last year's Central-East sectional champions - romped through the regular season, finishing with an impressive 18-2 overall record, which included a Patriot League title. North Quincy, on the strength of this record, earned the number two seed in the sectional tournament to go along with home court advantage through to the sectional finals. After cruising past No. 7 Cambridge Rindge & Latin 3-0 in a quarterfinal match on Nov. 15, the Raiders were faced with the daunting task of eliminating a strong Brookline squad out of the Bay State League.

Playing in front of an enthusiastic home crowd, North Quincy jumped out to a commanding 11-4 Game One lead only to watch as the Warriors used a 15-4 scoring run to steal the opening stanza, 25-18. Not to be deterred, the Raiders rallied back to win both Game Two (25-19) and Game Three (25-22), placing them one game victory away from another trip back to the sectional final

But Brookline had other ideas.

The Warriors dominated the pivotal Game Four to win going away, 25-19, setting up a winner-take-all Game Five. It was the host Raiders that came out smoking and controlled the early pace en route to a 12-8 advantage. A trip points away and was there for the taking and, then the momentum of the game shifted back toward Brookline. The Warriors used a game-deciding 7-1 run to steal away the semifinal match victory from North Quincy.

"My girls stepped up huge and we played our best game of the season," said Raiders' head coach Kerry Ginty following the semifinal loss to Brookline.

"(The match) was a heavyweight battle," she, continued. "It was the type of volleyball you hope to see at this time of year. That was what postseason volleyball is supposed to be like."

According to Ginty, it wasn't that her girls weren't up to the task; it just so happened that her Raiders ran into a well-oiled machine in a Brookline program that had been equally impressive as North Quincy was this fall.

"Brookline is a nice, balanced team; they are well rounded," Ginty said about the Warriors. "(They) have a high powered offense and they played a very good defensive game."

When the pomp and circumstance of the pre-game festivities subsided, it was the Raiders who made the first move. Consecutive serving aces from senior libero Elizabeth Sullivan (50 digs) pushed North Quincy's Game One advantage from 8-4 to 10-4; an impressive block from sophomore middle Carolyn Schwartz (four kills) extended the lead to 11-4, but the Warriors, behind the stellar play of seniors Jamie Francona, Maya Midzik and Marie Fleming, ripped off a 7-0 run to turn the tables on the Raiders.

North Quincy sophomore Maya Umoren (11 kills) brought the Raiders back to within one point (15-14) af-

Rachel Chu (32 assists), but Brookline scored the final four points of the game to win 25-18.

Game Two was competitive throughout. With the score tied at 10-10, the Raiders upped the offensive pressure. Behind kills from senior outside Olivia Umoren (17 kills), senior outside Michelle Cole (seven kills, 11 digs), and a block from Maya Umoren, North Quincy jumped back in front 19-14. Brookline would get as close as 19-18 before another Maya Umoren kill, a Cole ace and an Olivia Umoren kill gave the Raiders some breathing room at 23-19. Junior middle Rose Bennett's kill finished off the second game in North Quincy's favor, 25-19.

The early part of Game Three was all Red Raiders. North Quincy used two kills from Olivia Umoren to grab a 9-3 advantage; a Cole kill midway through gave the home team an 18-4 lead, but, again, Brookline rallied back to tie the score at 20. Following a point for the Warriors (21-20), Olivia Umoren exploded from her stance at the net to bury a ball between three Brookline defenders to give the Raiders new life - North Quincy took full advantage. A long volley fell the Raiders way (23-22) and North Quincy closed it out when another Olivia Umoren kill found open space.

Holding a two games-toone lead, the Raiders could smell blood and it showed as North Quincy took a 9-5 lead in Game Four. That lead vanished quickly. Brookline used a 20-10 closing run to send the semifinal match into a winner-take-all Game Five (first to 15).

NOT JUST A TEAM BUT A FAMILY - Members of the North Quincy Red Raiders' girl's volleyball team huddle together before the start of last Thursday's Central-East Division 1 semifinal against Brookline. North Quincy lost a heartbreaker, 3-2, to the Warriors. Seniors Lizzie Kelley, Elizabeth Forde, Megan Leahy, Elizabeth Sullivan, Kara Reardon, Olivia Umoren, Michelle Cole, Emma Ainsley and Rachel Chu played in their final high school game.

Brookline struck first (1-0) but Maya Umoren (two kills), Schwartz (ace), Chu (kill), Olivia Umoren (kill), Cole (kill), Sullivan (kill), and Bennett (block) helped shift momentum crosscourt as the Raiders raced out to a commanding 12-8 lead. Three points from pay dirt Raiders' momentum stalled as Francona's serving skills resulted in five straight points for the Warriors (13-12). Brookline took a 14-12 lead and, despite a last-gasp attempt by the Raiders (14-13), the Warriors ended North Quincy's state championship hopes on a Midzik kill.

There will be no tomorrow for the 2011 North Quincy Red Raiders.

That is the harsh reality for North Quincy's exceptional senior class of Lizzie Kelly, Elizabeth Forde, Megan Leahy, Elizabeth Sullivan, Kara Reardon, Olivia Umoren, Michelle Cole, Emma Ainsley and Rachel Chu. These girls have set the bar for all future Red Raider teams. For a program that has tasted success for many years, this core may be the most impressive to date, which is a reality not lost on their coach.

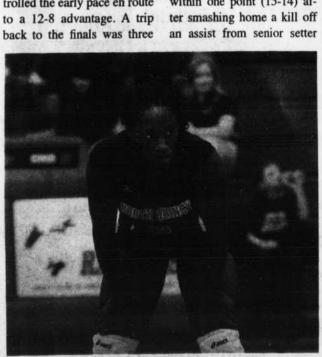

These seniors have been the program for the last four years," said Ginty, a former all-star volleyball player at North Quincy. "They are a great group of kids and not just playing volleyball. They have set a new standard for (volleyball) here at North Quincy."

"It is heartbreaking to do so well and have so much success and then just have it end," continued Ginty, "but they have all made my job easier. They are a fun group and they have worked hard for the success that they have had; these seniors are a huge part of what the program has become. There is something to be said for a group of girls to have gone through what they have gone through. They will be missed and difficult to replace."

North Quincy now needs to recharge and, they will. A concrete foundation is set thanks to the presence of players like Rose Bennett, Carolyn Schwartz (Patriot League All-Star) and Maya Umoren. It will take some time, but after the loss to Brookline, time is all the Red Raiders have.

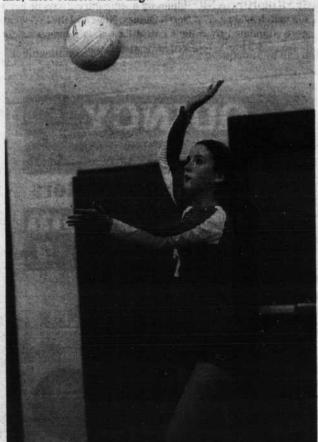

"We had a ver year but it is still difficult for it to end this way," Ginty stated, before adding, "but the underclassmen gained another year of experience. Bennett, Maya Umoren and Schwartz will be back and that is good news. The seniors who are graduating have raised the bar for the group. We will be back next season and we will work just as hard to keep the program successful."

SENIOR MIDDLE HITTER OLIVIA UMOREN was immense around the net versus the Warriors. Umoren finished with 17 kills in North Quincy's 3-2 semifinal loss.

SOPHOMORE CAROLYN SCHWARTZ (four kills) is a key cog in North Quincy's talented underclassmen core. Returning next season along with Schwartz are regulars Rose Bennett (junior) and Maya Umoren (sophomore).

SENIOR LIBERO ELIZABETH SULLIVAN serves against Brookline. Sullivan finished the semifinal match with a gamehigh 50 digs.

Presidents Finished Season At 19-6; Lost In Sectional Semifinals, 3-2

uincy Bounced From Tournament By Newton North

By TOM LAYMAN

NEWTON - Quincy's run to a second consecutive Div. 1 Central-East volleyball championship game came to a screeching halt last Thursday at Newton North.

The Presidents, who lost to North Quincy in last year's sectional title game, 3-2, fell to top-seeded Newton North, 3-0 (25-8, 25-16, 25-19) in the Central-East semifinals on the road at the Tigers' home floor.

Senior Kiley McDonald had seven kills, senior Nicole Parry had 11 digs and senior Donna Niosi recorded 10 digs and seven assists, but the host Tigers had the Presidents on their heels all night and slammed home the shutout victory in convincing fashion.

"We had a tough time and I think we got a little shell-shocked at first," said Presidents' head coach Jacqui Niosi. "We did make adjustments, but it took us a long time to make them."

The Presidents had a tough time getting into an offensive rhythm from the get-go, as the Tigers' serves proved to be a bit too difficult to handle from a number of different players. After a long volley won by the Tigers to get a 6-2 lead, the Presidents watched Meredith Abrams reel off sevenstraight points to stretch the lead for good.

That shell-shocked feeling that Jacqui Niosi discussed was prevalent, as the Presidents were unable to keep the ball on their side of the net long enough to set up an offense and let their outside hitters have a shot of putting away a few points to get back into the first game, which ended with the Tigers claiming a 25-8 victory.

"I think it was that we didn't get to dictate any of the game," said Niosi. "Their serves were a lot harder, because a lot of them are floats so they are moving at the last second. We had a tough time passing the ball as well. When you don't pass the ball it's tough to get your offense going."

The beginning of the second game looked very similar to the first. With Quincy up 3-2, the Tigers went on an eight-point swing on the serve of Abrams to gain control of the game.

The Presidents did show signs of life towards the end of the game, as they pulled to within 22-16 after a missed shot by a Tigers' player, but Newton North slammed home the game by registering the final three points.

"They stayed aggressive through the whole game. I was happy to see that," said Jacqui Niosi about her girls' performance in the middle game. "They didn't quit, so that is something that is positive."

The Tigers raced out to a big lead again in the third game, but the Presidents made things real interesting late. McDonald had a block for a kill to get the score to 19-13 and came up with another kill after the Tigers grabbed a point.

Senior Caity Lowry (eight digs, three kills, two blocks) served an ace to get the Presidents to their closest margin at 20-15. But the teams would trade points the rest of the way and Alana King's kill slammed home the game at 25-19 and the match at 3-0.

The match ended in disappointing fashion, as Niosi and the Presidents were hoping to build on last season's run to the sectional finals their season at 19-6 overall. and hopefully go beyond. Niosi said her team started to work together and gel defensively midway through the season and with that came a sense that this team could make a strong run in the postseason.

The Presidents finished the year with a No. 5 seed in the tournament and an overall record of 19-6, and although the loss stung for the club, the head coach said that the team should be proud of the way they fought to the end.

"I would say that we got beat by a great team tonight, and I'm OK with that," said the head coach. "You hate to lose and you want to go as far as you can, but this is a really great group of kids and I saw this group learn a lot from the beginning of the season to the end of the season, which is satisfying as a coach."

79th Annual Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day Game Nov. 24

HS Gains Momentum After Win Over Middleboro

By SEAN BRENNAN

Football coaches at every level are known to preach to their teams that every game is in itself a new season. If you win big the previous weekend, you have to quickly forget about it and move on to the next opponent, the same is true when you lose.

Because when it comes to football, success is fleet-

The Quincy Presidents are case in point. The Presidents (2-7 overall) have worked hard day-to-day every week in practice this fall, but through their first eight games only had one victory to show for the effort - a 20-16 victory over Plymouth South back on Sept. 23. But, OHS head coach Bill Reardon could see that progress was being made and, despite his Presidents giving 110% percent, winning results were few and far between.

With the annual Thanksgiving Day clash with North Quincy creeping up, Quincy needed a spark, something that would infuse some positive feelings in the team as they prepared for the biggest game of the fall. The Presidents got that spark following a 21-12 victory over Middleboro on Nov. 10.

Quincy is now riding a one-game winning streak and, that good feeling should prove vital when the Presidents kickoff against their fiercest rivals in a game where overall records are thrown out the window.

"Absolutely," Reardon said when asked if this win over the Sachems is having a positive effect on his team as they started preparing for the Red Raiders this week. "You hound the kids all the time that you have to work hard and when they don't see any positive results, you feel bad for them; they are out there beating their heads against the wall. So, to finally get the reward for the hard work makes everyone want to work even harder for the (North Quincy) game."

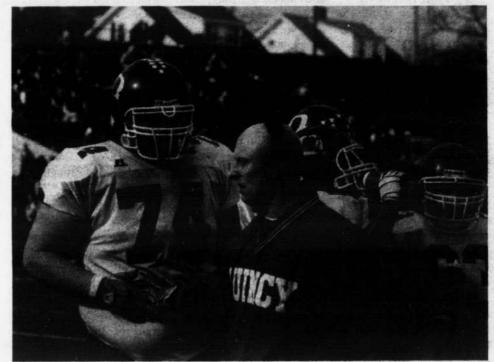

Playing in heavy rain against the Sachems, Quincy received solid showings from senior quarterback Curran Jorgensen - playing under the center for the first time in over a month - and seniors Alex Heffernan (two clutch catches) and Reggie Cesar (two rushing touchdowns). The Presidents defense also showed up, limiting Middleboro to a measly 12 points.

Jorgensen and Heffernan connected for two deep pass receptions on Quincy drives that ended with Cesar pounding in the rock from close range. Jorgensen also did some damage with his legs when he scored the Presidents' third touchdown on a quarterback sneak.

"I was pleased with the way that Curran played," said Reardon about his senior signal caller's performance. "It was his first time under center since the Plymouth South game and I had some concerns there but he handled it well, especially under lousy conditions."

"We had some trouble handling the football - putting it on the ground here and there, but we were able to weather the storm better than they were and we made fewer mistakes," Reardon added. "Actually, we made some nice plays," he continued, "and Heffernan had two big catches to set up our first two touchdowns and then Reggie took in the first two after Heff got us down there."

After allowing the Sachems to score on their first possession of the game, Quincy's defense stiffened while Middleboro began to fold. The combination of solid defense and steady offense resulted in a big win for the Presidents.

"(Middleboro) scored on the first drive but once we settled down and got our footing and kind of knew what we were dealing with (weather-wise), we did really well the rest of the way," Reardon explained. "It was a good way to head into the week before Thanksgiving and the kids are excited to get started."

Winning cures all ills. -at 10 a.m. The 2011 season comes down to one game. A win over North Quincy will erase any lingering thoughts of those seven losses on the record. The Presidents' hard work paid off against the Sachems, the goal now is to harness this excitement and leave it all out on the turf at Veterans' Memorial Stadium when the 79th Thanksgiving Day game kicks off Nov. 24

Varsity, Jayvee Cheerleading Squads Captured 1st Place At N.E. Cheer/Dance Competition

The Storm Cheer Their Way To The Top

STORM 2011 VARSITY CHEERLEADING SQUAD

The Squantum Storm varsity and jayvee cheerleading teams participated in the 20th Annual New England Cheer and Dance Competition on Nov. 12 at the Reggie Lewis Center in Boston.

It was a successful trip into Boston for the Storm as both teams took home top honors in their respective divisions.

The varsity cheerleading team placed first in the varsity competition while the jayvees earned a first-place medal in the jayvee competition.

Bernie's General Store v. Colonial Federal

In the opening contest, Bernie's General Store was able to withstand a furious third period rally to hang on to defeat Colonial Federal, 5-4. The game began with Liz Bell and Josh Starker scoring to give Bernie's a 2-0 first period lead. The start of second period saw Bernie's surge ahead 3-0 as Jack Byrnes scored, but Colonial Federal, under the coaching of Jim O'Leary, stormed back to tie the game at 3-3 on goals by Mike O'Brien, Kevin Hurley and James O'Leary.

After a spirited talk by head coach Paul Gagne, Bernie's regained momentum on goals by Kyle Masone and Connor Donaghey to take a 5-3 lead. Colonial Federal's Dan O'Leary brought his team right back in the final minutes of the third when he received a pass from Noah Wines and went top shelf to beat goalie Matt Garland. However, Bernie's held the fort late and won by one goal.

Garrett

Jonathan Sheehan and Derek Bille stood out on defense for Bernie's.

Bruce Ayers Club v. Braintree Cooperative opened the scoring for the Bruce Ayers Club off a nolook pass from Tim Walsh, but a first-period goal by Mario Ragusa - off a Martin Miller rebound - and a late third period tally from Max Durham, off an assist from Pat Burke, lifted Braintree Cooperative to an exciting 2-1 victory.

McMorrow

Goalies Jimmy Farrell (Flynn Club) and Gavin De-Guest (Ayers Club) played solid games between the pipes.

Bernie's General Store v.

Bruce Ayers Club Bernie's General Store and the Ayers Club played to a 2-2 tie in what was a highly entertaining hockey game.

Bernie's got on the score sheet first when Peter Gagne blasted home a slap shot from the blue line off an assist from Raymond Parker. Three minutes later, the Ayers Club tied it up when Mike Terakovski slid home a backhand shot on a pass from Declan Mayo. The second saw Ayers Club's Tom Sullivan score on a nifty pass from Nicole Page, however Bernie's got the equalizer in the final period when Josh Starker scored on an assist from Jonathan Sheehan.

Goalies Liz Bell (Bernie's) and Peter Saccoach (Ayers Club) were stellar in net throughout.

Braintree Cooperative v. Colonial Federal

Braintree Cooperative defeated Colonial Federal, 6-5, in a high-scoring game.

Braintree Cooperative was led by Max Durham's hat-trick - all which came in the first period, but Colonial Federal started the comeback in the second, and was able to tie the game at 3-3 with goals from Matt O'Brien, Brendan O'Brien and Mike O'Brien.

Goals by Anthony Gonzales and Sean Flynn gave Braintree Cooperative some breathing room at 5-3, but Colonial Federal rallied back on goals by Andrew Kraunellis and Duncan MacIntyre.

An early third period goal by Liam MacIntyre off a pass from Chris Connolly proved to be the game-winner as Braintree Cooperative held on to win 6-5.

Youth Hockey note: Game results can be emailed to the Quincy Sun Sports Department at quincysunnews@verizon.net. When space is available The Sun will run game results.

Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group Takes Part In Walk To End Alzheimer's

Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group staff including members from Quincy's Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center recently laced up their sneakers and opened their wallets to support the 2011 Annual Walk to End Alzheimer's disease.

The walk was held at the Pilgrim Memorial State Park at the Plymouth waterfront.

The family-owned senior housing and healthcare services company raised nearly $11,500 to benefit Alzheimer's research and served as a $2,500 Promise Garden Corporate Sponsor.

The walk is sponsored by the Massachusetts and New Hampshire Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association. Alzheimer's disease is the sixth leading cause of death in the United States. Funds raised will be used to increase awareness of the disease and to support care and research.

This year's Promise Garden revealed a display of brightly colored flowers, with messages of love honoring individuals with the disease, as well as their family and professional caregiv-

The Welch Group demonstrated the company's commitment to the cause with seven individual teams representing senior living communities, rehabilitation and skilled nursing centers as assisted living residences, as well as a corporate team.

Village at Proprietors Green, a senior living community in Marshfield, raised $3,653 - the largest of the Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group fundraisers.

The company's top individual fundraiser is Joyce Watson O'Neil, LICSW, social worker for the Allerton House Assisted Living Communities, raising $1630.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE:

Give Thanks For Good Health

Thanksgiving is filled with good food, company, and gratitude. For many people, it's also the source of weight gain and anxiety.

TOPS Club, Inc. (Take Off Pounds Sensibly), the nonprofit weight-loss support organization, offers tips to eat right, stay active, and reduce stress.

Eat without Regret

 Watch portion sizes. You don't need to fill your plate with everything that's offered. Sample your favorite foods and use a smaller plate to "trick" yourself into thinking you have consumed · Slow down. Take time to enjoy your food and stop eating before you feel full.

· Change the focus to family at the table. Food and drinks are a large part of the holidays, but they don't have to be the focus. Instead, go around the table and have everyone say why they are thankful, share favorite holiday memories, and reconnect.

· Don't forget about breakfast. Approaching the Thanksgiving meal on an empty stomach can be a recipe for disaster. A nutritious breakfast helps control appetite, so you aren't as inclined to overindulge during dinner. Breakfast can also keep energy levels up.

 Send off leftovers. Don't fill your refrigerator with leftovers; send extra food home with guests. This will help avoid temptation to dip back into high-calorie

Stay Active

· Take a hike or go for a walk. Make time to get moving on Thanksgiving Day. Take a walk or hike in the morning or head outside after dinner. Many communities offer "Turkey Trots," a 5K walk/run, which can be an invigorating way to kick off the day.

· Plan an activity. The day doesn't need to revolve around the Thanksgiving meal. Go for a family bike ride, play football, or have a relay race for the kids.

Goodbye Holiday Stress

 Take time for yourself. During the holidays, there can be a lot of togetherness. It's important to spend a few minutes alone periodically to give yourself time to recharge. Take a nap, listen to music, or simply sneak off to a quiet room in the house to clear your mind.

· Be thankful. Feeling stressed or tired? Find your- helping others in need.

self complaining? Take time to think about or write down the things you're thankful for, big or small. Being grateful can decrease stress, boost the immune system, and improve sleep patterns.

· Share the load. There's no reason only one person should plan, cook, and entertain. If guests offer to prepare a dish, let them bring it to your Thanksgiving celebration. Also, have the kids help with household chores. This will decrease your workload and make the holiday more pleasant.

· Help those less fortunate. Forget about your troubles for the day and spend time volunteering at a local soup kitchen or food pantry. Spread cheer by giving back, taking the focus off of your own stress and treatment. It should not begin if you are in a place where To Your there's a chance of refreez-Good ing. Refreezing is a more destructive process than leaving Health things alone until you are in a place where the person can be kept warm.

The affected part should be immersed in a bath of hot water whose temperature is around 104 F (40 C). The water has to be kept warm by adding more hot water as the bath begins to cool. At no point should you rub the frozen part. If the affected area cannot be warmed in a water bath, then use hot compress Rewarming is painful. Ty lenol or a stronger medicine should be given. In 12 to 2 hours, blisters form. Do not break them. At this point have a doctor examine the patient for definitive care.

YED WAR.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What can I do to improve my chipping, splitting fingernails? I was getting a weekly manicure but stopped due to economic reasons. My nails had grown stronger. Now they've become a disaster again. Please help. I take vitamins and calcium.

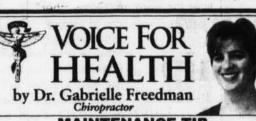

ANSWER: Aging makes nails brittle, thin and fragile for quite a few people. Dryness fosters brittleness. After every handwashing and before going to bed, coat your nails with a moisturizer. Petroleum jelly (the many Vaseline products) works well. When washing dishes or putting your hands in water, wear waterproof gloves. Don't use nail polish remover often.

The B vitamin biotin toughens nails for some. You'll need 2.5 mg daily.

Neither calcium nor gelatin strengthens nails.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Patients in need of replacing one or more permanent teeth lost to decay or extraction may opt for the type of permanent tooth restoration known as a "bridge." As its name implies, a bridge spans the gap left by missing teeth and fills it with replacement teeth (pontics) that are anchored in place to natural teeth or dental implants on either side. The anchor teeth (abutments) no only prevent teeth adjacent and in opposition to the gap from shifting out of place, they also carry the pressure caused by chewing. Bridges, which are composed of gold, alloys, porcelain, or a combination of materials, generally cost less than other forms of tooth replacement and usually require two visits to com-

As with natural teeth, proper oral hygiene, good eating habits and regular dental visits will help maintain the life of your bridge. Please call us 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where you will receive a professional exam to detect and address any existing or impending oral health problems. P.S. A "cantilever" bridge supports the replacement tooth from only one side and is used when abutment teeth are located on just one side of the gap left by a missing tooth.

MAINTENANCE TIP manage their conditions with regular chiropractic treatments

Chiropractic is one of the primary proponents of philosophy of health maintenance as a means of illness prevention. To determine whether taking this proactive approach would result in any real-world benefit, researchers recently undertook a study of patients with chronic, nonspecific, low-back pain. They found that, after the first month of the study, patients receiving spinal manipulation treatments experienced significantly less pain and disability than those receiving sham (placebo) treatments. After ten months, the spinal manipulation group maintained improvements in pain and disability; those in the sham group reverted to pretreatment pain and disability levels. The study shows that low-back pain sufferers who

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Life is sweet because of the friends we have made ... And the things which in common we share . . . We want to live on, not because of ourselves...But because of the ones who would care.

. It's living and doing for someone else. . . On that all of life's splendor depends, . . . And the joy of it all, when we count it all up . . . Is found in the making of friends." . . Anonymous.

It has been said that a man who has the gift of making friends is a very blessed person. It is one of God's best gifts. It involves many things, but, above all, the power of going out of one's self, and seeing and appreciating whatever is noble and loving in another person.

We like Norman Vincent Peale's description of a friend: "A true friend know when you need a word of affection and encouragement and knows just how to say it. He is one of those wonderfully thoughtful people who is sensitive, or tuned in, to the hearts and minds of others. He has that fine sense of timing which enables him to say the word of comfort and strengthening just when needed."

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This is a good time to let that intrepid Aries temperament take charge. Your strong leadership will help settle those still-unresolved situations. Support comes from a surprising source.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your problem-solving talents shine as you move to cool down heated emotions. You also inspire trust in all parties when you act with careful consideration of their feelings.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) That long-delayed commitment begins to look better to you. But there's still a crucial fact or two you need to know about it. A health problem needs to be taken care of.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Don't waste time trying to learn why someone you relied on is wavering in his or her support of your stand on a workplace issue. Move on with the help of more steadfast allies.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Relationships enter a brighter period, both at home and in the workplace. Prospects also look good for single Leos and Leonas, who can expect a welcome visit from Cupid.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Those mixed signals that were complicating your life are giving way now to clear, definitive guidelines. This makes it easier for you to weigh your options and make decisions.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Ask your partner for an explanation of what seems to be a sign of strain in your relationship. The sooner you understand the problem, the sooner you can both act to resolve it.

A funeral Mass for Barbara A. (Collins) Carl, 73, of North Quincy, a City of Quincy employee for 22 years, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. in Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy.

Mrs. Carl died Nov.12 surrounded by the family she adored, after a courageous battle with pancreatic cancer.

Wife of the late Richard P. Carl and the late Paul Bennett. Loving mother of Barbara A. Foulsham and her husband John of Quincy. Devoted Grandmother of James C., John A. and Samantha J. Foulsham all of Quincy. Dear friend of the late Robert Schlager.

Mrs. Carl grew up in South Boston and moved to Dorchester before settling in Quincy over 45 years ago. Her childhood brought struggles and challenges and although she was not rich with material possessions, she had a deep passion to improve the lives of those less fortunate. This continued throughout her life. Helping and caring for others was always a primary interest to Barbara.

She worked for the City of Quincy for 22 years, which included the Quincy Community Action Center as well at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center and later Quincy Elder Services. Helping teen mothers through difficult times and bringing food at the holidays, to those in need, was a yearly tradition to her.

Mary E. Scott, 70 Sales Associate

A Mass of Christian Burial for Mary Elizabeth (McNulty) Scott, 70, of Quincy, was celebrated Wednesday in Sacred Heart Parish, North Quincy.

Mrs. Scott died Nov. 12. Born in Dorchester, she was the eldest and only daughter born to the late Bernard and Dell J. (Donnellan) McNulty. She is remembered as an industrious and hard workingwoman, who continued to work full time even after officially retiring. She was a longtime sales associate at Sears, Roebuck and Company in Quincy Center, and later at the South Shore Plaza - she recently fully retired due to illness.

She enjoyed living near the ocean and walking along the beach. In her later years she relished the opportunity to travel to Bermuda to spend time with her daughter and family there. Most recently, she traveled to her ancestral homeland of Ireland to visit family and see the birthplaces of parents and other relatives. Although she enjoyed creating arts and crafts and sewing, her happiest times were those spent in the company of her devoted family.

In her later years, Mrs. Scott was able to go back to school to finish her education, earning an Associate's degree in Computer Sci-

Wife of Wayne Scott; mother of Bryan W. Scott of Brockton, Christine M. Stohlberg of Rockland, Irene E. Manuel and her husband Kevin of Bermuda

It will begin to look a lot like Christmas in Quincy starting Friday night when the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and Discover Quincy co-sponsor an array of events to kick off the official start of the holiday

The "Light Up the Holidays in Quincy" festivities begin Friday, Nov. 25 at 4 p.m. at Presidents Place Galleria (1250 Hancock St.). It's an evening of free family fun that is co-sponsored by the City of Quincy, Quincy Chamber of Commerce, and Discover Quincy.

'Quincy's Christmas Parade, as a hallmark event for the City of Quincy, draws thousands of spectators not only from Quincy, but also from the surrounding cities and towns many miles away," said Donna Mavromates, vice president and director of Tourism for the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

"We wanted to partner with the City and build upon an already very successful event, that will hopefully result in having some of those spectators spend the entire weekend in Quincy and not just Sunday afternoon," said Mavromates. "By adding some new elements to Friday night's festivities, we hope that this familyfriendly evening of fun will encourage more people to come and explore the wonderful things we have to of-

By EMILY TAFT
The holiday season officially kicks off on Nov. 27th with the 59th City of Qualcy Christmas Parade that will begin at 12:30 pm at Elingania of and Harrow March Streets.

The count Marshal in this year's parade will be former Boston Bruins right wing Post Middleton.

though 1984. Throughout his 12 years with the Bruins, Middleton scored over 900 points and was co-captain from 1985 until his retirement in 1988. Middleton, whose nickname during his playing season was "Nifty," will be on the first float of the parade as a tribute to the 2011 Stanley Cup Champs Bruins.

Another Boston sports personality who will appear in the parade is former Red Sox first baseman Sam Horn. Joining Horn will be Red Sox Mascot Wally the Green Monster. Horn was the 1982 first round draft pick for the Boston Red Sox.

The highly popular parade feature 96 units including over 10 marching bands, 16 antique cars, and

Marines To Collect 'Toys For Tots' During Parade

U.S. Marines will continue the tradition of collecting "Toys for Tots" along the Quincy Christmas Parade route Sunday, Nov. 27 which begins at 12:30 p.m.

The custom of collecting the distributing toys for needy children began on a nation-wide basis 60 years ago. On Sunday, local Marine reservists will walk along the approximate 3-mile parade route placing toys in the vehicles provided.

In the Quincy area, the Toys for Tots program is directed by the 1st Battalion, 25th Marines with the cooperation of civilians and former Marines.

To donate to the Toys for Tots program, the public is invited to bring new, unwrapped, non-violent toys to the parade where they will be picked up by the Marines and placed in trucks passing along the three-mile Hancock Street parade route.

The Quincy Christmas

Festival Committee members, organizers of the 59th Quincy Christmas Parade are hopeful this year's spectators will show the same "Semper Fidelis" spirit that they have shown in the past, playing a role to the continuing success of this Marine's Toys for Tots program.

Kirsten Hughes: Her Big Quincy Political Debut

Kirsten Hughes dreamed of becoming a Broadway performer one day.

But it's the political stage where Hughes seems destined to be a marquee name.

The articulate and personable Hughes made Quincy political history Nov. 8 when she became the first woman elected Ward 5 city councillor. She's also just the six woman to be elected a city councillor in 122 years.

Her 516-vote win over Neil McCole in the Ward 5 city council race has fueled speculation that she will run for higher office some day, perhaps state representative. She does, after all, have some political connections in her day job as the deputy finance director for Sen. Scott Brown.

But the 34-year-old Wollaston native who grew up on Davis Street says she's focused on only one thing: serving her constituents after she's sworn in Jan. 3.

"I'm looking forward to serving as Ward 5 city councillor," Hughes said in a recent interview at The Quincy Sun. "This is what I want to do. I know I can do a good job. I have no plans to run for higher office. There's a lot going on in Ward 5 and they need somebody who's going to work hard and that's me.

"This is a very time-consuming business and I look forward to doing the job as a ward councillor and I'm not thinking about what I might want to do in the future. I don't have those thoughts."

Hughes freely admits her colleagues on the Quincy Republican City Committee played a supportive role in her victory – holding signs and doing other campaign duties. But she recognizes Quincy politics should be non-partisan at the local level.

"There's nothing Republican or Democrat about wanting your street fixed. Maybe the 10 percent that when I knocked on their door asked me that question and that's what I said. Most everyone said, 'yeah, you're right.' Maybe one person every couple of weeks would say, 'I don't care. I don't vote Republican.' That's fine and I understand and respect that."

And what does her boss think of her serving as a city councillor?

"(Scott) is very supportive and he's very nice. He's just a regular guy. He was happy for me. I called him a few minutes after we got the results (on Election Night). He picked up the phone and I said, "I won, I won.' And he said "I had no doubt you'd win . . . now go out and make us prouder."

Hughes graduated from Notre Dame Academy in 1995. It was during her high school years that she found her "first calling:" singing.

As a freshman, she auditioned for the school musical but didn't get a part. "I knew I could sing and I always loved musicals. My mother said 'we'll get you voice lessons.' We lived two streets away from Eastern Nazarene College and I really loved it. I tried out for the next show and I got the lead.

"I loved performing and singing. It was the one thing I really liked to practice."

She followed her musical pursuits to New York University's Performing Arts College where she studied while dreaming of someday being on Broadway. "But truth be told, I cannot dance," she says with a bright smile.

At the age of 19, her studies took a "Disney detour." She got the part of Ariel in Walt Disney's "Voyage of the Little Mermaid" in Orlando, FL.

"It was a 475-seat theatre, I did seven shows a day, five days a week. It was a 20-minute show. It was great. I got my actor's equity card so I was in the union. I moved to Orlando, took a year off from NYU. I grew up going to Disney with my family. We used to go every year. We're Disney freaks. So when I went to work there my family was psyched."

But Hughes closed that curtain after one year.

"After sitting on a rock and singing for a year I decided been there, done that.' I want to go back to New York."

Singing was still in her head so instead of resuming her classwork, she did some auditioning. "I wasn't doing much. I moved back to Quincy and did some jingles and voice over's. I wanted to go back to New York. I had been out of college for five years."

She reapplied to NYU, went back to school full-time and earned her Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in 2003.

A few years later, she enrolled at the New England School of Law. She received her juris doctorate degree in 2008.

Hughes has worked for the Suffolk County District Attorney's Office and interned at the Quincy City Solicitor's Office. After starting her own law practice, she went to work for the Massachusetts Republican State Party.

She says she's always been a Republican and recalls stuffing envelopes during William Weld's campaign for governor as a young teen-ager. She also visited the Oval Office at the White House while Ronald Reagan was president. The President waved to her as he and First Lady Nancy Reagan boarded the Marine One helicopter to Camp David.

Today, Hughes lives with husband Philip Doherty, at 148 Phillips St. Her mom and dad are John and Edith Hughes. She has two brothers Adam (her twin) and Jonathan.

Hughes says she is proud of her accomplishment as the first woman to represent Ward 5 on the Quincy City Council

"I went to an all woman high school; I'm the only girl in my family and my mom and dad always treated me exactly the same way. There was no 'boys do this and girls do that.' It means a lot to me."

Hughes will have a lot issues on her plate after she's seated in January. Ward 5 encompasses the location for the new Central Middle School, the Wollaston Business District, Quincy Medical Center and most of Quincy Center.

She says the revitalization of the downtown was a familiar theme along the campaign trail.

"As I knocked on doors around the ward people were very skeptical of the whole project because a lot of people have heard about revitalizing the downtown for the past 30 years. Not necessarily in this form but improvements to downtown Quincy. Some people are very leery. I think also with the uniqueness of the contract (between the city and the developer, Street-Works) and the way the project is supposed to be funded, leaves people a bit curious about how it's going to work out."

Keeping the public informed of the ambitious $1.6 billion effort is paramount, she says.

"I think the mayor has done a good job at getting information out there about what's going to come into Quincy Center, how long it's going to take, what the goals are and how we're going to get there in terms of funding. I think it's important to get the information out there but also to have somebody who will make sure that whatever taxpayer funds are expelled on any type of capital improvements are doled out wisely and efficiently.

"People are very mindful and watchful of their money right now as they should be, It's difficult economic times right now and wasteful government spending is at the top of every headline. I think that's important."

Hughes also says she wants to make sure the project does not negatively impact the adjoining residential neighborhoods in terms of trash, noise, and traffic among other things.

"I think Quincy is perfect for small and medium-sized businesses because of our proximity to Boston — you can take public transportation here. . . It helps to offset our property tax rates but I know people don't want that at the cost of where their neighborhood is. Having grown up here, that's our number one asset: the residential aspect of the city. That seems to have been lost in places like Cambridge where it's more urbanized."

Asked if she would have voted to move the project forward had she been on the council, she answers with an emphatic yes. "I think the downtown definitely, absolutely needs a revitalization. I would have supported a change in the downtown – 100 percent. It needs it."

Another focus for her as a councillor will be rejuvenating the Wollaston Business District. She says issues of parking, zoning, safety and traffic need to be addressed.

But for Hughes, her life is not all politics. She still enjoys entertaining and sings most Friday nights at the Common Market Restaurant in West Quincy.

"I love musical theatre. I love singing show tunes. I'm a total gleek."

Kirsten Hughes made a big political debut Nov. 8. She's ready for her encore as the new Ward 5 city councillor Jan.

THE NEXT City Council President and School Committee Vice Chairperson appear to be Councillor at-Large Michael McFarland and School Committeewoman Barbara Isola respectively.

McFarland and Isola apparently have the support of their colleagues for the official vote at the city's Inauguration Ceremony Tuesday, Jan. 3 at Quincy High School.

For McFarland, he will join select company when he succeeds Kevin Coughlin who has served as city council president for the past two years. McFarland will become just the third municipal official to serve as both city council president and school committee vice chairman. The other two: former Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi and former at-large Councillor Patricia Toland. Both Raymondi and Toland also served as school vice chairs while on the school committee.

McFarland may also be the only resident to have served as city auditor, purchasing director and executive secretary (to former Mayor James Sheets). McFarland served on the school committee from 1998 to 2005 before being elected to the council. He was re-elected to his fourth term Nov. 8.

Isola was elected to a four-year term on the School Committee in 2009 in her first Quincy campaign. She will succeed Anne Mahoney who has served as vice chairman of the School Committee the past two years.

The mayor of the city serves as chairman of the school committee.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1959 photo postcard view of the Administration Building of what was then the Quincy City Hospital on Whitwell Street. Erected in 1936, during the Great Depression, this building was paid for with government funds by the Federal-Emergency-Administration of Public Works. Quincy's Coletti Brothers Architects, who also designed the second addition of the Thomas Crane Public Library, designed this building in the Classical Revival Style. They included many locally familiar architectural details such as the broad stairs made of Quincy granite. Known today as the Quincy Medical Center, its new owners - Steward Health Care - are spending several millions of dollars to upgrade the overall property. The work includes refurbishing the façade and the domed lantern cupola of this building. The Ionic wooden columns of the portico have been restored and painted gleaming white as they appeared over 50 years ago in this photo. On the left can be seen the old Faxon Nurses Home named for its 1911 donor, Henry M. Faxon. In later years, it was a shelter for the indigent. That building was demolished to make space for the Francis X. McCauley Building that is there today. On the right can be seen the roof of the old Rice Building named for the donor of the land and original buildings of the hospital: William Ball Rice. # Quincy Veterans' Day Parade Best Around

When I was growing up, my father always took my brother and I to downtown Boston to watch the Boston Veterans Day Parade, Back in the 1950s and 1960s, it was probably one of the he at 17 and his friend at 18 largest Veterans' Day parades in the country.

Today, in Boston like across America, many of these patriotic displays have dwindled away. How sad that in Boston where the American Revolution began, you have to leave the city to find a Veterans' Day Parade.

For the past quarter century, I have celebrated the holiday by marching in the largest Veterans' Day Parade anywhere around here across the Neponset Bridge in Quincy, the City of Presidents.

The annual ceremonies are sponsored by the Quincy Veterans Council on behalf of the city's various veterans' posts. Guest speaker this year was James Fratolillo, a U.S. Army, Vietnam combat veteran and past state commander of the American Legion. He enlisted in the U.S. Army at age 17 and was stationed in Vietnam in 1967-68 and served with the 1st Field Forces Vietnam (Forward) Division. He was wounded in battle in 1968 and received a Purple Heart.

His speech was quite inspiring as he talked about the sacrifices made back then by those who fought for their country. His comments were simple and direct.

He talked about when both enlisted togehter. His friend was killed in action at age 20 in 1968. He talked about his pain at the loss of a childhood friend who made the supreme sacrifice.

As a baby boomer who enlisted in the U.S. Air Force right out of high school in 1966, I thanked him for his talk to all those gathered to honor all our veteans living and dead for their service to their country.

I return to Quincy yearly to stand and march with all those who sacrifices will make it possible for us to gather as free citizens and appreciate our individual

Thanks Commissioner Raymondi And DPW

On Wednesday evening my husband was traveling home from work when he hit a pothole on West Street and blew a tire.

On Thursday morning I called PW Commissioner Daniel Raymondi at 9:25 a.m. to leave him a message. He returned my call at 9:40 a.m. and I told I of the pothole incident from the night before. He told me he would look into it and thanked me for the call.

At 9:55 a.m., he called me back to tell me the pothole has been repaired. In a half hour time span Dan responded to my concern and the issue was resolved.

We wanted to express our thanks to Dan Raymondi and all of the Department of Public Works for a job well response time. We have had the pleasure of Dan being our ward councilor for 12 years. Any time we called him he called us right back and sometimes just paid us a visit.

We will miss seeing and talking to him on a regular basis but know that he will carry that faithfulness to ALL the residents of Quin-

Sheets Tightens City Car Use

By FRANK McCAULEY

Citing a need for a more regulated procedure regarding the use of city vehicles, Mayor James A. Sheets had instituted a new policy, which he said could save between $30,000 and $40,000 this fiscal year.

The new policy states that no municipal employee can take a cityowned vehicle home unless that person is on call twenty-four hours a day and has a demonstrated record of being called in at least once a week from home directly to a city-site problem.

This Week 1990 21 Years Ago

City employees who can continue taking a city vehicle home include the police chief, acting fire chief and commissioner of public works. The mayor noted these employees are on call 24 hours a day and have radio equipment in their

Free Holiday Concert Dec. 2 At Eastern Nazarene College

Holiday favorites and jazz Dec. 2 in the Coye Fine Arts arrangements will be among the musical selections performed by Eastern Nazarene College's Symphonic Winds and 4 O'Clock Jazz Ensemble at a free winter concert to be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Center on the college's East Elm campus in Wollaston.

Comprised of ENC students, adults and area high school students, the 35-member Symphonic Winds will perform a variety of holiday selections, including "Christmas Music for Winds," "Holiday for Winds" and "A Jazzy Christmas."

The 4 O'Clock Jazz Ensemble will then present a variety of stylistically different pieces including big band arrangements such as Count Basie's "Jumpin' at the Woodside," "Zoot Suit Riot" and more.

"The audience will enjoy expected Christmas favorites, a few surprises with new arrangements of Christmas songs, and a variety of great concert literature," said Stephen Bell, director of both the Symphonic Winds and 4 O'Clock Jazz ensembles.

"We invite everyone to come and discover these local ensembles at this free concert. It's a great way to begin the Christmas season," Bell said.

George, Sandra Burke Receive UMass Honor

Quincy attorney George G. "Trigger" Burke and his wife, Sandra, were recently honored by the University of Massachusetts in Amherst at the unveiling of the college's Founders Wall.

The Founders Wall honors the highest donors to the University which include the Burkes.

Among those offering congratulations at the ceremony were Robert C. Holub, chancellor of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst, and University President Robert L. Caret.

Since George G. Burke graduated in 1956, he also received an Honorary Doctorate of Laws from the University of Massachusetts.

The name inscribed on the Founders Wall is "George Trigger Burke" and his wife "Sandra B. Burke."

George Burke has donated to the Newman Catholic Center and the University of Massachusetts approximately $1 million. This includes 122 students from Quincy High School and North Quincy High School who have received a $1,000 scholarship for each student.

The Hall of Fame for all athletes has been named the George Trigger Burke Hall of Fame and his basketball number #32 was retired by the University of Massachusetts and hangs in the Mullin Center where all basketball and hockey games are played.

Toys For Tots Drive At Registry Of Deeds

Register of Deeds Bill O'Donnell announces that Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is sponsoring its Fifth Annual U.S. Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots Drive at the Registry of Deeds.

Register Of Deeds Bill O'Donnell said the Registry is accepting donations of toys and games for children up to the age of 10. Toy donations can be dropped off at the Registry beginning Monday, Nov. 28th through Wednesday, Dec. 14 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

A Toys for Tots donation bin will be in the Main Lobby of the Registry, located at 649 High St., Dedham. The objective of Toys for Tots is to collect new, non-violent, unwrapped toys each year and distribute them as gifts to needy children throughout the community.

"We are once again delighted to be working with the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve as an official drop off location for the Toys for Tots Drive, and in the spirit of the holiday season, I encourage all interested residents to drop off a toy for this very worthy cause," O'Donnell and the spirit of the season of the season

MR. and MRS. EVAN FAY

Leanne Martin Wed To Evan Fay

Leanne Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Martin of Quincy, was recently wed to Evan Fay of Kingston.

Mr. Fay is the son Jill Fay-Pearl of Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Fay were married Oct. 7 at St. Joseph Church in Quincy. After the ceremony, a bagpiper played as the wedding party boarded a trolley for the ride to The Red Lion Inn in Cohasset.

Colleen Martin, sister of the bride, served as the Maid of Honor. Bridesmaids were Kara McSweeney, cousin of the bride; Marisa Ross Cahill, Kimberly DiBona, Kelly Antonellis and Alexandra Pearl, sister of the groom.

Junior Bridesmaid was Nyxanna Martin, niece of the bride. Jordyn Fay and Ayanna Patel – both goddaughters of the groom – were the flower girls.

The Best Man was Adam Fay, cousin of the groom. Groomsmen were Michael Martin, brother of the bride; Jeffrey Pearl, stepfather of the groom; and friends Paul Goldie, Sean Fitzgerald and Kris Rockman.

The Ringbearer was Joseph Mann.

Leanne is a graduate of Quincy High School and graduated Providence College with a bachelor's degree in political science. She is director of Financial Education at the Massachusetts State Treasurer Office, Boston.

Evan is a graduate of Xaverian Brothers High School, Westwood, and graduate of Massachusetts Department of Correctional Training Academy. He is employed as a correctional officer.

After a honeymoon in Aruba, the couple is living in Braintree.

Meat, Mushroom Turkey Stuffing

There are so many different ways to make a turkey stuffing or any stuffing for that matter, but I usually make it with meat or mushrooms or both.

And making it the day before is the safest way, so when you stuff a cold turkey, the stuffing will also be cold.

I always make a large amount, and after stuffing the turkey, I place the rest in a baking dish and bake in a 350-degree oven for 25 minutes.

EASY TURKEY STUFFING

- 2 stalks of celery (cut in small pieces)
- 1 medium sized onion (cut in small piec-
  - 1 cup of pound ground turkey
- 2 cups chicken stock (water can also be used)
- 2 tablespoons Bell's seasoning
- 1 large bag of stuffing mix
- ½ pound mushrooms (optional)
- Salt and pepper oil for sautéing

In a large skillet, sauté the celery and onion for a couple of minutes. Add the ground turkey and the mushrooms and cook until done. Add the chicken stock and the soaked stuffing mix and turn until

When the turkey is stuffed I cover the area tightly with aluminum foil and then bake in a 350-degree oven according to taste directions.

Happy Thanksgiving!

Artichoke Heart Fritters

Here is a tried and true recipe for a fritter that we all enjoyed throughout the years.

As an appetizer they can be made the day before and then placed in a warming oven when ready to serve.

Almost any vegetable can be used. Today I am using artichoke hearts, a family favorite. The other one that is so popular in our family is a string bean fritter.

ARTICHOKE FRITTER

1 package of frozen artichoke hearts, thawed and cut in pieces

- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 3-4 tablespoons grated Parmesan or

Romano cheese

Salt and pepper to taste Vegetable oil for frying

In a bowl, put the egg, flour, cheese and mix well. Add the artichoke hearts and mix until mixture resembles pancake mix.

In a large skillet, heat about 3 tablespoons of vegetable oil and add a tablespoon of the artichoke mixture for each fritter turning until lightly browned on each side.

Drain on a paper towel. Place in a warming oven until its time to serve.

If you choose to use string beans, an eight ounce can may be used, or frozen equivalent.

Pumpkin Pie - A Thanksgiving Day Must

Thanksgiving Day would not be the same in our house without pumpkin pie. I usually buy a ready-made piecrust but if you want to make the crust from scratch, that's fine.

In addition to a pumpkin pie mixture, there is also one that's called Easy Mix where all you add is the milk and eggs. But today's recipe is for just the pie mix.

And they can be made a couple of days before and refrigerated until ready to serve.

PUMPKIN PIE

16-ounce can of pumpkin mix 2 eggs (beaten) 5 ounces of evaporated milk

1-teaspoon cinnamon

1-teaspoon nutmeg

1/2 teaspoon cloves

1-cup sugar

1/2 teaspoon salt

In a bowl, beat the eggs, add the milk and all the seasonings and mix well. Add the pumpkin mix until well blended.

Place the bottom crust on the pie plate and bake in a 425-degree oven for 15 minutes and then in a 350-degree oven for an hour, or until a toothpick placed in the center comes out clean.

Before baking, place the pie on a cookie sheet and also gently place aluminum foil over the edges so that they won't burn.

Suzie's Polenta Pizzas

When it comes to appetizers, especially around the holiday season, we all want to prepare things that can be made ahead of time and then cooked the next day.

Today's recipe is for a polenta appetizers that my daughter Suzie served before a dinner get together. It's made from a polenta roll that can be purchased in any market.

POLENTA, ZUCCHINI PIZZAS Cut the roll in pieces about 1/2 inch thick 1 small zucchini (sliced thin)

Tomato sauce for topping

Shredded cheese for topping

Place cut polenta on a slightly greased cookie sheet. Place the thinly sliced zucchini on top of each one.

On top of that add some tomato sauce and the shredded cheese. I always add either oregano or basil on top, but that is optional.

Refrigerate if making the day before and then bake in a 350-degree oven until cheese is melted. They can be served hot or at room temperature.

What To Do With Leftover Mashed Potatoes

If you are looking for a great way to use up those mashed potatoes leftover from Thanksgiving, and you're not going to use them as a side for hot turkey sandwiches, here is a solution that I have used so many times and to great raves.

POTATO PATTIES

Assuming you have at least two cups cold mashed potatoes

1 slightly beaten egg ¼ cup chopped onion

Salt and pepper to taste Enough flour for dipping the patties Two tablespoons vegetable oil and 2 tablespoons butter

Combine all of the ingredients and mix well. Shape into six patties. Dip each one into the flour.

Heat the oil and butter together. Brown the patties slowly about five minutes on each side. Serve hot. They can be kept in a warming oven if not eaten immediately.

venues as the Montreal Jazz Festival, Philadelphia Folk Festival, and Toronto Blues Festival, and earns praise from critics nationwide.

In 2010, she released her fifth album, Lonesomeville, which has been included on numerous "Year's Best" lists. Downbeat Magazine hails her "steady tone of genuineness;" Boston critic Steve Morse notes her "passionate, rockabilly-blues edge that lifts your spirits high, followed by ballads that dig into your soul;" and Austin, Texas critic John Conquest writes, "the only problem with her original songs is deciding which is the least sensational."

Opening the program will be the country blues and Americana trio, the Bourgeois Hobos, featuring Quincy native Steve Folino.

Proceeds from the evening will help support the Historical Society's Quincy History Museum, Quincy History Library, and public programs.

Tickets are $20 and are available at the Adams Academy.

Last year, John M. Gillis, a lifelong Quincy Point resident, was recognized as a "champion of the little guy" during his public service career that has spanned more than 50 years. Gillis served 33 years as Quincy city clerk before he was elected a Norfolk County commissioner in 1992, a post he has served nearly 20 years.

Gillis was selected for the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award by a judging panel among 22 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

Gillis is the first recipient of the Bosworth Award and the 28th individual overall to be recognized by the Sun for outstanding community service. The other recipients Dec. 31. received the award when it was known as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below in this week's issue of The Quincy Sun.

Nominations will close Saturday, Dec. 31. After nominations close, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2011 Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun Attn: Bosworth Award 1372 Hancock St. Quincy, MA 02169

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the their nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor, friend or community activist who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Avani Bhavsar, Nicole Setow Poster Contest Winners

The winners of the annual Christmas Festive Poster Contest were recently announced.

The winning posters are displayed in the front window of The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

There were more than 500 contest entries this year. The posters were judged at Quincy Access TV.

The winners came from different schools and were judged in two groups: children in grades 1-3 and grades 4 and 5 were judged together.

First place winners were Avani Bhavsar, grade 3, Merrymount School; and Nicole Setow, grade 5, Montclair School.

Second place was awarded to Gianna Gatturna, grade 3, Merrymount School; and Alita Wanaslip, grade 4, Bernazzani School.

In third place were Nancy McMahon, grade 3, Clilfford Marshall School; and Kiana Malini, grade 4, Clifford Marshall School.

Several students also received honorable mention.

They are:

Cooper Hansen, grade 2 and Vinay Balaji, grade 3, both Merrymount School.

Nicole Gaykova, grade 4, Bernazzani School.

Gent Haviari, grade 3, Clifford Marshall School.

Amanda Morris, grade 4, Atherton Hough School.

Gina Zou, grade 3; Zoey Zhang, grade 5 and Jin Yao, grade 5, all Wollaston School.

Posters that received honorable mention can be viewed in the Children's Room at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

HYPER Robotics To Host Qualifier At NQHS Dec. 3

Quincy Public Schools HYPER Robotics will host the Eastern Massachusetts LEGO Qualifier Saturday, Dec. 3 at North Quincy High School from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The event is sponsored by Bluefin Robotics of Quincy.

Forty-eight middle school teams, including five from Quincy, will compete in the robotics event entitled "Food Factor."

There will be six playing fields, four large projection screens, DJ, and 2 MC's with interactive music and entertainment.

There will also be food, prizes and raffles for all participants and spectators.

A crowd of more than 800 people from throughout New England are expected to attend.

Some 100 volunteers from the community will serve as judges and refer-

Hughes will ride in a convertible along the 3-mile parade route and will also receive a gift from the Christmas Festival Committee.

The parade's finale will feature Santa Claus who will wave to well-wishers from the back of a Quincy fire truck.

Parade favorites the Hallamore Clydesdales and around 30 Aleppo Shriners clowns are also returning as perennial crowd pleasers.

Among the marching bands participating are the Waltham Legion Post, the Boston Crusaders Senior, 103rd Electricians Pipe Band, Joseph Case High School, Weymouth High School, New Bedford Sr. High School, David Prouty High School, Somersett High School, Douglas High School, Immaculate Heart of Mary High School, Hanover High School, North/ Quincy High Schools combined band, and the Acton/ Boxborough High School.

The parade draws an estimated 200,000 spectators that line the route from Quincy Center along Hancock Street to East and West Squantum Streets in North Quincy.

The rain date is Dec. 4th, and if it is postponed it will be announced on the WATD radio stations in the Marshfield and Boston areas, beginning at 6:30 a.m. The parade has only been postponed twice and cancelled once in its 58 years.

The floats will be judged before the parade begins, between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m in the Quincy Credit Union parking area at Scammell Street and Quincy Avenue.

There will be a cash prize along with the Father Tierney trophy given out to top winners of the float contest, and the band contest. Father Thomas Tierney was the founder of the Christmas Parade in 1952.

Bands will be judged as they march down Hancock Street at Cottage Avenue.

The awards will be presented at the end of the parade route in the North Quincy High School auditorium.

Mayor Thomas Koch will be marching along with former mayors and color guards representing the Quincy Police Department, Quincy Fire Department, Boston Police Department, Morrisette Legion Post Color Guard, Weymouth, and the 2nd Marine Division. Other city officials will also expected to march the parade route.

Other units scheduled to appear this year include the Quincy Police Department Lead Unit, the Quincy Police Department motorcycles, Morrisette American Legion Post Sons of American Legion, Morrisette Legion Post Auxiliary, Silver Dolphin Drill team, Mayors Committee "Thank You" banner, municipal officials, Ronald McDonald Vehicle, Council on Aging Van, Boston Police Gaelic Column, 1953 Boston Patrol Wagon,

Paul Keenan Chief of Police 11/23/11 Host Pie Sale, Prep Food For Father Bill's Community Dinner Thursday At Christ Church

Quincy High School Culinary Students, Teachers Give Back This Thanksgiving

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy High's culinary students and teachers are giving back this Thanksgiv-

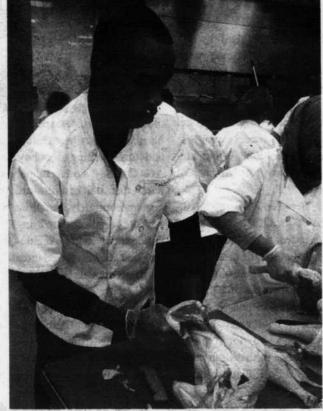

They hosted a bake sale Tuesday that ran until 1 p.m. to benefit Father Bill's & MainSpring. And they spent all of Monday and Tuesday prepping and cooking more than 70 turkeys for a community dinner to be hosted by FBMS Thursday at Christ Episcopal Church in Quincy Center. Father Bill's has hosted the dinner for almost 20 years, and this is the third year QHS has been involved.

Mark Kelly, a culinary instructor at QHS, said it's nice to be able to help out. "I live in Quincy, so it's great to give back," he said. He was also happy his students were so involved in the process. "It gives them a sense of community," he said, "it's for a great cause."

Mike Mollins is a junior in the culinary program. "It's a great thing to do, it will help out the community; sharing is caring," he said while preparing a turkey Monday. He anticipated being able to cut-up five turkeys during the 40-minute class.

The turkeys, which were all donated to Father Bill's, were cut into eight pieces Monday and allowed to sit in brine overnight. 'Cooking took place Tuesday and they'd be sliced and wrapped before being picked up Wednesday morning. The school will also save the pan drippings and carcasses, which can be used to make gravy and stock.

FBMS President and CEO John Yazwinski said the dinner is open to all.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL Sophomore Keyshawn Mahase, a student in the school's Culinary Arts program, cuts up a turkey before it can be brined overnight. Students helped prep food for Father Bill's Community Thanksgiving Dinner set for Thursday from noon to 3 p.m. at Christ Episcopal Church in Quincy Sun Photo/Scott Jackson Quincy.

"Anyone in the community looking for a warm meal is welcome to attend," he said. The dinner runs from noon to 3 p.m.

He also spoke fondly of the collaboration with Quincy High and noted they helped solve the logistical issues they encountered in past years trying to get all the turkey cooked.

Storing Lawnmower for Winter

. When should I o mow the lawn for the last time before winter? And do I need to take the blades off of my lawnmower before storing? - Janet in Macon, Ga.

• The timing of the e"last mow" varies from region to region, but generally, it should take place shortly before the first hard frost. If the grass doesn't need mowing, use your discretion as to whether to mow it one more time or not.

Once mowing is finished for the year, seed any bare or brown spots. Some of the seeds will sprout, but most should lay dormant through the coldest part of winter and then sprout well before your first mow come spring.

Some lawnmower owners remove the blades from their mower before storing for the winter. It's recommended, but you don't have to do this. I would recommend first removing the spark plug from the motor and carefully draining the gas from the tank and into a safe storage container (do this outside where spills can be quickly cleaned up). After that, tip the mower onto its side (unless it's a lawn tractor, in which case, don't do this by yourself, or at all) and, using a sprayer attachment on your garden hose, wash off all the grass, leaves and dirt from the underside of the mower and the blades. Allow the mower to dry completely and then apply a light coat of oil (such as 3-in-1 oil or WD-40) to the blades and the rotating mechanisms and wipe away excess. Store the mower upright in a dry part of your garage or shed.

Other garden tools, including shears and clippers, shovels and so on, also should be cleaned and their blades lightly oiled. Store them upright and off the floor - a pegboard is ideal for this purpose.

HOME TIP: To keep birds away from a freshly seeded spot, place a few wooden stakes around the area and tie an old piece of cloth to each stake. The motion should scare most birds

AG Coakley Urges Hearing On Excessive Homeowner Insurance Rates

Urging closer scrutiny on homeowners' insurance rates, Attorney General Martha Coakley urged the State Rating Board to trigger a hearing to more closely review the data insurers use to set those rates.

In a letter to the State Rating Board, the AG's Office claims that insurers use untested or discredited hurricane models, potentially driving up costs for all homeowners.

"Untested and unsupported forecast models should not be used to justify rates that are excessive," said AG Coakley. "Hurricane models have a significant impact on the premiums paid by all Massachusetts homeowners who could have paid millions in excessive rates as a result. All insurers should be required to demonstrate that these models produce accurate estimates that are appropriate for Massachu-

Between 2004 and 2010, the AG's Office says rates increased based on the insurers' hurricane predictions and caused consumers to pay an increase of $2.2 billion, half a billion of which could be overcharges. Massachusetts did not see any hurricanes in that time period. 2011's Hurricane Irene was downgraded to a tropical storm before it hit Massachusetts.

Most Massachusetts insurers use private prediction models to estimate expected hurricane losses when rating and underwriting a policy. AG Coakley noted in her letter that the insurers are not appropriately detailing how the companies are using these models, and no regulatory body has reviewed most of these models to ensure that they are suitable for use in Massachusetts. Not only are models not being reviewed, the Commissioner is allowing the use of models that have been rejected in other states, such as Florida. Historically, these rejected models have inflated expected losses well above actual experience.

Coastal areas have seen the greatest increase in homeowner insurance rates, especially in the Cape and Islands. For many insurers, modeled hurricane loss estimates are as much as 600% higher than non-hurricane losses in these areas.

The Attorney General sent a similar letter to the Commissioner in 2009. The Commissioner did not respond and no hearings have occurred concerning the hurricane models.

Holidays Start At The Front Door

Homeowners can help their families and guests get in the holiday spirit right at the front door. Since many people view their entryway as a sign of the quality of their home, the holidays are the ideal time to show it off. A festive holiday entry can be the home's focal point and serve as a first impression for both its interior and exterior.

Experts at Therma-Tru® Corp., a brand of fiberglass and steel exterior door systems, offer tips for creating a warm and inviting entryway during the holidays:

Design a heart-shaped wreath with miniature pine cones and dye them a brilliant shade of red

Mount an evergreen wreath or swag with glass ornaments or silver bells

Create a wreath with magnolia leaves and fresh fruit such as pears, apples and pomegranates

If you have a rustic style home, consider adding antlers, a cowboy hat or rope to your wreath

For a coastal home, consider a wreath of woven sea grass with sea shells or a brightly painted life preserver with lights and decorative glass floats

If your door doesn't merit all the attention, consider wrapping it in bright paper with a large bow or framing it in lights

Hang a set of sleigh bells on the door knob, which will give a festive jingle every time guests pass through

Painting Your Door:

If it's not yet too cold to paint outdoors, brighten up your door with a fresh coat of red paint or a strong color that provides contrast to your current color scheme. Made especially to accept paint, Therma-Tru® Classic-Craft® Canvas Collection™ entry doors feature a smooth surface that's ideal for adding custom color to the home.

When decorating, be careful to protect your door. Avoid putting a nail in the face of the door, as this can lead to damage in the future and could void your door warranty from the original manufacturer. Instead, use a door hanger to hang the wreath from the door knocker, or place a tack on the top of the door frame and use clear fishing line to hang the wreath.

In addition to these simple design tips, you may also want to consider taking advantage of this opportunity to update your entryway with a new, energy-efficient door system.

Fiberglass continues to grow in popularity with homeowners because the doors are easy to maintain and will withstand a wide range of temperatures and weather elements such as strong winds, high-humidity and frequent rain.

Energy-efficient fiberglass entry doors from Therma-Tru® offer four times the insulation of wood and won't rot, crack or split like wood doors, or dent, rust or corrode like steel doors. The doors are ENERGY STAR® qualified, providing excellent thermal protection and comfort for your family and holiday house guests.

As an added value, homeowners who purchase and install certain styles of Therma-Tru doors may be eligible for a federal tax credit of up to $500 per household when completing the door replacement project by the end of 2011.

Consumer Tips From The Better Business Bureau

Know The Keys To Finding A Trustworthy Locksmith

Being locked out of your home or vehicle is a stressful situation.

Unfortunately, some untrustworthy locksmiths will only make matters worse.

Better Business Bureau is warning consumers to beware of untrustworthy locksmith businesses taking advantage of consumers across the country.

To avoid getting ripped off, BBB offers these tips to find a reliable locksmith that you can trust:

Know the name. Unscrupulous locksmiths often operate under many business names or aliases. They may answer the phone with a generic phrase like, "locksmith service" or simply "locksmith." If the call is answered this way, ask, "What is the legal name of your business?

Critique their advertising. Look closely at the business' advertisements. Is the specific name of the business clearly identified? Does the ad look similar to other ads but have a different name? Does it appear that the dealer actually operates under several Pay attention to the vehicle. Generally, locksmiths should arrive in a marked service vehicle or van that clearly states the business name. Keep in mind that some legitimate locksmiths do work out of a car or unmarked van for quick jobs.

Ask for identification. A legitimate locksmith should ask for your identification and some form of proof that you have the authority to allow the unlocking to be done. A legitimate locksmith should also provide you with their identification, usually in the form of a business card or invoice with the company name on it. Identifying information should also match the name on the service vehicle.

Get an estimate. Find out what the work will cost before you authorize it. Never sign a blank form authorizing work. Ask about additional fees (such as mileage charges, minimum service fees, or late night surcharges) before you authorize the locksmith to do the work. If the locksmith quotes you a different price upon arrival, do not allow the work to be Demand an invoice. You can't dispute a charge without proof of how much you paid and what you paid for. Insist on an itemized invoice that includes parts, labor, mileage and service charges. The invoice should also include the business name and address.

Find out about insurance. Ask if the locksmith is insured. If your property becomes damaged during a repair, insurance is important to cover your losses.

Pay the right way. Using your credit card to pay for locksmith services can give you added security. Many credit cards have built-in fraud protection.

Plan for next time. Once you've found a reputable locksmith, keep their information handy in case you find yourself locked out again in the future. Always check with your BBB to find a trustworthy business in your area.

For more information about reliable locksmiths and other businesses you can trust, visit bbb.org.

BBB is an unbiased nonprofit organization that sets and upholds high standards for fair and honest business behavior. Businesses that earn BBB accreditation contractually agree and adhere to the organization's high standards of ethical business behavior. By State Senator JOHN F. KEENAN

With a flurry of activity on a number of important bills - including pension reform, Melissa's Bill, and expanded gaming -- the Legislature has ended the first half of its 2011-12 legislative session.

Please know that although the Legislature will not be holding any formal sessions between now and January, the lights in the State House are not simply shut off, and the doors locked. The Legislature will continue to meet in informal sessions and advance non-controversial legislation, and my staff and I will continue to work a full-time schedule as we prepare for 2012.

Before looking ahead, though, it is appropriate to take some time and provide an update on what we've been doing beneath the Golden Dome.

Casinos

No other issue, save perhaps for the state budget, consumes more energy and focus than casino gambling. Although I opposed the bill, I am pleased, in some way, that the matter has been resolved and our collective attention can shift onto other issues. My opinion did not change between the time the Senate approved an expanded gaming bill in September, and when we voted on the final compromise legislation last week. Three casinos, plus a slot parlor, in my opinion, will over-saturate the marketplace, with the public costs associated with increased gambling addictions and related social ills caused by easy access to casino gambling outweighing any new tax revenues created. Further, the regulatory structure established in the legislation is not strong enough to properly regulate this unique industry, and begs for increased transparency and stronger ethics rules. Finally, despite attempts by proponents to portray casinos as a way to increase local and school aid for our cities and towns, the final version of this legislation actually takes away money away from our communities - money that could be used to protect critical local services and hire teachers and redistributes it to the horse racing industry.

I only hope that the five individuals chosen to serve as the inaugural board of gaming commissioners see their primary job as protecting the interests of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, not serving the Transgender Rights

In our state there are currently 30,000 individuals for whom the state's antidiscrimination laws do not

It is my belief that I, as an elected official, have a responsibility to ensure that nobody is discriminated against when it comes to securing employment, finding a home, or receiving an education; that people are treated according to their merits, not their gender identity. This bill does not give transgendered individuals any special rights or privileges; it just guarantees them the same rights and privileges as all the residents of Massachusetts.

Melissa's Bill/Parole Reform/Sentencing Re-

The keystone of this bill drastically toughens penalties for violent habitual offenders. Although not quite a "three-strikes-you're-out" bill, it does remove the possibility of parole, while extending sentences, for our most dangerous criminals. It also makes much-needed changes to our state's parole board.

While I understand the over-crowding problem in our jails, and support treatment rather than incarceration for first-time drug offenders, I filed amendments opposing reduced minimum sentences for big-time drug dealers. In my view, the neighborhood drug dealer can be as big a scourge in a community as someone who is a repeat violent offender. Also, considering the number of violent crimes that occur in support of the drug trade, it makes sense to appropriately punish those who deal drugs.

These have been some complicated issues, and I have spent countless hours reading, researching and contemplating the bills be fore taking my votes. In addition, I have heard from many of you about these matters; your feedback has helped me make even more informed decisions. I thank you and encourage you to continue contacting my office to voice your opinion.

For the past 11 months, I have been honored to serve as your state senator. I look forward to another productive year in 2012. Again, my office will remain open through the holidays. I can be reached by phone at 617-722-1494, or Email at john. keenan@masenate.gov

QHS Culinary Students, Teachers Give Back This Thanksgiving

"It's a great partnership,"
Yazwinski said. "I remember when Father Bill was alive, we were so spread out between restaurants and pizza parlors across the city."

Patrick Noe, another culinary instructor at the school, said his students' work with Father Bill's served dual purposes.

"It's good on several levels," he said between classes Monday. "You have Father Bill's getting their turkeys, and the kids get experience they haven't had up until now. They get to roast turkeys, make calzones, bake pies. We do things like that but not on this scale. This is very characteristic of a catering outfit."

He also felt his students enjoyed the opportunity to prepare such a large amount of food. "They love it," he said, "they like to be busy and get their hands on instead of sitting in a class listening to lectures."

While making dough for rolls, student Cassidy Toldness concurred with Noe. "It's fun, it's very hands on," the sophomore said.

And the students were very busy. According to Bill Gluvna, who oversees the baking program at QHS, they'd be making up to 500 pies and calzones and more than 2,400 rolls for Tuesday's bake sale. The pies sold for $7 each, the calzones went for $8 a piece and rolls were $2 for a dozen; a dollar from each sale goes to Father Bill's.

Gluvna expects to see an up tick in sales compared to past years. "This is going to be one of our busier years with all the pre-orders," he said.

Culinary specialist Suzanne Flynn, who runs the marketing for the school's Presidents Café, said almost 200 pies were pre-ordered since they starting accepting orders earlier this month. On Monday she anticipated brisk business at Tuesday's sale. "They'll be lined up at the door to get in," she said.

The school is also in talks with Father Bill's to host a luncheon later on in the school year. The date hasn't been determined, but Kelly expects it to take place during the spring. Yazwinski is looking forward to that as well. "We're always looking for opportunities to work with the school," he said.

79TH CITY FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Quincy Presidents vs. North Quincy Red Raiders

Red Raiders Enter Game At 2-8 Overall

North Quincy Aiming To Make It Three Straight

By SEAN BRENNAN

After being on the wrong end of the annual Thanksgiving Day game with Outney for ten straight years (1999-2008), the North Quincy Red Raiders enter tomorrow's 79th meeting riding a modest two-game holiday winning streak.

However, when it comes to Quincy-North Quincy you can just forget about records and winning streaks; in the big picture it is just another high school football game, but for the players and coaches participating, it is more than that. This game represents an opportunity to finish the season on top and, for a North Quincy program that has struggled this fall that would be gravy.

During the preseason, North Quincy (2-8 overall) had high hopes on improving on last year's 5-5-record. But a lack of numbers, a handful of players forced to play on both offense and defense, some nagging injuries to key players and a difficult non-league and league schedule tested the character of these Red Raiders.

North Quincy opened the 2011 season with five consecutive nonleague losses to Boston Latin (7-6), Oliver Ames (33-7), East Bridgewater (47-0), Arlington (3-0), and Archbishop Williams (27-20). With their ship taking on water, North Quincy rebounded with a pulsating 28-22 overtime victory over Middleboro, but back-to-losses to Duxbury (40-7) and Hingham (28-6) dropped them to 1-7 entering the month of November. The Raiders picked up their second win following a 27-21win over Silver Lake, but the pre-Thanksgiving schedule ended badly as North Quincy fell to Whitman-Hanson, 42-9, on Nov. 10.

Despite some disappointing results, the Red Raiders have a chance to wash the slate clean against the Presidents. According to Head Coach Jim Connor his team has turned all of its efforts toward Quincy because he knows that his team's two-game winning streak will mean nothing when the two teams line up for kickoff at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

"I think overall, as I said early on, the biggest concern we had was our numbers and depth," Connor said late last week when discussing the hurdles this team has had to overcome. "We have ten guys or so going two-ways and that is a tough thing to do when you are (already) so shallow and lack depth. A lot of guys are (playing) injured or get winded and it has been hard to constantly compete for four quarters. We could hang on into halftime but then (lack of depth) caught up to us."

"But that doesn't matter when you play Quincy and neither does past results," Connor said, offering no built-in pre-game excuses. "Even when were down (ten) straight you go into this game, and it is 50/50 (who is going to win). Even if one team is undefeated or has no wins, it always ends up being evenly-matched every time you go in."

A major factor in North Quincy's last two wins over Quincy was the presence of an experienced senior class. This time around the senior class will be counted on even more to steady the team when the pressure that comes with playing against the Presidents rears its head; and it most certainly will.

Leading the way will be senior captains Walter Hannon (FB/LB), Marquis Chase (RB/DB), Johannes Harten (SE/DB) and Chris Kerin (TE/DE). Hannon and Chase are the top dogs.

Hannon's biggest contributions will come on the defensive side of the ball. The steady senior earned All-League honors for his play at linebacker but his ability to churn out hard yards from his fullback position will go a long way to opening up space for Chase. The electrifying Chase (All-League offense) provides North Quincy with its most dangerous offensive weapon, which was evident when he missed two games (Arlington and Whitman-Hanson) and the North Quincy attack struggled to produce Harten's contributions will be on the outside when he lines up as a split end on offense and as a cover man on defense while Kerin's size is a bonus at the tight end spot and on the defensive line as an edge rusher.

"Hannon is a returning all-league defensive starter at linebacker," said Connor, "and when Marquis was hurt for two games this year that hurt us. But both Chase and Hannon played in the original streak-ending game and they have been good leaders. Both have been hurt and have been playing through it, which is admirable."

Joining Hannon, Chase, Harten and Kerin on the offensive side of the ball this season are a number of underclassmen who will either be seeing their first Thanksgiving Day action or will be playing in the game as a starter for the first time.

Junior quarterback Andrew Minton gets his first Turkey Day start. Minton, a left-handed signal caller, has played well in spots and has proven to be a quality game manager. It is unlikely that he will be asked to throw that much - but that may change if airing it out is the best option; Minton will get support from Hannon, Chase and sophomore Antoine Allen out of the backfield. Allen is the type of player who could end up being a difference maker against Quincy. His speed and elusiveness is unmatched on the roster.

When Minton does throw he will look for Harten and Kerin as well as seniors Joe Brown (SE/DB) and Steve Newman (SE/DB). Other options in the passing game include Hannon, Chase and Allen.

usually are decided by which team controls the interior line play. North Quincy looks to be in good shape along the offensive line, which could prove vital against a strong Quincy defensive line. The O-Line is anchored by senior right tackle Ian Dunphy. Sophomores Don Sharp (left tackle) and Vinny Tran (left guard) and juniors Matt Deagle (center) and Mekhi Pearson (right guard) round out this unit.

When Quincy has the ball, you will see some familiar faces on defense for North Quincy. Hannon is the defensive quarterback from his linebacker position and Chase, Brown, Minton and Allen are rock solid in the defensive backfield. On the defensive line, two-way players like Kerin and Tran will be asked to get some pressure on the quarterback.

Junior linebacker Kevin Pappadopolous and senior Lukas Yanovich have quietly turned in solid seasons and both could be that player that makes the big play.

The goal for Connor and his staff will be to keep Quincy's high-powered offense in check, which may be a struggle with so many two-way players seeing considerable time. The Presidents are dangerous out of the backfield with all-league back Reggie Cesar and underclassmen Jaqun Harris and Jalen Green leading the way.

"Their skill guys are outstanding – that is pretty obvious," Connor stated. "We have to try and avoid big plays. We need to keep Reggie, Jalen and Jaqun contained. They are going to gain yards; that is inevitable. They are fast and elusive and we need to keep them to five yards and not 55 (yards)."

With what could end up being a track meet type-game, North Quincy is going to have to dig deep and lean on what

By SEAN BRENNAN

Sometimes even the bestlaid plans need on-the-fly revisions. Coming off a 4-6 season, which included a second straight loss to rival North Quincy on Thanksgiving, the Quincy Presidents (2-7 overall) had visions during preseason of using an explosive running game, supplemented by a when-you-can-get it passing attack, to get back to being a contender in the Patriot League.

But that strategy took an early hit when injuries to key players began piling up; as a result Ouincy struggled early. The Presidents lost consecutive nonleague games to Cohasset (33-16) and Canton (26-12) to open the fall. A nonleague victory over Plymouth South (20-16) was followed with losses to Malden Catholic (14-7), Hanover (20-0), Pembroke (17-9), Whitman-Hanson (29-8), and Scituate (20-0), and if not for a 21-12win over Middleboro on Nov. 10, the Presidents would be entering tomorrow's 79th annual Thanksgiving Day game losers of six straight games.

But the best part of playing your rival on Thanksgiving is that a victory goes a long way to turning a disappointing year into a successful one.

"It was a tough season because in preseason we had three returning all-league starters in Reggie Cesar, Jaqun Harris and Jalen Green, so we were excited about having talent," said QHS Head Coach Bill Reardon last week. "But in the last scrimmage with Marshfield on Aug. 31, Reggie went down with an ankle injury and so did Jaqun. So whatever plans we had there went out the window. Reggie has played through it and he is just about 100% but it has been a long season trying to balance that injury and, Jaqun was out the entire month of September."

"So it has been an interesting season dealing with adversity health-wise," Reardon continued, "but in the long run it bodes well for us because (the team) has handled all the adversity and have come together; nobody has quit and headed for the hills.
If anything they have circled the wagons and developed a bond and that is a good thing heading into this game."

For Quincy the last two Thanksgiving Day games have been difficult to accept. The Presidents own a 43-30-5 advantage in the Quincy-North Quincy game, but, following a ten-year winning streak (1999-2008), Quincy has come up just short the last two seasons, losing 21-6 in 2009 and 13-6 last year.

But tomorrow's game is not based on previous results. That is a fact.

"You can keep the records in, we both have two wins," Reardon answered when asked if either team held an advantage. "The message is you have to be ready to play your best if you want a shot at winning this game. We have to make sure we are all playing 100%. I need 100% effort every play."

"(North Quincy) is the top dog in the race because they have won two years in a row, so that is good for them," Reardon continued, "but with all the injuries I have kind of felt like an underdog all season. We have had to fight our way up from the bottom all year, so in a sense this game would be no different. We are just going to scratch and claw, but they have what we want."

The good news for Quincy is that Cesar, Green and Harris should all play against the Red Raiders. This trio brings experience as well as explosive speed to the offense. Cesar is a bull while Green and Harris are more likely to beat you with quickness; any of these three could be the deciding factor when the Presidents have possession of the football.

At the quarterback position, Reardon began the year unsure of who would start. Senior Curran Jorgensen and junior Andrew Schaff battled for the nod in the preseason with Schaff eventually earning the first crack. Early on it was supposed to be majority running but injuries forced a change in philosophy. Schaff grabbed hold of the position and played well, but he was knocked out for the season after breaking his collarbone against Scituate, which means that Jorgensen gets the start against North Quincy.

"We had to rely a little bit more on the passing game, which was tricky because I didn't have a set QB going in and I thought with the backs I could ease them into it," noted Reardon, "but here we are in Week Two and I need a quarterback because we need to be two-dimensional and we need to throw the ball a little bit. But Andrew took hold of that position and started playing really well and we had something going there and then he shattered his collarbone and we had to move Curran back in."

Jorgensen played well in Quincy's win over Middle-boro and with a healthy stable of running backs; the Presidents' offense should produce. When Jorgensen does throw look for senior Nick Lepore (tight end) and junior receivers Alex Heffernan and John Cherwick to be his main targets.

Time in the pocket for Jorgensen and space in the running game will fall on the shoulder pads of the Presidents' offensive line. Senior captain Keenan Daniels (right tackle) is the anchor. Alongside Daniels four juniors will start. Tim Nazzaro (right guard), Rich Turpin (center), Peter Cedrone (left guard), and Paul Nigro (left tackle) will be responsible for containing the North Quincy pressure.

"The offensive line has been able to play together all season and that is a good thing," said Reardon.

On defense, Quincy is going to have control the line of scrimmage. The Red Raiders have potential game-breakers in running backs Marquis Chase, Antoine Allen and Walter Hannon ready to make a big play. Keenan (defensive tackle), Heffernan, Lepore and senior Nick Clayton (defensive end) will be the first line of defense. If Chase or Allen gets to open space linebackers Danilo Lopes (all-league selection), Jackson Lam and Cedrone have to make the sure tackle; otherwise it could be a long day.

"The way that this game has gone the last three years

Three Presidents, Two Red Raiders, Named To League All-Star Team

Raiders and the Quincy Presidents, members of the Keenan and Fisher Divisions of the Patriot League, respectively, had a combined five players named to the All-League team for the 2011 season.

A panel of the league's coaches meet last week and made the all-league selections.

The Quincy Presidents

The North Quincy Red (2-7 overall, 1-3 in league play) had two seniors and a junior named to the all-star team. Senior running back Reggie Cesar earned his third straight all-league nod while senior Danilo Lopes (tight end/linebacker) was a firsttime all-league selection. Junior running back Jalen Green earned his second straight allleague selection.

The North Quincy Red

Raiders (2-8 overall, 1-3 in league play) had two senior captains named to the All-League team. Running back Marquis Chase earned his first all-league selection for his performance on offense and fullback/linebacker Walter Hannon picked up his first all-league selection for the job he did quarterbacking the North Quincy defense.

1947 Game Drew Largest Crowd On Record

As the 79th annual football game between North Quincy and Quincy approaches tomorrow, the debate about which of the previous seventy-seven affairs drew the biggest crowd comes down to either the game in 1946 or 1947.

It appears the 1947 game had the largest paid attendance, reported to have been 18,003. In 1946, the paid attendance was 16,065.

Many estimate that close to 25,000 saw the 1947 game, if you count those who watched from the walls and trees, and those who lined the bus yard where the MBTA garage now stands.

The biggest previous crowd prior to 1946 was the 15,000 who watched the 1939 game.

Patriot League Standings

Pembroke finished last season in second-place in the Patriot League's Fisher Division, two games behind eventually division winner Scituate. This season the Titians take top honors into Thanksgiving after completing the league portion of their schedule undefeated at 4-0.

Pembroke avenged last year's loss to second-place Scituate by defeating the Sailors 32-23 on Nov. 11. The Titians play Silver Lake tomorrow.

Duxbury, a Division II state powerhouse, won the Keenan Division championship on the strength of a perfect 4-0-league record. The Dragons ended the pre-Thanksgiving season at 10-0 overall after knocking off second-place Hingham, 34-7, on Nov. 10.

The Dragons play Marshfield tomorrow.

A Look Back At The 1956 Thanksgiving Day Game

THESE OLD-TIME PHOTOGRAPHS were taken during the 1956 Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day game played at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. The Presidents defeated the Red Raiders 19-13 to run their winning streak to three games (QHS defeated NQHS 18-0 in 1954 and 44-20 in 1955). Quincy would win again in 1957 (18-7) and 1958 (25-16). North Quincy finally defeated Quincy in 1959 by a score of 18-14; the Red Raiders knocked off Quincy 28-20 in the 1960 game. # Quincy, N. Quincy Played Two Common Opponents

The Quincy Presidents and the North Quincy Red Raiders played two common opponents this season in Whitman-Hanson and Middleboro. Both high schools finished 1-1 against these programs, with the Presidents and the Red Raiders both defeating the Middleboro Sachems while losing to the Whitman-Hanson Panthers.

Quincy lost to the Panthers 29-8 on Oct. 29 and North Quincy fell to the Panthers 42-9 on Nov. 10. The Presidents defeated the Sachems 21-12 on Nov. 10 and the Raiders beat Middleboro 28-22 in overtime on Oct. 29 for their first win of the season.

Quincy played this fall in the Patriot League's Fisher Division and North Quincy competed in the Keenan Division.

Presidents

In the season-opener, Quincy lost to nonleague Cohasset, 33-16, at home. Last year the Presidents dropped the season-opener to the Skippers, 45-7. In Week Two, QHS traveled to nonleague Canton and lost 26-12; the Bulldogs beat Quincy 42-14 in 2010.

On Sept. 23, the Presidents defeated nonleague Plymouth South 20-16 to earn their first win of the year. Quincy avenged last season's 12-11loss to the Panthers with the road victory.

Nonleague Malden Catholic out of the Catholic Conference edged Quincy 14-7 on Oct. 7.

The start of the Patriot League portion of the schedule was unkind to the Presidents. Quincy lost at Hanover on Oct. 14, 20-0; fell at Pembroke 17-9 on Oct. 21; lost to Whitman-Hanson 29-8 on Oct. 29 at home, and were shutout by Scituate 20-0 on Nov. 4.

The Presidents enter the 79th annual Thanksgiving Day game riding a modest onegame winning streak thanks to their 21-12-road win over Middleboro on Nov. 10.

Red Raiders The start of the 2011 season began with five nonleague games. North Quincy dropped a tough 7-6-decision to Boston Latin on the road in the season-opener Sept. 9. The Raiders defeated the Wolfpack 13-6 last season. In Week Two, NQHS lost an away game to Oliver Ames, 33-7, and on Sept. 23 statepower East Bridgewater shutout out the Raiders 47-0.

On Sept. 30, North Quincy fell 3-0 to Arlington. Neighboring Archbishop Williams kept the Raiders winless following a 27-0-win on Oct. 7.

North Quincy finally broke through with a thrilling 28-22 overtime win over league foe Middleboro at Veterans' Memorial Stadium on Oct. 15. Super Bowl contender Duxbury handled the Raiders, 40-7, on Oct. 21 and Hingham defeated North Quincy, 28-6, on Oct. 28.

A Saturday afternoon victory over Silver Lake (27-21) on Nov. 5 brought the Raiders to 2-7, but Whitman-Hanson defeated North Quincy 42-9 on Nov. 10.

experience it has if they want to make it three wins in a row. Connor acknowledged this concern.

"It is a concern," he answered, when asked if he was worried that the lack of experience and depth could be a factor. "Guys who have experience playing in big games come in with a little more savvy and if you have sophomores and freshmen and juniors in some cases most of our juniors are not returning starters - playing big minutes, that is a concern. It is something I will have to go and talk to the team about.

"I am going to have to rely on the seniors who have been there and just get into the mentality that it is a big game, because it is, but then at the same time acknowledge that once it starts it is just a high school football game."

During a season in which winning results were fewand-far-between North Quincy has continued to maintain a strong sense of unity. It could have been easy to fold up the tents but that has never been the Red Raider way, which bodes well for Connor's team tomorrow.

"No way am I confident but I think if we play our best football we have a good shot," he said. "We started low and finished low but we didn't have kids quitting. We had a couple of good wins and for the young kids they gained experience and they saw just what it meant to keep fighting. The plan is to just stay the course and win the game."

all season."

When North Quincy OB Andrew Minton decides to air it out, the defensive backfield of Harris (CB), Cherwick (CB), Cesar (strong safety), and junior Viet Doan (free safety) needs to play mistakefree.

"I have always liked Minton," Reardon said about North Quincy's junior signal caller. "But my guys know the coverage and do not make too municates really well back there so I expect this group to play heads-up."

Not unlike the Red Raiders, the Presidents are taking this game as a way to turnaround a disappointing season. According to their head coach, Quincy is geared up for tomorrow's contest - the aura of playing on Thanksgiving still holds significant weight.

"It is exciting and it is nice many mistakes. Doan com- to have this game because we haven't had the best season," said Reardon. "So to have something significant to play for is good for us. I liked the way we played against Scituate and Pembroke and despite dealing with all the injuries we didn't fold the tents.

> "We are going to have to adjust as we go along," continued Reardon, "but this is a great opportunity for this team, especially the senior class, to leave on top."

the walk finally became a reality on a sunny Sunday afternoon.

Event coordinator Claire Muollo, of Quincy, who has battled pancreatic cancer for over three years, decided to hold the walk after noticing there were no fundraisers out there for the disease.

"I had goosebumps the whole day, it was great," said Muollo. "I was speechless, and can't thank everyone enough for all their help and support."

The exact cause of pancreatic cancer is still largely unknown; it has been understudied in basic research laboratories and clinics.

The disease is rarely discovered early because there are no early warning signs and no screening tests to find it. Pancreatic cancer is the fourth leading cause of death due to cancer in the United States.

"During my fight against the disease I realized the passion the doctors have in its early stages," Muollo said before the walk in October. "They want to provide a means to allow those inflicted with this disease a better quality of life, and ultimately, to find a cure."

Outside Braintree High School over 200 participants, including family member, friends, Muollo's doctor and his family, were decked out in purple to help raise money that will go directly to research on the disease.

Muollo said that even weeks after the walk she is still receiving checks and cash to go towards the fundraiser.

The total that has been raised so far, including money from the walk, has exceeded the goal of $20,000 set by Muollo and the Promises for Purple committee.

Since last December, they have raised approximately $25,000, with donations still flooding in.

During the event participants enjoyed cookies donated by Ginger Betty's, along with other donated drinks and foods from purple sunglasses and beads that were given out to the participants, along with purple ribbons donated by Dana Farber Cancer Institute.

Participants started showing up for the walk around 11 a.m. and left around 4

"A lot of people at this walk I didn't even know," said Muollo. "At the end of the day I had a number of people come up to me saying they would see me next year. Many even said they were glad we did this event because any type of cancer needs to be recognized."

Muollo noted there were participants from all over Massachusetts and some from even out of the state that came to walk.

"Everybody came because we were able to get the word out," said Muollo. "There were some young, some old, some in wheelchairs, some in strollers, all different types of people. It was amazing."

Although unable to walk this year, Muollo said her Roche Brothers and Catered goal is to be able to partici-Affair. Muollo also bought pate next year, even if it is only for half of the walk.

She also mentioned there might be some changes next

"There are a few things I have been thinking about talking with the committee with about changing," said Muollo. "I want to be able to allow participants to donate online next year, and we might have the help of the man who helped Lance Armstrong with his bike ride fundraisers."

Muollo said she is thinking about doing some other fundraisers throughout the year, but added that it is something that the committee will be discussing after Thanksgiving.

"Every time I talk about this walk it is so gratifying to me," said Muollo. "It's amazing to see so many people cared and came out to support this cancer."

The event will be listed on the Dana Faber honor role because it exceeded the goals set.

A Job Well Done

On Monday, Nov. 14, at approximately 1:06 a.m., Officers Steve O'Donoghue and Jimmy Chen were dispatched to a Willard Street apartment on a report of a female yelling. While en route to the location, Communications advised responding units that there was an extensive history of domestic incidents associated with the apartment.

The officers arrived on scene and once in the lobby they could hear yelling and loud thumping noises from somewhere high inside the apartment building. The officers made their way to the fourth floor apartment and knocked on the door many times but no one answered. Officer O'Donoghue radioed to Sergeant Dennis Maloney that a forced entry might be needed due to the history of domestic violence in the unit. Sgt. Maloney advised that Quincy Fire could be called if needed to make a forced entry. Officer O'Donoghue intentionally stood by the door to the apartment so that the occupants inside would hear the conversation and know that a forced entry would be forthcoming.

The officers knocked on the door again, advising that they would not leave and would enter the apartment if someone didn't open the door right away. Moments later, the door was opened by a female, who partially shut the door behind her and stood outside with the Officers. The female, who was crying and shaking, had a blackened left eye. When asked if anyone else was in the apartment, the female did not answer verbally, but nod-ded her head up and down.

Officer O'Donoghue leaned into the apartment and announced his presence, then advised anyone hiding inside the apartment that the Police would be sending in a K9 (dog) to clear the apartment. This was a ruse to see if anyone would come out prior to getting a K9 unit to the scene. Seconds later, officers heard a male say, "I'm coming out" and then observed a male emerge from a closet. As the male came into view, he immediately placed his left hand inside his front left pocket.

Due to volatility in domestic violence calls and the history of calls at this apartment, Officer O'Donoghue, concerned for his safety and what was in the pocket, grabbed the male's left hand from his pocket and ordered him to place both of his hands behind his back. A pat frisk of the male suspect's outer clothing revealed a hard object inside that pocket. The officer removed the object from the pocket and discovered that the item was a spoon and q-tip wrapped in a face cloth.

Based on training and experience, the Officers knew that most IV drug users use a spoon to prepare their drugs prior to injection. The spoon had a clear plastic wrap on it, secured by an elastic band, with what appeared to be some drug residue on it, believed to be Heroin.

The male suspect was placed in handcuffs and informed that he was not under arrest at this time, but that the handcuffs were for his and the officer's safety. During the discovery of the spoon, Officer Chen brought the female back inside the apartment. Officer O'Donoghue then interviewed her as to what happened.

She said that her boyfriend of three months has a Heroin problem and that he is always borrowing money from her, which led to an argument over him not paying her back. She was very reluctant to discuss what had happened to her and repeatedly began sobbing, eventually stating that the suspect "slapped me around and choked me" during the argument. She said that she pleaded with him to stop during the choking, but when he didn't, gathered enough strength to push away from him. The victim then blurted out that she would get her exboyfriend to take care of him if he choked her again. This enraged the male suspect, who then pulled a knife from his pants and opened the blade against the victim's face as he told her he would "hurt" her if she told anyone what happened. She said that she was terrified by his actions and anger, but he didn't cut her with the knife. which was resting against her left cheek area. After hearing the victim's account, Officer Chen placed the suspect under arrest and searched him, locating a knife on the suspect. The knife was identified as the same knife used against the victim. Officer O'Donoghue asked the victim how she got the black eye and she said that two days earlier they had an argument which led to the suspect throwing a lighter at her, striking her left eye area. The Officer asked and received the lighter from the victim, who said, "It's right here. Look - you can see where it matches the worst bruising," as she pointed to the oval half circle in the bruised area of her left eye. The victim said that the suspect is a "good guy" but he has a Heroin problem and this is the reason he hit her. Officer O'Donoghue told the victim about the cycle theory of violence and how she, with the help of the Police and the courts, could protect herself from future incidents. The efforts of Officer O'Donoghue went unheeded - the victim refused an Emergency restraining order and said she might go to the court house in the morning to seek one. A copy of Officer O'Donoghue's report will be forwarded to Quincy District Court, where domestic violence advocates will follow up with the victim - under less stressful conditions, to offer legal and counseling services. The suspect, a 27 year old Quincy resident, was charged with "Domestic Assault and Battery (slap/choke), Assault and Battery with a Dangerous weapon (knife), Assault and Battery with a Dangerous weapon (flammable lighter), Possession of Class A (Subsequent Offense, spoon w/Heroin residue and has two prior possessions of Class A on his record). There were also 3 outstanding warrants on the suspect. Nice Work!

In domestic violence cases, the failure to take action beyond calling the Police puts the victim in future danger. Too often, the victim believes that the incident is isolated and often blames the behavior on the batterer's alcohol or drug use. For more information on the cycle theory of violence, consider reading Dr. Lenore Walker's book, "Battered Women," which explains in very readable terms the reoccurrence of abuse. TUESDAY, NOV. 15

FOR THE WEEK

The contrasts between people and purposes of the first Thanksgiving of the Pilgrims in 1621, and people and purposes of our present day festival gives us a startling picture. The Pilgrims survived days and nights during which they were prepared to starve. They survived freezing ice and snow that blanketed the dark forests which surrounded their crude, hand made housing. Many died, without complaining, in the arms of their loved ones. The survivors carried on; kept going.

SCHOOL SAFETY GRANT: Norfolk County District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey met Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro at the Clifford Marshall Elementary School recently to present a $3,000 check to help upgrade security at five Quincy Schools. $3,000 To Help Fund Security Cameras, Surveillance Equipment At Five Local Schools

D.A. Grant To Boost School Safety In Quincy

Quincy has been awarded a $3,000 school safety grant from Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey as part of the D.A.'s effort to imporve the safety of students county-wide.

"This is all money confiscated from drug dealers and organized crime," District Attorney Morrissey said. "Now, money that was being used to finance the criminal activities that make our communities less safe and secure is being redirected to make them more secure."

In August, the District Attorney wrote all Norfolk County School Superintendents asking them to apply for grants of up to $3,000 for any capital improvement that would make their students safer or their facilities more secure. Priority was given to matching fund grants, but there was also an option for direct grants of up to $3,000 for communities that could not match.

Quincy's successful grant submission asked District Attorney Morrissey to fund $3,000 of the $6,500 price of installing security cameras for external surveillance at the Clifford Marshall and Snug Harbor elementary schools and the Sterling, Atlantic and Point Webster middle schools.

"It is very important to us to keep the Quincy Schools as safe as possible," said Michael Draicchio, director of safety, security and transportation for the QPS. "This grant is helping us do that. Surveillance is huge, telling us who is coming in and out of our buildings, and keeping the students, staff and facilities as safe as possible."

"Seven application fit the criteria and we approved them all," District Attorney Morrissey said. "The only exception was one community that requested a straight grant of about twice the maximum, and we've given them 45 days to seek out matching funds or refine their application to make it viable. We want to do all we can to fund these kinds of projects."

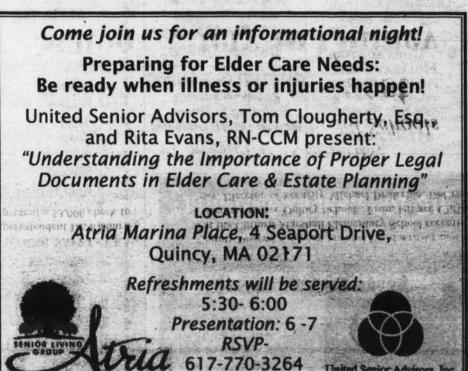

Other school systems receiving grants were Braintree, Medfield, Wrentham, Weymouth, Norfolk County Agriculture School in Walpole and Blue Hills Regional Technical School, Canton. In all, the grants total $21,000.

In his acceptance letter to the superintendents, District Attorney Morrissey also wrote that he has members of his staff finalizing a similar schools safety grant offering for calendar 2012. "Drugs and violence are robbing our communities of resources and robbing our young people of the future they deserve," Morrissey said. "I like the principle of taking money forfeited by drug dealers and using it to make those young people and their schools safer."

Same Civil Service List To Be Used

New Fire Chief Search

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy will redo its search for a fire chief.

Last week, the city lost its request for a stay of the Civil Service Commission's September ruling that mandated a new search for the fire chief.

After losing the request, Mayor Tom Koch is planning on restarting the search. "We're starting the process," said Chris Walker, the mayor's Director of Policy and Information.

The September decision found that the search that resulted in Joe Barron being named chief was "pre-disposed" against another candidate, Deputy Chief Gary Smyth. Smyth appealed because he scored higher in the civil service rankings than Barron; this type of appeal is a so-called "bypass" one. A third candidate, Ed Fenby, outscored both Barron and Smyth but didn't appeal. The Commission's findings indicated he was happy to be named deputy chief.

The city intends to use the same rankings for the new search. "My reading of the Civil Service order is this is the list we'll be using," Walker said.

Walker wouldn't set a timetable for the new search, and in the interim Barron will serve as provisional chief. Walker assured residents this would not affect the department's day-to-day operations.

"The Quincy Fire Department," he said, "remains the best fire department in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

The City Council had previously questioned the appeal.

During their meeting on Nov. 21st, two days before the city was notified it lost its motion for the stay, Councillors grilled City Solicitor Jim Timmins about the case.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro called the Commission's 60-page, unanimous ruling "comprehensive and damning" and asked why the administration would appeal it when they didn't appeal split-decisions in the past.

"We're appealing it because we think there are a lot of reasons to do so," Timmins said. "And the mayor as an appointing authority did nothing more than exercise his discretion; the two candidates were separated by one point (on the Civil Service rankings)."

He said portions of the mayor's testimony weren't in the final decision. He also mentioned that in recent years courts had overturned 21 other cases where the Commission ruled in favor of a candidate who was

if there were similarities

those proceedings. "I got

At-Large Councillor Joe Finn criticized the mayor for not adopting a more transparent process as the Civil Service Commission had recommended in a prior decision.

"There's a tendency," Finn said, "to move from a strong mayor model of government to an imperial model." He added, "had

Brad Croall's Next Challenge: Ward 2 Councillor

p rad Croall likes a challenge.

The 31-year-old lifelong Quincy resident once swam from Alcatraz Island to San Francisco. He's also completed the Boston Marathon in less than 4 and a half hours.

So it's natural for him to view his triumphant campaign for Ward 2 city councillor as another successful challenge.

"I campaigned just like a marathon," said Croall in a recent Quincy Sun interview. "It's a long distance but it's also a short distance at the same time. It starts with a plan and you have to go there every day and train and train and train and work towards a goal which is a personal record."

Croall's persistence paid off. He emerged from Election Day Nov. 8 with a 56-vote victory over another wellqualified candidate, community activist Steven Perdios.

Croall – who has served as president of the Ward 2 Civic Association and chairman of the ward's Democratic City Committee – collected 1,428 votes. Perdios – who founded the Quincy Environmental Network – polled 1,372 votes. It was the closest race on the ballot this year.

The small margin didn't surprise Croall.

"I expected a close race running against a very credible candidate (Perdios) who has longstanding ties to the Ward 2 community. And Steve's done some great things for the city.

"It was going to be a close race and it comes down to the plan you put in place and how much training you've done leading up to execution," Croall said. "I'm blessed is an understatement. I'm blessed with the support that I had in terms of a team. It was unbelievable."

Asked to cite two main factors that attributed to his victory, Croall quickly replies: "Organization and tenacity. You gotta get after it."

Croall has lived in Quincy all his life, including the last 11 years in Ward 2. He grew up in West Quincy and today has a home at 53 Summer St. in Ward 2.

After graduating from Quincy High School in 1998, he attended the University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth and received a bachelor of science degree in business. He has worked in the financial services industry for eight years. Today, he is an independent financial advisor.

Tall and physically fit, Croall is a pretty active guy. He's used his penchant for physical challenges to help better the Ward 2 community.

Last summer, he went out to San Francisco to participate in a 1.5-mile swim across San Francisco Bay from Alcatraz Island to the City by the Bay. The first attempt in June was fogged out. But he returned two months later to give it another shot.

Before the swim, Croall toured Alcatraz - home of the famous federal prison and now a National Park Service site.

BRAD CROALL, the Ward 2 councillor-elect, celebrates his victory Nov. 8 with his parents, Marilyn and Pat Croall.

"I took the (Alcatraz) tour the first time out there. Looking into the bay I said to myself, 'this is going to be a pretty grueling process.' My training took place right here in Quincy and in Nantasket which is more an open water type of setting.

"I can rest assure that San Francisco Bay is nothing like Nantasket," Croall continues. "I knew it was going to be a challenge. When you get in the water, the folklore is about the sharks and at some point of the swim getting bitten by a shark or taken out by a shark is probably not a bad option," he deadpans in all honesty.

"The adrenaline is going and you have a focal point on land and you're just swimming as gracefully as you can. There's nothing sexy about it."

Asked if he planned to swim the bay again, he answers quickly and emphatically.

"Absolutely not. Never. I'd go back to the island for the nickel tour but not the swim."

Croall's survival swim raised about $1,000 for the Ward 2 Community Center.

Another physical challenge Croall completed was running the Boston Marathon in 2008. His completed the 26.2-mile historic course in 4 hours, 22 minutes. His efforts raised money for inner city youth summer employment opportunities running with a team from John Hancock.

Which was tougher to do?

"They were totally different but the more memorable experience was certainly the marathon," Croall explains. "It's almost like a story that unfolds. With San Francisco you're pretty much just fighting for your life not only with the current but with your peers trying to do the same thing as you which is surviving in open water.

"With the marathon, that's the closest – in my opinion anyway – you'll ever be to a professional athlete. You have tens of thousands of your closest fans who don't know you from a hole in the wall guiding you through. There comes a point that that's all that gets you there: the people. Sort of like a campaign."

Croall is succeeding longtime city councillor Dan Raymondi who is now the city's Commissioner of Public Works. Raymondi served as ward councillor for some 22 years.

Raymondi offered Croall some advice on running a successful campaign.

"He told me, 'It's all about how many doors and people you can engage. His parting words were 'If you're going to announce your candidacy, why are you still talking to me? Get out there and knock on doors."

Now that he's won the seat, Croall says communication is among the keys to being an effective city councillor.

"It's all about communication with people. They will tell you that at the door. Number one, they said you have big shoes to fill. You hear that at virtually every door.

And number two: people want you to know that under any and all circumstances that hey 'I have a problem' I'm going to call you back. It's not that I hope you call me back; it's the expectation that you're going to get back to me in a more than reasonable time frame.

"I think that's fair."

Croall also discussed several issues city-wide and ward specific.

For instance, the $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center part of which abuts Ward 2.

Asked how he perceives his role as the Ward 2 councillor with respect to the downtown revitalization, he replies, "holding people accountable to the concepts that were presented.

"(The current downtown) is clearly not working. So we can do one of two things: we could curse the darkness and leave things the way they are, or we can light the candle and introduce something that is very cutting edge which Mayor Koch and the administration has done.

"I love plans and I love concepts. I love things that will move life forward and that's what this will do. But now it's 'are we holding ourselves accountable for everything that we presented in our plan? If the answer is yes, we're going to have a pretty state-of-the-art infrastructure right in our backyard."

Croall also believes it's paramount to strike a balance between maintaining the integrity of the neighborhoods with business interests in the city's main commercial district.

"It's all about the neighborhoods," Croall said. "At the end of the day, a new downtown is fantastic. But the abutting residents will have to live with it. It's all about communication and getting people engaged. Here's what's going on, what are your thoughts?

"A city councillor is nothing but a conduit between the neighborhood and city government. That's the way I view it. Make sure the development is done responsibly as presented in the concept but more importantly engage the neighborhoods.

"People care about where they live," Croall says.

"They want to be part of the process.

"And I think the information that is out there is pretty positive."

One ward issue that Croall will focus on is the design of a new Fore River Bridge. There are essentially two options: a draw-bridge or a vertical lift-type that is similar to the temporary bridge there now. Whatever design is chosen, said Croall, must meet certain criteria.

"I'm in favor of efficiency from a traffic flow standpoint but most importantly what I will be advocating working closely with our state delegation is the deliverable – it has to be aesthetically pleasing. At the end of the day, we're the ones who have to live with it. So let's put something in place that's efficient, going to keep the traffic flowing because that's always a major concern, and the presentation to the eye has to be good."

Other priorities in Ward 2?

"Number one, I want to get everybody on the same page," Croall says. "I'm working through right now figuring out what platform we're going to use from a communication standpoint. I really just think it's going to be shoe soles on the ground – reaching out, having meetings, what are the concerns."

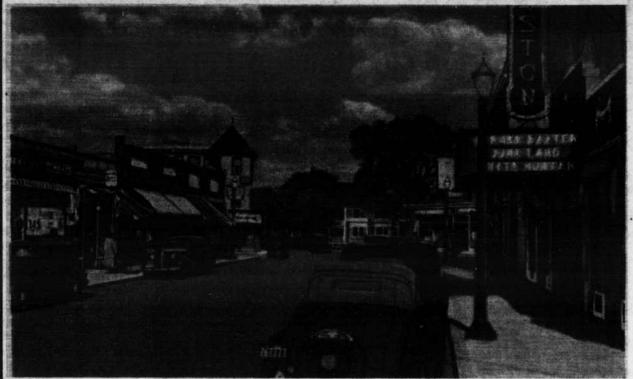

Jan. 3 will be a big day for Croall and his parents, Marilyn and Pat. The swearing-in at the city inauguration ceremony at Quincy High School also coincides with Croall's 32nd birthday.

Croall wants the residents of Ward 2 to know he'll be available "to everybody, everyday."

He adds: "You have a question, you have a concern, I want to create a fan-friendly environment with the residents feel comfortable not only picking up the phone and having someone call them back but picking up the phone and having someone call them back with a solution or a resolution.

"If you get that part right, everything will be a lot easier. I'm looking forward to the challenge of serving as the Ward 2 councillor but more importantly I'm looking forward to the follow-through."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS LATE 1930's postcard is a view of Beale Street in Wollaston looking east toward Hancock and Beach Streets. The picture was taken across from Barry's Deli. The Wollaston Theater on the right shows its original marquee, which was replaced by the present one in 1930. The apartment building with the peaked roof in the center of the picture was across Hancock Street. Known as the Gardner Building, it had several retail shops on the street level. California Cleansers was the corner store for many years. The building was destroyed by fire many years ago and the site is now home to an ATM. On the left were an A&P grocery store and an F.W. Woolworth 5&10 cent store. In the center of the picture the house across Hancock Street at 5 Beach Street was taken by the Works Project Administration (WPA) who erected the Wollaston Post Office building there in 1940. # Planning Dept. To Host Community Impact Workshop

The City of Quincy's Department of Planning and Community Development (PCD) will host a community impact workshop Thursday, Dec. 8 at 9:30 a.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall.

The event will feature special guest, Kory Eng, Assistant Vice President of Community Impact from United Way of Mass Bay and Merrimack Valley.

The workshop will provide an opportunity for nonprofit organizations and government agencies to equip themselves with available resources to: understand and utilize data management, develop quality outcomes and outcome indicators, and advocate effectively for funding from various sources for programs with social impact.

The workshop is made possible with funding from the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program of the US Dept. of Housing and Urban Development. The CDBG entitlement program allocates annual grants to communities like Quincy to develop viable communities by providing decent housing, a suitable living environment, and opportunities to expand development, economic principally for low-and moderate-income persons. For more information about CDBG, please visit: www. quincyma.gov/government/ planning.

Union Church Float A Community Effort

For the first time in 29 years, Union Congregational Church of Wollaston had a Float in Sunday's Christmas Parade. We were very humbled to receive third prize for what was truly a community labor of love.

We are especially indebted to Robert Derbes of Derbes Construction who graciously supplied us with a truck, trailer and a marvelous driver. One of the wonderful things about Quincy is the sense of "towniness." My mother grew up in Quincy Point with the Derbes family. Although I am from West Quincy, I know that for Pointers there are two Holy Lands: Jerusalem and Quincy Point!"

We are also most grateful to the Quincy Parade Committee for their encouragement and the opportunity to be in the Parade, the Cemetery and Park Departments for advice and supplies, Sacred Heart Church for the loan of costumes, and to all of the people from Union Church and the wider community who, under the direction of our Outreach Minister, Rev. Martha Swanson, designed, constructed and rode on or otherwise helped out on the Float.

We had 23 parade participants, between the float characters, truck driver and nephew and the parade car.

Thank you so much and we can't wait until next year!

Merry Christmas!

LaRaia: Council Control Over School Budget

By FRANK McCAULEY

Mayor Joseph LaRaia this week drew a bead on an old adversary - fiscal autonomy of the School Committee.

The Mayor filed a bill with the State Legislature that would abolish fiscal autonomy and permit the City Council to treat the school budget the same as that of any other city department.

This Week 1976 35 Years Ago

"I don't expect that the bill will be adopted entirely in this present form," said LaRaia, "but I feel we should get some kind of control over the school budget even if it is only

He said he would like to see the City Council given authority to halt passage of a school budget by a vote of more than

That means that seven votes of the nine-member Quincy City Council would be able to hold up the school budget. (Editor's note: Mayor LaRaia was ahead of his time with this proposal. Fiscal autonomy for school committees was eliminated with the passage of Proposition 2 1/2 in 1980. This legislation gave authority to the mayor in a municipality to set a bottom line for a school budget.)

NAVY, CITY TO DISCUSS SQUANTUM GARDENS

The United States Navy and the city of Quincy were scheduled to get together to talk over the future of the controversial Navy housing complex at Squantum Gardens.

The Navy recently awarded a $470,000 contract to remodel 56 dwelling units in seven of the 17 apartment buildings while another 66 dwellings in the remaining 10 buildings are slated for either demolition or sale.

Walter J. Hickey, chairman of the Citizens Committee for Squantum Gardens said that his group wants to make sure that the city will have an opportunity to bid on the complex when it is turned over to the General Services Administration for outside sale.

Members of the Committee in addition to Mr. Hickey included: Mrs. Mary Gougian, Squantum Community Association, and Mrs. Maryann Mahony, Atlantic Neighborhood As-

Beechwood Knoll Third Grader Dancing In 'The Nutcracker'

Eileen Durgin Continues A Family Tradition

By EMILY TAFT

Eileen Durgin, a Beechwood Knoll Elementary School third grade student, will be the seventh member of her family to be a ballet dancer in the Boston Ballet's production of "The Nutcracker" at the Boston Opera House.

"She is a very talented girl," said Eileen's mom Maureen Durgin. "She is built like a dancer, and has always, been so physically fit I knew she had to get a Eileen plays the role of a doll in the more than 20-year-old ballet. Eileen's on stage debut was Nov. 27th, and the ballet will continue to play until Dec. 31st.

"I am a little nervous, but when I got on the stage for the first time, and I finally got to see what it felt like it was awesome," said Eileen. "Now I am just really excited about it and can't wait to be on the stage with the place full of people."

Eileen joins her mom, her two aunts, an uncle and her brother and sister, in being a part of New England's favorite holiday tradition.

For 8-year-old Eileen it is something she has wanted to do since she started dancing at the age of five, and something she plans on continuing for the rest of her life.

"I just love it so much now," said Eileen. "It helps you get in shape, and you can have fun with it, it's just magical."

Eileen attends ballet school at the Boston Ballet Academy every Monday and Wednesday for a couple of hours, and before the Nutcracker started she was also practiced every weekend.

Maureen, along with her two sisters were a part of the production in the 1970's when all three were dancers in the ballet at the same time. Although Maureen didn't go on to pursue a career in ballet, she passed on the dancing bug to her two daughters.

"I want to be like my sister and be on stage all the time," said Eileen. "I look up to her, only difference is she does Irish step dancing and I want to stick with ballet."

Eileen participates in both Irish step dancing lessons and ballet lessons but when she gets older, and her schedule gets more hectic, she will have to choose between the two.

Three of Maureen's children have been fortunate to be a part of the ballet, and when it comes to her youngest appearing on the stage she said she isn't nervous.

"I never thought all three of my kids would be in the show at some point in their lives. It's just such a thrill. I

THIRD GRADER Eileen Durgin along with her mom Mau-

Quincy Sun Photo/Emily Taft don't get nervous, they practice a lot," said Maureen. "When she steps on that stage I will be so focused on her, staring at the corner of the stage waiting for her to come out. I won't miss any of it."

All three of her children made it on the first try.

After the auditions, participants receive a letter in the mail informing them know if they have made it or not, along with what character they will play.

When Eileen opened her letter, she found out she that she would join the likes of her mother and sister.

"I was really excited,

I was pretty sure I would get a part," said Eileen. "I screamed so loud when I opened the letter and saw I made it."

Maureen prepared her daughter just in case she didn't get a part in the bal-

"She told me if you don't make it, it doesn't mean I am not good. It just means there was too many people," Eileen said.

Eileen will be in what is called the "Battle Scene" of the ballet, a dream scene where the main character Clara is dreaming and all of her toys come to life.

Although she is itching to get on stage, Eileen is already thinking about the future and where she wants to go next.

"I want to go to school when I am older for dancing," said Eileen. "I hope next year when I try out I can get a bigger part, and maybe even in more scenes."

She said she wants to just do "The Nutcracker" show, but her mom said that there is an option of a spring show case later in the year.

"I would like to do just "The Nutcracker" all the time," said Eileen. "It's just so much fun!"

Eileen said that if she weren't able to continue dancing when she is older, she would like to either be a veterinarian, a writer, or a teacher. Although she seems to have many options for her future career, Eileen is a very focused young lady and who only has one thing on her mind: ballet and her big debut in "The Nutcracker."

John's Chicken Cutlet Supreme

Today's recipe is my brother John's original and is a great combination of chicken cutlets with a unique sauce, as you will note after reading the recipe.

The sauce can be used for many things, but today's recipe is over a delicious chicken cutlet.

SAUCE FOR CUTLET

1-pound fresh asparagus

1/2 pound mushrooms 2 tablespoons butter

2 tablespoons flour

1-cup milk

1 tablespoon lemon juice

Salt and pepper to taste

Boil the asparagus with salt and lemon juice until done. Set aside.

Sauté the butter and add the flour making a rue, add the milk and cook until thickened. Cut the asparagus into 1 ½ inch pieces and place in the sauce. Add mushrooms to the sauce. Heat until well blended and set aside.

CHICKEN CUTLET

5 or 6 pieces of chicken cutlets 1 egg with a little milk

Either breadcrumbs or corn flake crumbs

Oil for sautéing.

Beat the egg and add milk. Place the cutlet first in the egg mixture, and then the crumbs. In hot oil, cook the cutlets until done.

Serve this entrée by placing some toast tips on the bottom. Add the cutlet, and then pour the sauce over it. Hope you enjoy it as much as we all did.

Council Ices Plan For DPW Salt Storage Shed

The City Council has put DPW Commissioner Dan Raymondi's plan to install a new salt storage shed on ice for time being.

At their Nov. 21st meeting, the council blasted Raymondi for not discussing the $250,000 shed with the council beforehand, though most agreed the shed was needed.

"This has all the appearances of moving ahead without seeking the approval of this particular body," Councillor-at-Large Joe Finn, who chairs the committee that oversees Raymondi's department, said. "To make matters worse, [I] chair the Public Works Committee and [I] read about it in the newspaper."

The original proposal called for the shed to be purchased with funds drawn from the snow and ice removal account. But Finn questioned that wasn't allowed and asked City Auditor Susan O'Connor for her take on the matter.

"It would not be of my opinion that it would be allowed," she said. "I would think that it should've been budgeted for under a capital expenditure line I don't believe it should be charged to the contractual end of the snow and ice account."

Councillor-at-Large John Keenan said buying the shed would necessitate deficit spending from the account, because the city always exhausts the snow and ice account. "The [State] Department of Revenue," he said citing a letter written by the DOR to the town of Halifax, "views deficit spending from a snow and ice account as being authorized for only those expenses directly related to the removal of snow and ice that are variable from year to year."

Raymondi rejected Keenan's notion that the purchase would be deficit spending. "We're not in deficit spending as we speak," he said.

Keenan wasn't amused by that statement and he called it "irrelevant," before adding "you can live in a little box and suggest that it won't but 30 or 40 years of history suggests clearly this will put us an additional $250,000 in deficit...even if we manage to stay within our snow and ice budget it's still a capital expense for which there was no approval." Council President Kevin Coughlin instructed James Fatseas, the mayor's executive secretary, to ask his boss to draw up a formal request for the money. Fatseas said he would do so, and Raymondi asked that it be fast-tracked as the installation could take up to eight Raymondi wants to replace the current shed, which holds betweens 1,200 and 1,500 tons of salt with extra stored outside, because it's in poor condition. The one he plans on installing would hold 3,000 tons, which will be needed as the city switches to an all-salt strategy after Raymondi's research indicated "salt is the way to go."

Adams Green Project Community Meeting Dec. 6

The City of Quincy will hold the first public information meeting associated with the Adams Green Transportation Improvement Project Tuesday, Dec. 6 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the atrium of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

The meeting offers an opportunity for Quincy residents and business owners to learn about the project and voice their opinions on the proposed changes to the roadways in downtown

This meeting marks the kickoff of the public involvement process for the Adams Green Transportation Improvement Project's design phase. Since mid-November, the City's consultant team has been collecting data including obtaining a topographic survey of the project area and conducting traffic counts.

During the week of Dec.

sultant team will conduct a parking turnover study in the downtown area. This meeting provides an oppor-tunity for Quincy residents and business owners to review the process to date and provide input to the project team as its work gets under-

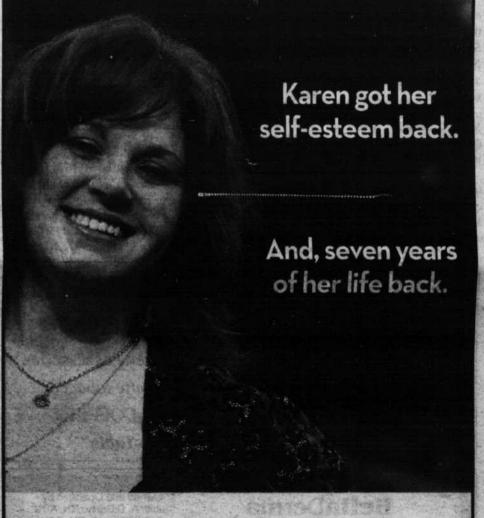

The project team assisting the City is led by Howard/ Stein-Hudson Associates (HSH), with over 24 years of experience in transportation planning, traffic engineering, civil engineering, and public involvement. HSH is familiar with the Quincy area through its work on the initial phase of the Adams Green project planning as well as their on-going work on the Fore River Bridge Replacement Project.

The City of Quincy and the project team are committed to involving the public in the planning process, believing that effective planning is done with the community and not just for it." said Planning Director Dennis E. Harrington.

"The project team wel-comes all residents, business owners, and other stakeholders to attend the meeting, provide opinions and information, ask questions, and become involved."

Following the community meeting, a copy of the presentation and meeting minutes will be made available through the project's website: www.adamsgreen. info. This website will be updated throughout the course of the project to allow residents to follow the project's progress both virtually and through work on FaceBook and receive project-related "tweets" on Twitter. The website will be live as of Dec. 6.

Film Series At Temple Shalom Begins Dec. 10

"Films that Reflect Society's Ills" is the theme of this season's Winter Movie Series of Temple Shalom of Milton, co-sponsored this year by First Congregational Church.

The opening film is "The Visitor" Saturday, Dec. 10 at 7 p.m., and the public is invited.

The film will be screened in the Great Hall of the church, 495 Canton Ave. Milton, with entry at the rear door.

"The Visitor", part drama and part comedy, is a story about illegal immigration post 9/11. It relates how a man sleepwalking through life is awakened by a chance friendship and the new horizons that are uncovered as a result. It shows that "In a world of six million people, it only takes one to change your life."

Donation for admission is $3 per person, or two for $5. Advance reservations get a free popcorn or bottle of water. Become a Movie Series Sponsor for $18 and get tickets for all three movies: Dec, 10, Jan. 21, and Feb. 11, with preferred seating, popcorn and drinks.

To order tickets in advance or for more information, call the temple at 617-698-3394, email: office@ TempleShalomOnline.org, or visit www.TempleShalomOnline.org; or call the church at 617-698-8517 or email info@fccmilton.org. Temple Shalom and First Congregational Church are both located at 495 Canton Ave., Milton, which is handicapped-accessible.

Quincy College Gives BackWith Penny, Food Drives

Quincy College recently collected over 34,000 pennies during its 'Pennies for Postage' drive and over 55 bags of non-perishable food items during its food drive.

The pennies collected will be used to defray costs of shipping packages to soldiers overseas. The College works with Soldiers Helpers in New England (SHINE), an organization that has several initiatives to help soldiers.

Some of the packages that SHINE sends are care packages for soldiers and chaplains, holiday cards, letters, crosses, etc. In addition, SHINE provides hats for WWII vets traveling on the Honor Flight to Washington, D.C., collects old cell phones so that cell phones for soldiers can buy more phone cards, knit items for veteran's hospitals, writes letters of condolences to the families of fallen soldiers, as well as many other thoughtful gestures.

The food collected in the food drive in Quincy went to the Quincy Community Action Program Food Bank and the food from the Plymouth campus went to the Plymouth Food Bank.

"Although in this hectic time everyone is busy with their own lives, the success of these two drives is indicative of the extent to which individuals at Quincy College are part of the greater community which it serves. Their commitment to the community once again exemplifies the best of Quincy College," said College President Peter H. Tsaffaras.

NQHS Senior Deming Yang Hailed As A Hero

By EMILY TAFT

North Quincy High School has 175 students in their Junior ROTC (Reserve Officer Training Corps.) program this year, but one student is standing taller then the rest. Deming Yang, 17, a senior, and second year member of the Junior ROTC, is known as a hero.

Yang earlier this year saved the life of a friend and fellow cadet during a community service program, a 20-mile Walk for Hunger that they marched in.

After stopping at a rest stop, 11.5 miles into the race, Yang along with another cadet and the cadet's girlfriend sat down for lunch. After taking a bite of a chicken sandwich, the cadet started to choke.

"He tried to tell me he was choking," said Yang. "I thought he was joking at first and then I saw his face turning almost purple and knew I had to do something."

Yang said that he tried helping with one hand first and after a few tries of it not working he tried with both arms.

"I never really learned the Heimlich maneuver other than remembering what I saw in a 5-10 minute video in a sixth grade health class," said Yang. "I tried my best to help him, and thankfully he finally spit out the chicken."

Afterwards the three laughed and joked about the event, but Yang never mentioned it to his teachers.

"I didn't find out about what happened until a week later," said Lt. Cornell Ken Greene, the senior Aerospace Science instructor at NQHS. "I found out through other students. He never would have mentioned it to me."

After hearing the story, Greene conducted interviews with the three involved. When he interviewed Yang and asked him what happened, Yang's response was that it was nothing.

After talking with the cadet and the cadet's girl-friend, and hearing them say Yang saved the cadet's life, Greene decided to write an email to Air Force Head-quarters in Alabama. Greene nominated Yang for the Silver Valor Award, which is the second highest medal he could receive.

"I am very proud of him," said Greene. "The very fact that a kid at 16 could analyze the situation, keep his cool, and do what he did is amazing. He handled the situation, you have to be proud of a kid that does that."

After the nomination was approved by the Air Force, Yang was presented the award at the Nov. 9th school committee meeting.

"I had no idea I was getting the medal," said Yang.

"I was just told to be at the school at six that night. I was very nervous."

North Quincy High School principal Earl Metzler is very impressed by the senior and believes that people need to hear about what he has done, and he thinks Yang deserves more recognition.

"He is such a special guy, so humble," said Metzler.
"He will make one heck of a soldier. He is a great human being, and an incredible young man."

Yang decided to join the Marines this year, and will head off with them in July.

"I am not nervous at all," said Yang. "My dad was proud, and he is glad that I was able to get a job that had to do with aviation."

The ROTC program at North Quincy high school is offered as an elective to each student attending the school. Two retired Air Force soldiers teach the students who decide to take on the elective.

"The JROTC program is a very important contributor to the climate and culture of the school," said Metzler. "The kids who take it are getting a very unique education"

Students, who decide to take the program, participate in physical training exercises along with drill exercises.

Around six in the morning 50-60 students join Greene in the NQHS gym to practice their drill routines, for the six competitions they compete in each year. They compete in 11 events during the competition and Greene said that they usually receive a trophy for 10 of the events.

"I like the community service part of the program," said Yang. "My favorite one that we do is a part of the North Quincy Youth Partnership."

The community service consist of 35 students from the JROTC program heading to Francis W. Parker Elementary School, after school, and mentoring the students there. There the students help the kids with their homework.

Many students will even continue community service outside of the JROTC program.

"We have kids that come back from the summer off telling me they did community service everyday," said Greene. "Every 16 hours they put in during the school year they get a service badge."

Metzler said he is very impressed by the students of the JROTC program and how many of them are willing to volunteer.

"These kids community service hours are off the charts," said Metzler. "They just keep giving in every single capacity."

For Yang the JROTC program has done a lot for him, and has allowed him to grow as a student and man.

"This is a really great program," said Yang. "We are like a big family, sometimes we fight, but then we work together as a team to fix the problem."

Thirteen members participated in the walk. Everyone who participated had a blast and wants to participate again next year!

Plans For New Track Moving Ahead

Plans to build a new track are moving ahead.

At the Nov. 21 City Council meeting, City Solicitor James Timmins briefed the council on the city's ongoing work at the Faxon Field site.

According to Timmins, the city is working with planning firm Gale Associates to "restyle the bid package." That process will be finished "fairly shortly," he said.

In the interim, the city continues to move ahead with site work on the field intended to help alleviate flooding concern. It involves "placing the track in an area where it's going to be very slightly graded," he said, "so surface water runoff is fed into the middle of the track and then it's going to be carried out through an underground pipe through Coddington Street and from there out to the Broad Street tide gate."

That tide gate is set to be improved as part of the track project.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro questioned how the administration is funding the site work after Timmins told the council funds from the Quincy High bond were being used.

"The previous administration separated the track from the high school bond," Gutro said, because those costs would not be reimbursable through SBA [School Building Authority]."

But Timmins defended the funding. He noted "there was money available that was going to be spent at Faxon Field for site work... rather than using it for site work to build two ball fields we used it to prepare the track."

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, whose district includes the track site, questioned whether the work needed to prepare for the track would've been the same as preparing for ball fields.

"You have to do site work for either the ball fields or the track," Timmins responded, "but it wouldn't have been the same."

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said Timmins had "some accounting cleaning up to do" and suggested the administration payback the money used from the bond.

Timmins disagreed with the assertion but said the city would "certainly look at it out of an abundance of caution."

Part of the work ongoing at the site involves compressing the field with dirt to drive water out. The city is currently in talks with the YMCA to allow them to use the fill for compression for similar purposes before they build their new facility.

"We're kind of engaging in that discussion now and hoping that can happen," Timmins stated. "If [the dirt] can just go across the street to the Y at the Y's expense that'd be terrific;
that'd be a very substantial savings."

Timmins expects the site work to continue through the winter with the construction of the track itself beginning in March. He hopes the entire project will be completed by June.

Koch Seeks $160,000 For Storm Costs

Mayor Tom Koch requested requested the City Council allocate nearly $160,000 for costs related to Tropical Storm Irene.

At its Nov. 21st meeting, the council referred the mayor's requests to the finance committee.

James Fatseas, the mayor's Executive Secretary, told the city the federal government would re-pay some of the expenses. "We expect to be reimbursed, Fatseas said. "We will be reimbursed for 75% of these costs from FEMA. 'When' is always the magic question that remains to be answered, but these moneys will be reimbursed."

The mayor asked for $99,615.91 for the Drain Department, $54,518.21 for the Park Department, $4,500 for yard waste, and $830 for the Sewer Department. The funding will be drawn from fiscal year 2012's revenue, but Councillor-at-Large John Keenan, the Finance Committee's Chairman, said the Sewer Department's allocation might need to be taken from sewer revenue.

"I don't think we can do that," Keenan said. "I think we have to charge to revenues related to Sewer, we can't charge it to revenue 2012."

Peter Chrisom 'A Wonderful Principal, A Fine Man'

By SCOTT JACKSON

The North Quincy High School community is in mourning this week after longtime principal Peter Chrisom, Sr. passed away on Thanksgiving.

"He was just a wonderful principal, a fine man," said former North Quincy High School Vice Principal Eileen Feeney.

Feeney served as Chrisom's assistant for 19 years. She said Chrisom was admired by everyone at North. "He loved the students and the teachers," she said, "and they loved him back."

One of his former students - Mayor Thomas Koch - also praised and admired Chrisom.

"Peter lived a life of service - first to his country as a Marine and then to the young people of Quincy through a remarkable career in education that touched thousands of lives in our community," said Koch, a student at North Quincy High during Chrisom's tenure. "I am incredibly proud to have been able to call him both a mentor and a friend, and on behalf of the entire city, we send our deepest condolences to the Chrisom family. They will remain in our thoughts and prayers."

Chrisom, who was 81, served as principal for 26 before his retirement in 1998. Fifty years prior to that, the Quincy native graduated from North Quincy High School. After serving with the Marines during the Korean War, he started his career at NQHS teaching history and went on to become department head and then vice principal.

The auditorium at North was dedicated to the former principal earlier this year. Earl Metzler, the current principal at NQHS, said the school was fortunate that Chrisom was able to attend the dedication and other events over the years.

Metzler also lauded Chrisom's leadership.

"Peter was an outstanding leader," he said. "He made North the school it is today."

But his presence was felt beyond North Quincy. "It's a tragic loss for both Quincy High and North Quincy High," said Frank Santoro, Quincy High's principal. "He served Quincy High in many ways; both staffs will miss him."

Santoro served on the School Committee while Chrisom was at North. "While I served on the school committee I had the pleasure of knowing him and working with him on a variety of issues," Santoro said.

As Quincy High's principal, Santoro continued to work with Chrisom when the city's past and present principals would meet, and this helped Santoro develop as a leader.

"I used to love his story telling ability," Santoro said. "I learned through his mentorship that stories are the best way to reach your audience."

Metzler, who coached at North while Chrisom was principal, also considered him a mentor.

"I learned a great deal from him, I learned a great deal from his advice," he said. "He was a tremendous man, a wonderful man."

Feeney said his best attribute was the ability to consider everything.

"He saw the whole person, the whole student," she said. "It wasn't just one aspect of school, it was the whole thing."

North held a moment of silence in his memory Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Santoro said Quincy High's staff is helping put together contributions for the Marine Corps Scholarship Fund in his honor.

Chrisom had eight children with his late wife Joan.

Feeney praised Chrisom for how he raised his family. "They were very well brought up, they just love each other," she said. She also said Chrisom was never alone after his wife died because his children were always there for him.

Chrisom's son Peter Jr. and daughter Susan work at North Quincy and Quincy, respectively. Feeney called that a testament to the late Chrisom's character.

"When you revere education," she said, "I think it passes onto your children." Peter J. Chrisom, Sr., 81
Retired North Quincy High School Principal, Veteran

A funeal Mass for Peter J. Chrisom, Sr., a retired principal of North Quincy High School and a U.S Marine Corps veteran, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Ann's Church, Wollaston.

Mr. Chrisom died suddenly at Milton Hospital on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 24.

Born and raised in Quincy, Peter began his near lifelong relationship with North Quincy High School as a member of the Class of 1948. He went on to earn bachelors and masters degrees from Boston College and a commission in the U.S. Marine Corps during the Korean Conflict.

Mr. Chrisom returned to the Quincy Public Schools as a history teacher quickly earning promotions to head of his department and assistant principal at North Quincy High School before assuming the principal's position. He served as principal for 26 years before retiring in 1998.

Mr. Chrisom was honored with a testimonial at the time of his retirement and in 2011, the school recognized his service again by dedicating both the school auditorium and yearbook in his honor.

As loyal as Mr. Chrisom

PETER J. CHRISOM, SR.

was to North Quincy High School, he was equally as devoted to the Marine Corps, Boston College, his Irish heritage and his Catholic faith. He faithfully attended the annual Marine Corps birthday celebration with his sons, followed Boston College sports, especially football, hosted St. Patrick's Day parties and attended Mass regularly at St. Mary of the Hills Parish in Milton.

Of all he became a part of in his life, however, Mr. Chrisom's greatest loyalty and pride was reserved for his wife, children and grandchildren. Spending time with them at home in Milton, at his beloved summer home in Harwich or at their school and athletic events was his greatest joy.

The loving and devoted husband of 51 years to the late Joan P. (Kenney) Chrisom, he was also the loving and supportive father of Peter J. Chrisom, Jr. and his wife Kathleen of Weymouth, Sean V. Chrisom and his wife Faith of Holliston, Susan de Varennes and her husband Robert of Braintree, Brendan K. Chrisom and his wife Karen of Dover, NH, Patricia A. McCart, Brian M: Chrisom and his wife Janet, Maureen H. Berry and her husband Christopher and Kevin B. Chrisom and his wife Amy all of Milton the cherished "Da" to 23 grandchildren, the brother of the late Mary Peshek and an uncle to many nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Ouincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Marine Corps Scholarship Foundation 909 N. Washington St. Suite 400 Alexandria, VA 22314.

For Outstanding Community Service

Nominations Open For Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award

Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award presented by The Quincy

The award - formerly known as the Sun Citizen of the Year - was renamed in 2010 in memory of Mr. Bosworth, The Quincy Sun's founder and longtime publisher.

Last year, John M. Gillis, a lifelong Quincy Point resident, was recognized as a "champion of the little guy" during his public service career that has spanned more than 50 years. Gillis served 33 years as Quincy city clerk before he was elected a Norfolk County commissioner in 1992, a post he has served nearly 20 years.

Gillis was selected for the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award by a judging panel among 22 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

Gillis is the first recipient of the Bosworth Award and the 28th individual overall to be recognized by the Sun for outstanding community service. The other recipients received the award when it was known as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below in this week's issue of The Quincy Sun.

Nominations will close Saturday, Dec. 31. After nominations close, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2011 Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

> The Quincy Sun Attn: Bosworth Award 1372 Hancock St. Quincy, MA 02169 Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by

The Henry W. Bosworth, Jr.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the their nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor, friend or community activist who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

New Fire Chief Search

it's fair game for anyone to question what the mayor's doing," he said. "Are there things that we could do here that could've instilled more public confidence in the process? I think probably the answer is yes."

Timmins disagreed, saying "I don't know that it's been questioned since that point and I believe when the superior court reviews this decision they'll see that there should be public confidence with what went on."

There was also concern that the city could be on the hook financially if they lost in court. Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest asked if a party who won a Civil Service case against Quincy could then "pursue the city to pay those legal costs?"

Timmins alleviated those concerns. "The way the Civil Service law works there really isn't that sort of remedy," he said. "Deputy Smyth is the prevailing party at Civil Service and if you read the decision you can see what his remedy was, it's that we do the process again."

The possibility of withdrawing the police and fire chiefs from the Civil Service system was also brought up. While he didn't endorse the Councillor-at-Large Mike McFarland asked if it were possible because Civil Service "seems to cause time."

Timmins said it was possible but couldn't explain how it would happen. "We do absolutely have the ability to remove the positions of police chief and fire chief from the Civil Service, the particular mechanism I'm not familiar with." he said.

If the new search results in either Fenby or Smyth being named chief, Barron wouldn't be able to appeal. "Chief Barron would not have appellate rights if he were not selected," Timmins told the council, "because the only party who has appellate rights is someone who's bypassed."

79TH CITY FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP North Quincy Red Raiders 27 - Quincy Presidents 17

THE 79TH QUINCY CITY CHAMPIONSHIP saw a number of players from both North Quincy and Quincy stand out, but North Quincy senior Marquis Chase (#23) – pictured here scoring a first quarter touchdown – had a day to remember. Chase ran for 179 yards and scored three touchdowns as the Red Raiders defeated the Presidents, 27-17.

THE UNSUNG HEROES for North Quincy during its 27-17 win over Quincy were the offensive line of Ian Dunphy, Don Sharp, Vinny Tran, Matt Deagle and Mekhi Pearson. The Raiders ran 50 offensive plays – all runs – and picked up 317 yards rushing. Pictured here blocking for full-back Walter Hannon (#45) are Deagle (#71) and Sharp (center).

THE PRESIDENTS ran out of the locker room at the beginning of last week's Thanksgiving Day game with rival North Quincy. Quincy started fast – scoring on a 68-yard TD pass from Curran Jorgensen to Jaqun Harris just 1:10 in – but the Red Raiders ended fast, outscoring the Presidents 13-0 after halftime to win 27-17.

Senior Marquis Chase Leads Red Raiders With Three TDs

NQ Runs Away From QHS, 27-17

By SEAN BRENNAN Who says you need to throw the ball to win - just run it.

On Thanksgiving, during the 79th Quincy City Championship between North Quincy and Quincy at a fan-filled Veterans' Memorial Stadium, the Red Raiders called 50 plays from scrimmage. With each hut, quarterback Andrew Minton received the football from center Matt Deagle before handing it off to seniors Marquis Chase (25 carries, 179 yards, three TDs) and Walter Hannon (16 for 103 yards, TD) or sophomore Antoine Allen (four carries, 43 yards).

North Quincy's game plan of running it right into the teeth of the Presidents' defense worked to perfection. The Raiders reeled off 317 yards of total offense and outscored Quincy 13-0 after halftime to win their third straight Thanksgiving Day game, 27-17. The Red Raiders finished the year at 3-8; Quincy finished at 2-8.

The kids played outstanding," said North Quincy coach Jim Connor about the performance of his team against rival Quincy. "They played hard and they did what they had to do to win the game."

The turning point for North Quincy came immediately after halftime. The Presidents trotted off the turf at the end of the second quarter holding a 17-14 lead thanks to a last-second 26-yard field goal by Jalen Green. However, it was the Red Raiders who returned to the field with authority.

In a half in which North Quincy ran 28 plays to 12 plays for Quincy, the quarter's opening possession at their own 30-yard line and proceeded to put on a running and blocking clinic. The seven-play drive started with a 16-yard run from Chase that set up North Quincy first-and-10 from the 46-yard line. On the next snap, Allen started one way before reversing course and scampering 24 yards through Quincy's defense before being brought down at the Presidents' 23yard line.

Two runs from Chase picked up an additional nine yards, setting North Quincy up third-and-one from the 14-yard line. Hannon did the rest. The wily team captain gained four yards on third down (first-and-goal from Quincy's 10-yard line) before barreling for four more yards to set up second-andgoal. Taking a pitch from Minton, Hannon followed the blocks of left tackle Don Sharp and left guard Vinny Tran and walked into the end zone untouched to cap off the four-plus minute

An Aris Bega point after kick put North Quincy up for good 21-17 with 7:12 left in the third quarter.

On the Presidents' next drive, running back Reggie Cesar (12 carries, 66 yards) got dropped for a three-yard loss as Sharp burst through the offensive line to bring down the all-league selection in the backfield. A two-yard gain by Cesar set Quincy up third-and-11 from their own 29 and following a neutral zone infraction by North Quincy, the Presidents were faced with a third-and-six at the 34-yard line.

Green took the handoff from quarterback Curran Jorgensen (6-for-12, 190 yards, two TDs) and with the first down marker within sight lunged for the extra yardage. But North Quincy's Joey Lawlor came flying up from his position in the defensive backfield to jar the football from Green's grasp. on the loose ball.

The turnover did not result in points for North Quincy as the Red Raiders turned it back over on downs but it did run an additional two minutes of the game clock and following a fiveplay drive by the Presidents, BACK-TO-BACK-TO-BACK CITY CHAMPIONS - The North Quincy Red Raiders made it three wins in a row over Quincy High School last Thursday in the 79th annual Quincy City Championship. which ended with Jorgensen being gang-sacked by Shane Ceurvals, Chris Kerin, Bega and Tran, the third quarter ended.

Trailing 21-17, Quincy punted it back to North Ouincy to start the fourth quarter - the Presidents' offense wouldn't touch the football again until there was 2:40 left in regulation.

North Quincy began the final quarter with a firstand-10 from their own 24yard line and over the next 8:40 methodically drove 76 yards on 14 running plays to close out Quincy for a third straight season.

"The Drive" began with a two-yard burst from Chase. Hannon battled for seven yards on second down (third-and-one) and three yards on third down to give North Quincy a first-and-10 at the 36. Five more yards by Hannon set the Red Raiders up at second-and-five from their own 41 and Chase picked up another first down with a six-yard dash. Following a negative rush by Hannon, which set up second-and-11 from the 46, Chase, behind a devastating block by Tran, cut alongside the left side of the offensive line for 13 yards.

A solid tackle from Quincy sophomore linebacker Alex Alexandre cut down Allen for a minimal gain on first down but Hannon carried for seven yards on second down to set up a third-and-short at the Quincy 33-yard line. A threeyard run by Chase, a fiveyard run from Allen and a five-yard run by Hannon set North Quincy up with firstand-10 at the Presidents' 21yard line.

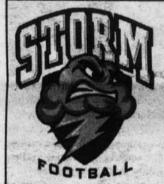

Hannon and the offensive line continued to pound Quincy's defensive front with a three-yard gain on first down. On second down from the Presidents' 19-yard line, Chase took a Minton handoff and seeing daylight between Sharp and Tran broke off a 19-yard touchdown run - his third of the game - to finish off the drive. Chase's score gave North Quincy the 27-17

"We knew at halftime that we were able to run the ball against (Quincy)," Connor said about how the second half played out.

"We just had to stop the big play and we did that in the second half - zero points for them. (Running the ball and controlling the clock) is what we were hoping to do; I tip my hat to the kids, they ran the game plan to perfec-

North Quincy Runs Away From Quincy,

Quincy dominated possession and milked the clock down at will, quarters three and four were polar opposites of quarters one and two when the Presidents seemed to have their way with the Red Raiders.

The Quin started early.

Having won the pre-game coin flip, the Presidents and Head Coach Bill Reardon elected to receive the ball to start the game. With North Ouincy crowding the box, Jorgensen used a hard count to draw the Red Raiders offside, setting up a firstand-five at their own 33. On second down, the senior signal caller used play-action that froze the North Quincy defensive backfield. Junior Jaqun Harris slipped behind the DBs and Jorgensen placed a beautiful pass into his breadbasket, which was dropped.

The aggressive pass play got the crowd buzzing and seemed to shock the Raiders

MONTER CONTRACTOR OF THE SECRETARY OF TH

but on second down, Cesar was tackled for a loss and, what seemed like a promising start for Quincy, was in danger of stalling.

But Reardon dialed up the same wheel route pass play he called on first down, on third down and, this time Jorgensen's pass was caught by a streaking Harris. Harris sprinted 68 yards down the right sidelines to give the Presidents a 6-0 lead (point after attempt failed) just a 1:10 into the game. With the Quincy fans going crazy, the Presidents went for an early knockout on the ensuing kickoff. Instead of kicking it deep, Quincy elected to try an onside kick - it didn't work. North Quincy recovered the football at Ouincy's 45-yard line.

In what was a harbinger of what was to come, Chase ran for six yards on first down; ran for two more on second down and barreled for five yards on thirdand-2. On first down from Quincy's 32-yard line, the all-league running back followed a Tran block and exploded through the backend of the Presidents' defense for a 32-yard touchdown; a Bega PAT gave North Quincy a 7-6 lead three minutes

Quincy responded with an eight-play drive that began at their own 13-yard line before coming to a halt at the 37. On this drive, Cesar rushed five times for 23 yards. Chase returned the fourth down punt 22 yards back to the Quincy 46; three runs by Chase brought the ball to the Presidents' 31. but a miscommunication on the final snap of the first quarter between Minton and Hannon resulted in a fumbled exchange, which was recovered by Cesar at the 37-yard line.

The Presidents used four runs to move the ball up to the North Quincy 48, but a holding penalty pushed Quincy back to its 42-yard line. On second down, Jorgensen's pass to junior Alex Heffernan was well defended by Allen; facing a third-and-16, Quincy dialed up another pass play. Jorgensen's pass down the sidelines was tipped by a North Quincy defender, but junior Viet Doan snagged the football inches from the turf and glided into the end zone. The 58-yard touchdown (and conversion rush by Cesar) gave Quincy a 14-7 lead with 7:56 left in the half.

Jorgensen's air strike only fueled North Quincy's jets. After starting their next drive at their own 16-yard line, the Red Raiders put together a 13-play, 84-yard scoring drive. Hannon got it started with runs of six and 21 yards setting up the Red Raiders with first-and-10 at the 43. A six-yard run by Allen and runs of five and six yards by Hannon moved the chains and, on fourth down, Chase scampered 37 yards all the way down to the Presidents' 15-yard line.

On second-and-three inside the 10-yard line, Chase swept right and jumped for the goal line but a mid-air hit jarred the ball loose. Luckily for the Red Raiders Minton recovered the bouncing football. Three plays later Chase made up for his previous fumble with his second touchdown run of the half. Bega's PAT tied the game at 14-14.

Quincy executed a nice two-minute offense to retake the lead before halftime. After Cesar ran for 33 yards on two plays, Jorgensen connected with Harris for 10 yards and Doan for another 17 yards to set up the Presidents with a field goal attempt with two seconds left in the second quarter. Green drilled his 26-yard field goal attempt.

For North Quincy, their third straight Thanksgiving Day victory over Quincy was extra special. The Red Raiders were dealt a bad hand this season. Low numbers and injuries limited North Quincy throughout the regular season. After last year's 6-5-finish, having just two wins on record entering Turkey Day was tough to swallow. But the thing about the annual North Quincy-Quincy game is that no matter what your record is going in, walking off with the City Championship makes everything else seem

And for a senior class that graduates as the group that ended Quincy's decade of dominance there is nothing sweeter than that.

We knew that we could run it on them," said Chase, who finished his senior year with 11 touchdowns and 1,100-plus yards rushing. "We wanted to run it up the middle all game. Walter had a heck of a game blocking and running and without the offensive line (Ian Dunphy, Don Sharp, Vinny Tran, Matt Deagle and Mekhi Pearson) dominating Quincy we would not have won.

"It is awesome being part of all three (wins)."

Ski & Snowboard Registration

Department and Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, announced last week that registration for the department's program of ski and snowboard instruction at the Blue Hill Ski Area would begin on Tuesday, Dec. 6 at 9 a.m.

Registration may be done at the QRD Main Office, One Merrymount Parkway or online at QuincyRec.com.

This program is open to Quincy youngsters age 8 through high school and features a one hour and thirty minute lesson for beginners to advanced, use of the ski tow, supervision, and transportation to and from the ski area.

The staff of the Recreation Department supervises the transportation and certified instructors from the Blue Hill Ski School provide the lesson instruction.

The program will be conducted on Tuesdays beginning January 10, 2012 and will continue for five weekly lessons. The cost of this program is $175 and is payable at the time of registration. The Blue Hill Ski Area can provide rental equipment at an additional cost. Arrangements for rental equipment will be done by the Recreation Department at the time of registration. Five-week rental of skis (with boots and poles) or a snowboard (with boots) is $75; helmets are required and can be rented for $25 for the five-week program.

Gift certificates are available for this program. The program leaves from the office of the QRD at 3:15 p.m. and returns at 6:30 p.m.

The Blue Hill Ski Area is opening this year with increased snowmaking output, upgrades to its lighting systems and lifts.

According to Welch: "The always popular program continues to improve. The management company has a long-term lease with the Department of Conservation and Recreation, which allows time for facility upgrades to this unique facility. The Recreation Department has benefited with the number of Quincy youth increasing in enrollment for the last three years. This program has great value to our residents."

Welch also emphasized that following the recommendation of the ski industry and child safety advocates, the 2012 Quincy Recreation Ski and Snowboard program will require the use of helmets for all participants.

The registration period will continue at the Recreation Department and online as long as opening exist. There is limited enrollment availability for the program.

Additional information can be obtained by calling the Recreation Department at

The workshops will be scheduled on Saturdays and will be conducted in the Community Room of the Richard J. Koch Park and Recreation Complex located at One Merrymount Parkway. The cost of the program is $20 for a three-hour session and will include LEGOS, supervised instruction and a snack.

The sessions are held: Sat., Dec. 10 from 9 a.m. to noon and Sat., Dec. 17 from 9 a.m. to noon.

Enrollment is limited and a minimum number will be needed for each session for proper group activities. Registration is ongoing and can be done online at QuincyRec. com or in person from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. For additional information, call 617-376-1394.

Rec. Department Saturday Gym Schedule

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct supervised recreation programs in nine school gymnasiums on Saturdays throughout the winter beginning on Sat., Dec. 3.

The Saturday gym programs are free and open to boys and girls age 8 through high school. Times varies according to age group.

All programs have walk-in registration at each location and are open only to Quincy residents; participants may attend the location of their choice, not just their neighborhood gymnasium.

Assorted gym activities such as floor hockey, tag football, basketball and gym games will be conducted under the supervision of the Quincy Recreation Department staff.

The core schedule is from 9-10:30 a.m. for elementary kids age 8 through Grade 5 and 10:30 a.m. until noon for middle school/high school. Some adjustments in this time schedule may be made at different locations to accommodate difference in attendance by age groups.

The Saturday schedule is offered at the following schools: Atherton Hough, Atlantic, Beechwood Knoll, Bernazzani, Merrymount, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Squantum, and Point Webster.

Additional information is available by calling the Recreation Department at 617-376-1394 or online at www. QuincyRec.com.

Boy Scouts Old Colony Council Presents Shonda Schilling Distinguished Citizen Award

The Boy Scouts of America Old Colony Council recently honored Shonda Schilling at the annual Distinguished Citizens Award Dinner held at the Boston Marriott-Quincy.

Schilling is a noted humanitarian and New York Times Best Selling author. She is the wife of former Red Sox pitcher Curt Schilling.

The annual event is the largest fundraiser for the Old Colony Council, which serves youth and families from 41 communities along the South Shore and Metro West areas of Southeastern Massachusetts. It was attended by nearly 200 community and business leaders who support the Boy Scouts and the values-based programs for boys and families Shonda Schilling was honored with the Distinguished Citizens Award for her humanitarian and philanthropic work. Her work through her own organization -- The Shade Foundation of America - as well as with the ALS Association, Aspergers Association of New England and YouthCare exemplify the Scout Oath to help other people at all times.

During her keynote address, Schilling spoke of the positive effect the Boy Scout have had on her own son and family, and on the relevance of the Boy Scout's core objectives: strengthening character, personal fitness and good citizenship. Two outstanding youth members -- Eagle Scout, Joshua Connors from Bridgewater and Venturer Kate Tatar from Norwood -- also spoke at the event.

Quincy Cyclists Raise $105,000 For PMC

THE 2011 PAN-MASSACHUSETTS Challenged raised $35 million this year with 23 residents contributing nearly $105,000. They were among the 5,169 cyclists who rode up to 190 miles across Massachusetts to raise money for Dana-Farber Cancer Institute though its Jimmy Fund. The $35 million was recently presented to Dana-Farber. Among the Quincy cyclists who participated in the PMC were (from left) Winnie Rioux, Laurie McDonald and Jenn Toohey.

Tobacco-Free Partnership Participates In Great American Smokeout

Jackie Doane of the Greater Boston Tobacco-Free Community Partnership, a program of Bay State Community Services, joined colleagues from around the Commonwealth to participate in the 2011 Great American Smokeout recently at the Massachusetts State House.

The event, organized by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health's Massachusetts Tobacco Cessation and Prevention Program, is part of a nationwide effort to raise awareness of the dangers of tobacco use and motivate smokers to make a quit attempt.

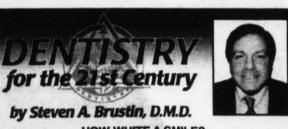

At this year's event the Massachusetts Department of Public Health presented the Massachusetts Hospital Association (MHA) with its annual Make Smoking History award. The award, presented each year, honors an organization in Massachusetts committed to making the Commonwealth tobacco-free.

MHA has been working with and recognizing hospital campuses across the state that are committed to being tobacco-free. Quincy Medical Center is one of the 48 hospitals listed on MHA's Tobacco-Free Hospitals Honor Roll.

The Greater Boston Tobacco-Free Community Partnership also toured the State House and visited with legislators and their staff members to educate them on cessation benefits, such as the patch and stop-smoking medicines, which when used together more than double a smoker's chance to quit for good.

"It's important for everyone to know that smoking still remains the number one cause of preventable death and disability in Massachusetts," said Jackie Doane, Program Coordinator. "However, the good news is seventy-seven percent of adult smokers in Massachusetts want to quit smoking and if we can provide them with the support necessary to quit for good, we will have made a difference."

HOW WHITE A SMILE? Those looking to emulate

the pure-white smiles of magazine-cover models should know that "Chiclet teeth" are more a matter of photo enhancement than reality. Pa-tients should bear this in mind when undergoing teeth-whitening and tooth-replacement procedures. In the latter case. the dentist makes aesthetic decisions based on tooth size in relation to surrounding teeth, surface texture, contour, shape and color. As far as tooth color is concerned, teeth are not completely white, but are made of yellows, blues, grays, greens and oranges. Thus, unless a patient is set on a career in the movies, he or she would be better of with lighter teeth than mimic enam-el's subtle range of hues than with pure white teeth. METHIR Parents may be more concerned issues surrounding skiing, snowboarding, and skating than they might worry about sledding injuries. However, whether children are careening down slippery slopes on plastic saucers, sleds with metal runners, or high-tech snow tubes, there is the potential for injury. A first-ever analysis of U.S. emergency room reports shows that children and teens on sleds account for nearly 21,000 injuries annually. As parents might suspect, children between the ages of 10 and 14 years account for the most injuries, and boys account for nearly 60 percent of all cases. With this in mind, chiropractors suggest it might be a good idea for parents to promote the use of limets among young sledders.

Easy Home Heating Projects That Save Money

(NAPSA)-Make home feel warmer without turning up the heat this win-

The average family spends $1,400 a year on energy, with nearly half of that on heating and cooling. However, by following some simple steps on home winterizing, and by using energy-efficient heating equipment, homeowners can save as much as 20 percent on annual energy costs.

Before you begin to winterize, you should call in a professionally licensed HVAC contractor to inspect and tune up your heating system. Once that is done. there are several things you can do yourself to prolong the life of the equipment and help ensure proper op-· Oil Heat - Change fuel filters and service burners if needed. Check fuel tank for water content and fill tank.

• Forced-Air Systems -Clean registers and returns, remove grill on returns, vacuum, and reinstall the grill. On older forced-air systems, the entire ductwork should be cleaned every couple of years. Inspect flue pipe for blockages, leaks and holes and make sure vent cap is in place on roof.

 Furnaces – Check fan belts, pilot light, humidifier and media pad if needed. On older furnaces, the pilot light may stay on all the time and you can see it; newer models are usually self-igniting and light only when the furnace is running.

· Humidifiers or Dehumidifiers - For freestanding units, change or clean filters. For furnace-mounted humidifiers, check, clean or replace the water media pad, Quincy Sun Featured Home of the Weel or water level on float-type humidifiers. Check waterline/ waste line for leaks.

· Hot Water Heaters -Drain about 10 to 15 gallons from service valve, located at bottom of water tank, to remove sediment. If water has slight rust color at first, this is OK; if after draining more than 10 gallons the water still has a rust color, it's a sign the tank is rusting and that you should consider replacement. On natural gas heaters, inspect flue pipe to ensure it is secure and has no leaks. Lowering the temperature of water in the water heater to 115° to 120° reduces fuel consumption.

· An Energy-Efficient Hot Water Circulator such as the Bell & Gossett ecocirc(®)-can save an average family of four more than 12,000 gallons of water and hundreds of dollars in energy costs a year.

 Thermostat Setting 68° F is recommended for cold months, 65° F at night. The rule of thumb is that you can save about 3 percent on your heating bill for every degree that you set back your thermostat.

 New Equipment – If equipment needs replacement, call a local professional for at least two quotes. Local, state and federal tax credits and rebates can assist in the purchase of an energy-saving product.

This Is A Hammer

Surviving a Winter Weather Emergency

. We recently exo perienced an unexpectedly early and heavy snowfall in the Northeast. As a new transplant from a Southern state, I was totally unprepared for this. My neighbors were a real help as I dug out from nearly a foot of snow and dealt with having no power or heat. I wanted to write you with a few of my observations from the snowstorm.

-Make sure vou have basic necessities on hand. I had a "hurricane kit" with me that I'd assembled in Alabama years before, which included a combination flashlight-radio that charges by winding a crank; extra candles and matches; energy bars; beef jerky; emergency blankets and a couple of gallons of water.

-Have appropriate clothing for your region: Since I had just moved to the area, I had not yet bought a heavy winter coat. My next-door neighbor loaned me an extra one.

-Purchase an extra battery for your cellphone or laptop, and keep it charged.

-Fill your car's gas tank the day before a storm's arrival. If you have a generator, purchase fuel for it as well, and store it in approved containers (and ideally away from the house).

-Do not run generators inside the garage! We had a few people taken to the hospital in our region due to carbon monoxide seeping into the house.

-Get to know your neighbors before bad weather strikes, and stay in touch with them during or after a storm. Without my neighbors' help, I would have had a much harder time getting through this event.

-And finally, when shoveling snow, lift with your legs, not your back! Don't overload the shovel, and just push the snow aside, rather than fling it away. My neighbor was happy to give me lessons. (Although, I'm investing in a snow blower as soon as they're available at the hardware store.)

Hope your readers get some use out of this information. Stay warm! - Kurt H., Amherst, Mass.

A Kurt, thanks for sharing your experience! Whether it's hurricanes in the South or blizzards in the North, being prepared is essential. Working with neighbors to get through a crisis also can't be stated enough and it's great that you were able to work together.

HOME TIP: See a downed power line on your street? Don't approach it, even if you think it's not live, and keep everyone inside. Contact emergency services and follow their instructions.

A Job Well Done

On Friday, Nov. 18, at approximately 9:15 p.m., Officer Dan Parisi was dispatched to the Euclid Avenue area on a report of a loud explosion. The officer was in the area at the time and also heard the explosion.

d

While searching the area for the cause, Officer Parisi observed a male running from a condominium parking lot and then behind a closed business and onto Deldorf Street. The officer drove up next to the male and asked him where he was coming from.

LT. DAN MINTON

The male said he just left the hospital and was headed to his house in West Quincy. He added that he was going to cut behind the "Old folks home" (125 Granite Street) and then onto Granite Street. During the conversation, the male said he did hear the explosion, but changed his story, saying that he was coming from his friend's house and not the hospital. The male appeared extremely nervous and kept putting his left hand into his pocket.

Due to the fact that he only put his left hand into his pocket, the Officer began to grow fearful that he may have a weapon on his person, so the Officer pat-frisked the male suspect for safety purposes. In that pocket was a hard object, so Officer Parisi removed it and discovered it was a pill bottle with a cell phone next to it. The label to the pill box had been torn off and contained what the Officer immediately recognized as Suboxen, a class B substance. In the suspect's right pocket was a syringe. The suspect said he got the pills from the hospital and used them so he didn't use heroin.

When asked why he didn't have the labeled prescription bottle, the suspect stated, "I didn't want to carry it around with me – it's embarrassing." He added that he got the prescription for 60 pills a few days ago and he takes three a day. A quick count showed that at least half the pills were missing from this container. When confronted with this, the suspect blurted out that he just bought a few pills from up the street "to get me through the weekend."

As the suspect was placed under arrest, he pleaded for the Officer to summons him to court instead of arresting him. At the Quincy Police station, Officer Parisi counted 29 Suboxen tablets. A check of the suspect's criminal record showed that he has several charges for possession with intent to distribute Class A. The suspect, a 28 year old Quincy resident, was charged with "Possession of Class B with Intent to Distribute."

Nice Work!

NOT EXACTLY WHAT SHE HAD IN MIND: On Sunday, Nov. 20 at approximately 7:50 P.M., Officer Robert Bell was dispatched to a Water Street address to talk to an intoxicated female who kept calling "911." She wanted to know about her drunk boyfriend, who was arrested 30 minutes earlier and placed into protective custody by by Officer Keith Wilbur and Officer Bell. At that time of the arrest, she was advised to stay in her apartment as the Officers left.

Dispatcher/Officer Kristen Bowes stated that the female called at least 8 times in 30 minutes, tying up the emergency lines. Upon arrival, Officer Bell found the female standing outside her apartment. She thanked Officer Bell for picking her up so that she could see her boyfriend at the police station. The female was unsteady on her feet, slurring her words and had a strong odor of an alcoholic beverage on her breath.

The female, a 39 year-old Quincy resident, was also placed into protective custody and transported to the station, where she was placed in a separate cell away from her boyfriend -but at least in the same building!

Quincy Community United Methodist

Community Quincy United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its annual Hanging of the Greens ceremony at the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday.

Many different versions of the Hanging of the Greens service exists. The one used at Quincy Community United Methodist Church combines readings from Scripture and songs, and was written by Pastor Dr. Susan Jarek-Glidden.

The focus of the service is participation. Before the service begins, everyone is invited to help decorate the Sanctuary with greenery.

Then, at a certain point in the ceremony, the volunteers are asked to carry out their part of the decorating.

Towards the end of the service, the church Christmas Tree is lit for the first time

The church will also present three animal respirators to the Weymouth Fire Department. Quincy's fire trucks already have animal respirators.

The public is invited to participate in the Hanging of the Greens ceremony.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your curiosity might not be appreciated by everyone. Expect some resistance in getting answers to your questions. But stay with it. You need facts in order to make important decisions.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Some of the mystery surrounding your recent fiscal situation soon will be dispelled with a clear explanation. Use this new knowledge to help you chart a fresh financial course.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Start your Hanukkah and Christmas gift-buying now. This will help avoid problems caused by possible mid-December delays. A family member has important information.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Use a little more sense in how you plan to spend your endof-the-year holiday dollars. Meanwhile, you continue to gain support for your stand on a workplace issue.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Wearing that big, loving Lion's heart of yours on your sleeve leaves it unprotected. Let things develop a little more before you allow your emotions to spill over.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to September 22) You might feel you're not ready to patch up an unraveled relationship. But the longer you wait, the more difficult it will be for all parties to take the first healing step.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your end-of-the-year holiday plans could be disrupted by something out of your control, but stay the course. Ultimately, things will settle back into a normal pace.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your honest approach to a workplace project earns you both respect and credit from those in charge. Meanwhile, that personal problem still needs to be dealt with.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Money could be a little tight this month. This means the usually bargain-oblivious Sagittarian should look for ways to save on end-of-the-year holidays.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Examine the facts, and you might find that it's a wiser move to shift gears and redirect some of your goals before the end of the year. Someone close to you offers good advice.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Be careful that your generosity is not abused. Find out more, both about the special favors you might be asked to grant and who is asking for them.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You've come through a recent rough time in great shape. Congratulations. Now go out and enjoy your well-earned rewards. More good news comes in mid-December.

BORN THIS WEEK: You aim for truth, and you usually find it. Your honesty earns you the friendship and respect of others.

Docket No. NO11P2856GD In the matter of: Shawn McLean Of: Quincy, MA RESPONDENT Alleged Incapacitated Person

35 Shawmut Road

Canton, MA 02021

To the named Respondent and all other interested persons, a petition has been filed by The Arc of Bristol County of Attleboro, MA in the above captioned matter alleging that Shawn McLean is in need of a Guardian and requesting that The Arc of Bristol County of Attleboro, MA (or some other suitable person) be appointed as Guardian to serve Without Surety on the bond.

The petition asks the court to determine that the Respondent is incapacitated, that the appointment of a Guardian is necessary, and that the proposed Guardian is appropriate. The petition is on file with this court and may contain a request for certain specific authority.

You have the right to object to this proceeding. If you wish to do so, you or your attorney must file a written appearance at this court on or before 10:00 A.M. on the return date of 12/13/2011. This day is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline date by which you have to file the written appearance if you object to the petition. If you fail to file the written appearance by the return date, action may be taken in this matter without further notice to you. In addition to filing the written appearance, you or your attorney must file a written affidavit stating the specific facts and grounds of your objection within 30 days after the return date.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The outcome of this proceeding may limit or completely take away the above-named person's right to make decisions about personal affairs or financial affairs or both. The above-named person has the right to ask for a lawyer. Anyone may make this request on behalf of the above-named person. If the above-named person cannot afford a lawyer, one may be appointed at State expense.

Council Votes 7-2 For New DPW Salt Shed

By SCOTT JACKSON
Plans to build a new salt shed are back on track.

During Monday's meeting, the City Council approved the $248,900 shed in a 7-2 vote.

At the council's Nov. 21st meeting, DPW Commissioner Dan Raymondi briefed councillors on his plan to build the shed as part of an all-salt strategy to fight icing on Quincy's street – Raymondi did research on the matter that concluded "salt is the way to go," he told the council then. The new shed will hold up to 3,000 tons of salt. That's double the amount the current shed, which is in poor condition, can hold. Because the current shed is too small, salt needed to be kept outside which causes runoff.

But councillors admonished Raymondi for not seeking their approval before planning out the new shed. Councillor-at-Large Joe Finn expressed disapproval at the November meeting that he learned of the plan in the newspaper, even though he chairs the committee with oversight of the DPW. Finn cast one of the dissenting votes Monday, citing the lack of communication.

"It really pains me tovote no on this," Finn said,
"because I think, to a very real degree, that it's an eminently reasonable proposal.
I'm very concerned particularly in terms of waste of a very important product. I'm voting no because of the process that was involved in this and hoping next time this body will be taken seriously."

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee was the other dissenter. He too said the council was ignored.

Construction of the new shed is expected to take up to eight weeks.

Demand Up But Donations Down

Helping Hands Stepping Up For Holiday Assistance

By EMILY TAFT

The holiday season is here and so is increased demand from needy families who need help paying bills in a difficult economy as well as for food, toys and other necessities to make this time of year a little bit brighter.

In Quincy, there are a myriad of local organizations that are trying to help the less fortunate. These groups are also reaching out to the community to help them serve those who most need help.

Organizations with food pantries, help for the holiday programs, and adopt a family program are busy getting things ready for the Quincy families who need it.

Here's a list of some of those organizations, what they need, and how the public can help. Quincy Community Action Program (617) 479-8181

With the programs funding shortage because of government cuts this year, QCAP is asking for all the donations they can get to help the hundreds of families they serve each holiday season.

State Regulators Permit Town Brook Project

The City has received a critical state environmental permit needed to move forward on plans to restore the Town Brook, a cornerstone infrastructure project at the heart of the historic $1.6 billion Quincy Center redevelopment plan, Mayor Thomas Koch said Tuesday.

The expansive state Department of Environmental Protection permit, called a Superceding Order of Conditions, ballds upon previous permits issued by the City's Conservation Commission and sets a series of guidelines expected to allow construction of the project to begin next year.

It allows the City and its private development partner, Street-Works Development, LLC, to transform a 1,700-foot section of the Brook's long-degraded downtown culvert into a dramatically improved waterway that will daylight more than 200 feet of the Brook, improve the rainbow smelt habitat, and create several new "pocket parks" in the Quincy Center area, according to Mayor Koch's office.

"This permit is a result of a tremendous team effort – our team worked extremely hard, the design and legal teams from Street-Works worked extremely hard, and it is clear from the decision that our colleagues at the

80 Community Leaders To Ring Bell For Salvation Army

Outside City Hall And Granite Trust Building Today, Dec. 14

More than 80 community leaders – including elected officials, businessmen and women, and directors of social service organizations and educational institutions – will come together as volunteers to ring the bell for the Salvation Army in Quincy Center this month.

Two separate kettles will be manned: one outside City Hall at 1305 Hancock St. and the other outside the Granite Trust Building at 1400 Hancock St.

The bell ringing begins today (Thursday) at both locations beginning at 10 m.

The leaders will also man the kettle next Wednesday, Dec. 14, again beginning at 10 a.m.

Because of the high demand for holiday assistance this season, members of the Quincy Salvation Army Advisory Board decided to set up a second kettle at another downtown Quincy location in an effort to boost the kettle campaign.

Locally, the kettle campaign is behind by some $16,400 compared to this time last year, said Captain Heather Odom of the Quincy Salvation Army Corps. Money collected by the kettles helps fund Christmas assistance initiatives including toys and clothing for children and food vouchers for families.

The kettle campaign is the Salvation Army's main fundraiser. The money is also used year-round to help those who need assistance with food, utilities, heat and other necessities. Last year, the Quincy Salvation Army helped more than 3,000 individuals and families in need.

"There is still a very high demand for fuel," said Director of Development and Marketing Susan Harrington, "We are getting the word out there to eligible residents that there is still time to come in and apply for assistance."

Harrington attributed the increase to the unemployment rate and the economy. She also said they have seen an increase in elderly assis-QCAP runs a number of different programs in Quincy, one of which Harrington speaks very highly of.

"The Head Start Program is just a tremendous thing," said Harrington. "It teaches kids from 2.9 years of age to five, and shows them good nutrition, along with physical activity programs and amazing educational activities."

QCAP also offers a few programs specific to the holiday season such as a giving tree, a secret Santa, and adopt a child program.

The giving tree allows those who want to help a child in need, to take an ornament from one of a few trees placed around the city. The ornament has information of an approved child and what their wish list is.

A similar project at the emergency food center is done with businesses throughout Quincy, but Harrington said that it isn't limited to just businesses.

"We had one individual adopt 50 kids and their wish lists," said Harrington. "This particular women does it from year to year, it's incredible."

QCAP is in need of food and toy donations, but Harrington said the most useful gift someone could give is money, because QCAP can purchase food and supplies at a reduced cost.

QCAP has three locations in Quincy; 1509 Hancock St.., (617) 479-8181; 1 Copeland St. (617) 471-0796 and 9 Bicknell St., (617) 773-1222.

After helping 276 families during last year's holiday season, the QCC is gearing up for helping more than 300 this year.

Throughout the year, the QCC's main focus is to help those who aren't able to go out and pick up their own food, but through the months of November and December they help about three times as many people

The QCC will provide food along with gifts to children 16 and under along with their families.

According to Wooster, each year they have a difficult time finding presents for children in their teens from ages 12-16. He said they talk to the parents in hopes of finding something the child will like.

Utilities Removing Double Poles

By SCOTT JACKSON

Utility companies are making progress on the removal of double poles within the city.

During Monday's City Council meeting, Verizon's Rick Colon told councillors that 65 double poles have been taken since the beginning of October. He provided the location and date of removal for each pole, but declined to say how long the poles had been in place before removal.

"I don't think it's going to provide the answer that you're looking for in terms of where the delay occurred," Colon told the council.

Double poles are left behind when a utility company has to replace an old pole with a new one. The old pole must be removed within 90 days under state law, but this often happen as different utility companies and the city must move their respective wires from one pole to the other. In a prior he'd know which company meeting, Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci proposed fining companies that don't remove the pole.

Colon had previously addressed the council last month. At Monday's meeting National Grid - who coowns the poles in Quincy with Verizon, though Verizon has responsibility to replace and remove poles sent two representatives to talk to the council.

National Grid is the first company responsible for removing wires, they said. Since November they went from 160 poles needing transfers to 64. But they were unable to answer Palmucci's query as to how long the "ball was in their court" before being transferred.

"I've never looked at that data," said spokesman Joe Cardinal.

Palmucci asked that the company provide that information in the future so is responsible for the poles staying longer than the 90day limit. "Someone's the problem, someone's the black hole that these things fall into," he said.

Peter Moran, chair of Quincy's board of assessors, was also asked to come before the council. The council had previously requested the assessors tell the council the exact number of poles within the city.

In a letter to the council, Moran said he was unable to say how many were in the city. According to him, the city and the state department of revenue both receive a self-assessed value from the utilities.

Palmucci was surprised to learn that the utilities are responsible for self-reporting their valuations but Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said it was standard for businesses to do so.

"Business property is usually a self-reported item, so this isn't really a tremendous revelation to me" McNamee said. "Businesses usually fill-out questionnaires that tell you what business property they have."

Another part of the ordinance proposed by Palmucci calls for the use of less permanent paints when utilities and Dig Safe mark-up city streets and sidewalks. National Grid's representatives suggested the council Dig Safe to appear before them, which the council agreed to. They also said the less permanent paints suggested might not work.

We need to ensure those Dig Safe marks are there for 30 days," said company spokesman Peter Nagle. He added that the colors used by Dig Safe indicate which utility line is where, but the colors bleed with watersoluble paint and this could cause safety issues.

No action was taken on the proposed ordinances and they will expire when the current council's session ends at the year's end - Palmucci will likely propose a similar package in 2012.

Moments in time THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Dec. 18, 1620, the Mayflower docks at what to-day is Plymouth, Mass., and its passengers disembarked to begin their new settlement, Plymouth Colony. The winter of 1620-1621 was brutal, and by spring, only 52 of the original 102 Mayflower passengers were still alive.
- On Dec. 16, 1773, in Boston Harbor, a group of Massachusetts colonists disguised as Mohawk Indians board three British tea ships and dump 342 chests of tea into the harbor in protest of the British Parliament's Tea Act of 1773. The value of the tea was more than $700,000 in today's currency.
- On Dec. 14, 1909, workers place the last of the 3.2 million 10-pound bricks that pave the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in Indiana. Since then, all but a 1-yard-wide strip at the start-finish line has been buried under asphalt. Kissing those bricks after a successful race remains a tradition among Indy drivers.
- On Dec. 13, 1916, a powerful avalanche kills hundreds of Austrian soldiers in barracks near Italy's Mount Marmolada. Over a period of several weeks, avalanches killed an estimated 10,000 Austrian and Italian soldiers.

- On Dec. 17, 1961, a fire at a filled-to-capacity circus in Brazil kills more than 300 people and severely burns 500 more. The cause of the fire was never conclusively determined, but it may have been the result of sparks from a train passing nearby.
- On Dec. 15, 1973, Jean Paul Getty III, the grandson of American billionaire J. Paul Getty, is found alive near Naples, five months after his kidnapping by an Italian gang. Getty had initially refused to pay his 16-year-old grandson's $17 million ransom, but finally agreed after the boy's severed right ear was sent to a newspaper in Rome.
- On Dec. 12, 1980, American oil tycoon Armand Hammer pays $5,126,000 at auction for a notebook containing writings by the legendary artist Leonardo da Vinci. The manuscript, written around 1508, contained 72 loose pages featuring some 300 notes and detailed drawings, all relating to the common theme of water and how it moved.

Civil War Quilts Presentation At Crane Library Tonight

Hear stories from behind Civil War battle lines as told through the period's quilts at a free illustrated lecture by textile historian Lynne Zacek Bassett tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Issues of patriotism and the challenges in outfitting soldiers will be explored, as well as the herculean efforts of women on the homefront to keep their fighting men clothed, warm, and assured that their presence was missed and their sacrifice honored. Quilts from both the North and the South will be presented.

Lynne Zacek Bassett is an independent, award-winning scholar specializing in New England's historic costumes and textiles.

This program is presented as part of Civil War 150, a special program series about this critical chapter in our country's history. The series has been made possible through a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the American Library Association.

The community leader kettle was established by the late Henry Bosworth, long-time publisher of The Quincy Sun who served many years on the Quincy Salvation Army Advisory Board. Mr. Bosworth brought many local leaders together to ring the bell for the Salvation Army outside Quincy City Hall to help raise money for the Army's holiday and year-round assistance programs.

The spirit of the community kettle has continued since Mr. Bosworth's passing in 2009. This year, members of the Salvation Army Advisory Board decided to expand the kettle with a second downtown location.

"I know my father would be very happy knowing this Quincy holiday tradition has continued because the dollars it raises benefits local families who need it most," said Mr. Bosworth's son, Robert, who is now the publisher of The Quincy Sun and succeeded his father on the Salvation Army Advisory Board.

"I am most grateful to Advisory Board members Don Uvanitte and Maralin Manning for coordinating the second kettle this year at 1400 Hancock St. I also want to extend my thanks to everyone who has volunteered to ring the bell this year.

"Let's hope this year is the best yet in terms of fundraising for the downtown kettles because the Salvation Army – and many local families – are counting on our efforts to help serve the less fortunate in our community," Bosworth added.

Blankets For Babies Party Sunday At In Sync Center

The In Sync Center of the Arts, 550 Adams St., Quincy, will host a "Blankets for Babies" blanket making party Sunday, Dec. 11 from 6 to 8 p.m,

In Sync is partnering with Project Linus to make new blankets for children who need them.

Families are invited to the blanket making party.

Participants are asked to bring 1 1/2 yards of fleece to the party. Blankets will be delivered to boys and girls from babies to teens.

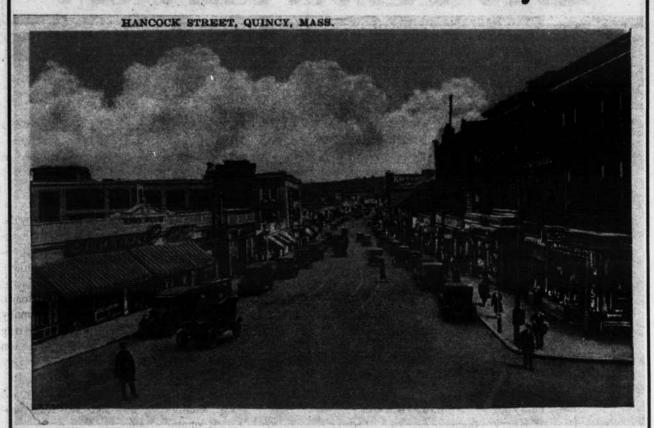

Fleece can be purchase at Jo-Ann Fabrics or Sophisticated Fabrics; cost is generally between $5 and $10 per yard.

At the party, organizers will help participants fringe the edges and tie the knots. Younger children can make cards and wrap the blankets in tissue for delivery.

A representative from Project Linus will be present to talk to the kids and answer any questions about the program.

Those who cannot attend the party Sunday may make a blanket at home and drop it off at In Sync any time before Sunday. For more information, call 617-328-

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN early 1020's postcard view of Hancock Street in Quincy Square looking south from Granite Street, which is on the right. The Greenleaf Building is on the corner where at street level for many years was the Thom McAn shoe store and is now home to Stephen Leigh Jewelers. One of the more than 20 A&P grocery stores in Quincy at the time was on the left in the Howard Building that is now enclosed in a bronze colored façade. With the advent of the automobile the city had widened this roadway a few years before this picture was taken. But even before traffic signals were installed here, the police officer on the lower left doesn't appear to be very busy. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Gerald A. Coletta, Jr: A Great Citizen

I think it should be noted that recently a great citizen of Quincy, Gerard A. Coletta, Jr., passed away.

During World War II, Gerald A. Coletta, Jr. was a student at North Quincy High School and at 16 years old he left school and enlisted in the Marines and got in the Marines by fibbing about his age because he had a great desire to serve his country. He later received his high school diploma, college degree and masters

In the early 1960s, while

I was serving on the Quincy City Council, I nominated Gerald A. Coletta, Jr. to be on the Park and Recreation Board and he was appointed. He was totally dedicated to improving the parks of the City of Quincy and he served on this board for an amazing 32 years.

When I was elected District Attorney of Norfolk County, I appointed Gerry to be executive administrator and he ran my office in a very organized and efficient way. He always amazed me that I could give him 50 things to do and a couple of hours having gotten all done he would be looking for more work.

Gerry was also a great competitor and loved playing golf which we did for many years and he always kept score and somehow he always beat me by one stroke.

Gerry was married to Margaret O'Brien and had five children and love his family dearly. In my opinion he was one of the finest men I ever met.

For the last 20 years at North Quincy High School, Gerry and I would present a $1,000 scholarship to the University of Massachusetts in his name for a student to attend the University of Massachusetts. I will continue to present this scholarship in his name and I will remember him each year when I present it.

Gerald A. Coletta, Jr. served his country, county and his city with great distinction. He was a wonderful friend and I will miss

Tobin: Tax Hike 'Shoved Down Our Throat'

By FRANK McCAULEY

The Quincy Tax Rate for fiscal 1980 had been set at $221.20, an increase of $24.60, and Chief Assessor John P. Comer said it would have been higher but for the intercession of Governor Edward J. King. Comer, flanked by City Auditor Charles I. Shea and Assessors Patricia Ceriani and John A. Belcastro, announced the rate in a hastily called press conference in his office at City Hall at 8

This Week 1979 32 Years Ago

"I am not happy with it," said Comer.

"But there is nothing we can do about it," added Shea.

Comer said he, and not Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, was announcing the rate because the responsibility for the tax rate lies with the Assessors and under the new tax cap legislation I want to make sure we follow the mandate to the letter.

"The Mayor was not happy with the tax rate," said Comer, "but he felt it was the best offer we could get from the state."

Mayor Tobin said the city was holding out for a $20 increase based on its anticipated revenue figures.

CLOSE VOTE SEEN ON TEACHERS' CONTRACT

Ouincy's teachers were scheduled to meet Wed., Dec. 12 to vote thumbs up or thumbs down on a tentative agreement reached with the School Committee.

Quincy Education Association's Robert Garner said he expected the city's 1,000 teachers to ratify the agreement by the required two-thirds margin but not much more than that.

"I think it's going to pass but I think it's going to be close," Garner said.

Cost of the contract was estimated at over $1.1 million for fiscal 1979-1980.

Laforest Sisters Find Their Niches At Fontbonne Academy Sisters Kelsey and Krista

Laforest of Quincy are both at Fontbonne Academy and making the most of every opportunity at the school.

Kelsey, a junior, is on three teams: in the fall she plays forward on the Varsity Soccer Team; in the winter she runs the mile and the 1.000 meter on the Indoor Track Team; and in the spring she also runs the mile on the Track Team. She is the captain of the Track

Kelsey is also a peer minister, an Admissions ambassador, and a member of the Fountain Friends Club (a club that offers friendship and engages in activities with local students with special needs). She has been in Catholic school since kindergarten, when she started out at Sacred Heart in Quincy (now Quincy Catholic Academy).

One of Kelsey's favorite subjects is Spanish; as a ninth-grader, Kelsey received the Excellence in Spanish 2 award, and continues to excel that area, taking Spanish Honors, which is only one of her honors

In her spare time, Kelsey coaches young children in the under six age group on the soccer field. She loves working with young children and dreams of one day becoming an elementary school teacher.

"When I arrived at Fontbonne I was very quiet and shy, but the close community allowed me to grow and mature. I am not at all like that now. I have made such good friends here. Fontbonne is a great place where everyone gets along-I know everyone in my grade and talk to everyone," she beamed.

Val's Favorite Braciole

On a recent visit to California, my son Dom saw his old friend Val who owns a large vineyard where he makes wine and apparently is a great cook.

Val sent me his recipe for his braciole, which is almost a lost art these days. It is stuffed steak usually made with a tomato sauce and served with pasta. Val prefers a delicate sauce instead of a conventional one.

They can be made with a top, bottom of the round, or a flat iron steak, which Val used in today's recipe. Also a variety of stuffing's can be used including pine nuts, raisins, chopped salami or hard-boiled eggs. Val said his stuffing's more subtle, but delicious.

BRACIOLE STUFFING

1 piece flat iron steak (about 1 inch thick, 4 or 5 inches wide and 11 inches long

3 cups coarsely ground breadcrumbs 1-1/2 cups ground walnuts

1 small onion also grated

1-1/2 cups grated Parmesan cheese

1 cup chopped parsley

3 eggs

Salt and pepper to taste

Cut the steak into two slices and pound until 1/8 inch thick making sure there are no holes. Place all of the above in a bowl and mix well. Spread the stuffing over the steak, roll and tie well with butcher string.

Sauté in oil until browned and set-aside.

PASSAZA SAUCE

10 Roma or large tomatoes (chopped coarsely)

5 tablespoons butter

Salt and pepper to taste

In the hot butter. Add the tomatoes and salt and pepper, and cook for 15 minutes. Add the braciole and cook until cooked through. Cut the braciole in slices and serve with favorite

DPW Yard Closed Saturdays Dec. 17 Until Mid-April

The Department of Public Works announce the rear yard will be closed on Saturdays beginning Dece. 17 until mid-April.

The last day the yard will be open on Saturday is Dec. 10.

The yard is open Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. all year-round to accept yardwaste, recycling, metal, electronics, textiles, books, and mercury containing items such as florescent light bulbs, thermostats and thermometers.

The DPW yard cannot take trash or construction material. Bring construction debris to the Braintree Transfer station, 257 Ivory St., Braintree. There is a 10 cents per pound disposal rate for Quincy residents. Call 781-843-6209 for more information.

The DPW also announces that Winter Parking Rules are in effect through next April 15.

The winter parking rules stipulate:

NO PARKING allowed on either side of Emergency Arteries during a snow emergency. Emergency Arteries are identified by signs.

Residents on side streets (not Emergency Arteries) are allowed to park on the ODD SIDE of the street this winter season.

Overnight parking is prohibited without a resident parking permit. Permits are available at the Quincy Police Department 617-745-5852

Vehicles in violation of winter parking rules will be towed at owner's expense. Also, if your vehicle is hampering snow plowing operations (i.e. parked too close to an intersection, etc.) it will be towed.

The average tow fee is $125, plus cost of storage.

No exceptions can be made for short-term (10-15 minute) parking.

To find out if a snow emergency has been declared call 617-770-7669 for a recording or log onto www.quincyma.gov.

For other snow concerns

call the SNOW HOTLINE 617-376-1927.

Community Meeting Tonight On Proposed Self-Storage Facility At 41 Liberty St.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci will host a community meeting tonight (Thursday) to discuss a proposal by SSG Development to build a self-storage facility at 41 Liberty St.

SSG Development is seeking to build a self storage facility to replace the current warehouse that previously housed PV Sullivan Plumbing Supply. Representatives will be on hand to discuss the proposal in further detail with interested neighbors.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. tonight (Thursday) at City Hall, City Council Chamber. All neighbors are invited and encouraged to attend and participate.

"One of my most important roles as Ward 4's councillor is to keep my constituents informed of proposed developments that may affect them and give them an opportunity express their opinions and have input into a project," Palmucci said.

Residents with questions about this or any other matter can contact Palmucci on his cell phone, (617) 834-3945 or by email at bpalmucci@quincyma.gov.

Bregoli New To School Committee But Not City Schools

Retired Educator And Current Soccer Coach Ready To Roll Out Ideas For School System

By EMILY TAFT

Winning one of two open seats in this fall's school committee race was the result of hard work, dedication, and a lot of footwork for Paul Bregoli. The retired educator is now ready to get the ball rolling on some ideas he has for the school system.

"You don't put the uniform on to lose. When I got into this I didn't intend to lose," said Bregoli. "I knew I had done the work, and I had given my best effort. If you work your hardest and you try your best and you lose then you have nothing to be ashamed about.

"If don't put the work in and you don't win, and you're not successful, then you only have yourself to blame."

Bregoli knocked on over 5,000 doors during the campaign and in the end it paid off. He finished in second place in the five-candidate field polling 8,800 votes to win one of the two open seats. Only incumbent David McCarthy – who was elected to a third term – received more votes in the school committee race.

Bregoli, age 63, retired from being a Quincy public school teacher and guidance counselor five years ago, but continues to be the North Quincy girl's varsity soccer coach. He said he will remain a coach while serving on the school committee.

Bregoli has been a part of the Quincy school system since he graduated from college in 1970.

"I have been invested in the school system my entire life," said Bregoli. "Starting as a student, I met a lot of great people who influenced me, teachers and guidance councilors, they encouraged me and inspired me. Being a part of the school has been my life-long duty."

He attended North Quincy High School, graduated in 1966 and then headed off to UMASS Amherst to receive a Bachelor in Education. After teaching for 10 years he went back to school for his Masters in Counseling at Bridgewater State College.

Bregoli will be one of two new school committee members sworn in Jan. 3 at the city's inauguration ceremony. The other new member is Kathy Hubley.

Bregoli said he has some ideas of areas that need improvement.

For example, Bregoli said that the agenda of the committee has slipped a way and he hopes to bring it back to the main reason they are all there: the kids.

"This is a different venue to serve the community and the kids in the school system," said Bregoli. "That's what is first and foremost. It's about the children in the school system because they cannot advocate for themselves. What adult decisions are made directly impact them (the students)."

One issue Bregoli plans to address is grading standards and to make the standards of passing higher.

"There is a perception out there, whether it is real or perceived, that the school system doesn't prepare kids, but we enable them to slide by," said Bregoli. "Our standards are not high enough, we don't hold the kids to the fire. I would start with taking a look at our grading system and getting the passing grade higher than a 63."

Bregoli went on to mention that the problem appears more prevalent in the middle schools but he wants to focus on the high schools

as well

Another issue Bregoli hopes to address is the perceived lack of communication between the schools and the parents. He said parents who have spoken to him don't like the layout of the progress reports being sent out because there is not enough information given on the children in danger of failing.

"Parents hate to be surprised with failure," Bregoli said. "So that's definitely something we need to work on and address."

Bregoli also wants to address the out-of-town students in the school system who are falsifying documents to show that their address is in Quincy when they are actually living in surrounding towns and cities.

"This issue has to be addressed," said Bregoli. "We need to come up with a system where we require proof of residency more than just the first year."

Bregoli said there are other towns such as Brain-tree that ask for a proof of residency each year and also when a child participates in athletics. According to Bregoli, when he went door to door talking to residents many had no idea this was such a big issue in the school system.

"It's like the big elephant in the room," said Bregoli. "People appreciate honesty, they want you to be forth coming."

Being a soccer coach, one concern Bregoli has is health education and the lack of athletic trainers at both high schools.

"We need to take a look at the health education if we are serious about it," said Bregoli. "When the kids need it the most we've kind of hit the roof."

Bregoli's idea is to have two positions in one. A health educator would teach during the day and after school become the athletic trainer. He said that he believes the trainers will be addressed next year through the athletic department.

Bregoli said that an athletic trainer will not only be there to help with an injury but to evaluate when it comes to whether a kid, who has had a concussion, can or cannot play in games.

All the issues Bregoli wants to address were incorporated into his campaign, but one subject he didn't touch upon was that he believes the two high schools at some point in the future should be combined into one. He believes it would result in nothing but great things to come for the city of Quincy, its schools, and its kids.

Bregoli said he hopes to address every issue when he takes his seat in January.

Water Meter Replacement and Automated Meter Reading System Project

Information for Residents

The Quincy Department of Public Works is updating 24,000 water meters throughout the city. The project includes the replacement of both the water meters and external reading system. The completed project will greatly improve the reliability and accuracy of water meter reading operations and will increase the efficiency of the DPW. The city has contracted with Easton Winwater Services, who will be performing the installations. Easton WinWater Services will need access to each water customer's house or business for this work. Please be aware that Easton WinWater Services will contact customers directly via U.S. mail. Residents of Quincy are reminded not to respond to unsolicited phone calls or home visits. All personnel installing water meters are issued identification and will arrive in uniform and in marked vehicles. A link to names and pictures of each installer can be found on the DPW website. If you believe you have been contacted by someone other than Easton Winwater or the city, please call the Quincy Police Department at 617-479-1212.

The meter replacement work will begin in September in the North Quincy/Squantum area, and will progress throughout the city by water meter reading route over the course of a two-year period. There is a systematic implementation plan for this project and therefore customers are asked to not contact Easton Winwater Service or Public Works for their meter replacement until they have received a notification letter from Easton Winwater. For a current update on this program please visit the DPW website at http://www.quincyma.gov/Government/PWD/WaterMeterRepacement.cfm

Kathryn Hubley: 'My Focus Is Helping The Schools'

Reading, Bullying Programs
Among Priorities For New School Committeewoman

By EMILY TAFT

After knocking on over 1,000 doors, and attending every event possible, Kathryn Hubley won the third seat in this fall's school committee race with 7,121 votes Nov. 8.

"It's a very humbling experience," said Hubley. "It's hard to put into words how I feel."

Hubley, a former prekindergarten teacher of nine years, became a homemaker when her daughter, Victoria, and son, Nathaniel, were born. She then got involved in the school system as a PTO member. From 2009-2011 she was the president of the Quincy Citywide Parents' Council among other things.

"I've been volunteering for the past nine years in the Quincy Public Schools," said Hubley. "I see the importance of getting the books in the classrooms. I want to help, and to continue to help because that's what I have been doing. My focus is helping the schools."

Hubley volunteered while bringing up her two children, with husband Walter, to show her children that school is an important part of their lives.

"When you show your kids that you're involved in the schools and that school is important then it shows them that it's important," said Hubley. "I've shown my kids that I think it's important to volunteer in the schools and so now they have a better base."

cus when she is seated Jan. 3rd will be the bullying and reading programs along with technology being taught in the classrooms.

As a mother of two, Hubley's main concern is the school programs.

"I think all programs that kids are learning are important," said Hubley. "The one at the top of my list is reading."

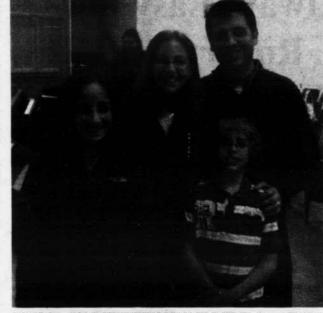

The reading program in the Quincy middle schools was cut from last year's budget because it is believed that the kids are getting their reading in different programs at school, but Hubley said those cuts should be restored to focus on reading again.

"Children have to be strong readers by third grade," said Hubley. "What they are doing in some other school districts is incorporating reading in with other programs. They are adding literacy in with other programs such as gym and art."

In those schools, Hubley said, students bring in articles about athletics during their gym classes, or write a paper about a famous artist in art class.

She said she wants to bring back a more comprehensive, and fundamental reading program so the children won't suffer in the long run.

"The early literacy program was cut, and then brought back, not fully, when they received additional funding," said Hubley. "Because it wasn't there for a while it did a lot of disservice to those children who didn't get those resources, which in my opinion has set them back."

Hubley believes that the MCAS score reflect the lack of reading programs in the middle schools. She also believes the dip in the 8th grade math scores is related to the missing reading programs, which Hubley hopes to bring back.

The Quincy public schools have a mandated bullying policy in place, but these programs go unfunded. Most of the money can be unpredictable and usually comes from the PTOs (Parent Teacher Organization) of each school. Hubley hopes to take those programs and incorporate them into the school budget.

"I know it's going to be hard with the budget to get that (bullying program) added in, but I think with meeting with the committee and talking together to try and see what we can get in there will help," said Hubley. "You have to look at the budget as a whole and be able to prioritize differently."

Hubley said she knows because of the type of bullying program she wants to incorporate into the schools requires money from the budget, that the task might take some time, but she hopes to at least get the ball rolling.

A way to be able to incorporate this program, along with other needed programs, according to Hubley, is to take a little money from programs that have extra funding and put it towards those that should be brought back.

Some of that money could also go towards another program that has disappeared from schools, a computer class. Hubley hopes to add a class to teach students on how to use the computer programs, such as how to type up reports, and how to type correctly among other skills.

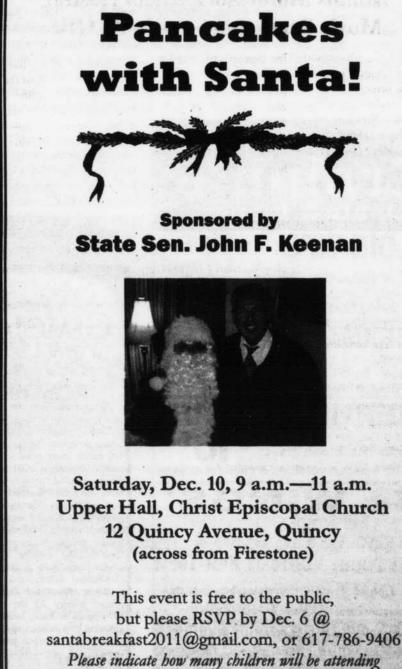

"There is a gap in the middle schools because the technology isn't there. We want them to use a computer as a resource instead of to play games," said Hubley. "I would like to work with the committee and see if we can come up with something reasonable to do to incorporate technology learning in the middle schools."

Come have

In time she will be able to tackle some of the ideas she has for the Quincy Public School system, but for now she is just thankful for the support she has received not only from her two children and her husband but from those who voted her in to the new role she will begin in January.

MIT Professor Imparts Motivational Message To QHS Students

Biology Wasn't Always Easy For Nobel Laureate H. Robert Horvitz

By SCOTT JACKSON

Biology wasn't always easy for Nobel Laureate H. Robert Horvitz.

During a lecture last Thursday at Quincy High, Horvitz told students he felt lost in his first year studying the science at Harvard.

But persevered he through it.

"I was a senior in college that one of my roommates said to me 'you know biology is actually pretty interesting, why don't you take a course?' so I signed up for the introductory biology course," Horvitz said.

"Partway through the first semester I decided I was out of my element, over my head but I would continue for a year and see how I felt at the end. By the time that the year was over, things had become more familiar and my interests had blossomed," Horvitz said.

Horvitz, an MIT professor, went on to share the 2002's prize for Physiology or Medicine with Sydney Brenner and John Sulston for their research into apoptosis, also known as programmed cell death. It's a naturally occurring process in the development of organisms, but problems arise if there is too little or too much cell death. If too many cells are killed off, it can lead to neurodegenerative diseases, including ALS - which killed Horvitz's father - and Alzheimer's, acute liver injury, aplastic anemia, and AIDS. Too little cell death can cause cancer or autoimmune diseases.

Though their research focused on apoptosis in the tiny Caenorhabditis elegans worm, there are similarities between its gene and human ones. "All of these genes have human counterparts," Horvitz said during the presentation, "and they work in a pathway that is equivalent to the pathway that we first defined by studying this microscopic worm."

Those findings are helping drug manufacturers develop drugs that fight some of the diseases triggered by too little or too much cell death, specifically liver diseases and cancer. He's also researching ALS, or Lou Gehrig's disease, because his father died from it and said he's been collaborating with a physician who once treated his father.

After the lecture and before giving the professor a Quincy High sweatshirt and ornament, Quincy High Principal Frank Santoro thanked Horvitz in a message to the students.

"You're sitting in the Adams lecture hall," the principal said. "John Quincy Adams had that philosophy of 'as a payment of what the proceeding generation gave to them you must give to the next generation' and that's what [Professor Horvitz] is doing."

Horvitz then sat and talked with students for over an hour in the Presidents Café. He talked about the process of the winning the Nobel and expressed disappointment he couldn't attend some events when he accepted the prize in Oslo.

Ed Smith, the head of Quincy High's science department was thankful for Horvitz's visit.

"I though it was a fantastic day," Smith said. "Anytime we can bring professionals to talk to the students it's a good thing. Professor Horvitz, the impression he left with the students, he's a real person, someone who these kids could become one

The students also praised Horvitz for his speaking style. Senior Isabelle Schulte was one of four students who met Horvitz at a luncheon before the lecture. After his talk she praised the professor. "He really explained it in a way we'd understand," she said.

She also appreciated the words of wisdom he gave students. "He was really sweet, he gave us advice that was really nice," said Schulte, who plans on studying science in college.

at Quincy High School during a recent visit to the school.

Junior Alex Nguyen was also afforded the opportunity to meet and greet Horvitz beforehand - he too came away thrilled. "It's not everyday you get to interact with a Nobel Prize winner," he said.

Horvitz was also lauded for the substance of his lecture, not just its style. "The best part to me," said senior Tommy To, "was when he talked about how his research can be related to medicine to fight diseases."

The lecture is part of a series called Nobel Laureates School Visits. Its founder and director is Quincy resident Edward Shapiro. The goal of the program is to bring Nobel recipients to high schools in the Boston area. Horvitz's lecture was the programs nineteenth since it started in 2009.

This was the first time Horvitz spoke as part of the series. After the lecture Shapiro called it "Superb" and went on to say, "I enjoyed it, it was enlightening really. I can especially appreciate basic facts of life since I studied physics."

Principal Santoro hopes other laureates are soon able to visit the school.

"I consider ourselves very lucky to have such a worthwhile program come into Quincy High School," Santoro said afterwards in the café. "I want the partnership to continue for other scientists and engineers."

The Toys for Tots program helps organizations distribute toys to those children in need. The greater Boston location has helped over 300 agencies this year. The cut off for accepting any more agencies is Friday Dec. 9.

Last year, they distributed over 130,000 toys to children from the Quincy, Boston, and Plymouth areas.

In its inception in 1947, the non-profit program accepted donations of used toys to give every child during the holiday season something to smile about.

In the 1960's, donors were asked to only donate new toys that were unwrapped and non-violent.

There are a number of toy drop centers around the city of Quincy; most fire stations have them along with Stop & Shop. To find out other locations you can visit the Toys for Tots website http:// www.toysfortots.org/.

The program supplies toys for children ages 0-10. According to Cpl. Vin Dolan of the Boston public relations department, they are in desperate need of toys for children ages 0-4.

Along with asking for new toy donations, Toys for Tots is asking for monetary donations, which allows them to purchase toys at a discounted price.

Interfaith Social Services 105 Adams St. (617) 773-6203

"It's about the kids," said Executive Director Rick Doane. "We want to really focus on them and how we can help them."

The Interfaith Social Services helped over 500 children last year and are planning to help 200 more by the end of this year. The organization works with others around the city to help as many kids as possible.

The pantry distributes over 400,000 pounds of food each year.

Doane said he is asking those who can to donate new toys and is urging people to help with the children ages 11-14 by donating gift

Recently, 100 gift cards were donated, from the State Street Retirees.

Doane said they need everything from toys to food but would like people to consider adopting a family for the holidays because the need is much greater this

"The need that we are experiencing is more than we have seen in 60 years," said Doane. "We help about 17,000 people a year from Quincy down to Cohasset."

Interfaith Social Services takes in a minimum of 35 families a day and a maximum of 75.

They also offer a thrift shop that people can donate towards, and also to shop in for an affordable price. They are accepting donations of new and used items of small house hold items, and clothes.

For more information or to volunteer visit 105 Adams Street, Quincy, or call 617-773-6203. Doane also urges those willing to help dren from ages 0-12 and to log onto their website at http://interfaithsocialservices.com/network/.

Salvation Army 6 Baxter St. (617) 472-2345

The Salvation Army is facing some challenges this year because of the warm weather.

"When the weather is warmer it's harder to get donation's for our kettles," said Captain Heather Odom of the Quincy Salvation Army. "We are behind in our goal, and that's because it is warmer than it was last year. People tend to give more when it's colder."

Odom said they have also faced the challenge of not being able to set up kettles where they have in the past and starting a week late at some Kettle and Bell loca-

Even with these obstacles, Odom said they would continue to help the people in need during this holiday season. The Salvation Army will continue to do its Angel tree, which will help around 300 children this year, up from 250 last year. Odom said that the 300 children they have signed up would continue to grow until they no longer have the toys to provide.

"As long as we have toys to give we will give them," Odom said.

Odom said that they were unable to put the tree up where they did last year but they still offer the tags with the wish lists on them at their headquarters on 6 Baxter St.

The angel tree helps chil-

Odom said like many other places around Quincy that ages 10-12 are they hardest wishes to fill because everyone wants to help the younger kids first.

The Salvation Army also provides food vouchers to families during the holiday season. As of last weekend, over 400 food vouchers were handed out so far, which is up from 350 last year. The food voucher amount is determined by the size of the family.

Odom said they are still in need of toys, hats, gloves, scarves, and food, along with monetary donations.

Those looking to donate or volunteer can visit the Salvation Army website or the Quincy Headquarters at 6 Baxter St. from 9 a.m to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday or call for more information (617) 472-2345.

Father Bill's Place and MainSpring 38 Broad St. (617) 376-2255

The Father Bill's Place and MainSpring shelter provides assistance to around 125 adults each night during the holiday season. They also serve around 80 families through out the South Shore. According to President and CEO John Yazwinski they have been seeing numbers they wouldn't normally see during the winter months all year round because of the recession.

The shelter only has 95 beds available each night but Yazwinski said they wouldn't turn anyone away.

During the holidays, the shelter likes to provide each person staying over night on Christmas a gift, of socks, hats, and gloves. Yazwinski said they are in desperate need of donations of new socks, hats and gloves.

"These are our brothers and sisters spending the holiday in a shelter," said Yazwinski. "It helps pick up their spirit and shows them as a community we care."

The shelter has received a lot of support and help from the Quincy community according to Yazwinski, and he is hoping that residents will continue to give and hold drives to raise money and donations.

"We are so blessed by the Quincy community," said Yazwinski. "The support of the community is what keeps us going."

Yazwinski said that they hold drives throughout the year, and receive some state help as well but they are always in need of food because they serve three meals a day.

The shelter is seeing more young adults veterans, and soldiers returning from war, according to Yazwinski.

A wish list of what the shelter needs can be found on their website http://www. fatherbillsmainspring.org/. Those wishing to donate or volunteer can visit their development office at 38 Broad Street or call (617) 376-2255.

DOVE's (Domestic Violence Ended) main focus this holiday season is their adopt a family program.

"Last year we didn't have enough donors to fill the wish list, but we received some dollar donations that allowed us to fill every family on the list," said Executive Director for DOVE Sue Chandler. "This year we are asking those willing to donate, to consider adopting a future family, because we take in the same amount of families all year round."

Chandler said that during the holiday season they receive a lot of donations but they are in need of items all year.

DOVE is looking for donations of clothing, food, gift cards, twin sheets blankets, comforters, towels, and passes to take the subway.

DOVE works with other organizations around the city to help with basic needs for families to become sta-

DOVE helped a little less than 4,000 families and individuals. That number went up 25 percent from the year before, and Chandler said she wouldn't be surprised if it went up even more this year.

Chandler said that they even have a wish list for the shelter this year. Items such as TV's, DVD players, and a microwave would help the shelter provide better care for those who use it.

"One thing on our wish list for the shelter is to fix the playground structure," said Chandler. "We have had a really nice response from the community and from donors."

Germantown Neighborhood Center 366 Palmer St. (617) 376-1384

"The center is expecting that the requests for assistance during the 2011 season will easily surpass last year's numbers," said Kathy Quigley, director of the Ger-Neighborhood mantown Center. "The center has developed into a decentralized model of family support and outreach, especially during these crucial months when families are experiencing significant stresses in their lives due to poverty."

Quigley said the center served a record-breaking 6,000 people living in Quincy last holiday season.

The Germantown Neighborhood Center works with other agencies, such as health centers, schools, mental health organizations, and faith institutions. Those organizations send over referrals for the Quincy residents in need of assistance, and then Germantown Neighborhood Center provides those families with toys and food for the holiday season.

Quigley said for many families the center is their last hope. The center is called "upon to intervene with pending evictions, situations of abuse, among others events that may put a family in need. Last year, the center established a new program called the Family Emergency Fund that has helped over 200 families to date. The fund is used to help with housing, utilities, transportation needs, medical expenses, and clothing allowances.

The Germantown Neighborhood Center's largest program is the Holiday Gift Giving Program. The program provides the highest volume of holiday assistance to Quincy residents and homeless families, according to Quigley.

The Holiday Gift Giving Program assists families that are in need of food, clothing, household items and toys for the holiday season.

"A key component to this program is providing a week's worth of groceries," said Quigley. "It is crucial because the children are on school vacation for a week and will not receive breakfast and lunch at school."

The center is seeking donations of children's toys, teen gifts, children and teen clothes and winter coats, and blankets. They are seeking funding for utility payments for those in danger of shut offs, housing funds to help prevent homelessness, fuel assistance, gift cards /clothing, medical expenses that aren't covered by insurance and co pays, transportation costs (MBTA cards to get to work or school), emergency car repairs, and gas cards to get to work.

state worked extremely hard to craft a detailed and fair permit," said Mayor Koch. "We are moving steadily forward every day from vision to reality on this historic transformation of Quincy Center, and this is another vital step in that direction."

In its decision, the DEP concluded that the new day-lit Brook culvert realigned on the Southern side of the Walter Hannon Parkway will meet or exceed flood-control guidelines, and it states that "important wild-life habitat functions will be improved" by the project.

The DEP permit includes a series of 47 specific conditions that touch on monitoring rules, construction standards and the ultimate performance of the Brook under the newly aligned cul-

The most significant condition outlined in the permit will require the City to address water-flow issues throughout a larger portion of the Town Brook than what runs through Quincy Center. Flow issues, starting from where the Brook enters Quincy near the Crown Colony Office Park in South Quincy, have been a long-running concern of state and environmental officials.

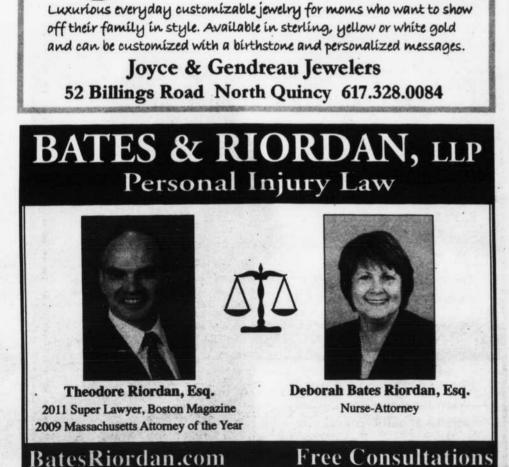

Officials do not believe that the work will add substantially to the overall project cost, but it will need to be performed in conjunction with state and federal agencies because the City does not hold jurisdiction over the Brook's full length.

"This issue has been on table for some time, and there is a sense that now is the time to deal with it. It is all part of striking that balance between what will be the tremendous environmental benefits of this project and what is necessary to move the private development forward," Mayor Koch

As it flows today, the Town Brook culvert, which had already been relocated at least twice historically, meanders through Quincy Center with almost no daylight and is prone to illicit sewer connections and marked by poor water quality. The new alignment will eliminate illicit discharge into the Brook, improve the Brook as a storm water management system, and improve the spawning habitat for smelt.

At several points, the City reviewed the potential of running the Brook directly through the heart of downtown as a way to incorporate a new daylit Brook as part of development plans akin to the Providence river walk. But those designs showed the Brook at points 20 feet below street-level and came with a much more expensive cost and the potential for the project to be handcuffed by property disputes.

In its decision, the DEP agreed that the City's design was the most feasible of any of the alternatives studied.

Resident Warns On Fraudulent Check Scam

By EMILY TAFT

For most people receiving a check for almost $4,000 in the mail would be something out of a fairy tale, but for Quincy resident Harry Anderson it was nothing more than a scam.

"I have had this happen to me before, about two years ago my wife received a letter and check in the mail," said Anderson. "I use to work for a bank so I knew what to look for (when it came to bad checks)."

The check was made out for $3,857.35 from a place supposedly in Rutland, VT, called The Home Service Store, Inc. The check is drawn off of Citizens Bank in Albany, N.Y. and came through the mail from Ontario, Canada with a letter attached.

The letter is titled "Unclaimed Award Winning Notification" and is informing Anderson that he apparently has an unclaimed winning prize amount of $175,000. The letter then asks Mr. Anderson to cash the check and then wire the money to this company via Western Union. The letter also gives contact information for claims analyst and a contact number of 1-647-219-8511.

Mr. Anderson received the check on Nov. 7th and the night of Nov. 8th he received a call from the number 1-647-723-3283 with an automated voice telling him he still hadn't claimed his winnings.

The check, delivered in an unmarked recycled envelope, was drawn off of

Schedule of Early Season Games Provided By Quincy Public School Athletic Department

SUN SPORTS

Vinter Season Gets Underway Friday

The quick turnaround from the end of the high school fall season into the winter season does not leave much time to reflect on the accomplishments of the city's football, soccer, volleyball, golf and track teams. Instead the focus turns to the upcoming seasons for basketball, hockey (both boys and girls), wrestling, co-ed swimming, and indoor track.

You wouldn't know it from the unseasonably warm weather that has blanketed Quincy for the past two weeks, but the winter season is here, and the studentathletes at Quincy and North Quincy are actively preparing to put their best efforts forward between now until early March.

Thanks to the Quincy Public Schools Athletic Office, the schedule of early season games was provided to The Quincy Sun sports department on Monday. The following is a quick review of these games along with dates and times and locations - get out and support your favorite team.

North Quincy Hockey

Head Coach Matt Gibbons begins his third year behind the bench with the Red Raiders. Last season, North Quincy finished the regular season with an 8-4-8 overall record and claimed a share of the Patriot League championship alongside Scituate and Pembroke.

The Raiders lost to Franklin 5-2 in the Div. 2 South quarterfinals.

North Quincy graduated nine seniors, but with a talented returning defensive core and strong goaltending from senior James Dunn, the Raiders have their sights set on returning back to the tournament.

The road begins on Dec. 14 with a home opener against Whitman-Hanson (QYA, 7 p.m.); North Quincy plays consecutive road games at Duxbury (Dec. 17, TBA) and at nonleague Brockton (Dec. 21, TBA) before playing Quincy on Dec. 26 in the semifinals of the Danny Sullivan Memorial Holiday Tournament (QYA, 8:15 p.m.). game Brockton (Dec. 30, 7:50 p.m.) closes out December. The month of January begins with an away game at Hanover (Jan. 4), away at Silver Lake (Jan. 7), home versus Pembroke (Jan. 11, 7:20 p.m.) and home against Scituate (Jan. 14, TBA). North Quincy travels to W-H on Jan. 21 before hosting Duxbury on Jan. 25 (7 p.m.). January ends with a tilt against Quincy on Jan. 28 at 7:50 p.m.

Boys Basketball

North Quincy finished last season at 10-10 and earned a spot in the Div. 1 South Sectionals for the first time since the 2007-2008

The Red Raiders lost to Needham in a preliminary round game.

Head Coach Kevin Barrett returns a strong core highlighted by senior forward Tim Liuzzo and juniors Dan and Pat Gould.

North Quincy opens the season on Dec. 16 at Silver Lake. Following a week off. the Raiders hosts rival Quincy on Dec. 23 at 7 p.m., and over the Christmas break will play in the annual John Adams Tournament with Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth (Weymouth HS Dec.

A nonleague home game versus Bedford on Dec. 30 closes out the month.

North Quincy opens 2012 with back-to-back home games against Fatima (Jan. 4, 4:30 p.m.) and Hingham (Jan. 6, 6:30 p.m.) before traveling to Middleboro on Jan. 10 (6:30 p.m.). The rest of the month includes games at home with Duxbury (Jan. 13, 6:30 p.m.) Bedford (Jan. 16), home versus Hanover (Jan. 20, 6:30 p.m.), at Whitman-Hanson (Jan. 23, 6:30 p.m.), home with Scituate (Jan. 27, 6:30 p.m.) and at Fatima (Jan. 30) and Pembroke (Jan. 31).

Girls Basketball

First-year head coach Jessica Worden takes the reins from Michael Jorgensen this season and her Red Raiders get into action on Dec. 13 with a home opener against nonleague Everett (6:30 p.m.).

North Quincy hosts Silver Lake on Dec. 16 (6:30 p.m.) before hitting the road for an away game at Plymouth North on Dec. 19. A rivalry game against Quincy is set for Dec. 23 at home (5:30 p.m.).

The Red Raiders will play in the Abigail Adams Holiday Tournament along with Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth on Dec. 27-28.

The New Year starts with an away game at Hingham (Jan. 6) and a home game versus Middleboro (Jan. 10, 6:30 p.m.). North travels to Duxbury on Jan. 13 before hosting nonleague Plymouth North on Jan. 17 (6:30 p.m.). January ends with an away game at Hanover (Jan. 20); home against Whitman-Hanson (Jan. 23, 6:30 p.m.); away at Scituate (Jan. 27), and home against Pembroke (Jan. 31, 6:30 p.m.).

Wrestling

North Quincy gets underway on Saturday (Dec. 10) with an away meet at Oliver Ames and the first home meet is set for Dec. 14 against Silver Lake (7 a.m. start). The head coach this winter is Bill Kelly.

The Red Raiders will compete in the Patriot League Invitational at Walpole High School on Dec. 17. Competing with North Quincy will be Canton, Hingham, and Walpole.

On Dec. 21 North Quincy travels to Malden; on Jan. 4 the Red Raiders head to Natick before hosting Watertown on Jan. 7 at 10 a.m. Three road meets at Middleboro (Jan. 11), Plymouth North (Jan. 14), and Hanover (Jan. 18) are followed by home meets against Scituate (Jan. 25, 7 p.m.) and against Quincy on Feb. 1 at 7 p.m.

Quincy Hockey

Head Coach Tim Lewis' team started last season slow but picked up the pace in the latter stages of the schedule. The Presidents missed out on the state playoffs, but progress was made.

Quincy will look to get started on the right track when they open up this Saturday (Dec. 10) with an away game at Whitman-Hanson and on Dec. 14 Quincy plays at Silver Lake. The Presidents follow this season opener with a bevy of home games at the Quincy Youth Arena. This slate begins on Dec. 17 with a game against Hanover (7:50 p.m.) and continues with home games against Oliver Ames (Dec. 21, 7:20 p.m.) and North Quincy (Dec. 26, 8:10 p.m.).

On Jan. 4. Quincy hosts Duxbury at 7:10 p.m. and on Jan. 7 the Presidents play on home ice versus Whitman-Hanson (7:50 p.m.). Back-to-back road game against Brookline (Jan. 9) and Scituate (Jan. 11) precede home games versus Pembroke (Jan. 14, 7:50 p.m.) and Silver Lake (Jan. 18, 7:10 p.m.). The month closes with an away game at Hanover (Jan. 25), at home versus North Quincy (Jan. 28, 7:50 p.m.), and at Oliver Ames on Jan. 30.

Boys Basketball

Quincy snuck into the Div. 2 South Sectional tournament last year on the strength of a 10-10 regular season finish. The Presidents lost to Duxbury in the opening round.

Head Coach David Parry's team tips off the 2011-2012 season with a rematch versus Duxbury at home on Dec. 16 at 6:30 p.m.

The Presidents follow that game with a road game Bridgewater-Raynham on Dec. 20 before traveling down Hancock Street to play at North Quincy on Dec. 23 at 7 p.m.

Over the Christmas break Quincy will join North Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree in the annual John Adams Holiday Tournament (Dec. 27-28) at Weymouth HS.

On Jan. 3, Quincy hosts Bridgewater-Raynham at 6:30 p.m. before hitting the road to play at Scituate on Jan. 6. Back-to-back home games against Whitman-Hanson (Jan. 10, 6:30 p.m.) and Pembroke (Jan. 13, 6:30 p.m.) are followed by road games at Hingham (Jan. 20), Hanover (Jan. 23), and Silver Lake (Jan. 27).

The month of January ends with a home game versus Middleboro on Jan. 31 at 6:30 p.m.

Girls Basketball

The Lady Presidents turned in one of the program's best-ever seasons to date last year.

Head Coach Jeff Bretsch guided his team to a 17-3 regular season record - and established the program as one of the best in Div. 2. However, due to enrollment numbers, Quincy played in the Div. 1 state tournament and lost to Taunton, 62-54, in a first round game.

The good news is that Quincy returns several starters this season. It all begins for the Presidents on Friday night when the team host nonleague Brockton at 6:30 p.m.; following a week off, Quincy travels to Duxbury on Dec. 16 before playing a home game against Wareham on Dec. 19 at 6:30

An away game at North Quincy is set for Dec. 23 at 5:30 p.m. Quincy will play in the Abigail Adams Holiday Tournament along with North Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree on Dec. 27-

A road game at Brockton on Jan. 3 is followed by a home game against Scituate on Jan. 6 at 6:30 p.m. Back-to-back road games at Whitman-Hanson (Jan. 10) and Pembroke (Jan. 13) are followed by home games versus Hingham (Jan. 20, 6:30 p.m.), Hanover (Jan. 23, 6:30 p.m.) and Silver Lake (Jan. 27, 6:30 p.m.).

The month ends with a road game at Middleboro on Jan. 31

Wrestling

Head Coach Pat Lane's squad hits the mats to open the season on Sat., Dec. 10 at Triton HS versus Welles-

The first home meet is scheduled for Dec. 14 against Lexington at 7 p.m. with an away meet at Wilmington set for Dec. 17. On Dec. 23, Quincy will compete in a home quad-meet along with Arlington, Catholic Memorial and Marlborough beginning at 4 p.m.

Another home quad-meet on Dec. 29 (10 a.m. start) will include Everett, Milton and Stoughton, and on Jan. 4 the Presidents will travel to Scituate. An away quadmeet at Oliver Ames (Quincy, Oliver Ames, Braintree and Everett) is set for Jan. 7 and a home meet against Randolph is scheduled for Jan. 11 at 7 p.m.

January closes out with another quad-meet at New Bedford on Jan. 14; an away. match at Middleboro on Jan. 18; a spot in the Weymouth Invitational on Jan. 21; a home meet versus Hanover on Jan, 25 (7 p.m.) and a boo quad-meet at Marshfield on Jan. 28.

Quincy matches up with North Quincy at NQHS on Feb. 2 at 7 p.m.

Quincy To Lean On Senior Class This Winter

By SEAN BRENNAN

This year's Quincy Presidents' hockey team is a good mix of underclassmen and seniors.

But if Quincy wants to improve on last year's performance, the "old" are going to have to carry the load and do whatever it takes to replace the production and leadership of a strong senior class, which graduated last June.

"(We) are on the way," said Head Coach Tim Lewis on Monday about the progress his program is making in preparation for opening night this Saturday at Whitman-Hanson. "It is going to be a full team effort. I am happy with the direction this team is heading, but we need to be patient and realistic. We have a good mix of young guys and seniors and the goal this season is to get prepared for the next opponent; we have to take it game-by-game."

"I am looking for my seniors to bring leadership," continued Lewis, "and that leadership starts with captain John O'Callaghan. We are going to lean on him in the locker room."

O'Callaghan, a solid defenseman, heads a senior class that also includes second-year player Peter Junta (forward), forward Connor Quinn, forward Adam Nazzaro and net-minder Justin

This class is a great starting point," said Lewis about his seniors. "They are a great core group who excel on the ice, in the classroom and in the community. The leadership starts with them."

With a number one defenseman in O'Callaghan manning the backend, the Presidents' defensive strategy will receive support from defensemen Jimmy Brennick (transfer from Boston College High School), sophomore Matt Kozlowski, Steven Ross, Ryan Hardy, Brian O'Callaghan, and Brendan

"The goal is always to protect the net," noted Lewis, "and this group should do a good job in front of Keenan."

Offensively, joining Junta, Quinn and Nazzaro up front is a handful of underclassmen. Quincy's second forward line includes sophomores Mike Pugsley, Pat Donovan and Matt Davis. Also expected to see ice time at third-line forward are Chris Andrews, Mike Gendrou and freshman Pat Freeman.

"My second (forward) line are all sophomores so I am going to have to be patient with myself," said Lewis. "The good thing is that the young (players) are all coachable. They are picking up the system. It is going to be impossible to replace (Derek) Murphy and his 32 goals, so we are going to have to be a diverse scoring Quincy's season gets underway on Saturday. The Presidents travel to The Presidents will skate versus North Quincy on Dec. 26. Face-off is scheduled for 8:10 p.m. at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Hockey Food Drive December 17

In the spirit of the holiday season, the Presidents, as a thanks to the financially generous support of the program from many Quincy residents, are giving back to the community.

The team will host a food drive at their Dec. 17 game versus Hanover.

Fans are being asked to bring a "Christmas Meal" food item to the game. Fans who bring food will receive a discount on their ticket price. The Quincy High cheerleaders will collect the food items at the entrance to the Quincy Youth Arena.

Following the game, members of the Presidents' hockey team will package the food into meals for needy families.

The meals will be dispersed to needy families through the Quincy High Guidance Office (players will not be delivering the

North Quincy Out To Defend League Title

By SEAN BRENNAN

Over the weekend the North Quincy hockey team made a trip north to New Hampshire to test their skill and readiness for the upcoming season against a couple of the better teams the Granite State had to offer.

The results were positive. Head Coach Matt Gibbons' program is coming off an 8-4-8 regular season in 2011, which included a share of the Patriot League championship. The Red Raiders qualified for the Division 2 South state tournament for the first time since the 2008 season before losing 5-2 to Franklin in the quarterfinals.

The team that advanced that far last winter will not be the same team that takes to ice in the season-opener against Whitman-Hanson on Dec. 14 at the Quincy Youth

North Quincy graduated nine seniors, including leading goal scorer Brendan Glynn, so the 2012 Red Raiders are going to be a different team with a different look.

But according to Gibbons, this year's roster is equally as good. The difference this year: North Quincy is stacked on the defensive end of the ice with four returning varsity starters returning and the Patriot League's best goalie back between the pipes.

Returning to the backline are seniors Tim Marks (three goals, four assists last season), Nick Furey (eight assists), and Michael Adduci (goal, four assists). Marks and Furey are both four-year players while Adduci is considered one of North's smartest players. Joining these three among the Raiders' top-4 defensemen will be junior Rudy Tryon - a third-year player.

"We are going to depend on (the defense) big-time this season," said Gibbons on Monday. "It was evident this past weekend (in New Hampshire) that their development has improved; they all went out and did it during the offseason. Nothing had to be said to them about that."

They are big kids and very physical," continued Gibbons when talking about his defense, "and on top of their ability to shut teams down, I expect plenty of offense from the backend. Maybe not in goal scoring but these guys have extremely hard shots that can produce rebounds for the forwards. The ability to rush the puck forward, starting from our own end, should mean more action for the defense in the offensive end."

Freshman Matt Monahan will learn the ropes from the rest of the experienced defensemen this winter while junior Ryan Martin, a transfer from Catholic Memorial, will provide additional depth.

If teams can traverse the North Quincy defense, senior goalie James Dunn (1.90 goals against average in 2011) should be up to task. Dunn, who Gibbons considers the best net-minder in the Patriot League, is as solid as they come.

"Last season James was the best goalie in the league," Gibbons said. "I don't see that changing this year. With James and our defensemen we should be able to keep teams in check."

In goal, Nolan Green will backup and spell Dunn at

At forward, North Quincy will not be able to replace the production of Glynn (18 goals) and Dereck Graham (nine goals), but the plan is to have a number of younger players chip in. Early-season injuries to returning players Patrick Verhault and Nick McGaughey could slow down the offensive flow during the first few weeks, but both players are expected back sooner rather than later.

"Both Pat and Nick are out with injuries at the moment, but I expect them back," stated Gibbons while mentioning that the loss of McGaughey the team's third leading scorer in 2011 - is a huge blow.

A skater to keep an eye on is sophomore forward Robbie Cameron. As a freshman, Cameron scored one goal, but his off-season improvement has seen him skating on the first-line this preseason.

"Robbie has made a huge jump since last year," Gibbons noted. "He has grabbed a first-line spot and we really need him to score some goals. But we know that no one is going to replace Glynn's production."

Underclassmen Andrew Currie, Chris Smith (transfer from Archbishop Williams), Tom O'Brien, Josh Hayward and Martin Blake will also see ice time on offense for North Ouincy this winter.

"Guys like Currie will help fill the void left by the kids that graduated," said

Senior Shawn Grady is the wild card in the forward equation. Grady played for Quincy for the past two winters, but decided to transfer to North Quincy for his final season. According to Gibbons, Grady brings tenacity and varsity experience to the Red Raiders - and he was glad to receive him with open arms.

"Grady is a huge addition," he said. "I expect him to contribute right away."

Senior Davy O'Connell rounds out the forward core.

After their (surprising) finish last season in the Patriot League and the disappointing feeling following the loss to Franklin in the state tournament, Gibbons and his team have a new set of goals for 2012. The Raiders now expect to defend their league title and get back in the playoffs.

"The focus is there," he said about his team preparations. "Last year the goals were to win the league and make the playoffs but we are past that. We expect to win the league and make the tournament. After losing to Franklin we sat in the locker room for an hour and a half - it was a disappointing end.

"But these guys are going to work every day. We know the league will be tough but we want to play the best of

According to a couple of studies, there is little to be gained by watching TV. In fact, Australian esearchers have shown quite the opposite may be true. According to their calculations, watching a single hour of television after the age of 25 can shorten the viewer's life by 22 minutes (approximately the same effect as smoking two cigarettes). This dire warning comes on the heels of a previous Australian study that found that here was approximately an 8% greater risk of dying prematurely associated with watching an hour of TV per day. Whether you agree ith these findings or not, you cannot argue with the fact that a sedentary lifestyle increases the risk of cardiovascular diseas tes, excess weight, and

Squantum Storm Elects Board of Directors, Officers

Squantum Storm Football & Cheerleading, Inc., recently elected the initial board of directors and officers at its first annual meeting of members held on Dec. 3 at the Squantum Elementary School.

Elected as directors were: Brandon Airosus, Kathie Brodeur, Marie Bronske, Jennifer Buckley, Debbie Dyer, Michael Killilea, Nathan Knowles, Cherie Manning, Bruce Marquis, Jim Mayo, Tom Mayo, Diane O'Connor and Brendan Smith.

Elected as officers were: Bruce Marquis, President/ Franchise Holder; Cherie Manning, Vice President; Debbie Dyer, Secretary; and Marie Bronske, Treasurer.

Storm Youth Football & Cheerleading is one of six franchises in the Quincy Youth Football League. This past season the Storm served 86 boys and girls between the ages of 8-14 through involvement in two cheerleading and three football squads.

The other franchises in the QYFL are the Houghs Neck Manets, Milton Mustangs, North Quincy Apaches, Quincy Point Panthers, and West Quincy Elks. The Storm has been league champions in 1987 (as the Squantum Sailors) and in 2009 when the team went undefeated (9-0) and won the championship game over the West Quincy Elks by a score of 14-7. West Quincy has won the past two championships.

Ice Skating Registration Begins Dec. 15

The Quincy Recreation Department announced that they would conduct its popular, low-cost, eight-week program of Ice Skating lessons with two classes on Wednesday afternoon at the Quincy Youth Arena.

This traditional Learn-to-Skate program has for more than 30 years offered boys and girls age 6-14 the opportunity to learn the fundamentals of skating in a low-cost program with quality instruction.

Registration will begin on Dec. 15. Walk-in registration will take place at the main office at the QRD located at One Merrymount Parkway beginning at 9 a.m., and will continue on weekdays from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. as long as openings exist; registration can also be done online at www.QuincyRec.com. Registration is done on a first-come-first-serve basis.

According to Director of Recreation Barry J. Welch, the program will have two separate classes beginning at 3:10 and 4:05 p.m. on Wednesdays starting Jan. 2, 2012. Instruction will again be under the supervision of Mrs. Anne Eagles, a United States Figure Skating Association Professional, and will utilize the basic program of instruction designed by the USFA. Both classes offer the same levels of instruction and both run for eight weeks.

The cost of the program is $68, which includes instruction and ice time. Participants need to provide their own skates, which may be figure or hockey skates with a single blade.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 617-376-1394.

Recreation Department Saturday Gym Schedule

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct supervised recreation programs in nine school gymnasiums on Saturdays throughout the winter. The popular program began on Dec. 3 and continues throughout the winter months.

The Saturday gym programs are free and open to boys and girls age 8 through high school. Times varies according to age group.

All programs have walk-in registration at each location and are open only to Quincy residents; participants may attend the location of their choice, not just their neighborhood gymnasium.

Assorted gym activities such as floor hockey, tag football, basketball and gym games will be conducted under the supervision of the Quincy Recreation Department staff.

The core schedule is from 9-10:30 a.m. for elementary kids age 8 through Grade 5 and 10:30 a.m. until noon for middle school/high school. Some adjustments in this time schedule may be made at different locations to accommodate difference in attendance by age groups.

The Saturday schedule is offered at the following schools: Atherton Hough, Atlantic, Beechwood Knoll, Bernazzani, Merrymount, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Squantum, and Point Webster.

Additional information is available by calling the Recreation Department at 617-376-1394 or online at www. QuincyRec.com.

(NU) - A study performed by the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine reported that men and women who feel they're responsible for most household chorse experience higher blood pressure and overall anxiety.

Here are a few tips that can help ease the stress:

1. Plan ahead. Plan your meals a week in advance, and only make one trip to the grocery store for everything on your list. Multiple shopping trips quickly add

2. Divide and conquer. Tackle mounting housework one day at a time or one task at a time. Prevent a long stretch of cleaning on Saturday by spending 30 minutes a day on different chores. For example, vacuum on Tuesdays, dust on Wednesdays and clean the bathrooms on Thursdays.

3. Simplify errands. Do you loathe the weekly trip to the store for cleaning supplies and paper products? Make your life simpler and save money by shopping online for essentials. Check out www.dollargeneral.com for items that are a chore to get home. Have big, bulky items and other necessities shipped directly to your door.

Decorating to Make Your Holidays Sparkle

(NU) - We all have a neighbor who goes overboard with the novelty outdoor lights around the holidays, but what if you want a more subtle, sophisticated approach to herald the season?

The American Lighting Association (ALA) offers some proven tips for holiday decorating with refined style, inside and out.

First of all, consider a grand entrance. Adding a few easy-to-install landscape uplights to highlight trees and shrubs, or path lighting to illuminate a sidewalk or driveway, will immediately add a sense of elegance and sophistication.

Once your company comes inside, it's really time to shine. Little touches can inspire a cheery mood and make guests feel comfortable and merry.

"Decorating for the holidays doesn't always have to be sparkles and glitz," says Bruce Hathaway, national sales manager for the Vermont-based lighting manufacturer Hubbardton Forge. "Sometimes a little understatement goes a long way.

"Entertaining in your home involves managing the flow of a room, so be careful not to over-clutter the space especially when you're hosting a group of people,"

Insurance

Auto • Home • Condos • Apartments

says Hathaway. "Recessed lighting should be dimmed, and accent and cove lighting should be used to create highlights and drama. And don't forget that portable table and floor lamps help set the perfect stage."

Focus attention on a tree and other holiday decorations with portable spotlights. These small, inexpensive fixtures are available at most ALAmember showrooms and can usually accommodate a tabletop dimmer. Create pretty silhouettes by placing a spotlight beneath a Christmas tree so that it shines up through the branches. For an especially warm and intimate feel, shine a spotlight toward framed photos of family members and past holiday gatherings, and fill a corner with a basket of children's holiday books.

One easy and quick change that will have maximum impact is to switch out a few lampshades. Replacing a neutral lampshade with one that is red or gold will soften the light and create a holiday atmosphere. Try adding a few shade charms, available at many craft stores, to add some sparkle and fun. You can even buy an inexpensive plain shade and decorate it with whatever suits your style and particular occasion.

THE ST. YVES SCHOOL is home to more than 200 students since tents were installed until a new school is built. The school was destroyed in an earthquake that struck Port-au-Prince, Haiti nearly two years ago.

Many Helping Hands Here Help Rebuild School In Haiti

Kindess In Aftermath Of Devastating Earthquake

By EMILY TAFT

When a massive earthquake hit Port-au-Prince, Haiti in January of 2010, St. Yves School was destroyed leaving hundreds of young students without a place to learn.

Now, almost two years later, businesses and schools of Quincy continue to come together and find ways to raise money and rebuild the school.

Founded by Joseph Fabien and Osias Semovil 50 years ago, the school has served over 350 students from grades K-12. Fabien's daughter Marie-Denise, of Quincy, has organized fundraisers here in Quincy in hopes to help not only her family in Haiti, but also to rebuild St. Yves School.

"We have been raising money for about a year now, trying to get as much money as possible," said Marie-Denise. "How fast we are able to rebuild the school depends on how fast we are able to raise money to do so."

The fundraising began Cornerstone Campus Preschool where Marie-Denise's daughter attends. Staff and parents came together and raised enough money to allow volunteers to finish clearing the debris and recover and bury the victims of the school who perished in the earthquake.

"We started with raising money in the preschool, for a total of about $2,500," said Gail MacDonald, director of Cornerstone Campus Preschool. "From there we began to go to local businesses and getting the community involved."

Businesses, churches and individuals all around Quincy have donated towards the

"When the earthquake hit it was big news," said Todd Schwanke, co-owner of The Clam Box. "Marie-Denise is a good customer of ours, and we wanted to try and help out. Her plans to rebuild there is important, so my brother Bryan (co-owner) and I put in money to donate."

The school re-opened last year in tents serving only 60 children.

"Millions of other children lost their schools in the quake, so Haitians living in Haiti and abroad are working together to get all children back to school this year," said Marie-Denise. "Now part of the school is operating under tents and the other part under metal roofs."

Since last spring a number of Quincy business owners have made donations and also put out collection buckets to encourage customers to donate as well.

"When the earthquake occurred we tried to help with what little we could,' said Bay State Federal Savings Charitable Fund President and Director Denise Reneghan. "I knew Marie-Denise from church and we were told about what she was trying to do, looked into it and helped in any way we could."

The donations thus far have allowed for the laying of foundation and running water in the temporary tent school.

"It is disheartening that Haiti is still in disarray from this earthquake," said Reneghan. "The children still don't have a school to attend, and the hospitals are still not rebuilt."

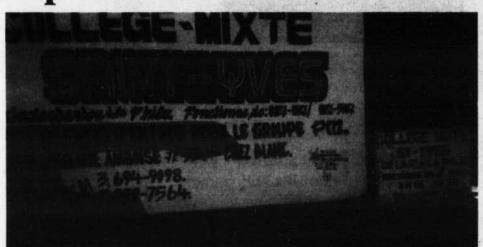

On Sept. 26, the school welcomed 200 students with plans to increase the enrollment throughout the academic year while still under construction.

"Marie-Denise has such a bigger than life personality. It is great to see her and her daughter a part of this. She has her finger on he pulse of what's going on in Haiti," said MacDonald. "We want to provide a future and jobs to these kids, and invest in helping to put in place a more permanent economy. This is more than just helping to rebuild a school; this is to keep people alive."

Marie-Denise, along with some friends from the Life Community Church of Quincy, plan to head to Haiti in a few months, to check on progress and help in anyway they can.

South Shore Stars Preschool Programs Receive Literacy Grants

South Shore Stars' preschool programs in Quincy, Weymouth and Randolph recently received state grants to support the organization's literacy efforts.

Each of the three preschool sites received a $5,000 grant from the Massachusetts Department of Early Education & Care (EEC) to support Stars' RISE program (Reading is So Exciting), with a specific focus on fostering language development and literacy. The "Child Care Quality Literacy Support Grants" are funded by the sale of special "Invest in Children" license plates. In the past decade, more than $2.2 million has been distributed to more than 160 non-profit organizations to promote school readiness, school success and positive outcomes for children.

Formerly known as South Shore Day Care Services, South Shore Stars provides comprehensive early education and youth programs that help children reach their full developmental potential. From Early Head Start and preschool to K-12 and summer camp programs, South Shore Stars works collaboratively with families to foster positive youth development.

A Job Well Done

On Tuesday, Nov. 22, at approximately 12:15 p.m., Detectives Ward and O'Brien and Officer Sean Glennon were in the Police Prosecutor's Office at Quincy District Court awaiting trials.

A Court Officer entered the Police Prosecutors Office and told them that a female in the lobby said that a male asked her if she wanted to purchase marijuana or pills from him, which she could then give to a prisoner in the courthouse. The female said that she was sitting in the courtroom waiting for her friend, who was in custody, to be brought into the courtroom.

LT. DAN MINTON

As her friend passed by, they said hello to each other and this was observed by the male suspect. Seconds later, the suspect tapped her on the shoulder and inquired if the person in custody was her friend. When she confirmed this, the suspect opened the inside of his jacket and told the female that he had some marijuana and pills that he could sell her, which she could then pass off to her friend so he could make some money in prison.

The female did not see marijuana or pills but by the way the suspect was concealing his jacket, she believed that he possessed these items inside of his jacket. The female said she told the suspect that she was a Correctional Officer, but the suspect laughed at her and reiterated that he had the "stuff" on him and she could easily pass it on to her incarcerated friend.

The female then walked out of the courtroom and reported the incident to the court officer. At this time, after conferring with Detective Ward and Officer Glennon, who was in uniform, the court officer removed the suspect from the courtroom, where he was met by the officers in the hall. The officers led the suspect to a conference room so they could speak with him without disrupting the court house.

As they were walking to the conference room, Detective Ward noted that the suspect appeared to be concealing something in his hand. The suspect then put his hand to the side of his face as if he was going to scratch his head and then suddelnly put his hand to his mouth, putting at least one knotted plastic bag into his mouth.

Knowing that this was most likely drugs, Officer Glennon attempted to prevent the suspect from swallowing as the detectives attempted to place the suspect in handcuffs. The suspect violently resisted, refusing to spit out the plastic bag or give his hands up in order to be handcuffed. After a few moments, the suspect spit out the plastic bag but continued to resist — so much that Detective Ward requested a second set of handcuffs to handcuff the suspect easier (by linking them together).

Inside the plastic bag was a green leafy substance believed to be marijuana. The suspect's tumultous behavior caused the people in the lobby to become alarmed and a crowd gathered to watch. Court proceedings were disrupted as people began to exist the surrounding courtrooms to observe the disturbance.

The suspect waived his Miranda Rights and stated that he found a bag of marijuana on the ground and asked the female if she had dropped it. When the suspect was asked why he didn't bring the drugs to the attention of a court officer, the suspect did not answer. When asked why he would attempt to swallow a bag of marijuana he found on the floor, again, the suspect did not respond.

The suspect, a 35-year-old Brockton resident, was arrested and charged with "Possession of Class D with Intent to Distribute (subsequent offense), disorderly person, resisting arrest, disrupting court proceedings, and solicitation to commit felony. The same person was found guilty of possession to distribute Class B drugs in 1995 in Suffolk Superior Court and was sentenced to 6 to 8 years.

Nice work!

United Methodist Church, very unhappy," said Rev. 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its annual Service of the Longest Night Wednesday, Dec. 21 at 7:30 p.m. in the church chapel.

The service gets its name from the Winter Solstice, the longest night of the year.

The service is simple and gentle consisting of music, Scripture lessons, readings, prayer and quiet reflection. Its purpose is to provide a safe place for people who are dealing with grief and loss of any time, whether that grief and loss are recent or decades old.

The public is invited to attend.

"For some people, the holiday season can be very Community stressful and, sometimes, Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, the church pastor.

> "Facing the first Christmas without a loved one's physical presence, dealing with an imminent death, living with an illness that places a question mark over the future, coping with the loss of a job, facing life after divorce or separation, and sometimes just life in general can make holiday celebration very difficult, if not impossible."

The Longest Night Service is intended to be a resource for people in these situations.

Quincy Community United Methodist

Do you want to let someone know how much she or he means to you?

Do you know someone who is having a difficult holiday season - perhaps the first one without the physical presence of a loved one?

Do you want to say 'Thank you' to a special someone in your life?

Do you know someone who has suffered a loss during the year and for whom the holidays won't be very joyous?

Most could answer "yes" to at least one of those questions. But sometimes it's difficult to find the right words

Quincy Community United Methodist Church in Wollaston has a solution: a spun glass heart ornament from the church's "Heart to Heart Tree."

Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor, said: "Originally the heart ornaments were meant to be given to people who are experiencing a difficult holiday season, as a way of letting them know someone cares."

The idea, however, grew from the original concept.

"Although most of the hearts are still given to people who are hurting, some individuals have given them to people who have made a difference in their lives, such as mentors, friends, family members, and neighbors," Rev. D. Jarek-Glidden said. "It's a way of expressing feelings, a way of saying 'thank you' as well as 'I care."

The public is welcome to participate in the Heart to Heart Tree. It is located on the second floor of the church outside the sanctuary through Dec. 24. A donation of $2 per heart ornament is requested.

For more information about Quincy Community United Methodist Church and its Heart to Heart Tree, call 617-773-3319.

The church is located at 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Christmas Open House At Union Congregational

The public is invited to attend a Christmas Open House at Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., corner of Beach Street and Rawson Road, Sunday, Dec. 11 from 1 to 4 p.m.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Can it not be said progress or failure is mainly due to proper, improper or sometimes an utter lack of thinking? Surely it is true that new ideas and powerful thoughts can affect your own destiny and in some cases even the destiny of mankind in general. Men like Alexander, Napoleon and Hitler had thoughts which led to wars of conquest. They brought only destruction. Other men with other thoughts brought progress, prosperity and happiness And so it is with all of us as individuals . . .

Our thoughts of today can create a better or worse tomorrow. . . Proper thoughts not only add purpose, they create new incentives for life itself. Is it not true if our thoughts are filled with faith, cheerfulness, gratitude, encouragement happiness, love and friendship - we avoid negative and destructive thoughts of greed, despair, fear and vulgarity? Are these not compelling reasons to channel our thoughts toward the good things in life? . . .

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Make your holiday preparations one step at a time in order to avoid being overwhelmed and leaving things undone. That confusing family situation continues to work itself out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Ease this year's holiday money pressures by letting your thrifty side guide you as you look for those perfect gifts that typically reflect your good taste and love of beauty.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You'll have a good handle on potential holiday problems if you delegate tasks to family members, friends or co-workers -- most of whom will be more than happy to help out.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Right now you are especially vulnerable to holiday scams that seek to take advantage of your generosity. Best advice: Check them out before you send out your checks.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The upcoming holiday season gives the Big Cat much to purr about. Relationships grow stronger, and new opportunities loom on the horizon, just waiting to be pounced on.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A changing situation brings conflicting advice about how to go forward with your holiday plans. Your best bet: Make the decision you feel most comfortable with.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Holiday plans get back on track after some confusion about the direction you expected to take. A potentially troublesome money matter needs your immediate attention.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your holiday preparations are on track. But you need to confront a personal situation while you can still keep it from overwhelming everything else.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Tight financial matters ease a bit during this holiday season. But the sagacious Sagittarian is welladvised to keep a tight hold on the reins while shopping for CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Don't put off making decisions about this year's holiday celebrations, despite the negative comments you've been getting from several quarters. Do it NOW!

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) The holidays will bring new friends and new opportunities. Meanwhile, be careful to use your energy wisely as you go about making holiday preparations.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) There's good news coming from a most unlikely source. And it could turn out to be one of the best holiday gifts you have had in years. Remember to stay positive.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are respected for your honesty and loyalty. You make friends slowly - but with rare exceptions, they're in your life for-

The City Council Monday night unanimously approved Mayor Tom Koch's proposed increase of residential property tax rate from $13.42 per each $1,000 of valuation to $13.75, an increase of 2.22%. This equals out to a $98 increase on the average tax bill, which fulfills a promise the mayor made during the Spring's budget hearings not to increase the average bill by more than $100.

in Coughlin extolled the virtues of expanding the state's recycling program to include non-carbonated beverages such as water and sports drinks. Besides saving room in landfills, he said the program's expansion would help reduce litter. That in turn, could help save the city money as he alluded to previous flooding.

During a storm last year, Coughlin said, "a plastic, non-recyclable bottle, thrown in the gutter ultimately made its way into the storm water system and it jammed the impeller on a pump, shutting it down."

That led to flooding of residents' basements.

The resolution passed 8-1. Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee was the lone dissenter. He said it was an issue for the state to decide, not the council. "If you want to be a state legislator," he told Coughlin, "I suggest you run for state legislator."

After the vote, residents in attendance applauded the council's decision.

During its Dec. 5 meeting, the City Council approved a serious of appropriations.

Over $1.6 million was appropriated to community preservation funds.

• $1.04 million was deposited into the budgetary reserve account.

• $160,160 was placed into the affordable housing, historic preservation, and open space accounts.

Additionally, they drew $746,240 from the reserve account and $160,610 open space account to pay off debt service.

Additionally, they allocated nearly $160,000 for Storm Irene. $99,615.91 went to the Drain Department, $54,518.21 to the Park Department, $4,500 to yard waste, and $830 to the Sewer Department. Those appropriations had been proposed at the council's previous meeting but were referred to the finance committee because of the funds for the sewer needed to be drawn for sewer revenues instead of general revenues as first proposed.

The fire department also received $6,951.25 to be used for equipment purchases. This too was on the agenda for the council's prior meeting, but the appropriate orders weren't submitted in time to be heard.

All those appropriations passed unanimously.

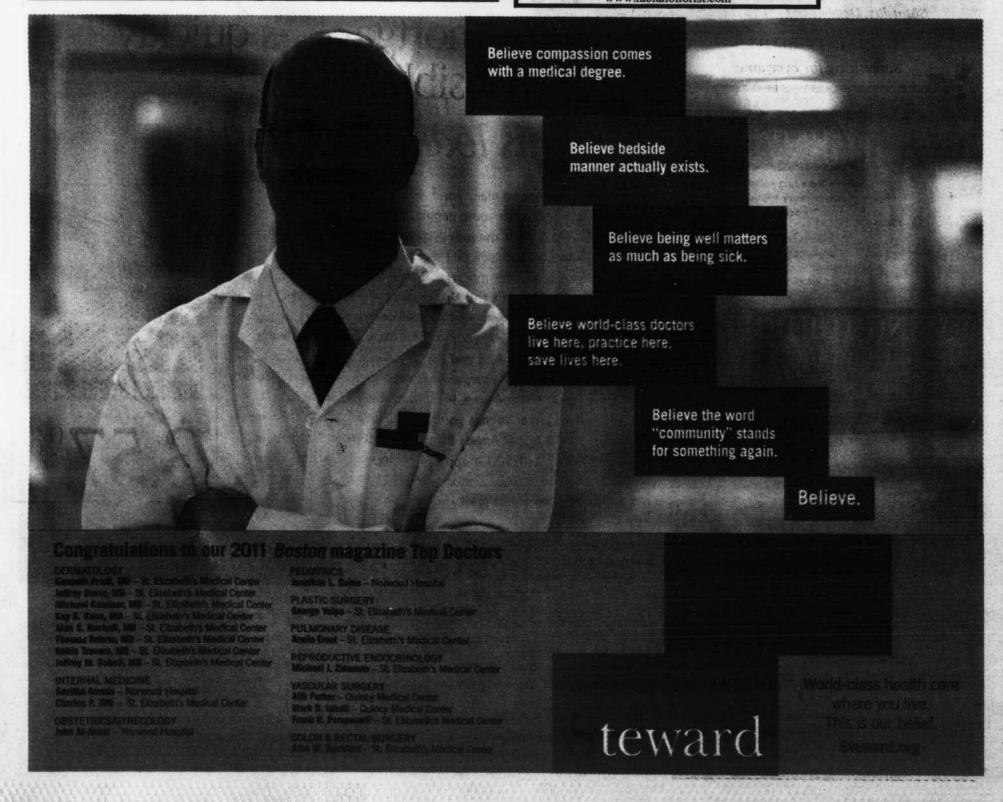

One appropriation didn't pass. The Police Department requested $35,000 for maintenance of their boats. The proposal was to take the funds from the waterways improvement fund, which is funded through excise taxes on boats. Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci believes the city would be better off if the funding came from money forfeited to the District Attorney's office as a result of drug convictions. The council plans on re-hearing the matter during their meeting next Monday.

The council also unanimously passed ordinances allowing the Police and Fire Departments to charge interest if businesses are delinquent on paying fees for details. They have 30 days to pay and after that they'd be charged 14% interest plus a 10% late fee.

Sponsors are also needed to "adopt" children of families requesting help with new Christmas gifts. Call 617-847-6967 to help with this program or for more information.

Four Arrested For Falsified Prescriptions

Four Quincy residents were among 63 people arrested early Tuesday for allegedly using falsified prescriptions to obtain oxycodone.

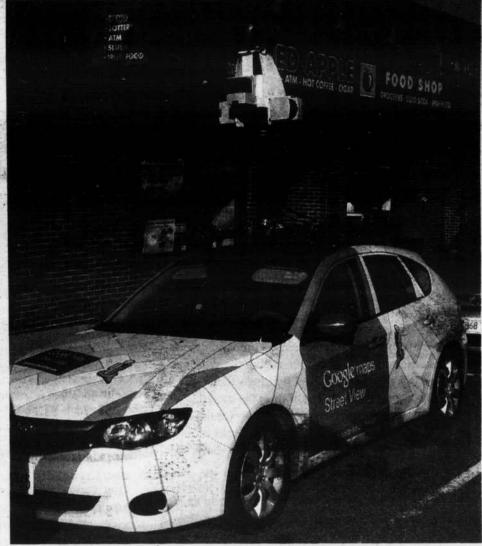

Patricia Callaghan, 37, of 161 Suomi Rd., Kevin R. Concannon, 55, of 71 Vassal St., Michelle B. Galvao, 33, of 50 Sixth Ave., and Michael Rooney, 45, of 580 Willard St. were all charged with uttering a false prescription for controlled substance, fraudulently obtaining possession of controlled substance, and possession of a class B substance. They will be arraigned at Quincy District Court.

The arrests came as a result of a five-month long investigation by the Norfolk and Plymouth County District Attorneys' offices, with assistance from the State Police and the DEA. Norfolk County DA Michael Morrissey lauded the investigation in a press release.

"This has not been a short investigation, but it is well worth the effort and the resources. I appreciate the partnership of [Plymouth County] District Attorny [Timothy] Cruz and several police departments targeting the supply of oxycodone and other opiates on the South Shore. These drugs are killing our citizens and destroying families. We need to target every supply line we can," Morrissey said.

Determined to pay off your mortgage as quickly as possible? This loan is for you!

There are so many good reasons to love the 15-Year Mortgage. For some people, it's about being debt-free. Others want the mortgage paid off by the time the kids go to college or before they retire. Some see paying off their mortgage quickly as a kind of "forced" savings. Here's the simple fact: If you can swing the somewhat-higher monthly payments, a 15-Year Mortgage knocks years off your original loan. Your equity builds very quickly. And you pay thousands less in interest, compared to a longer-term mortgage loan. Rates are still at historic lows. How much longer? Who knows. If a 15-Year sounds good to you, let's talk. Soon! Come see us or call Angela Blanchard or Richard Coleman at 617-471-0750. Or apply at colonialfed.com - click the Loans tab. (Also available for debt consolidation and for new home purchases.)

Jo-Ann Bragg: School Committee Is About The Kids

How do you sum up 16 years on the Quincy School Committee?

For Jo-Ann Bragg, it's all been about one thing:

The kids.

"It's been a lot of work but worth the effort when you do implement a policy that you've created and you get to see the smiles on the kids so it's all worth it," Bragg said in a recent interview with The Sun.

BRAGG

"I'm very sad to be leaving. It was a hard decision not to run for another term because I enjoy my work. I love listening to the kids, I love seeing the kids, and I love making education work. I will miss that."

It's the students whom she'll miss the most.

"I'll miss seeing them come before us (at the meetings) and performing, displaying their works of art, or reading a prize-winning speech. I'll miss the people, and the teachers, too," Bragg says.

The feeling must be mutual.

Bragg's list of accomplishments is as long as it is impressive. She's been instrumental in more than a dozen policy, curriculum and building initiatives since she won her first four-year term in 1993. She was reelected in 1997 and again in 2001. After completing her third term in 2005, she retired for two years but made a triumphant return winning a fourth term in 2007.

For family reasons, Bragg did not seek a fifth term this fall.

But she won't be going away entirely after her term expires this month. With Mayor Tom Koch's support, Bragg will continue to serve on the new Central Middle School Building Committee.

She's also been working on her final policy initiative that she will continue to advocate as a private citizen: making community service a high school graduation requirement here.

Bragg planned to introduce the resolve at her final School Committee meeting Wednesday (Dec. 14). She says the resolve has received a groundswell of support from administrators, colleagues and parents among others.

"I have presented a resolve to the Policy Subcommittee and several suggestions were made including hearing from others at the high schools on how it would work, incorporating extenuating circumstances or waivers by principals or their designee. Many high school groups are already doing this so the principals at both high schools want it and say they can make it work," Bragg said.

"The Citywide Parents' Council also wants this requirement."

Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

JO-ANN BRAGG is sworn in to her first term on the Quincy School Committee in January, 1994 by then Mayor James Sheets. Bragg is stepping down from the committee after 16 years of service.

Bragg said the community service requirement is a win-win situation for both the community and students.

"Let's give all students a positive mark on their transcript by showing them the virtues of community service and how rewarding it is to help others," she says. "It is a growing trend among high schools. Colleges like to see a well-rounded student who not only gets good grades but is involved in bettering the lives of others.

"Everyone benefits from community service. It develops character, compassion for others, builds selfesteem and gives a sense of belonging to your community."

Under Bragg's plan, students at North Quincy and Quincy High School would be required to complete 30 hours of community service beginning with the Class of 2016. (The hours would be pro-rated for the Classes of 2015 and 2014, to 20 hours and 10 hours respectively.)

Students would be encourage to accumulate more than 10 hours per year but only 10 hours per year would count to this requirements. Hours could be earned during the summer. (See related story on Page 1.)

"The Policy Subcommittee wants to hear back from the schools and how it will impact them," Bragg says. "That's going to take time. The superintendent is going to gather information from parents from the schools and put it together. It won't be passed at the Dec. 14th meeting; it's going to take some time because they want to do a thorough evaluation, particularly on how do you make it work? How do you know the kids really gave up their Saturday to do community service?

"We have to figure out how to track the kids and how to implement the policy. It makes sense to wait a year before phasing this in," she added.

Bragg has seen a lot of changes during her tenure on the school committee.

"Education is evolving at the local and national level. Technology is expanding, students are being taught to think critically so they will be able to solve the problems of the future."

She also says she believes the Quincy Public School system is better today than it was in 1994 because many individuals have worked together to improve local schools. She's served with many dedicated colleagues and also noted the great leadership of former Supt. Gene Creedon, present Supt. Dr. Richard De-Cristofaro, Janet Powell, Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, Colleen Roberts, the Leadership Teams and caring teachers and principals "who go beyond the call of duty time and time again."

Bragg leaves the school committee with a legacy of accomplishments. But there are three things she is most proud.

For one, Bragg was instrumental in establishing the Quincy Education Fund in 2002 and served as the committee's first chairwoman. The fund gathers income as a voluntary donation on local excise and property tax bills. Citizens can send in a contribution that is earmarked for education expenses.

To date, the fund has raised nearly $40,000 and has helped purchase library books, technology items, printers and other equipment.

She also helped create teacher resource libraries in every school. "I'm very proud of the teacher resource libraries. The idea is to share ideas and strategies to provide teachers with tools (to help educate students)."

But perhaps the issue that Bragg may be most identified with is full-time nurses in every school.

"I probably said this more than 100 times: we need full-time nurses at every school. I wouldn't let that go away. It's probably the issue that I was mostly thanked for over the years. A parent would say to me 'my child has asthma and I'm so glad there is a full-time nurse because I was worried if he has an attack and there is nobody there who could handle it, it could be life-threatening.' I received a lot of thank you notes."

For Bragg's professionalism and dedication on school matters, she was presented a Lifetime Achievement Award from the Massachusetts Association of School Committees. She is the only Quincy school committee member so honored.

The school system has experienced many changes during Bragg's tenure. Three new schools were built: Marshall, Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center and the new Quincy High School. There have also been additions to Beechwood Knoll, Bernazzani and Parker and major renovations to Point Webster.

But there's been other progress beyond bricks and nortar.

Bragg has supported opportunities for all staff to receive CPR and First Aid training.

She helped create the first anti-bullying and Internet policies before they were legally required. "Both of these policies Quincy implemented before they were requirements by law. It has been revamped since the law has come in but we actually did it in Quincy before it was mandated."

She also has the distinction of having a reserve fund named after her. After she found a math error in a school budget one year, this reserve fund was named The Bragg Fund with its own line-item. It is now used to purchase agenda books in grades 4-8 and 2nd grade math books for $38,000.

Most of all, serving on the school committee has meant serving the kids.

And she'll miss that interaction.

Like students on the Robotics team bringing their machines to City Hall and showing how they can pick up objects from robots built from scratch in a short time.

Or students in the Teen Mothers Program who may not necessarily earn their diploma without the support they receive from this group.

"They read speeches about their life and they've had quite a difficult life to even get there," Bragg says. "Quincy was one of the first programs in the country. It's an amazing program and so many kids have been able to graduate high school. Quincy College also gives them scholarships so that they can get a second chance."

The school committee has been many things to Jo-Ann Bragg. But one of them is not a thankless job.

"I know a lot of people call (school committee) a thankless job. I can't count how many people have thanked me over the years for the changes that we've put in place. I never saw it as a thankless job. I was thanked time and time again which I am very appreciative."

She also has some words of wisdom for future school committee members.

"They need to remember why they ran and never forget that," Bragg says. "They need to remember their roots of how they got there. That involves caring about students.

"Always keep that in mind and don't play politics. Remember, you are there for the kids and families in Ouincy."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1914 postcard is a view of Anne Hutchinson Square in Wollaston showing the foot of Grandview Avenue from the intersection of Newport Avenue and Beale Street. The historic Taylor Building on the left has unfortunately been covered with vinyl siding and most of the architectural details have been lost including the baluster railing around the roof. Many other businesses have come and gone from here since the Wollaston Pharmacy occupied its corner storefront. It is presently empty. This is a very busy intersection today and you wouldn't stand in the middle of the street as those on the left, nor would you walk alongside the bottom of the old granite wall on the right. The old stone marker that is barely visible at the end of the sidewalk at the bottom of the hill has been moved across the street next to the fire station. It tells the story of Anne Hutchinson from whom the square was named. Because her religious beliefs were deemed heretic, she was banished from these lands in early Colonial times. Richard "Rick" Bragg is a 1973 graduate of North Quincy High School and long-time husband Quincy School Committee member Jo-Ann Bragg. A former 30-year employee at J. Freeman Inc., he was most recently a custodian at Montclair School - a job he loved and gave his all to, until his cancer forced him into early retirement in 2010.

Rick has been courageously fighting a devastating seven-year battle with prostate cancer and has all but exhausted the available conventional cancer treatment methods. The FDA is currently evaluating a number of new treatments that could help Rick, but this next generation of drugs will not be available until

Unfortunately, time is not something Rick and his loved ones have on their

Rick and his family have been blessed with the gift of hope this holiday season by finding and being accepted into the Issels Cancer Treatment Center in Santa Barbara, California. Since 1951, thousands of patients in the same advanced state as Rick have received treatment at the Issels Center and the results have been amazing (see http://www.issels.com). The Issels treatment and related expenses will cost the Bragg family over $40,000 and traditional insurance will not cover any of this expense. Because of the rapid decline of Rick's health in recent months, his family is left with few options and the Issels Center may very well be his last chance. Although there is no guarantee that the treatment will cure Rick of this life-threatening disease, the family is very optimistic about the possibility of Rick getting better and able to continue to host family gatherings at Christmas and other special times for many years to come.

writes, "I can honestly say Rick is one of the better guys you could ever meet. He didn't deserve this horrible disease, but he does deserve this last chance at beating it."

In an effort to raise funds to offset this formidable expense, the Bragg family, along with several community businesses, will host a concert fundraising event on Saturday, Jan. 14 at The Sons of Italy in Quincy.

The fundraiser will feature performances by local and regional musicians, a silent auction, door prizes and a 50/50 cash raffle. Tickets are $20 each and $5.00 of the ticket price will go towards the 50/50 raffle.

The Bragg family gratefully welcomes monetary donations in any amount, as well as raffle and auction items. All ages are welcome to attend the fundraiser at The Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry Street, Quincy, on Saturday, Jan. 14 from 7 to 11 p.m.

For more information on the event, or to make donations, please contact John McLoughlin - 781 720 9933 or johncmcloughlin@ live.com or Lisa Bragg -781 535 8034.

Donations may also be sent directly to Eastern Bank, c/o Terry Bellotti-Palmieri, 731 Hancock Street, B366, Quincy, MA 02170. Please make checks payable to the Richard J. Bragg Benefit.

From the bottom of our hearts, the Bragg family and friends thank you for your generosity and for your prayers.

'The Help'At Crane Library Tonight

The 2011 movie The Help, based on the best-selling novel by Kathryn Stockett, will be shown tonight (Thursday) at 6:45 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The movie is set in Mississippi during the 1960s. Skeeter, a southern society girl, returns from college determined to become a writer, but turns her friends' lives-and a small Mississippi town-upside down when she decides to interview the black women whohave spent their lives taking care of prominent southern families. Along the way, unlikely friendships are forged and a new sisterhood emerges, but not before everyone in town has a thing or two to say themselves when they become unwittingly-and unwillingly-caught up in the changing times.

The 137-minute movie stars Emma Stone, Octavia Spencer and Viola Davis. It is rated PG for thematic material.

The free screening is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

For more information, visit thomascranelibrary.org or call 617-376-1301.

Germantown Neighborhood Center Hosts Intergenerational Holiday Event

The Germantown Neighborhood Center recently hosted its annual Intergenerational Holiday Event with seniors from O'Brien Towers and Snug Harbor Court.

The event featured lunch donated by Chateau Restaurant, and entertainment, including a choral performance by the Germantown students who attend the Tuesday After School Enrichment Program at the Center.

The International Holiday Event teaches students the importance of giving and they look forward to showing their thanks and appreciation every year.

This year's show was organized by Emmanuel Janvier, the Youth and Teen director of the Germantown Neighborhood Center, and Christopher James, the musical director.

Students performed a medly of Christmas music for all to enjoy.

The Neighborhood Center staff extends its appreciation to all the sponsors who helped make this event possible.

They are: South Shore YMCA, City of Quincy Community

Sheriff's Office Receives Federal Grant

The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office has been chosen to receive a federal grant to help inmates learn job skills while they're incarcerated, announces Sheriff Michael Bellotti.

The grant money will be used to enhance an existing landscaping program and to start two new programs in auto detailing and home and industrial floor care.

"We're grateful to be chosen to receive these resources, and we will put them to good use," Sheriff Bellotti said. "In the corrections field these days, all programming must have a public safety benefit. In this case, we'll use this grant to give people skills they can use in the job market. Having a good job is the best deterrent to committing crime."

The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office also has training programs in the areas of culinary arts; heating, ventilation and air con-

The $15,000 grant stems from a congressional mandate under the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Education Act of 1998.

"In this challenging fiscal climate, we will continue to aggressively compete for alternative funding sources such as this grant to ensure that Norfolk County residents receive the highest quality public safety," Sheriff Bellotti said.

Quincy Receives $11,365 State S.A.F.E. Grant

State Sen. John F. Keenan and state Rep. Tackey Chan announce the City of Quincy has been awarded a Student Awareness of Fire Education (S.A.F.E.) grant of $11,365 dollars for the fiscal year of The S.A.F.E. program strives to educate students on fire safety which successfully decreases the number of fire-related accidents and deaths per year.

"It is an essential program to have within our school system in Quincy and the S.A.F.E grant will save the town a lot of money through reduced fire calls," said Sen.

"This is an important program effective in reducing the number of fire deaths in Quincy. This program combined with other fire education and prevention initiatives lead to an all-time record low fire deaths last year," said Rep. Chan.

Hall Of Fame Dinner Memorable Night

(A copy of the following letter was submitted for publication from Ron Ivil, president of the Quincy-North Quincy High School Fotball Hall of Fame.)

My thanks to you and all those who assisted you in putting together the Hall of Fame night - I had no idea what to expect but I can tell you it was truly a memorable night for me.

This was no back room operation offering up a slap on the back and a push out the door. You have mastered how to do it right.

Mixing the Hall of Famers with current football seniors is a masterful stroke. Hopefully they will become a little awed, appreciative and inspired by what lies ahead of them.

This event has added a great cornerstone of celebration and pageantry to the Quincy-North rivalry and partnership.

I am honored to have been a piece of it.

Quincy People No Longer Control City

We the people of Quincy no longer have any control over our own city.

A company who calls themselves Street-Works are now in control of what was once the greatest city in America.

Quincy was never designed to house 100,000 people. I said it before and I will say it again: bigger is not always better. All they will accomplish is turning Quincy into another Brockton - a great city at one time, now just another crime-infested ghetto.

They just won't admit that people will not pay to park and shop. There whole plan is to pay the $2 billion in bonds with parking fees our children and grandchildren and on and on will be stuck for this money and our taxes will go through the roof.

the average hike statewide, according to the mayor's Director of Policy and Information Chris Walker. In a chart he provided to the council, he said the average increase between fiscal years 2010 and 2012 was $409 statewide.

Quincy's 'total increase over that period is only $98 because the average tax bill wasn't increased in either FY2010 or FY2011 – the tax rate had increased over that period but falling property values kept the average bill the same.

The $98 increase is also substantially lower than the maximum $610 raise the mayor could have sought under state law. The city is leaving an additional $19.9 million off table by choosing not to tax to the levy, the maximum amount allowed.

Quincy will have the second largest excess levy capacity in the commonwealth, trailing only Cambridge, according to Walker. He compared Quincy's excess levy capacity to neighboring Braintree, which recently approved spending $850,000 under their levy.

Homeowner Property Taxes Up Average $98

"They were doing some victory laps because they had excess levy capacity of about $850,000 and the headline read 'homeowners get a break.' Ours is $20 million so let's compare the breaks," Walker told the council.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci asked whether it was wise to leave money on the table when it could be used elsewhere.

"What benefit does having this excess levy capacity bring," Palmucci inquired.
"The city could do what many communities do and use that excess levy to fund and improve schools with the belief that the investment we put into schools would increase property values."

Mayor Koch's Executive Secretary James Fatseas explained the logic behind not taking taxes to the limit

Clos Du Bois Cabernet $12.99

DUE TO OUTLET PRICING WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES.

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS.

"Should there be a catastrophic issue. Should there be a reason we need to raise our taxes significantly, we are not up against prop 2½," he said, referring to the state law that sets a limit on residential property tax hikes, though it can be overridden via a referendum. "And that is a favorable situation when bonding agencies look at us, and it helps us with our credit rating."

Councillor-at-Large Joe Finn also said it was an astute move to not tap into the excess levy. "In terms of the catastrophe Mr. Fatseas is referencing, moving forward the need for vigilance is great because the secretary of the Commonwealth's Administration and Finance announced today that all discretionary accounts are likely for cuts, including local aid," he said.

"It's a good time to be going in with some excess levy capacity," Finn said. Coughlin noted that 75% of municipalities in Massachusetts are at or near their levy capacities, and he thanked the mayor and his team for maintaining such a large excess capacity.

Additionally, the council set the commercial, industrial and personal property (C.I.P.P) rate at $28.66 per $1,000 of valuation. The previous rate had been $27.85 per $1,000.

The city is using a 175% percent classification, which shifts more of the burden onto businesses. Reducing the classification to 169%, for example, would increase the residential rate to $13.96 per $1,000 of valuation, according to City Assessor Peter Moran.

A public hearing was held immediately before the meeting, but no residents addressed the council. Moran was the only one to talk during that time.

Council Approves Other Financial Measures

During Monday's meeting, the City Council passed a variety of financial measures in addition to setting the tax rate.

The largest item on the agenda was the appropriation of over $4.5 million to offset deficits. $2.092 million will be used to fiscal year's 2011 overlay deficit, which was incurred because of higher than anticipated tax abatements, according to City Finance Director Mark Cavanagh. $2.441 million will go towards FY2011's snow and ice deficit, which Cavanagh said would still leave an approximate ice account's deficit.

Additionally, $617,337 in encumbrances from fiscal year 2011 was appropriated to fiscal 2012's budget. Cavanagh said his office worked with the city's departments to find money they had remaining from FY2011 which could be used for FY2012.

Another measure reduced the long-term debt interest line in the budget by $54,844.32. That money comes from a bond refund, according to Cavanagh. Another item allocated $908,749.81 from hotel/motel taxes to pay-off debt service. That figure included over $100,000 in revenue from fiscal 2011 that the city hadn't previously appropriated.

Finally, the council also reduced budgeted health insurance expenditures by $1.4 million at the request of Steve McGrath, the city's Human Resources Director. The figure was reduced after the city received a payment from the state's Group Insurance Commission. Other savings came following an audit showed year-to-date expenditures were short of projected ones.

The council unanimously pproved all of the items.

Members of the Student Police Academy at Quincy High School recently learned how the "911" system works in the City of Quincy.

As part of the accredited Protective Services curriculum directed by Teacher Brendan Welch, the threeyear program brings in many guest speakers from the Quincy Police Department, other local, state and federal enforcement agencies, along with a wide range of presenters from the private sector.

There are also tours and ride-alongs with the Quincy Police Department. In the third year of the program, these students take the certification examination for the "911" basic course.

Public Hearing On 'Fair Plan' Homeowner Insurance Rate Hike

The state Division of Insurance will hold a public hearing on a proposed 7.2 percent increase in "Fair Plan" home insurance rates on Dec. 19th, at 10 a.m, Sen. John F. Keenan announces.

The hearing will be held at the Division of Insurance, Suite 810, 1000 Washington St., Boston.

The Fair Plan, known officially as the Massachusetts Property Insurance Underwriting Association (MPI-UA), provides insurance for properties unable to secure traditional lines of insurance. Although the program was initially established to help properties located in low-income neighborhoods, a large portion of the properties now covered by the Fair Plan are in coastal com-

There are 3,201 homeowners and renters in Quincy that receive insurance coverage through the Fair Plan, according to MPIUA, or about 13 percent of the city's residential properties.

Fair Plan rates dropped 0.7 percent in 2010. The last rate hike was in 2006, when rates jumped 12.4 percent.

Sen. Keenan, who is a member of the Joint Committee on Financial Services, says he is reviewing MPIUA's case for its rate hike request, and encourages Quincy residents to make their voices heard.

"In these economic times, many homeowners cannot afford sizeable hikes in their homeowner insurance policies," Keenan said. "I would expect any request for a rate increase to be accompanied by a clear and convincing argument from MPIUA outlining the need to charge homeowners higher premiums."

Anyone interested in testifying in-person at the hearing on Dec. 19th is asked to submit to the Division of Insurance a Notice of Intent to Make a Statement. The notice must be submitted on or before Dec.16. All submissions shall reference Docket No. R2011-02 and shall be addressed to the Docket Clerk, Hearings and Appeals, Division of Insurance, 1000 Washington St., Suite 810, Boston, MA 02118-6200.

Brown: Expedite Veterans' 'Well-Deserved Benefits'

on Veterans' Affairs held at Quincy City Hall.

Brown, a member of the Massachusetts Army National Guard who holds the rank of Lt. Colonel in the Judge Advocate General (JAG) Corps, said his staff is helping veterans work on claims that have been on hold for up to 15 years. He also said the average wait time before benefits are received was almost 400 days as of this March.

Two veterans who experienced problems dealing with the Department of Veterans Affairs were on hand to testify - Vietnam veteran Tom Conigliaro of Woburn and Iraq veteran Paul DeMaio of Plymouth. Also on hand to speak were Mike Sweeney and Francisco Urena, Veterans Service Agents for Lynn and Boston, respectively, and Brad Mayes, the director of the VA's Boston regional office.

Conigliaro, who was exposed to Agent Orange during his time in the service and has fought cancer twice since, said it was tedious trying to work with the VA. "Trying to deal with the VA on my own, it was just something I didn't expect would be that difficult when I started out," he said. "I just thought it was something you did and you're a veteran and there are people there to help you."

Urena noted that Massachusetts veterans have a leg up over those in other states because cities and towns with populations exceeding 12,000 are required to have full-time veterans agents.

Urena also said the VA is making strides under Secretary Eric Shinseki's leadership. He pointed-out that a form veterans must fill out to apply for benefits was reduced from 26 to six pages over the past year. "This has allowed more veterans to begin and complete the easier process," he said.

Sweeney, who also serves as President of the Massachusetts Veterans' Service Officers Association, agreed that the VA is making progress. But he also criticized the department for its selfimposed 2015 deadline to clear the backlog.

"A three-year timeline simply is not ambitious enough for America's veterans and their families; the brave men and women, and their families, who are part of this backlog often do not have the luxury of waiting for the VA to fix their problems," Sweeney said.

Sweeney said a simple solution would be for Congress to provide more funding to the department, but the country's uneasy financial situation makes it difficult to do.

Mayes said Congress has been properly funding the VA, calling their budget generous."

He said real improvements will come as more work is done to help vets online as opposed to over the phone, freeing phone reps to deal with paper claims. The VA's eBenefits program which is a joint project with the Department of Defense - had its millionth member join in September. In addition to allowing vets to file paperwork and update their contact information, they can also see the progress of their benefits applications.

Brown thanked Mayes for his work helping with claims, and asked if he could help with the appeals process at the VA's Washington office.

"You will work through and process them in an expedited manner but then it goes up to D.C. and it's like the black hole," the Senator said. "There's no response, I can't get through. I actu-

Mayes said the best solution is to work with veterans so they don't feel need appeal his office's decisions.

Brown probed other solutions to solving the backlog issue. He asked both veterans how much assistance they got from their units when they discharged from service.

Conigliaro agreed, telling Brown "it's like you were there" when the Senator asked if Congliaro's discharge consisted simply of "thank you very much, salute, and see you later."

Speaking from his experience, Urena said it was common that veterans weren't out-processed the correct way. He advised that people joining or currently serving in the military save all their records. But for veterans who might not have saved records, he said, it's "never too late" to file a benefits claim.

Morrissey Launches New Anti-Drunk Driving Campaign

Nichles Milone Completes Marine Corps Training

Marine Corps Pvt. Nichles R. Milone, son of Aneillo G. Milone of Quincy, recently completed 12 weeks of basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C designed to challenge new Marine recruits both physically and mentally.

Milone and fellow recruits began their training at 5 a. m., by running three miles and performing calisthenics. In addition to the physical conditioning program, Milone spent numerous hours in classroom and field assignments which included learning first aid, uniform regulations, combat water survival, marksmanship, hand-to-hand combat and assorted weapons training. They performed close order drill and operated as a small infantry unit during field training.

Milone and other recruits also received instruction on the Marine Corps' core values - honor, courage and commitment - and what the core values mean in guiding personal and professional conduct.

Milone and fellow recruits ended the training phase with The Crucible, a 54-hour, team evolution culminating in an emotional ceremony in which recruits are presented the Marine Corps Emblem, and addressed as "Marines" for the first time in their careers.

Targets Bartenders And Servers Norfolk District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey recently launched the new "Observe, Don't Over Serve" campaign at a series of events across the county.

The public awareness campaign is aimed at saving lives on the road this holiday season.

Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan and Captain John Dougan joined Morrissey at the regional kickoff event held at the new Dave & Buster's at the South Shore Plaza.

"Norfolk County constitutes about one tenth of the Commonwealth, and we have already seen more than 60 motor vehicle homicides this year - and about 50 of those have involved alcohol," Morrissey said.

Some of those crashes came after a driver convinced a server at a licensed establishment somewhere to continue serving them after they should have stopped, the district attorney said.

"For more than 20 years, the public conversation about drunk driving has revolved around the driver - from designated driver programs to charts and devices to tell drivers when they have had enough," Morrissey said. "We are out today with local police chiefs and responsible restaurant owners talking directly to the people who are serving alcohol every day this holiday season."

'Observe, Don't Over Serve'

Morrissey designed displays, captioned "Observe, Don't Over Serve," and printed 7,000 using crime prevention dollars drawn from monies forfeited by drug dealers his office has successfully prosecuted.

"There are just less than 700 restaurants, clubs and bars in Norfolk County holding liquor licenses. Packages containing these materials are arriving at those establishments, and we are asking, very publicly, that managers and owners display these at server stations and where workers place and fill drink orders," Morrissey said.

The placards "can serve as a constant physical reminder to every server of the important role they can play in preventing drunk driving and the death and injury that often comes with it," Morrissey said.

Servers every day have the difficult task of telling a patron, sometimes a customer they have known for years and will see again the next day, that they have had enough and need to stop if they plan to drive.

"That is not often a popular message," Morrissey said. "This program serves to reinforce the conversation that managers are having with their servers, but also supports the server, who can now point to this and tell that customer that their manager, their owner is working with the local police chief, working with the district attorney, and that their establishment is not going to provide them with another drink if they are driving."

Morrissey launched the campaign at three events Dec. 5, working with responsible restaurants executives at Patriot Place in Foxborough, where he was joined by Foxborough Police Chief Edward O'Leary and Walpole Chief Rick Stillman.

He was then joined by Keenan, Dougan, Randolph Chief William Pace, Mayor Joseph Sullivan and several Braintree officers at the new Dave & Buster's Restaurant at the South Shore Plaza.

The final kick-off event was held at the King's bowling alley at Legacy Place in Dedham, where he was joined by Dedham Chief Michael J. D'Entremont, Needham Chief Phil Droney, Stoughton Chief Paul J. Shastany and County Commissioner Francis O'Brien.

"We are pleased to have the support of Mayor Koch, Mayor Sue Kay from Weymouth and Mayor Sullivan in Braintree as we promote responsible alcohol serving on the south shore and across the county," Morrissey said.

Bragg said the community service requirement has received support from the Citywide Parents' Council and principals at North Quincy and Quincy High School.

She noted more and more communities are making community service a graduation requirement.

Ten years ago, the Massachusetts Department of Education reported 29 school systems had a community service requirement, according to Bragg. The requirement has been school policy in Natick for 15 years.

Other communities with a community service graduation requirement include Belmont, Dedham, Weymouth, Lexington and Pembroke (40 hours per student); Amesbury (75 hours of service); and Milton (140 hours of service).

Framingham is also considering community service as a high school graduation requirement.

Under Bragg's plan:

· Students would be encouraged to accumulate more than 10 hours per year community service activities that are not on the list must be pre-approved prior to any hours being recorded.

· A pre-approval form and Community Service Activity Form would be developed by the administration and posted on the Quincy Public School's website as well as available at each high school.

· Principals or their designee may grant waivers for extenuating circumstances.

The policy change would affect about 2,800 high school students; about 1,300 attend North Quincy High School and another 1,500 are enrolled at Quincy High

"Many high school groups are already (performing community service.) The principals at both high schools want it and say they can make it work. The Citywide Parents' Council also wants this requirement," Bragg said.

"Community service is giving of one-self to help others and many Quincy Public Schools students through their clubs and organizations such as the National Honor Society and ROTC have already benefitted from the virtues of community service," Bragg

Blind Dispatcher Retires After 38 Years As Water, Sewer, Drain Department's 'Go-To-Guy'

By EMILY TAFT

After 38 years working as a dispatcher for the city's Water, Sewer and Drain Department, David Baharian retired Nov. 30th.

"I decided it was time to go, and do something else. It's time to move on to the next chapter of my life," said Baharian. "I was the first one to kind of break the ice and open the door for the city to hire others (who are blind)."

When Baharian was born in 1937, he was faced with the challenge of not being able to see. But that never stopped him and he will continue to try new things as a retiree.

"He carries on like anyone with eyes," said Bill Fullerton, a co-worker and friend of over 30 years. "He is the guy that everyone goes to. He has the time, knowledge and patience."

Fullerton and Baharian have worked side-by-side together for years. They were also carpool buddies commuting together to work each day.

"I am going to have to turn my radio up louder now that he won't be in the car with me each morning," said Fullerton. "He has been a good friend to me. I will miss him."

Baharian handled calls from the public asking for info on the water, sewer and flooding issues in the city. He also fielded calls to different departments and dispatched trucks to various locations.

Baharian jokes that when he is asked for directions or for information that no one would want to listen to him because he is blind.

"When I am asked to give someone directions my response is they won't listen to me because I am blind," Baharian joked. "Who would listen to a blind person?"

Even though he jokes, Baharian is the go-to-guy for directions according to friend and co-worker Jodi Bergstrom.

"I have lived in Quincy my whole life, and he probably knows Quincy better than I do," said Bergstrom. "He is an amazing guy."

Baharian said he hasn't had any challenges or faced any prejudices in his life because he can't see.

"I can't really say that I've had any challenges in my life," said Baharian. "I have worked with excellent people who have helped me along the way. Everyone I have worked with has worked together as a team."

Baharian worked in the same city department since he graduated from Eastern Nazarene College, where he studied literature and speech.

"I know a lot of things after working here for 38 years," said Baharian. "I will miss the people the most. Most of my friends are from work, but they are just a phone call away."

At work he uses a computer to help him do his job. The computer is installed with a program that speaks and allows Baharian to proof read documents before printing and sending them out. "I really think that most people I come in contact with don't realize I can't see," said Baharian.

Baharian said that he also spends a lot of time on the computer at home, and isn't really into watching TV shows.

Baharian said computer technology for the blind has changed a lot since his first computer in 1982.

Along with spending time on the computer, Baharian can be found playing the organ in church, which is something he said he would never retire from doing.

Learning to play was a little different for Baharian, he had a few teachers who taught him the logistics of the organ throughout the years, but after learning the keys he had to memorize the music in order to play.

"I like the sound of the organ, and now I can play music by just hearing it being played," said Baharian. "When I heard it in church for the first time I thought boy I'd like to do that,' so I tried it and loved it."

For Baharian, it wasn't the first or the last thing he will want to try despite his disability.

"I am willing to try anything I want to," said Baharian. "I've probably done everything I can think of, that I've wanted to try."

Just a few weeks ago, Baharian could be spotted at the shooting range being taught how the guns work and how to shoot them. He has also tried his hand at driving several different types of vehicles, with a friend right next to him telling him when to turn and what pedals to push.

Now that he has a lot of free time on his hands, Baharian said will try some new activities such as cooking, tutoring, visiting his brother in Florida, and maybe even getting back into the radio station.

Baharian said he most likely would go back to school and take a few more classes in literature and speech. He also plans to help at Perkins School for the Blind.

"They (Perkins School for the Blind) have given me a lot," said Baharian. "If I can give something back to them then that's what I will do."

On Dec. 1 Baharian's coworkers and friends at the DPW threw a surprise party for him at Louis' Crossing, Quincy. The place was packed with over 30 friends celebrating Baharian's next chapter in his life. It was the day after he had retired.

"It doesn't feel any different now that I am retired," Baharian added.

Friends For Italian Home For Children Benefit Fundraiser Friday

By EMILY TAFT

Friends of the Italian Home for Children will hold a fundraiser Friday, Dec. 16 at the Robert I. Nickerson American Legion Post, Squantum, to raise funds for a holiday party for IHC children.

Proceeds will also help run programs at the home throughout the year.

Those who want to attend are encouraged to bring a new toy to donate that will go towards a child's wish list.

The event has a $10 admission fee and will feature raffle prizes, appetizers, cash bar and a DJ.

Prizes include gift certificates, three-month membership to the YMCA, passes to Storyland and Santa's Village, an overnight stay including breakfast at the Marriott and a Shawn Thornton signed Stanley Cup DVD.

The Italian Home for Children services kids ages 3-14 from all over the state.

"There is a greater need now, especially around this time of year," said Gayle Bellotti, a volunteer and IHC's Incorporator. "We serve around 80 kids right now with cases of severe abuse."

Twenty years ago, Bellotti came across the wish list of children from IHC and decided she wanted to get involved. After recruiting some friends to donate toys during the holidays, and filling up the back of a pick up truck with gifts, Bellotti decided she wanted to help more.

"The kids there (at the Italian Home for Children) require a lot of care because they have been through so much," said Bellotti. "It is incredibly sad to see these children and hear what they have been through, but it is wonderful to hear and see their success stories."

Bellotti said she gets very involved with the children at the home and each year there are a few children she follows in hopes that they reach that happy ending.

"They need so much more because they have suffered so much in their lives," said Bellotti. "Where else are they going to go?"

The IHC is a residential and day treatment facility for emotionally and behaviorally challenged children. Their values consist of protecting the rights of children, and promoting the highest standards of education, care and treatment for children. The Italian Home is located in Jamaica Plain, but serves all children in Massachu-

The home specializes in the assessment and treatment of a variety of behavioral and mental health concerns.

The home works with some families in hopes to keep them together. There are some children who go there for the day, for school and other programs, and there are those who stay at the home searching for a new family.

The IHC is a campus that holds day treatments, therapy, school, and counseling, and depending on the individual child they will participate in what they need.

Bellotti said that the combined fundraiser is something they decided to do this year on a whim, in hopes to raise money and toys for the

With the economy still in decline Bellotti said that she has found it difficult to raise as much money as they have in previous years, and she said she hopes to raise at least a couple of thousand, but said she will take any money they can raise.

The IHC holds other fundraisers throughout the year but this one will provide a holiday party and toys for each child.

"These kids are asking for what any normal kid their age would want as a present," said Bellotti. "We want to be able to get them what they want."

The event has a $10 admission fee and will feature raffle prizes, appetizers, cash bar and a DJ.

Prizes include gift certificates, three-month membership to the YMCA, passes to Storyland and Santa's Village, an overnight stay including breakfast at the Marriott and a Shawn Thornton signed Stanley Cup DVD.

From State Attorney General, Mass. Retailers Association

Consumer Tips For Safe Holiday Shopping

State Attorney General Martha Coakley and the Retailers Association of Massachusetts are offering consumers these tips to protect themselves during this holiday shopping season:

Shopping At A Store

- 1. Gift certificates are good for seven years. Under Massachusetts Law, a gift certificate or a merchandise credit must be redeemable for seven years from the date of issuance. Once a consumer redeems a gift certificate or gift card for 90% of its value, the balance is redeemable in cash. State law does NOT apply to gift cards issued by a national bank.
- 2. Know the return policy. Stores in Massachusetts are required to disclose return policies prior to the transaction, so be sure you review the return policy BEFORE purchasing something. Return policies do not apply to defective goods.
- 3. Get your facts straightaway before you layaway. If you are putting an item on layaway, don't hand over money before knowing the store's policy. It is illegal for a store to fail to disclose or to misrepresent its layaway plan, or for a store to represent that the goods chosen by the buyer or an exact duplicate are being "laid away" if that is not true. It is illegal to increase the price of layaway goods.

4. Protect your personal and financial information. Check your bank and credit card statements for suspicious activity. Ask for a copy of the store's privacy policy or read the website's privacy policy to understand what personal information is being requested and how it will be used. If one is not posted, it should be taken as a red flag that personal information may be sold to others without permission.

5. Take advertisements with you. A business must honor the price displayed in its advertisement, even if it is incorrect. However, once a business corrects the price in its advertisement, they may sell it for the new price. If a store runs out of a product, check the ad to see if they are offering rain checks. Under state law, businesses must offer rain checks unless they otherwise state in their advertisements that they will not.

"Particularly in this economy, consumers will look for the best deals when doing their holiday shopping," Coakley said. "The key is to be educated consumers. We advise people to know their rights and do their homework on a merchant — including online sellers — before purchasing a big ticket item."

"Consumers have unlimited options on where to spend their dollars this holiday season," said Jon B. Hurst, president of the Retailers Association of Massachusetts. "Price is important, but so is service, reliability, and the local economy. Consumers need to do their homework before they spend their dollars."

Shopping Online

- 1. Confirm website security. Shop only on trusted websites. Shoppers should always look in the address box for the "s" in "https://" and in the lower-right corner of the check-out page for the "lock" symbol before paying for an item. You can also right-click anywhere on the website page and select "properties" to view a website's URL and determine if the website is encrypted. Do not make the purchase if the website is not secure.
- Pay with a credit card. If you shop online, pay with a credit card. This offers an added layer of consumer protection. Under federal law, shoppers can dispute Internet purchases if they don't receive the purchased items. Consumers can also dispute unauthorized charges made on their credit cards. Be sure to print all confirmation pages and save any e-mail correspondence about your order as a record of the purchase.

- 3. Beware of Phishing. Remember, legitimate businesses do not send emails announcing problems with an order or account and proactively solicit consumers' financial information. If you receive an email like this, call the company where the purchase was made to confirm whether there really was a problem with the transaction.
- 4. Know who you are dealing with. Online shopping can make it difficult to know who you are doing business with. Do some research and read online reviews, to make sure you are dealing with a reputable business. If you are using on an online auction site, in most situations, it merely brings together the buyer and seller. Check a seller's record, and if you have made a successful bid, make direct contact with the seller and try not to use just email.

While most businesses are reputable, consumers who have a problem or unresolved issue may wish to make a complaint by contacting the Attorney General's Consumer Hotline at (617) 727-8400. The Attorney General's Website, www.mass.gov/ago, offers additional tips on retail rights and consumer protections.

Nominations Coming In For Henry Bosworth Citizen Award

Deadline Saturday, Dec. 31

Nominations are coming in for the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award presented by The Quincy Sun.

The award – formerly known as the Sun Citizen of the Year – was renamed in 2010 in memory of Mr. Bosworth, The Quincy Sun's founder and longtime publisher.

Last year, John M. Gillis, a lifelong Quincy Point resident, was recognized as a "champion of the little guy" during his public service career that has spanned more than 50 years. Gillis served 33 years as Quincy city clerk before he was elected a Norfolk County commissioner in 1992, a post he has served nearly 20 years.

Gillis was selected for the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award by a judging panel among 22 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

Gillis is the first recipient of the Bosworth Award and the 28th individual overall to be recognized by the Sun for outstanding community service. The other recipients received the award when it was known as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below in this week's issue of The Quincy Sun.

Nominations will close

Saturday, Dec. 31. After nominations close, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2011 Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun Attn: Bosworth Award 1372 Hancock St. Quincy, MA 02169

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the their nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor, friend or community activist who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Pearl Harbor Lesson: Never Let Our Guard Down

Robert Noble, an Army veteran of World War II and an ex-Prisoner of War, said the Japanese sneak attack on Pearl Harbor 70 years ago was a galvanizing event that brought the country together.

"We would not have the country we have today without everyone's contribution," Noble said during his address at the Quincy Veterans Council's 70th Pearl Harbor service held at the Morrisette American Legion Post.

Noble also said our country must remain vigilant and "never let our guard down" while always remembering the sacrifice of all who gave their lives defending this nation.

Approximately 125 people attended the observance including state and city elected officials and a representative from Cong. William Keating's office.

Here is the text of Mr. Noble's address:

I am a veteran of World War II, a former prisoner of war of Germany, past Massachusetts state commander of the American ex-prisoners of war, and a member of this post.

I want to acknowledge Larry Norton for his continuing effort of organizing events such as this (70th anniversary of the attack at Pearl Harbor) to remind everyone of our veteran's contribution to our country.

I thank the Quincy Veterans Council and the Morrisette American Legion Post 294 for hosting today's event.

I am honored to be here today on the 70th anniversary of the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor. The attack killed over 2,400, wounded 1,282 and drew us into the greatest conflict in world history.

Approximately 18,000 men and women organized the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association, less than 3,000 remain today, and they no longer hold a national convention.

On Dec. 7, this year they will observe the 70th anniversary of the attack aboard the USS Alabama, only three will be in attendance. The organization will disband at the end of this year.

Quincy has one remaining Pearl Harbor survivor, Frank Connolly, a crew member of the Light Cruiser St. Louis.

The St. Louis was one of the first ships to get underway and leave Pearl Harbor after shooting down a Japanese torpedo plane and surviving an attack by a mini submarine.

Over 16 million sons and daughters became members of our military. They fought against regimes, which would have made our lives unimaginable if we had been defeated.

When the Japanese attacked our country they brought together a people who were divided.

There was a significant faction that thought the two oceans that separated us from Europe and Asia was sufficient to protect us from the armies of the Axis Nations. Little did the Japanese know, or even did we know, what a sleeping giant they were awakening.

We were fortunate to have a President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, (the right man at the right time) who was able to pull together all the segments of our society to work for the common good of our country and eventually the world.

His speech before congress on December 8, 1941 was a rallying call.

The lack of any formal warning, particularly while negotiations were still ongoing, led F.D.R. to proclaim December 7, 1941 "A day which will live in infamy."

During the following days and months, men and women, rallied not only to join the various branches of the service, but also to plan and convert our manufacturing industries. Our country went from a peacetime economy, which was not at full capacity, to an unequaled wartime effort.

We were able to provide the guns, planes, tanks, and ships required for our Army, Navy, and Marines. We became the arsenal for all of our allies. Everyone at home participated in the war effort.

Both men and women worked in the various industries. They conserved the material needed to supply the gigantic maw of war. They did with less, they did without.

Quincy not only sent her men and women to war but it was the site of a shipyard known the world over for the great warships it launched there.

Quincy provided sailors for those ships and aviators from the Squantum Naval Station to fly the planes from the Quincy built carriers.

Her soldiers fought all over the world from North Africa, Sicily, Italy, France, Germany, and the Pacific Theatre of Operations.

Quincy's sailors and Marines, half a world away, fought their way from island to island to finally bring the war to the Japanese homeland.

It was only then Japan submitted to unconditional surrender.

Many of us had experiences we seldom talk abut. D-Day landings, not only in France but also in Italy and the Pacific islands.

There was the cold, the heat, the mud, machine gun fire, artillery burst, long cold flights in aircraft to meet skies filled with anti-aircraft flack and enemy fighters. Fires on aircraft carriers, sailors fighting to shoot down Kamikaze planes before they could complete their suicide missions.

Some of us experienced dehumanizing captivity and treatment by the Japanese and Germans. Most of the prisoners of the Japanese are no longer with us due to mistreatment and advanced age.

At home our families waited to hear from their sons, daughters, brothers

We are here today to remember an event and those who perished in that surprise attack; it and they should never be forgotten. I think we are, we cannot let our guard down.

We should also remember today all of the monuments which have been erected in the various neighborhoods of our city. They were erected by grateful friends and neighbors, in recognition of those from their area who served their country.

We should remember in particular the memorial erected in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery dedicated to those 257 men who gave their lives, in defense of their city and country.

We would not have the country we have today without everyone's contribution.

No event today is held without having in our thoughts and prayers the members of our armed forces, currently in harms way. May they return soon, to a government and people who will welcome them and provide them with medical and emotional support they will need. May God bless them and our country.

BBB Warns Homeowners

Some homeowners who are "under water" with their mortgages can refinance under the Home Affordable Refinance Program (HARP), but the Better Business Bureau is warning consumers that banks and mortgage companies aren't the only ones gearing up for the rush of applications.

"Whenever there is a new or updated government program that may be a bit confusing, scammers come out of the woodwork to take advantage of that confusion," said Katherine Hutt, spokesperson for the Council of Better Business Bureaus. "There are already hundreds of websites claiming to be able to help homeowners through the HARP process, but many of them are rip-offs and scams."

BBB is warning all homeowners who are thinking of applying for a HARP refinance to: -Deal directly with your lender first, and never make payments to anyone other than your lender.

 Don't pay upfront fees to anyone who promises to provide counseling, takes care of the paperwork for you, or stops the foreclosure process

The changes to the HARP program were announced by President Obama in October to allow homeowners to refinance at lower interest rates, even if their home is currently worth less than their mortgage. The new HARP rules apply to homeowners who are current on their payments and whose loans are backed by either FannieMae or FreddieMac. Some lenders will begin accepting applications as early as today, although many will take a few weeks or even a few months to roll out the program. More than one million borrowers are expected to apply for the program, according to the Federal Housing Finance Agency, which oversees the two major mortgage lending programs.

This Is A Hammer By SAMANTHA MAZZOTTA

The Gift of Empowerment

DEAR HAMMER: My daughter moved into her first home this fall, and I want to give her a gift that will truly be useful. What I'd like her to know is the feeling one gets after successfully tackling a difficult home repair, like a leaky faucet or a broken window pane. So I'm putting together a basic toolkit, most of which is in a rust-resistant toolbox, and wrapping it all in a pink bow. Here are some of the items I'm including for her:

-A claw hammer and a ball peen hammer, and several small boxes of -A set of screwdrivers with removable bits in different sizes and shapes, and a ratchet screwdriver with interchangeable bits.

-Pliers: one slip-joint and one locking pair of pliers, and a 10-inch adjustable wrench for big bolts. Also, a wire cutter.

-My favorite item: a cordless rechargeable power drill.

-A flexible steel tape measure and a combination laser level-stud find-general-purpose handsaw for cutting wood, and a 10-inch hacksaw to cut metal.

-Putty knives in different widths.

-A metal file, a wood rasp, sandpaper block and assorted sandpaper sheets.

-A wire brush and a nylon brush.

-Duct tape, electrical knife and a utility knife. -Safety goggles, leather work gloves and a filter mask with replaceable fil-

I hope your readers like this list! I've enjoyed being able to handle minor repairs around the house on my own, and I can't wait to pass on this tradition .- Joyce G., Kansas City, Mo.

DEAR JOYCE: That's a fantastic starter kit and a great gift idea! Your daughter likely will appreciate it even more knowing that it came from you and that you put thought into the items she'll need for most repairs.

Being able to handle minor repairs and emergencies gives one a great sense of empowerment -- something the hottest electronics or latest fashions can't impart. Kudos for putting together a wonderful gift.

HOME TIP: To prevent a metal file or wood rasp's teeth from clogging up, rub the file or rasp with chalk before starting a job.

Egg nog, Christmas carols and festive entertainment were just a few of the highlights of the Quincy Lions Club's annual holiday luncheon for members of the South Shore Center for the Visually Impaired.

The annual luncheon, held recently at The Neighborhood Club of Quincy, featured a complete holiday dinner provided by the Lions Club, which provides aid to local blind and visually impaired individuals.

Attendees participated in a Christmas carol sing-along, followed by Elder Services Director Tom Clasby singing the song, "What Color is the Wind?" Entertainment was also provided by center member Virginia Gibson, who sang "White Christmas," "Jingle Bell Rock" and "O Holy Night" while accompanied by Lion John Capavella on piano and Neal Lipson on flute and saxophone. Both Gibson and Lipson are visually im-

"This is always a wonderful event and we really appreciate all the Lions do for us," said Center for the Visually Impaired Director Peg O'Connor, noting that the Lions have provided monetary donations to support the center's activities.

To express the group's appreciation, center member Gloria Tirrell knitted a hand-made afghan which was raffled off to a member of the Lions Club.

THE MARINA BAY SPORTSPLEX, located at 260 Victory Road, Marina Bay will open for business later this month. The indoor facility, which was previously an old boat warehouse, has been outfitted with a top-grade pro-turf surface and will be utilized as a multi-sport venue. This photo, which was taken on Sunday, shows part of the 60-by-40-yard playing surface (the black you see are the rubber pellets being added to give the turf additional bounce), the new lighting and insulation and the netting that will be used to separate the field into multiple playing surfaces. # Indoor Multi-Sport Facility Located At 260 Victory Road, Marina Bay

Play At The Bay: Marina Bay Sportsplex Opening

By SEAN BRENNAN

Don Martin had his Ray Kinsella-moment over 20 years ago.

In the 1989 classic Field of Dreams, Kevin Costner's character hears a voice, which tells him, "If you build it, he will come;" Costner's Ray Kinsella then envisions a baseball diamond on his farm.

Martin had a vision that if he could build an indoor multi-sport complex in Quincy, everyone would come. It took him years to see his vision come to fruition, but soon, possibly before Christmas, he and fellow majority owner Derek McCleary will officially open the Marina Bay Sportsplex at 260 Victory Road, Marina Bay.

"The moment came to me twenty-plus years ago," Martin said during a tour of the Marina Bay Sportsplex, "but it was impossible to get it done back then. This is a result of a lot of people helping get it done. I used to rent the Bridgewater Dome 25 years ago and I would run (soccer) tournaments and I just couldn't (open one in Quincy) back then with the way the economy was and I couldn't dedicate as much time back then (as I can now) and the location the location is key. This is a unique location."

Situated in an old boat warehouse, which was built back in 1981, the Marina Bay Sportsplex features a 60-by-40-yard pro-turf playing surface. The Sportsplex will be open for use including soccer, lacrosse, baseball, softball, and football leagues, camps and clinics, just to name a few possible options for anyone seeking a venue to play indoors.

"We have been looking for a long time," added McCleary. "Don and I have worked together for a long time as a nonprofit with Quincy Youth Soccer and became good friends. We have been hunting for a site and we have been eyeing this location for awhile and when we found out it was available, we approached the owners."

"This was an old boat warehouse and this structure was (already) here," continued McCleary. "When we came in here it was partially gutted because another organization had made a go of it and for whatever reason it didn't work. We came in and basically spent a lot of money bringing it up to code, which required a lot of steel work to support the number of people that will be coming in here to make it safe."

The final results have what Martin likes to call the "wow factor." The space is surprisingly large and, with the open 60-by-40-yard playing surface there is the potential to have multiple activities going on at the same time. The surface can be split into two or three smaller fields by netting, which will separate the turf into a bustle of activity.

"Everyone comes in here and, it is just the 'wow factor," said Martin. "You don't really appreciate it until you step in here. It is

Lots & Lots Of Space

It is hard to describe in print the amount of space that the Marina Bay Sportsplex offers.

You enter through double-doors and walk into a climate-controlled reception area. To the right of this space are bathrooms - there are no locker rooms yet but there is potential to add them in the future. Outside the reception area is the pro-

Installed by Robert Reep of Pro-One Netting, the playing surface is high-end. It is the same pro-turf surface as those used at Lucas Oil Stadium in Indianapolis and the Georgia Dome in Atlanta. The pro-turf has been mixed with rubber pellets and participants will be allowed to wear conventional cleats (no metal spikes), which will only enhance the experience.

"To me it is the best artificial playing surface (on the market)," said Reep during a break in installation over the weekend. "It is soft and very realistic. Realism is big and as far as artificial turf it doesn't get any better."

There is a second-level, which will be used for office and storage space. There is not a mezzanine level, but McCleary acknowledged that there is a possibility for expansion further down the

"There are no locker rooms yet but we have to expand it eventually, McCleary said. "We would also like a mezzanine level so we can have more space but right now this is going to be an open space. We tried to set it up to be very flexible. The beauty of the space is that we could have batting cages in one spot, soccer in the middle and lacrosse in another area. At any given hour you could see three sports going on at once."

According to Martin, the Marina Bay Sportsplex will be open whenever there is a demand. He also mentioned that on site storage would house space for soccer nets plus additional supplies.

"We will probably be out of here (each day) at 11 p.m., and depending on what people want we may be here at 6 a.m. If people want space and they are signing up we will have somebody here to man the place," he said. "Our lacrosse guy is bringing in nets and we are purchasing the soccer nets; any other sport like baseball and softball will bring their own equipment."

"There are still a lot of details that need to be worked out like do they want to store on site rather than bringing it in each time," Martin acknowledged, "but those are details that we will work out. Fail fast-forward ideas about how we want I always say. You are going to make mistakes but we will get it right. As long as the relationship is good we are going to work out everything."

Everyone Is Welcome

As soccer guys, Martin and McCleary envision the Marina Bay Sportsplex being heavily utilized by local soccer clubs, but, already, local lacrosse organizations have expressed an interest in renting time and space.

The Marina Bay Sportsplex will also have batting cages for baseball and softball, and in the future they may install virtual golf ranges for folks to come in and refine their game during the winter months. Martin is also in discussions to bring in local Gaelic football clubs. But the possibilities are endless.

"From a soccer standpoint we will be able to set up two 6 vs. 6 fields, side-by-side, and for the older age groups we will be able to play 8 vs. 8 on a full field," explained McCleary.

"There will be no boards and there is a reason for that: we're against boards," Mc-Cleary added. Unlike the indoor complex in Hingham, the Marina Bay Sportsplex is board-free. "One, there is a hazard to having boards to a certain degree where kids bang into them and the injuries that result, but also from skill-development standpoint not having boards is ideal because it keeps the ball in play, constantly. We are trying to diversify the space and make it available to all sports. Yes, I think initially soccer - and we will be running leagues - is probably representing the majority of our space but it is not significantly the majority. I think lacrosse and baseball (and softball) could be equally as good."

"(Not having boards) lends itself to every other sport," added Martin, "and that is the key component. This is a multi-sport facil-

When it comes to renting space, McCleary refers to Martin as the "rainmaker." Martin is well connected in the sporting community and his ability to bring in business has been immensely helped by the finished product. Space is going fast.

"We have leagues starting right away," Martin said about what to expect once the Marina Bay Sportsplex officially opens this month. "We don't have set times for certain sports. What I have done is sat down and mapped out all the people who we would look to have in here. Derek and I spent a lot of time on identifying the different markets and then reached out to all the relationships we have and we haven't had to go beyond that yet."

"To be honest," he continued, "people that we knew and folks that they know, that extended network is huge and people where in early on when we told them what we were doing. We first told them to put in what they would like (choice of time); we sat down, laid it all out, had to make some changes (in time) and shifted things around. But people have been very flexible and we went back out to these organizations and everyone is happy. We have committed and they have committed and we are all on track."

If You Build It... They Will Come

Finding the perfect location was the first step in the construction of the Marina Bay Sportsplex. The fact that Martin and McCleary found the space in beautiful Marina Bay was an added bonus.

But this project would not have gotten off the ground without the help and support of the Quincy community, and especially the Marina Bay community.

"It was quite positive," Martin said in regards to the initial response from the Marina Bay Civic Association when he brought his vision to them for consideration. "I came in and met with the Association and soon I'll be a member – it is always nice to be part of rather than an outsider. I want to be seen as one of them?" Tayyib of 2016.

"The bulk of our business is off-season from the rest of the Marina Bay community," explained Martin. The Marina Bay Sportsplex will be heavily used during the winter months while during the summer months, when the area is bustling with activity the schedule is expected to slow down. "We also have a tremendous amount of parking. We will be open in the summer, but it will be limited."

Martin and McCleary are the majority owners but numerous local businessmen and residents have also contributed to the construction and costs attributed to the space. Most of them have requested a silent partnership, and Martin and McCleary respect that, but both men gave contractor John Iredale.

Iredale's Karsten Company did the majority of the structural work, which included reinforcing the steel structure.

glowing praise to general

"His energy helped push this (project) through," said McCleary.

Martin added: "John is always seeing the glass a halffull."

Martin will also handle the daily maintenance and hiring at the Marina Bay Sportsplex but he doesn't foresee hiring a large staff.

"You don't need a large staff," he said. "You need someone at the desk who can be available to provide for folks and then someone to handle the field (working the netting etc.). Some (indoor pro-turf facilities) do no maintenance but I am. The turf should be groomed every 100 hours and I am going to be the groomer."

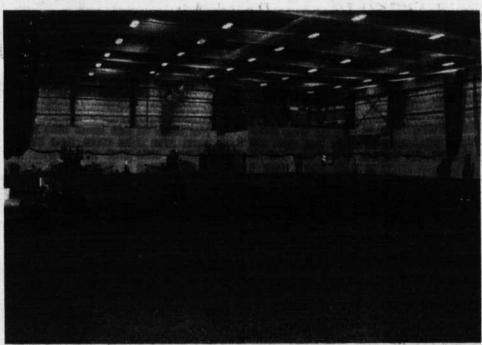

"At the end of the day, I want the best people in here," he concluded. "I am going to be the face of the facility. I'll be the point of contact and I'll manage the place and hire the staff. If you are here and you are doing the right thing you get the benefit of the doubt. This is supposed to be fun and I want to have fun with it."

The Marina Bay Sportsplex is located at 260 Victory Road in Marina Bay. For additional information about renting space email Don Martin at don@marinabaysportsplex.com or visit www. marinabaysportsplex.com.

TWO WEEKS AGO the Marina Bay Sportsplex was an empty shell filled with bustling construction activity. The finished product is a state-of-the-art multi-sport indoor facility.

Returns Majority Of Last Year's Roster

North Quincy Has High Expectations

By SEAN BRENNAN

En route to a 10-10 regular season and a spot in the Division 1 South state tournament, last year's North Quincy boys' basketball team found its identity.

The Red Raiders competed with just two seniors - Paul Gould and Jiabau Shang - on the varsity roster; the rest of the program was a collection of eager underclassmen and, what came about through all the ups-and-downs was a team identity that was bonded with a common goal of giving 110% during every practice and game.

The results in 2011 were far from perfect but sometimes success is achieved through disappointment. And when you have the pieces players whose only goal is to be better than they were the day before - who have played together through the tough times, it drives those pieces to work even harder for success.

The 2012 Red Raiders are out to prove that they deserve to be mentioned in the conversation as to which teams are the best programs this winter in Division 1.

"We only graduated two seniors off last year's team," said head coach Kevin Barrett on Monday. "With the players that we have returning we are feeling good about the season. These kids got varsity experience last season and they have been working day-in-and-day-out to get

"They had a competitive off-season." Barrett said about his team. In high school athletics coaches are not allowed to be hands-on with their players after the season is over but that rule does not prohibit players from competing and playing in leagues and tournaments on their own.

SENIOR TIM LIUZZO, a three-year starter, and the Red Raiders get underway on Friday at Silver Lake.

"Throughout the spring, summer and fall these guys went out and played up against some tough competition," continued Barrett. "They come into the season battletested. It has been a competitive off-season for these guys and we are all hoping that it pays dividends."

Leading the way when the season gets underway at Silver Lake on Friday will be seniors Tim Liuzzo and Paul Cunniff. Liuzzo, a 6'3" forward and a returning Patriot League all-star, and Cunniff, a 5'11" bruising forward, are the foundation for North Quincy in regards to leadership and accountability.

Liuzzo and Cunniff play the game the right way. Both players epitomize Barrett's message that success on the parquet comes from boxing out, pursuing the ball and rebounding on the defensive

"Timmy is our team leader," Barrett said. "He was unanimously voted as a team captain (second year) and he is a three-year starter for us; he brings stability to the front court. Paul made himself into our most valuable player last year and he has only gotten

"In order for us to be successful we are going to have to box out, pursue any loose ball and limit teams to one shot on the defensive end," continued Barrett, before adding: "We may be undersized but we are well-balanced and if we play our game and don't look past anyone we should be pretty tough to beat."

Joining Liuzzo and Cunniff in the senior class are returnees Joe Brown and Ryan

"Joe and Ryan give us some much needed depth at forward," Barrett stated.

The junior core is highlighted by twin brothers Dan and Pat Gould.

Dan Gould finished last season as a consistent offensive threat playing at off-guard (shooting guard). The Patriot League all-star led all Red Raider scorers in the tournament game versus Needham with 21 points and with Liuzzo and Cunniff collapsing the paint, Gould should see an increase in open shooting lanes this winter.

Pat Gould will direct the defense from the point guard position.

"Our backcourt will be Dan and Pat Gould and these two have basketball IQs that are off the charts," said Barrett about his guard-combo. "They have been playing together since they were four and they know each other so well. Both have been working extra hard this off-season; it doesn't hurt that they are very smart out there on the court."

Junior Marquis McClendon is Barrett's ace-up-thesleeve. McClendon will start at small forward for North Quincy. The talented junior swingman has the potential to be the most explosive scorer on the roster. With Dan and Pat Gould drawing attention at guard and Liuzzo and Cunniff doing the same at center and power forward, McClendon is going to have the opportunity to shine.

Coming off the bench alongside Brown and Ryan will be sophomores Efthim Butka, Greg Clarke and firstyear player Kyle Richardson. Butka and Clarke both got valuable varsity experience last year and were both part of the off-season circuit that brought the team closer to-

"We have a good thing going with our bench," Barrett said. "These guys may be young but they have been here all along getting better."

Barrett realizes his program has the potential to be a force to be reckoned with but the goal this season is to take it one game at a time. In preparation for Friday night's road game at Silver Lake, he has been leaving the score of last year's game in Kingston on the white board in the locker room. North Quincy lost to the Lakers 60-56 on "Our entire focus is on Silver Lake," he said. "We want to do something we couldn't do last year, which is to win a road game at Silver Lake. We will worry about the next game when this one is over."

"I consider myself lucky," concluded Barrett when discussing the upcoming season. "These kids are hungry to do well. They are all successful on the court but more importantly for me they are all high-achieving in the classroom and in the community."

Mark December 23 your calendar. North Quincy hosts Quincy at 7 p.m. in a "Christmas Eve Eve" showdown.

Lost to Duxbury in Div. 2 First Round Game

Quincy Preparing For A Full-Court Press

By SEAN BRENNAN

After qualifying for the Division 2 state tournament last winter, David Parry's Quincy High boys' hoops team said goodbye to a talented senior class.

The Presidents finished last season with an 11-11 regular season record, which included an impressive 9-6mark in the Patriot League. Quincy entered the South Sectional playoffs as the 13th seed and led state-power Duxbury 47-46 late in regulation before falling short by a score of 52-47 in a first round game.

But the team that took the Dragons to the limit is gone and, in its place is a collection of athletic, but inexperienced players. If Quincy wants to advance back to the playoffs, Parry is going to have to depend on the speed, athleticism and youth of his current roster, as the Presidents are short on frontcourt big men.

The only returning starter is senior forward Zerick Fadairo - a Patriot League allstar in 2011.

"Zerick is our only returning starter," said Parry on Monday, "and he really is our only big man. (Almost) everyone else on the roster played jayvee last season but we do have an athletic team. We are going to rely on that athleticism and we are going to have to use our defense to generate offense."

"It has been an up-anddown preseason," continued Parry whose team played over the weekend in a jamboree at Randolph High. "We will use a full-court press (on defense) and play up-tempo. The kids have been applying themselves and they have been working hard to get ready for the season. The goal is always to improve each day in practice."

With the loss of key players in Brian Malger, Ryan Schultz and Kevin McDonagh to graduation, and with only Fadairo back from last's year starting-five, Quincy needs a productive year out of combo-guard Reggie Cesar. A standout on the football field, Cesar will be asked to fill the leadership void.

"Reggie and Zerick are the leading seniors," said Parry. "Both are multi-sport athletes and I expect them to take the role of leader this season."

Replacing Malger - Quincy's starting point guard in 2011 - is a difficult proposition. Malger was a rock for the Presidents during the last two seasons when Quincy qualified for postseason play. Guards Tino Goncalves and Alex Bottari will split that assignment. For a team that wants to play fast-paced, point guard remains an allimportant position on the court this winter, which is something that Parry recog-

"Tino and Alex can't replace Malger but (we) feel like they should be able to be productive," he said.

Joining Cesar, Bottari and Goncalves in the backcourt will be Jalen Green and Jaqun Harris. Talk about athleticism. Green and Harris have speed to donate and both should fit in well with the plan to run opponents out of the building. So, expect to see Parry use every one of his guards during games the season.

Fadairo is Quincy biggest player at 6'3," which means that the forward group of Nick Lepore, Daniel Mongo, Mike Ruan, Brendan Cunningham, JT Bain, Dan Tran and Peter Cedrone - all undersized - will have to adapt to the full-court game instead of a usual half-court strategy most high school teams currently use.

"We just don't have the bodies to hammer teams away inside," explained Parry. "This is where our team athleticism hopefully comes into play."

Quincy catches no breaks in regards to its schedule. The Presidents play in a strong league. The top teams in the Patriot League this year, according to Parry, include Hanover and Scituate in the Fisher Division (the Presidents' division) and Duxbury and North Quincy in the Keenan Division. But every league game is going to be a battle.

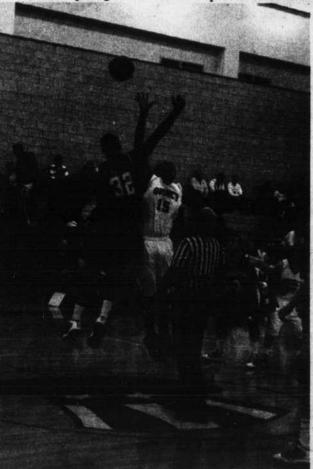

"I would say that Duxbury and North Quincy in the Keenan and Hanover and Scituate in the Fisher are the teams to beat," he said. "They all return a lot of experience. However, there are no easy games in this league."

"I think that we learned a lot about ourselves," Parry said when discussing his team's loss to Duxbury in last year's Div. 2 playoffs. "We showed that we could play with them and hopefully that brings some confidence to us this season."

The Presidents open the 2012 campaign on Friday at home against Duxbury (6:30 p.m. tip-off).

Following the home opener, Quincy plays at nonleague Bridgewater-Raynham on Dec. 20 and at North Quincy on Dec. 23 (6:30 p.m.). After Christmas, Quincy joins North Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth in the annual John Adams Holiday Tournament (Dec. 27-28) before finally returning home to play B-R on Jan. 3.

"Duxbury will be a test," said Parry before adding, "and then we play on the road until after the New Year. Playing on the road early should help eliminate any distractions and could give us a chance to rally around each other because sometimes kids can get overexcited playing at home. # Recreation Department Pool Gift Certificates

The Quincy Recreation Department has gift certificates for membership at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

The gift certificates are available for all membership types including Youth, Family, Adult and Senior Citizens. The membership will allow the recipient to participate in Recreation Department Swim Programs for the duration of the membership.

"This is an ideal way to provide a child or an adult the fun filled and fitness benefits of recreational swimming," said Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool has a variety of swims for family, youth, adults and senior citizens on weeknights and Sundays. The swims include lap swimming for adults and open recreational swims for children and families. The pool is 25 yards long, has six lanes, diving boards and recessed stairs for easy entry and exit and all Recreation Department swims are supervised by Quincy Recreation Department staff trained in accordance of the American Red Cross

Special Gift Certificates will be available in the lower lobby of the pool (Water Street entrance) in the evening from 6-8 p.m. Monday through Friday until Dec. 23 and Sunday, Dec. 18 from 1-3 p.m.

Certificates are also available at the Quincy Recreation Department main office, One Merrymount Parkway, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. through Thursday, Dec. 22.

For additional information, call the Quincy Recreation Department at 617-376-1394.

Elk's National 'Hoop Shoot' Free Throw Contest

Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, announced last Friday that the Quincy Recreation Department and the Quincy Lodge of Elks will once again co-sponsor the Elk's National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw Contest.

The first round of the Quincy contest will be offered at the following gymnasiums at 10 a.m. on Sat., Dec. 17: Atherton Hough, Atlantic Middle, Bernazzani, Beechwood Knoll, Merrymount, Montclair, Point Webster, Snug Harbor and Squantum.

The program will be conducted at 3 p.m. on Wed., Dec. 21 at the Marshall School, Wed., Dec. 21 at 3 p.m. at the Parker School and Friday, Dec. 23 at 3 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock School.

The Quincy competition is the first step in a national contest for boys and girls age 8-13. Contestants are assigned to three separate categories in both boys and girls' divisions. Age groups are: 8-9, 10-11, and 12-13 and the contestant's age is determined by April 1, 2012.

Each participant is awarded points for successful free throws. The boys and girls in age group 8-9 will shoot from a line four-feet in front of the regulation foul line. The program will be supervised in neighborhood gymnasiums by their Quincy Recreation Leaders assigned to their regular recreation programs in the area.

This program is free and contestants may participate even if not previously enrolled in the Recreation Program. Participants may chose any of the various times or sites to compete; however, they may only compete once in the Quincy qualifying event.

"We are pleased that the Quincy Lodge of Elks has once again provided this program for the benefit of our participants," stated Welch in a press release to The Quincy Sun. "This is the 40th year of the program. Many Quincy residents in the past have enjoyed the benefits of this activity at the local, regional and state level as well as the national championship."

"In 2010 two Quincy residents were crowned state champions," continued Welch, "and the Elks devote a great deal of attention to youth programs. Their commitment to our children helps make Quincy a better place to live."

The Quincy Lodge "Hoop Shoot" Chairman is Ed Miller. Miller is a retired Athletic Director of the Quincy Public Schools.

Tips To Start The New Year Healthier, Happier

Enjoy The Holidays With Less Stress And Better Health

The holiday season is special for celebrating and spending time with family and friends-often around rich and abundant food.

According to a 2000 National Institutes for Health (NIH) study, most Americans gain approximately one pound between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day, which contributes to ongoing body weight gained during adulthood. How can one strike a balance between maintaining healthy eating and enjoying holiday food and fun?

Jen Fournier, a registered dietitian working with the Massachusetts Interlocal Insurance Association (MIIA) Health Benefits Trust, advises that it's not just holiday meals themselves that offer the temptation to overindulge. Rather it's the entire holiday season, when people are busy with planning and shopping, that can encourage unhealthy eating habits. She recommends starting off by thinking about the holiday season and crafting it into what you want: better control, less stress, and more time to enjoy.

At holiday meals and parties, it can be more difficult to resist the temptation of decadent holiday foods. Moderation is the key, Fournier says.

Put smaller portions on your plate and load up on colorful vegetables rather than the potatoes and gravy.

At the buffet, help yourself to a small amount of what you enjoy, then move away from the table so you're not tempted to keep eating while mingling. This way, you can partake in those culinary specialties without feeling deprived.

Additionally, taking time to relax and de-stress is extremely important during the holiday season. When stress builds up, it causes the release of "fight or flight" hormones. These hormones then cause an increase in blood glucose levels, which is a concern especially to diabetics and the estimated 53 million Americans who are currently at the pre-diabetic Going for a walk, meditating or even taking a bubble bath can help people recharge and focus on their goals for eating healthier.

Here are 10 holiday eating tips to help start off the New Year feeling healthier and happier:

- 1. Be realistic. Don't try to lose pounds during the holidays, instead try to maintain your current weight.
- 2. Plan time for exercise. A moderate increase in daily exercise can help partially offset increased holiday eating and relieve stress. Try 10- or 15-minute brisk walks twice a day.
- 3. Don't skip meals. Before leaving for a party, eat a light snack like raw vegetables or a piece of fruit to curb your appetite. You'll be less tempted to over-in-

- 4. Survey the party buffet before filling your plate. Choose your favorite foods and skip your least favorite. Include vegetables and fruits to keep your plate balanced.
- 5. Eat until you are satisfied, not stuffed. Savor your favorite holiday treats while eating small portions. Sit down and enjoy.
- 6. Be careful with beverages. Alcohol can lessen inhibitions and induce overeating; non-alcoholic beverages, especially coffee drinks, can be loaded with calories and sugar.
- 7. If you overeat at one meal go light on the next. It takes 500 calories per day (or 3,500 calories per week) above your normal/maintenance consumption to gain one pound.
- 8. Plan group activities with family and friends that aren't all about food. Serve a holiday meal at a soup kitchen, play games or go on a walking tour of decorated homes.
- 9. Bring your own healthy dish to a holiday gathering.
- 10. Prepare your favorite dishes with less fat and fewer calories to help promote healthy holiday eating.

Anithiotics Usually End Kidney Infection

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am recuperating from a kidney infection (pyelitis). The doctor did a culture of my urine, which showed a gram negative rod. What kind of infection is that? -S.B.

ANSWER: The more common urinary tract infection is infection of the bladder - cystitis. Pyelitis (PIE-uh-LITE-iss), now usually called pyelonephritis, is an infection of the kidney itself. It is a much more serious infection, and one that usually makes people take to their bed.

Pyelitis causes high fever often alternating with chills. People have intense flank pain, the side area between the lowest rib and the upper part of the pelvis. The infection also might make people urinate more frequently and with pain. These two signs, however, are more apt to indicate bladder infection.

The most frequent cause of pyelitis is the bacterium E. coli. Bacteria are classified into two large groups based on how they react to a stain used to visualize them with a microscope. The stain is the Gram stain, named after the doctor who devised it. Bacteria are either gram positive or gram negative. A gram positive bacterium turns blue with the stain; a gram negative turns red.

Bacteria also are classified by their shape. Some are elongated sticks - rods. Others are oval-shaped. E. coli is a gram negative rod.

Pyelitis is a situation that calls for immediate and usually intravenous antibiotic treatment. It responds promptly to such treatment. The temperature often returns to normal within

Dr. PETER LaCAMERA five years. Dr. LaCamera's clinical interests include interstitial lung diseases, pulmonary fibrosis, pulmonary hypertension, asthma and emphysema among others.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have seborrheic keratoses and have had them for many years. Doctors say nothing can be done. I had them cut off and frozen off, but they come right back Can you ANSWER: Seborrheic (SEB-uh-REE-ik) keratoses are brown, warty-looking spots on the back, chest, arms, legs and sometimes the face. They are not cancers and don't become cancers. There may be only a few, but there can be hundreds of them. Their cause is a mystery, but they appear at older ages, so aging is somehow involved. A doctor can scrape them off or freeze them. They might come back, but they can be retreated if they do. The tendency to develop them is inherited.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Years ago, after the birth of my son, the doctor said 1 h milk leg. It was very painful. What would this be called today? -A.R.

ANSWER: I've never heard the term "milk leg" used by a doctor, but I have seen it in print. Today the condition is called thrombophlebitis (THROMboh-flea-BITE-iss) - a clot (thrombo) in an inflamed vein (phlebitis). In milk leg, the vein is the femoral vein, the large leg vein. It can be a complication of pregnancy even today.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475. Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

As more and more scientific evidence links oral health with overall health, new research has found an association between tooth loss and memory loss among elderly individuals. The study involved over 4.000 individuals age 65 years and older who underwent both dental and psychiatric assessments. Researchers noted that, compared with people with all of their teeth, those with fewer (or no) teeth were much more likely to have suffered some memory loss or have early-stage Alzheimer's disease. Those suffering from memory loss reported to have rarely visited the dentist. Researchers strongly suspect that the inflammation associated with gum disease and tooth loss may be linked with brain inflammation that causes neuronal death and hastens that, as their pregnancies progress, the forward shift in their centers of gravity can result in poor posture, upper back and shoulder pain, and lower back discomfort. One common mistake that pregnant women tend to make is that they allow the weight of their abdomens to pull their spines forward, which places strain on the lower back. Instead, they should concentrate on tightening their abdominal muscles, which helps keep the lower back strong. It is also never a good idea to either push their pelvises all the way forward or all the way backward, which are overcompensatory measures. # A Job Well Done

On Monday, Dec. 5, at approximately 1:45 p.m., Officer Steve DesRoche was waiting in traffic at the intersection of McGrath Highway and Dennis Ryan Parkway when he observed a vehicle enter the intersection at a high rate of speed from Miller Stile Road. The officer followed the vehicle as it pulled over in front of Quincy District Court.

Officer DesRoche As passed the parked vehicle he noticed a female sitting in the operator's seat looking in a downward position. Using his cruiser's Mobile Data Terminal, the officer ran a license check to see who the registered owner was. The female exited her vehicle and entered the court house. The response came back indicating that the vehicle was reported as a stolen motor vehicle in Weymouth on Nov. 30. Officer DesRoche updated Quincy communications that he would be conducting surveillance of the vehicle.

As Officer Peter Curley, who is assigned to the Quincy Square beat, was being informed of the situation, the same female walked out of the courthouse and back into the driver's seat of the stolen vehicle. As the female started to drive out of the parking spot, Officer DesRoche pulled out of his observation spot, activated his overhead lights and stopped the female driver. She then attempted to exit the vehicle but the officer ordered her back in, telling her to shut the engine off.

Officer Curley and Officer John Leuchte arrived on scene shortly after for back up assistance. When asked for license and registration, the female started to cry, stating, "I don't have it." She also said that her license was expired.

At this point, the female was handcuffed and escorted to the rear of the vehicle. She started to cry uncontrollably, stating that she was "moving the car for the family inside." When advised that she was observed driving the vehicle a short time ago, she again lied by saying, "Yes...I was getting the tire fixed for the owner." She was given her Miranda Rights, which she waived. The female suspect said that she came to court this afternoon because her boyfriend was arrested the night before and she wanted to get some information on where he was being held. She stated that her boyfriend's aunt gave her the car keys last night and that she took it to get some work done to it. She said that her boyfriend owned the car.

When told that he was not the registered owner according to the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles, the female blurted out, "Oh ... it's his uncle's car." She was then asked why the owner of the car would report it stolen at this time and she said, "I have no idea."

Officers Leuchte and Curley completed the inventory search of the car and reported finding several items of interest; four cell phones, a SIRIUS satellite radio head, a Magellen GPS and a Cobra radar unit which seemed to be taken from other motor vehicles as their mounts were still attached. There was also a box of cosmetic jewelry which appeared to be from a residence, an iPod Touch, a Nikon camera and a bag full of battery chargers for cell phones, IPO's, etc. There were also several items and bags of personal clothing and footwear throughout the vehicle.

The suspect, a 37-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with, "Receiving a stolen motor vehicle and unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle." The electronics and jewelry found inside the car were taken into evidence. The Quincy and Hull Police Departments have reason to believe that the items may have been stolen from their communities. Nice Work!

REMEMBER: to write down the serial number of your electronics, whether it is an ipod or a GPS unit. It is difficult to identify your property without the numbers. It is also hard to prosecute someone who may have the stolen items in their possession without a victim.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) I know, dear Lamb, that you don't like anyone trying to take charge of one of your projects, but try to be a bit more flexible. A new idea could help hasten a positive result.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) I'm sure, like the timethrifty Taurus that you are, that you've done much of your holiday shopping. But don't relax yet. Wrap those gifts now to save yourself lots of unwanted pressure.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be receptive when a family member or friend asks to confide in you. Your positive reaction could ensure that he or she will have a happy holiday experience.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Don't be rushed into wrapping up that workplace problem. Consider leaving it until after the holidays. This way you'll have the facts you need to reach the right resolution.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You'll get news that will make you glow brighter than the lights of the holiday season. Be sure to use what you learn both carefully and kindly, to avoid giving the wrong impression.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) That frayed relationship could be mended in time for the holidays if you were more flexible. Give a little, and you could get back a lot more than you imagined.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Things might not seem to be settling down as quickly as you would prefer. But it might be just a little holiday time flutter. You'll soon get news that will lead to more stability.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Stop getting so involved in everyone's per-sonal problems that you lose precious time with loved ones. Remember, even the Supreme Court closes for the holidays.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) All signs point to a bright holiday, with all of those pesky problems finally resolved in your favor. Share the good times with people you love and, of course, who love you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your plans should not be set in stone and cemented over. Leave some openings in case you need to make changes. Spend the holidays with your nearest and dearest.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Surprise! This holiday finds you on the receiving end of the generosity of those who are usually the recipients of so much that you give so freely and lovingly.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) That piece of good news assures that you'll be swimming in clearer, calmer waters this holiday season. There might be a storm or two ahead, but you'll weather it all in fine style.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a flair for seeing things as you'd like them to be, as well as a gift for turning your perceptions into reality.

Chanukah Celebration At Temple Shalom

Temple Shalom of Milton will celebrate the Jewish holiday of Chanukah with a family and community event Sunday, Dec. 18 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at Pierce Middle School.

The Chanukah party, sponsored by the Temple's Rabbi Jerome Weistrop Religious School, will include games, music, songs and skits, and traditional snacks of latkes and sufganiyot (donuts).

The event is open to all and there is no charge.

This family Chanukah event will be under the direction of Education Director Nancy Mollitor and Rabbi Fred Benjamin.

The event is part of Temple Shalom's regular observance and celebration of all the holidays on the Jewish calendar, both solemn and festive. Chanukah is an eight day celebration of freedom, commemorating an ancient Jewish victory over tyranny and oppression, against overwhelming odds. It is observed this year from the evening of December 20th through December 27th.

Theresa M. Phelan, 80 Homemaker, Retired Postal Service Worker; Mother Of Former Mayor William Phelan

A funeral Mass for Theresa M. "Terry" (McCabe) Phelan, 80, will be celebrated Friday at 10 a.m. in Saint John the Baptist Church, 44 School St., Quincy Center.

Mrs. Phelan died Sunday surrounded by her loving family.

The youngest of seven children, she was born and raised in Cambridge. She attended the schools of St. John's Parish and spent summers at her family's cottage in Houghs Neck where she met her lifelong love and husband, Gerald "Sam" Phelan. After marrying, Terry and Sam settled into their home on Estabrook Road in Quincy, raised eight children and enjoyed summers at their Mashpee cottage.

From 1968 to 1987, there was always at least of Terry and Sam's children attending North Quincy High School. After her loving husband died at the age of 53, Mrs. Phelan went to work at the U.S. Postal Service in Quincy until she retired in 1995.

Mrs. Phelan was a talented and creative person who, for a time, owned and operated Peace of Cake, a special occasion cake decorating business out of her home.

However, Mrs. Phelan was best known for her caring and loving nature as well as for her countless acts of kindness toward those in need. She gave of herself in a quiet and unassuming manner.

She was devoted to her family.

Beloved wife of the late Gerald P. "Sam" Phelan.

Devoted mother of Theresa M. "Trixie" Phelan of Key West, FL; Gerald P. Phelan, Jr. and his wife Julie of Mashpee; Patricia M. Henley and her husband David of Weymouth, Christopher J. Phelan and his wife Joyce of Hanover, the Honorable William J. Phelan, former Mayor of Quincy and his wife Tracey of Quincy; Joseph E. Phelan and his wife Aleksandra of Hingham; John P. Phelan and his wife Laura of Milton; James L. Phelan and his wife Tracy of Quincy.

She was the loving Nannie to her 19 cherished grandchildren.

Also survived by a large extended family, many friends and a special niece, Peg Callahan of Quincy. Peg and Terry were so close they considered themselves sisters.

Visiting hours are today (Thursday) from 3 to 8 p.m. at the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Interment will be private.

Memorial donations may be made to Child Fund International, P.O. Box 26507, Richmond, VA 23261-6507 (or quietly do something nice for someone in need.)

Carol L. Pitts November 26, 1999 November 26, 2011

12th Anniversary

Carol, today marks 12 years since God called you away.

The Angels rejoiced as you walked through the gates of Heaven on that day. You were my Angel here on earth. I learned so very much from you. You were so gentle and so kind your smile would always see me through. You taught me how to love unconditionally and how to be my very best in all that I do. You gave your all to God and your family never once stopping to think about you. You were more than a wife you were my best friend and a great listener too. How I miss our special talks, and all the fun things we used to do. Carol, I can never say goodbye to you, because I could never bear the pain. Instead I say I love you Carol

Always in my heart, Husband Donald R. Pitts

Until we meet again.

Signal Timing, Back-Ups Among Concerns

Parkway Traffic Improvement Ongoing

By SCOTT JACKSON

Work to improve traffic on and around the Hannon Parkway is ongoing. Jack Gillon, Quincy's traffic engineer, addressed the issue during Monday's council meeting.

He was called before the council because members have been receiving complaints from residents about traffic on the new roadway. Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, whose district includes part of the parkway, said he's heard numerous

Public Meeting Jan. 12 Focus On Funds

Community Preservation Committee Seeks Input

The City of Quincy's Community Preservation Committee (CPC) will hold public meeting Thursday, Jan. 12 at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers in City

The purpose of the meeting will be to elicit feedback and suggestions from Quincy citizens regarding the Community . Preservation Act (CPA) funds. Massachusetts state law mandates that the CPC encourage dialogue about how this money is spent each year. Jan. 12th will be an opportunity for Quincy residents to weigh in on how CPA money has been spent so far, and recommend ways to spend it in the future.

"The CPA is owned by the citizens of Quincy. They should come out and learn about the program and see how their money is being spent on so many great projects around the city," said CPC Chairperson Steve Quincy voters adopted the CPA in November of 2006. Since that time over $7.25M of tax payer money has been raised with the local property tax surcharge.

Repaving Entire Road In Spring

Sea Street Water Main Project Finished

By SCOTT JACKSON

The installation of a new water main on Sea Street is finished. The final step in the project, repaving of the entire road, is set to take place in the Spring.

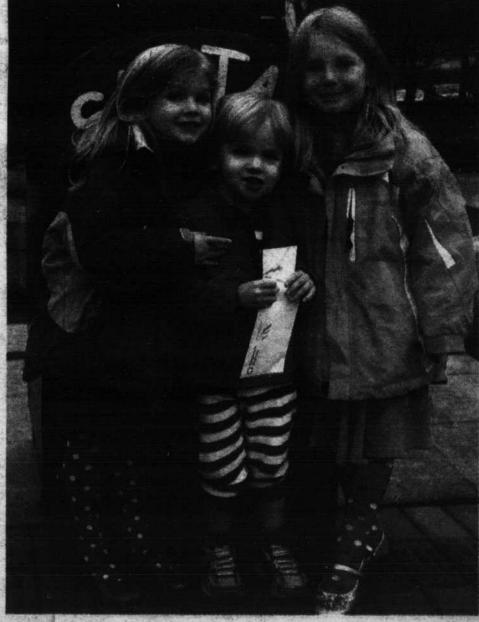

Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi briefed the City Council on the matter during Monday's meeting at the request of Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest. He said the city needs to allow the ground to settle before repaying.

"The industry standard (settling period) is 90 days," Raymondi explained. "If we did anything to that roadway now, the contractor would have an argument indicating that 'the city didn't wait 90 days, you might've caused some of the problem.' But this is a contractor's responsibility. He still owns these trenches throughout the entire winter months.

by the state in the amount of $2.9 million. This money bought over 27 acres of land for open space, helped to create or support affordable housing units, improved recreational facilities, and to fund 24 different historic restoration projects around the city.

For example, $3.3 million went to buy 13 acres of land to expand Faxon Park. This was done as part of a bond taken in 2007.

In North Quincy, $220,000 went to assist in the creation of several affordable rental units. The Church of the Presidents belfry rehabilitation, new bell, and clock face restoration are all funded in part by the tax payers of Quincy through the CPA.

According to Perdios, there will be about $1.6 million of new funding for CPA spending in the upcoming fiscal year. The first approximately $950,000 will be to make the final debt payment on the bond that was taken in 2007 to purchase land for open space; leaving about $650,000 to allocate towards open space preservation, affordable housing, recreational park expansions, or historic site restoration.

Applications are available at the City Solicitors office at City Hall or from the City's web site at www. Quincyma.gov. For consideration this year, the applications are due back at the Solicitor's office no later than Friday, Feb. 3rd at 4:30 p.m.

The Quincy Salvation Army received some much needed help on Monday from the Utility Workers Union of America (UWUA) with the delivery of 15 turkeys and 15 hams to help families in need this holiday season.

"We are grateful for their (UWUA) generosity to make a difference in families lives," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "The Salvation Army has a long history in this city, and we are grateful for what they do for us year round."

This is the first year the UWUA has given back to the communities, and UWUA Chairperson of Political and Community relations Kevin McAnneny saids he hopes it won't be theirs last. They also participate in Toys for Tots during the holiday season.

Twelve of the UWUA's 3,300 union members, through the work of the union's COPE (Committee on Political Education), distributed over 400 meals:

Keenan: Arrests Show Need For Prescription Drug Bill

State Senator Says Bath Salts, Designer Drugs Also Deserve More Attention

Legislation previously filed by Sen. John F. Keenan of Quincy would have made it significantly more difficult for a South Shore drug ring to use fraudulent prescriptions to secure potent painkillers.

Last week, state and local police arrested and charged 63 people from across the region with using stolen prescriptions and a home printer to manufacture phony scripts for oxycodone, a powerful narcotic related to heroin. Arrest warrants have been issued for nearly another dozen individuals involved in the scheme.

In October, Sen. Keenan filed legislation targeting the growing prescription drug abuse problem in Massachusetts. One of the bill's measures would require all prescriptions for scheduled controlled substances – such as OxyContin, Vicodin, Xanax, and Librium – to be written on tamper-resistant prescription pads, or be sent directly to pharmacies using a secure electronic prescribing system.

"Considering the scope of the prescription drug abuse problem engulfing the state, we should not still be allowing prescribers to issue prescriptions for powerful, highly addictive medications on what is essentially plain, white copy paper," Keenan said. "We already require prescriptions for Medicaid and Medicare patients to be written on pads that feature multiple security features; we should make the requirement the same across the board."

Tamper-resistant prescription pads, like bank checks, use a series of security features, such as watermarks; serial numbers, or special inks and backgrounds that are activated when photocopied, to make forgery extremely difficult.

Keenan said although the tamper-resistant pads may cost a few cents more than standard pads, that cost is far less than the higher health and treatment costs associated with prescription drug addiction.

In addition, the legislation, Senate Bill 2072, would increase public awareness of the strength and addictive nature of prescription painkillers, mandate that practitioners use the state Prescription Monitoring Program database to screen first-time patients prior to prescribing scheduled substances, and require the state commissioner of public health to work with practitioners on developing best practices governing the use of opiates in the treatment of pain.

"We need to change our attitudes, as a medical community, as patients and consumers, and as a society in general, to better reflect the serious nature of prescription drug addiction in Massachusetts," Keenan said. "Nearly two people are dying every day in the Commonwealth from prescription drug-related overdoses. This growing public health epidemic is impacting families and neighborhoods all across the state."

Keenan will also soon be filing legislation that establishes a regulatory process which will ban "bath salts," synthetic cannabis, and other designer drugs that have been showing up more frequently in police arrest logs and hospital emergency rooms. As part of that legislation, Keenan will propose changes to how drugs are scheduled in Massachusetts, making it easier for the state public health commissioner to regulate dangerous designer drugs.

Despite its innocuous name, "bath salts" have no known homeopathic benefits and are actually powerful stimulants. One Louisiana public health official described the affects of bath salts as the "worst attributes of meth, coke, PCP, LSD and ecstasy."

Synthetic cannabis, which is often sold under the name "K2", or "Spice," is marketed as an alternative to marijuana that doesn't show up on drug tests. In reality, the drug is significantly stronger than marijuana, and can cause extreme paranoia and agitation. The scientist who first synthesized the compound has publicly warned against the use of the drugs.

Both drugs are currently restricted under temporary bans through the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Keenan said Massachusetts public health officials should be able to move faster to temporarily restrict designer drugs that are proven to be unsafe, while concurrently working to enact permanent bans or regulations.

"The market for designer drugs currently shifts much faster than the state regulatory or legislative process," he said. "When we are presented with evidence of new designer drugs on the market, which are putting the lives of our family members in danger, our public health officials need to have the ability to react quickly."

A Wish List

Dear Santa:
Well, here I am again ... hard to believe the year is coming to an end and Christmas is just a few days

Does time pass by as quickly in your workshop as it does at a weekly newspaper?

Here it seems like we're counting down the days to spring at one moment and then it's the holidays the next.

Anyway, before you pack your sleigh for Christmas, I wanted to send you a little wish list for some of the folks here in the City of Presidents. Some of these gifts are meant to be funny but there are some serious ones, too, so I hope you'll give each and every one careful consideration.

To Mayor TOM KOCH: important benchmarks as the $1.6 billion downtown redevelopment project continues to evolve. The mayor - like a lot of business people and others - would like to see a commitment from a major anchor or tenant in the city's main commercial district. Perhaps a Whole Foods Store or Trader Joe's or even a Target, Kohl's or some other major retailer. Sometimes all it takes is one commitment to get the ball rolling for others to follow. . . To the soon-to-be swornin four new city officials - Ward 2 Councillor BRAD CROALL, Ward 5 Councillor KIRSTEN HUGHES and School Committee members PAUL BREGOLI and KATHY HUBLEY - lots of good ideas for city government and the Quincy school system. New blood is always a good thing, Santa and we know these individuals have much to offer. For Kirsten, maybe you can stuff in her stocking an invitation to sing at the City Inaugural, too?... City Clerk JOSEPH SHEA - 100 percent response from the city census (or street listing directory) that is mailed out to all Quincy residents. Santa, I know you don't like to strong-arm folks but you may have to leave some coal to anyone who just throws the form away. . . How about bringing some red carpet and a big premiere night for the opening of the movie "Here Comes the Boom" next fall? Some scenes were filmed inside the old Quincy High School and feature some local folks as extras. Might be a nice touch to preview the film at the new Quincy High School. . . Happy retirements for Colonial Federal Savings Bank President and CEO BOB GUARNIEIRI and Vice President RICHARD COLEMAN. Both Bob and Rich are great guys, Santa. You may want to bring Rich some shiny new golf balls for the extra rounds of golf he will get in next year. . . For the QUINCY CHRIST-MAS FESTIVAL COMMITTEE that's planning the 60th parade next November: the longest list of parade units in the history of this local holiday tradition. Can you also bring a mild, sunny day for the occasion so that all the marchers and parade watchers will be comfortable. . . Santa, there's also another major milestone next fall: the 80th annual Thanksgiving Day football game between North Quincy and Quincy High School. There's planning underway for that occasion already and the folks involved need some fundraising help. One of the thoughts is to purchase some football "throwback" jerseys for the two teams to wear on Thanksgiving Day. Weatherwise, how about ordering up a sunny day? Chilly is fine for football but please no freezing rain on game day, okay? . . . Quincy Track Club Director GEOFF HENNESSY - the first lap around the new city running track that is being built at Faxon Field. Knowing Geoff, Santa, he'll want some youngsters to run with him and he'll let them cross the finish line first. . . State Rep. TACKEY CHAN - a new car . . .

or at the very least, a membership to AAA in the event his car breaks down he'll be back on the road again quickly... State Rep. BRUCE AYERS — a mobile GPS device to help him get around the other precincts he's gained in Randolph after redistricting takes effect... Ditto to CONG. STEVE LYNCH who will be making his rounds in the City of Presidents next year. He'll be on the ballot next fall as Quincy votes for a new congressman in the newlyminted 9th Congressional District that takes effect January, 2013... DPW Commissioner DAN RAYMONDI—the discovery of a salt mine near the new storage shed that's being constructed. I know you like snow Santa but last year we had an awful lot here. So how about keeping the snow totals down this winter? . . . Recreation Director BARRY WELCH, longtime B.C. football booster: the return of star linebacker Luke Kuechly for his senior year at The Heights. He's a real good one, Santa, and is projected to be a high NFL draft pick. But Barry would like to see the junior finish his senior year. . . REV. SHELDON BENNETT - a happy retirement after he steps down as pastor of United First Parish Church in 2012. And how about an invitation for Sheldon to be the guest speaker at the John Quincy Adams presidential wreath-laying ceremony at the "Church of the Presidents" in July? . . SHEILA McINTYRE - an oversized pair of scissors to cut a ceremonial ribbon at a re-dedication of the James R. McIntyre Government Center when Old City Hall is completely refurbished. . . . A steady stream of donations all year-round to the city's social service agencies including THE SALVATION ARMY, FA-THER BILL'S PLACE, INTERFAITH SOCIAL SERVICES, QUINCY COMMUNITY ACTION PROGRAMS, DOMESTIC VIOLENCE ENDED (DOVE), QUINCY CRISIS CENTER, GERMAN-TOWN NEIGHBORHOOD CENTER and many others. Need really has no season, Santa... Police Chief PAUL KEENAN and Fire Chief JOSEPH BARRON and all of the city's police officers and firefighters: safe shifts while protecting and serving the public . . . Quincy College President PETER TSAFFARAS and Eastern Nazarene College President CORLIS McGEE: peak student enrollments. . . CHRIS WALKER, the mayor's director of policy and information - a case of Nicorette gum. . . . DONNA MAVROMATES and MARALIN MANNING of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce - clones so that they can be in two places at once. (They cover a lot of ground already, and do a lot of nice things for people all year round, Santa. By the way, I think you've already cloned Don Uvanitte ne seems to be everywhere!) . . . DUN MAKIIN and DEREK McCLEARY, majority owners of the soon-to-open Marina Bay Sportsplex: a bustling firstyear in business. . . RON DELLA CHIESA, author of the new book Radio My Way, a spot on the New York Times best seller list. . . JOHN YAZWINSKI: the day when the sign can come down at Father Bill's Place because the shelter is no longer needed. . . To all the pets at the Quincy Animal Shelter - good, permanent, loving homes. . . To CAROL LEE WILSON, one our loyal subscribers: my sincerest thanks for one of the nicest letters I have ever read. Santa, please do something special for her. . . And for all the other readers who write me letters: a big thank you, too, for supporting The Sun. It means a lot. . .

And to all our loyal advertisers, dedicated newscarriers, fine friends and faithful subscribers who continue to support The Quincy Sun: peace, prosperity and good health in the New Year.

Merry Christmas, everyone.

Junior College Budget Up $54,000 Over Past Year

By FRANK McCAULEY

The School Committee approved the 1966 budget for Quincy Junior College. The $305,964 budget represents an increase of about $54,000 over last year's figure.

College President Kenneth P. White also told the committee the city will receive $40,922 in funds returned by the college from its 1965 budget.

The college enrollment will remain about the same – 1190 students – Mr. White said. The ratio of full-time to part-time students will be increased according to President White.

DEPRESSED TRACKS, TUNNEL MBTA IN QUINCY URGED

A feasibility study of depressing the rapid transit tracks through the Quincy business center was recommended by the joint committee of the Quincy Development Commission and the Quincy Technical Advisory Committee on Transportation.

The proposed study would be for depressing the tracks from Adams Street to School Street, and constructing about a halfmile long tunnel in the heart of the Quincy business district.

The committee's recommendation was to be presented to the city council at a special meeting by Councillor Walter J. Hannon, chairman of the Industrial Development Commission.

Councillor Hannon was also planning to confer with Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and Mayor-elect James R. McIntyre to find out whether the city could spend the funds for the study or ask the MBTA to request its engineering firm of Gibbs and Hill to make the feasibility study.

SIGNATURES CERTIFIED FOR ANTI-PARKING SITE PETITION

Names of 6,131 Quincy voters who signed petitions opposed to the southern extension of the Ross Parkingway were certified by the Board of Registrars, City Clerk John M. Gillis said.

The petition's apparent success required councillors to meet "immediately" to vote against the parking appropriations will require the council approval by a two-thirds majority or six votes. (Editor's note: The extension was never built due to large-scale public opposition.)

The conference included sessions on federal audits, environmental review procedures, economic development and job creation strategies, and a session on Massachusetts emergency assistance reform, featuring John Yazwinski, President and CEO of Father Bills & MainSpring.

KNITTING AND CROCHETING Group of the Quincy Council on Aging recently donated several baskets of hand made blankets, sweaters, hats and mittens to the Friends of the Unborn. In addition to the handmade items several members contributed diapers, wipes and tee shirts. The group also contributed scarfs, hats and gloves for the moms along with beauty supplies. The Knitting & Crocheting Group meets each Wednesday from 10 am to noon at the Kennedy Center in Quincy. The members share ideas as well as stories about themselves and their families. Newcomers are always welcome.

Quincy After School Child Care Receives $1,000 Donation From Attorney George Burke

Quincy After School Child Care (QCARE) recently received a $1,000 donation from Quincy Attorney George Burke for the Scholarship Fund.

The Scholarship Fund, which is for working parents, provides financial assistance to families in need. who either may be on a waiting list for a state voucher or not eligible for one.

QCARE fills this gap in need by helping families to afford quality after school care, in their child's school, while decreasing their financial burden. In today's economy, the need for this fund has increased greatly. Being able to provide their child(ren) with good quality child care enables parents to work to support their families without worry, as they feel assured of their child's safety and security.

"We feel a responsibility and commitment to the goal of assisting even more families through tuition scholarships," said QCARE Development Associate Carole Saia. "We cannot offer scholarships without donations and rely on, and are grateful for, the generosity of donors, such as Attorney Burke, to assist us in this goal."

"I had the pleasure of visiting Attorney Burke in his office to present him with a plaque to acknowledge our appreciation of his donation," Saia said. "I learned a lot about the extent of Attorney Burke's philanthropic giving while I was there. His contributions to both the Quincy community and beyond are quite impressive. I was particularly touched by a framed copy of a recent essay his grandson wrote as part of his college application process about his grandfather, which sits on his desk. It speaks of the tremendous impact that Attorney George Burke has had on others and his grandson speaks of his generosity and giving as attributes which he admires."

On Dec. 5th, Quincy City Council voted for the resolution to support the Updated bottle bill.

Members of the Wollaston and Houghs Neck Garden Clubs are particularly appreciative of Quincy City Council and Council President Kevin Coughlin's initiative to bring the resolution for affirmative vote.

Roast Stuffed Pork

If you are looking for an alternate for Christmas dinner, try a pork roast, one of the family's favorites and a great entrée, especially stuffed.

Today's recipe is for a stuffing. There are so many ways to prepare stuffing from just bread stuffing to all different varieties of ingredients.

I usually buy boneless pork a bit wider than pork tenderloin. It easily slices in halves (not all the way) and then stuffed. The stuffing can be made ahead of time.

STUFFING FOR ROAST PORK

4-5 pound pork

3 cups stuffing mix (or dried bread equivalent)

1 small onion (chopped)

1 large celery stalk (chopped)

1 tablespoon Bell's seasoning

1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms (or six ounce can)

1-cup chicken stock

3 tablespoons white wine (optional) Oil and butter for sautéing

Salt and pepper to taste

In the hot oil and butter, sauté the celery and onion for a few minutes, and then add mushrooms, Bell's seasoning, chicken stock, wine, salt and pepper. Mix until well blended.

Add the stuffing mix, and if it needs more liquid, add a bit of water, or more chicken stock, and cook on low heat until done. Set aside to cool.

Season the pork with a favorite topping, and slice in halves (don't cut all the way as stuffing could fall out.

Once the stuffing is cooled, place in the middle of the pork and it usually covers easily. If it needs to be secured, use toothpicks.

Bake in a 350-degree oven until done. Depending on the size of the pork, time will vary. It slices so well and keeps moist because of the stuffing.

P.S. In place of mushrooms, chopped apples or raisins call also be used.

Stuffed Calamari For Christmas Eve

On Christmas Eve, it's a tradition in many families to gather together and enjoy several types of fish specialties.

Our family will do exactly that with each one preparing their favorite dish.

This year, I told them that I would make the stuffed calamari (squid) for my contribution and will serve it over favorite pasta. I usually make it with linguine or spaghetti.

These can be made ahead of time and then heated in the sauce the day they are used.

STUFFED CALAMARI 6-8 calamari Preferably cleaned) (or the amount you will need)

4 slices bread (soaked)

2 tablespoons tomato sauce

1 cup cooked spinach (squeeze out

Basil or oregano (or both) 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese Before preparing the calamari, make a

With garlic, onion, basil and a can of crushed tomatoes. The flavor from the calamari will enhance the taste.

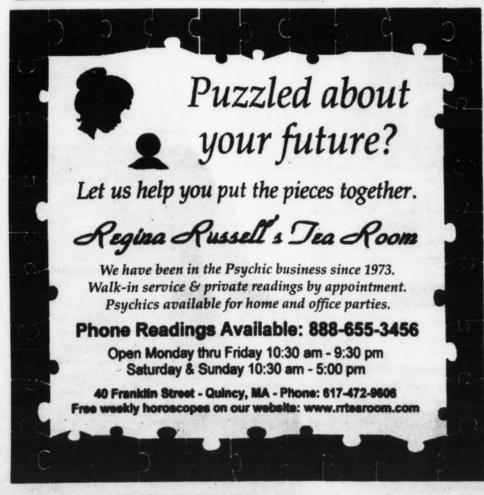

simple marinara tomato sauce,

I keep the stuffing simple, but any kind of a favorite will do.

Wash the calamari and dry with a paper towel. Stuffing them is tricky and takes a bit of patience. I find a small spoon and fill each one leaving about a half an inch or so. Secure with toothpick and set aside.

Once the sauce has been cooking for about 20 minutes, carefully place the calamari in the sauce and cook on low heat for about 10-15 minute turning each one until cooked.

If the calamari is good size, they can be sliced before serving. Otherwise each person can have one. Serve over pasta with grated Parmesan or Romano cheese.

Quincy Planning Department, United Way Inspire Community Collaboration

Goal: Realize Success Without Increased Funding

partment of Planning and Community Development (PCD) and the United Way of Mass Bay and Merrimack Valley joined Dec. 8 to present resources and effective models for community impact, drawing more than 30 local social sector leaders.

One unique model, the Strive Partnership in Cincinnati, Ohio, sparked interest in how a community can come together, combine efforts of the school department, non-profits, and other support agencies, and create more effective results for youth from cradle to career.

this model can be found at: http://www.strivetogether.

The workshop was made possible with funding from the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program of the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development. The CDBG entitlement program allocates annual grants to cities like Quincy to develop viable communities by providing decent housing, a suitable living environment, and opportunities to expand economic development, principally for low-and moderate-income persons.

"With threats to the federal budget for programs like CDBG, the workshop inspired social sector leaders to think more strategically about what impact they are trying to achieve in partnership with the city, and how resources can be more effectively allocated to that end," said Quincy Planning Director Dennis E. ## City Launches Adams Green Project Website

The City of Quincy launched the website for the Adams Green project Dec.

The website's address is www.adamsgreen.info.

The website allows users to follow the progress of this project, which will create a pedestrian and bicycle-friendly streetscape that sets the stage for the development of the new Adams Green Park.

Throughout the project, the site will be routinely updated with materials developed to support the public involvement process such as presentations and minutes to allow members of the community to follow the project's progress even when attend meetings. Informational background materials such as the public involvement plan, Adams Green Concept Design Report, and preliminary traffic study are all available from the site's Project Documents page.

The website provides contact information for the project's public involvement specialist so residents can raise questions and express their thoughts and concerns regarding the project.

To learn about website updates when they happen, residents are encouraged to follow the project on Facebook and Twitter. Links to sign up for both social media outlets are displayed on the lower right hand corner

Members of the community are invited to visit the site's "Get Involved" page and send in an email to add their contact information to the project database. Users who do so will receive emails regarding upcoming meetings and other key project milestones.

The City of Quincy and the project team are committed to involving the public in the planning process, believing that effective planning is done with the community and not just for it.

The project team welcomes all residents, business owners, and other stakeholders to attend the meeting, provide feedback,

Quincy High Advances To States In Regional Academic Decathlon Competition

Quincy High was among the 21 schools that recently participated in the Massachusetts regional scrimmage in preparation for the 2012 United States Academic Decathlon at Everett High School.

Local, regional and state competitions culminate in the national finals that will take place in New Mexico next April. This was Quincy's seventh year of play and the team made history by advancing to the state competition in March.

The United States Academic Decathlon was created to provide opportunities for students to experience the challenges of rigorous team and individual academic competition.

Each team competes in events-economics, language and literature, art, music, mathematics, history, science, essay, interview and speech. Each year the science or history is used as the Super Quiz topic.

A new theme of study is established every year with topics that are relevant, current and challenging. This year's focus is the Age of Empire. The science topic is physics.

'Quincy High School's core values are: Think, Work, Share, and that's what Aca Dec is all about," Coach Evelyn Ryan said. "Competition provides a wonderful incentive to study these subjects in depth. The students gain a remarkable amount of knowledge and important study skills in their daily preparation for the contest.

"There's really no way to lose taking part in an event like this."

In the regional scrimmage, gold, silver and bronze medals are awarded for individual events, along with trophies for the three highest scoring teams.

Overall individual winners are recognized, as are champion teams.

"On our team this year, the Coach's Gold goes to Michaela Walker, our undisputed Most Valuable Player for scoring the most points for the team," Ryan said. "Michaela captured four awards: Silver in Art, Gold in Literature, Gold in History, and third highest overall score in the contest.

"The entire team did its best and Quincy High School is very proud of all of these young scholars."

The brand new Quincy High School SADD Chapter and with generous financial help from the Quincy Rotary Club and the Masons brought Rachel's Challenge back to Quincy High School.

Quincy High first brought Rachel's powerful and motivating message to the City of Presidents in March of 2010. Since then, cross town North Quincy High School has had the presentation twice, making a positive impact on the student body of the Quincy Public Schools.

This year, on Dec. 5th and 6th Quincy had three showings of the emotion packed presentation. With the help of Maura Papile, the director of Student Support Services, all of the 7th graders in the public middle schools were able to see the presentation, as well as the 9th and 10th graders at Quincy High.

The 11th and 12th graders saw the presentation back in 2010 and have since continued to spread Rachel's message.

On Dec. 5th there was a presentation open to the public that rounded up a crowd of about 200 people into QHS' auditorium from

Says Right Time To Step Down, After 10 Years Of Service

Elaine Dwyer Proud Of School Committee Accomplishments

By EMILY TAFT

On Dec. 14 school committee member Elaine Dwyer sat in her regular chair. second to the right on the Quincy High School Auditorium stage, for the last time. Dwyer has been a member of the committee for 10 years.

"They need new blood," said Dwyer. "Personally I think it is a good idea if you have children in the school system, I just think it makes sense, that's part of the reason I am leaving."

Dwyer added that along with her children being grown she found she was unable to do the job justice

"The new state ethics law doesn't allow us to vote on the budget," said Dwyer. "My daughter is a teacher so I wasn't allowed to vote on the school budget. It was frustrating because I couldn't do my job."

Her 10-year journey into politics began in 2002. Dwyer was appointed to fill the unexpired of then School Committeeman William Phelan after he was elected mayor in the fall of 2001. Members of the city councillor and school committee convened and appointed Dwyer to fill out the remaining two years on Phelan's school committee term.

"It was worse than a job interview," Dwyer said of the appointment process. "Only 14 people are voting opposed to the whole city. It is a very emotional thing, and wasn't the same as running for the position."

Dwyer was later elected to two full four-year terms in 2003 and 2007. Her term on the board wraps up at the end of this month.

Before serving on the school committee, Dwyer was active in the school system. She was the president of the Merrymount Elementary School PTO, Broad Meadows Middle School PTO, and the Quincy High PTO. Dwyer also was the citywide representative for the schools.

Throughout her 10 years, Dwyer said she had learned a lot about her self, others, and how to adapt to the many changes of government. She has accomplished a lot in the school system but her biggest accomplishment is the new Quincy High School. When Dwyer's children were in middle school, she decided she wanted to take the next step into the school committee for one big reason.

"The main reason I ran was to get the new high school built," said Dwyer. "I would absolutely say that the new high school was a big accomplishment for me, and the free full-day kindergarten."

With triumphs of getting the new high school built and being able to provide free full day kindergarten came the struggle of change throughout the system.

"I am not good with change," said Dwyer. "You have to learn to work with new personalities, and when city hall changes a lot of other administration members change. You do end up missing some of the people who leave."

In some ways Dwyer has changed just as much as the people in office.

"I think I am stronger than I thought I was," said Dwyer. "You really have to learn to cooperate with people and listen to people; not everyone has my opinion. It's hard to work on a committee and work things out."

Dwyer said she hadn't worked in a group setting since before her children were born so to learn to work together was something she struggled with.

"I learned to work in a group again," said Dwyer. "It was a skill I didn't have before, I have done a lot of growing and have skills that I didn't have before."

Dwyer said she doesn't like to talk about herself, but it is something she believes helped her throughout the

"It is a difficult thing for me to talk about myself," said Dwyer. "Looking back, I think that is how I managed the last 10 years - keeping my focus on the students at all times."

She added that she believes elected officials in the school committee should remember it is never about them and their careers but to be an advocate for students. parents and teachers.

Point-Webster School Robotics Team Makes History

First Quincy Middle School To Compete In State Championship

By SCOTT JACKSON

Point Webster's robotics team made history Saturday, becoming the first middle school from Quincy to compete in the state champion-

In the competition, held at Worcester Polytechnic Institute (WPI), the team finished 63rd out of 72 teams. Point's team was one of the few middle schools in the final - most of the teams in attendance were privately run, according to coach Michelle Cunniff. "We were the only team that showed up in a school bus," she said.

She was happy the team was able to experience the event. The students were happy they were able to tour WPI's campus and meet with other students with similar interests. She was also grateful for words WPI President Dennis Berkey had for the team. He "told them they were all winners," Cunniff said, "that's what the day was all about."

The team's students were thrilled to be able attend the event. "I like that we actually got to go," said eighthgrader Nadia Maloof. "It shows the work paid off."

The competition consisted of various missions which had to be completed by the robots. The robots were programmed to complete the tasks in advance, a responsibility that fell on the students, because the rules forbade Cunniff from helping them out. The two students who did the bulk of programming were eighthgraders Jason Troung and Ashish Porvalli.

"I think Ashish and Jason did a good job," Cunniff said. "They knew what they were doing."

Their fellow team member also thanked them for their efforts. "Jason and Ashish made the team," Maloof said. "They'd be there after school and they wouldn't be nervous at the competitions."

The robots are made out of Legos based on a kit. Cunniff said a lot of teammates liked being able to use the Legos, calling some of the club's weekly meetings "controlled chaos."

Aside from tasks completed by the robots, one of which involved sorting big 'fish' from smaller ones, the team was also judged on a ten-minute presentation it did on a topic of its choice. They chose to do theirs on pesticide use in Ecuador after Assistant Principal Stacey Bucci talked to the team about the issue. "She was in the Peace Corps," Cunniff, "and she told us about the horrible pesticides used there and that's what motivated them."

The students came up with alternatives to the toxic pesticides currently used in the country. One alternative can be found in one of the country's top exports - the chrysanthemum or mum flower. It can be crushed up into a natural pesticide, which is safer than those currently used in Ecuador, according to the team's presentation.

Cunniff, who teaches eighth-grade science, is in her second year as coach of the robotics team. Her team members praised her for the work she did. "She's like a second mom to me," eighthgrader Santia Louis said.

The team isn't done competing this school year. They have January off before they gear-up for May's city championship - the Presidents Cup.

whatever happens, he's on the line to come back into the city and make whatever repairs are necessary."

Laforest also explained why it was a good decision not to start the project in September as originally planned. "Had this project been done as originally anticipated in September, she said, "the pits closed for the winter season, they couldn't have paved this curb to curb in December."

The situation on Sea Street is similar to other water main replacement projects that also left roads unpaved, according to Raymondi. That includes projects on Massachusetts Avenue, Pratt Road, and Beechwood Street, among others.

Laforest also the questioned the commissioner about the cleanliness of the project. She said she was astonished at times about the condition the street would be left in at the end of the day.

Raymondi said those issues are "the inconvenience of major construction" and mentioned he's heard similar from residents affected by other projects in the city.

The commissioner also took the blame for traffic problems caused by the project. "My department could've done a better job, I could've done a much better job informing folks of some of those issues," he said. He also said he should've consulted traffic engineer Jack Gillon earlier on in the pro-

Laforest later asked why she was told traffic wouldn't be diverted from Sea Street when in-fact it was. "Heavy vehicles, construction vehicles, MBTA busses, and emergency vehicles were all supposed to be able to stay on Sea Street - they never did, not from day one," she said. "But that was information I was advised to communicate to my constituents."

Raymondi said traffic was pulled from the street to help speed the process up for the contractor. "We just decided that it's better to provide them with an opportunity to move as quickly as they could," the commissioner said, "and the best way to do that was to get the traffic off the street."

He also explained why some residents weren't given proper notice about water shut-offs. "Unfortunately, any infrastructure like this that's in excess of 100 years old, when you go to a watergate to turn it off, it doesn't work and you have to go to the next gate to turn the water off at that point," he told the council. "When you do that you affect 30 or 40 homeowners that weren't intended."

Raymondi thanked Mayor Tom Koch and the council for backing infrastructure replacement projects such as the Sea Street one. He mentioned that Quincy has approximately 235 miles of water mains, more than 40 percent of which has been in place since 1927. Additionally, 75 percent of water mains are made from cast iron, which is more prone to breaking than other materi-

Pipe removed during the Sea Street project had been laid in 1903 and 1908. Not only were there leaks in the pipes -which made ratepayers pay for what water that seeped into the soil - but the pipes were also clogged. He illustrated this by showing a small section, nearly completely clogged that had been removed from Sea complaints since the road opened to fanfare in Octo-

Those complaints included "everything from the signal timing to the back-up of traffic onto Burgin Parkway," Gutro said, listing off grievances from constituents. "People wanting to jump the light, to people wanting to take a left-turn where there is no left-turn permitted, to basically blocking the intersection."

The state was responsible for designing and building the road. Gillon said he initially had reservations about the plan, but he moved the project ahead so the $18 million project would receive federal stimulus funding and stay on-track. "I do remember having some concerns early on," he told the council. "But I was advised that if the [signal] equipment appears to be reasonable that perhaps we could move forward and not jeopardize either funding or the time schedule."

After the road opened, Gillon's department noticed that traffic patterns weren't matching those that were predicted. Because of this, he went to work to get a better understanding of the real numbers. Following the study he made some changes even though he hasn't yet accepted ownership of signals from the state.

One of the fixes was adding a second left-turn lane heading westbound on the Paul Harold Bridge leading to Burgin Parkway. That, and other small changes, "improved both capacity and safety," according to Gillon.

Another solution Gillon said is looking into is synchronizing the traffic signals at intersection Hancock and School Streets with the intersection of Hancock and Hannon. This would alleviate traffic at the latter intersection, Gillon believes.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest also questioned the traffic engineer about concerns over the intersection of McGrath Highway and Washington Street - Hannon Parkway transitions into Revere Road and then McGrath Highway.

"Traffic is backing up on Washington," said Laforest, whose ward includes the affected area. "Cars are then detouring down Elm Street. They're saying 'hey I'm not waiting for the light.' They're going through a do not enter onto Elm."

Gillon said the city hasn't accepted the signal because it's faulty and hasn't worked for 90 straight days without going to flashing red. He also noted the pedestrian light always comes on, whether or not a pedestrian requested it - he talked to the seller of the signals and hopes to have that addressed

He also said he plans on creating a right-turn lane heading north on Washington from Quincy Point; the current configuration has two lanes with a wide shoulder. This would be synched up to the left-turn signal on McGrath. He said hopes to be able to do that within a few months, but he needs the signal to work before he can make changes to it.

Gutro then asked Gillon about a traffic study mandated by the city's land disposition agreement with Street Works. The study hasn't come out yet, though it was supposed to be released this Fall.

Gillon said he's been working with the consultant writing study, but couldn't say when it will be released. Moving forward, Gillon said he will have weekly meetings with the consultant.

Gutro also suggested holding quarterly meetings over matters concerning the land disposition agreement, including traffic, starting next year.

ies during Thanksgiving. "We chose to deliver the food to some of the cities and towns we service," said McAnneny. "It was time to start giving back to the communities we see every day."

The UWUA consists of union workers for National Grid and NSTAR, and after recently getting a brand new administration they decided they needed to do something to help.

"We see how bad it is out there on the streets every day, the need is out there," said McAnneny. "It is good that we are doing something and are able to fulfill some of the need."

The donations of the 30 meals are a big help after the Salvation Army went 100 tickets over the food vouchers they normally give out each holiday season.

"This donation will go towards those last-minute families that have called in asking for help with food this season," said Captain Heather Odom. "The need is so great this year, how can you say no?"

So far Odom said they have served over 450 families, which is up from 350 last year. Odom said she would continue to help until they have run out of everything they have. This year's kettle and bell fundraiser is down 20-30 percent from last year's proceeds, Odom

"We have managed to secure enough donations to honefully help everyone" said Odom. "We are helping more people now than last year, and the requests for help continue to come in."

The gym in the Quincy Salvation Army headquarters on Baxter Street is filled with toys and clothes for families who have asked for assistance. Odom said they have people still walking in asking if they can take a toy or clothes for their family members. Odom believes they probably won't have any supplies left over after the holiday.

"When we have people who walk in asking for help we allow them to come usually around 2 p.m. to select what they need, otherwise it is by appointment," said Odom. "Again the need is just so great this year we want to help everyone we possibly can."

A Job Well Done

On Sunday, Dec. 11, at approximately 4:23 a.m., Officers Dave Cooper and Bruce Tait were dispatched to South Street for a male/female disorder. Upon the officers' arrival, they were met by the male victim/caller outside the home.

The victim stated that his girlfriend attacked him and he fled outside. He stated that they were lying in bed when they began arguing over his girlfriend talking to a male party over the Internet via Facebook.

LT. DAN MINTON

When confronted with this, his girlfriend became enraged over his findings and attacked him. After biting him several times, she then went into a volley of punches all over his body. Once she finished punching him, she got out of bed, retrieved her cell phone charger and began whipping him with it.

After numerous blows with the charger, the girlfriend left the area briefly, going to the laundry area, returning with a bottle of bleach. She then went to his clothes closet, grabbed his shoes and began rubbing bleach on them.

The victim jumped out of bed to save his shoes from further damage. With his shoes now in hand, he started to move away, but the girlfriend then said, "Oh - are those your new work pants?" She then poured bleach on the pants.

The victim knocked the bleach bottle away from his girlfriend, but this led to her picking up one of her high heal (4inch)shoes from the floor and commence to whacking him with it. He said that she hit him several times with the high heal (shoe) before she stopped. The victim said he couldn't take any more abuse and knew the only way it was going to stop was to call the police. As he attempted to leave the apartment, the girlfriend blocked the doorway. As he tried to get around her, she "punched me in my private area causing me to fall down." He stated that once he got to his feet, he attempted to exit the room again but she blocked the doorway.

The victim said that he pushed his girlfriend away from the doorway and fled out the door. He then placed his "911" call to the police.

While speaking with the victim, Officer Cooper observed several welts on the right side of his face and a large bump in the middle of his forehead. The victim also showed bite marks on his right forearm and left index finger. The victim refused medical attention. Before heading in to speak with his girlfriend, Officer Cooper asked the victim if he hit his girlfriend and he said, "I only pushed her out of the doorway - so I could get out to call you guys."

Officer Cooper then started the interview with the girlfriend, who appeared annoyed with the Police presence. She confirmed that the argument was over a Facebook page and this led to a physical confrontation. When asked if she hit the victim with anything, she said, "Yes - with my shoe."

When asked if her boyfriend/victim hit her, she said yes, but was unable to show the Officer any evidence of being hit.

Based on the available physical evidence and statements made, the girlfriend, a 19 year old Quincy resident, was placed under arrest for "Domestic Assault and Battery and Assault and Battery with a Dangerous Weapon (high heal shoe)."

The victim was advised of his 209a rights/protections but he refused any services. He stated that his girlfriend has anger issues and this was not the first time she became violent towards him during an argument.

The victim was given a Domestic Violence Initiative pamphlet and advised that he would be hearing from Quincy District Court in the near future regarding this incident. The shoe was taken as evidence.

Nice Work!

SCAM ALERT

A Quincy resident reports that she ordered a 55 inch TV and iPad from Gratshops.com, located in China, for a total price of $550, with the delivery date of Nov. 25th.

On this date, she received a call from Gratshops telling her that she needed to pay a $200 Chinese customs tariff. The victim complained and the fee was reduced to $120. She paid the tariff but the items never arrived.

She said that she sent the money via Western Union and the person who picked up the money was in Beijing, China. She believes that she was scammed after learning that the same people operate a website called Assured-offer.com, which, according to her, has been the subject of fraud complaints. Buying from outside this country increases the chances of being victimized.

When the deal is too good to be true, be cautious.

Quincy College President Tsaffaras Receives Education For Service Award

Quincy College President Peter H. Tsaffaras recently received the Education for Service Award from Boston State College at the Fifth Annual Boston State College Celebration.

The award is presented to graduates, professors, and administrators who have demonstrated outstanding contributions in the areas of education, public service, and private industry. Three to five recipients are selected each year by the Boston State College Award Committee based on nominations submitted by members of the Boston State College community.

Tsaffaras' work in higher education began in 1972 in the central office of the Massachusetts State College System. Early on in his career, he was employed at the campus level, serving as the Assistant to the President at Boston State College. After service at Boston State College and then later at the newly created Board of Regents of Higher Education. Mr. Tsaffaras took a position at Bridgewater State College in 1982 where he worked as Director of Human Resources. Transitioning to the Massachusetts Board of Higher Education in 1993, he was promoted from Deputy Diployee Relations and Benefit Administration, and to Deputy Commissioner of Employee Relations and acting general counsel.

In addition, Tsaffaras has taught since 2005 at Massasoit Community College where he is the sole instructor of the year-long Certificate Program in Human Resources.

Tsaffaras has a Bachelor of Science Degree in History from the University of Massachusetts-Lowell, Master's in Education Degree from Boston State College, and a Juris Doctor Degree from the New England School of Law.

QUINCY COLLEGE PRESIDENT Peter Tsaffaras (second from left) was recently honored by Boston State College Education at a ceremony held at the University of Massachusetts in Boston. Tsaffaras received the 2011 Education for Service Award. Offering congratulations are (from left) J. Keith Motley, Chancellor of the University of Massachusetts Boston; Winston Langley, Provost, University of Massachusetts Boston; and the event emcee, Joyce Murphy, Deputy Chancellor for Commonwealth Medicine, Boston State College alumna, and the 2010 recipient of the Education for Service Award.

Mary A. Smith, RLA, of the Quincy Planning Department has created a user friendly GOOGLE map to guide visitors through the cemetery using notations taken from a 2002 Quincy Historical Society brochure and adapted to the 21st Century tourist. This popular link has been added to the National Parks Service "wall", the Thomas Crane Public Library website and the Quincy Chamber of Commerce website. The Planning Department encourages anyone who wants to post the map on their website to do so.

Quincy's Hancock Cemetery dates from the earliest years of European settlement (1630's) and was the community's main burial ground until 1854. Early Puritans took a pragmatic attitude towards death and burial: grave markers were often impermanent or non-existent and the cattle roamed freely here.

Consequently,

more people are buried here than there are existing markers. Only in 1809 did a group of citizens, including John Adams, purchase the lot and officially donate it to the town. The handsome iron fencing along Hancock Street is from 1844.

The link to the map may be found on the City of Quincy Visitor's webpage, posted under "News" on the right-hand side of the page. The direct link may be found here: http://www. quincyma.gov/Visiting/

Experienced Presidents Are Off To A Fast Start

By SEAN BRENNAN

Four returning starters off a team that went 17-3 during the regular season and claimed second-place in the Patriot League is the number one reason why this winter's Lady Presidents girls' basketball team can be considered a strong bet to be a contender for another run at a league title and is also why Quincy should be a serious threat come state tournament time.

Head coach Jeff Bretsch's team is loaded with varsity experience. In senior starters Caity Lowry (forward), Kiley McDonald (forward), Nicole Lamie (guard) and Juli Tomer (guard), Bretsch won't have to worry about his team losing focus or shrinking under pressure. The returnees have been stalwarts for Quincy for three years and, last year during the Presidents' successful regular season run, they, along with since graduated Kori Sorensen, led Quincy to its best season record-wise in over a decade.

"It is great having these four starters back," Bretsch said on Monday, "and it is nice to have the experience. With these four leading the way it has been like we started in mid-season form. They all form such a strong foundation."

"We are still in the growing process (with a new season)," continued Bretsch, "but the (the returning starters) have all worked hard to improve during the off-season by playing together on an AAU team, so they were ready to go from the start."

With Lowry and McDonald dominating in the low post and Tomer and Lamie providing solid shooting from the small forward and off-guard positions, Bretsch has multiple options at his disposal when Quincy has possession of the basketball. He can design plays for his bigs in the paint if the situation calls for it or he can switch strategy to find space for his shooters to hurt opposing teams from the outside. This unpredictability should help swing match-ups Quincy's way.

"I have a lot of options," he said about what type of game plans Quincy will use this season. "We're not onedimensional. We can shoot from the outside with threepointers or we can work it down low. These starters all fill certain roles on the court."

Fellow seniors Maria Berberan (forward) and Emily Nguyen bring added depth and experience to the bench. Berberan according to Bretsch is the team's best shot blocker and is more than capable of filling in for either McDonald or Lowry when either forward needs a breather while Nguyen's best assets are her ability to defend and her speed.

"When I want to go big I can put in Maria," Bretsch said, "because she has the ability to block shots. And Emily is fast and can be a strong defender."

Rounding out the starting five is point guard Alyssa Ly-don. Only a sophomore, Lydon has advanced basketball skills that are not seen often in underclassmen. She also has the benefit of playing alongside four high IQ players in Lowry, McDonald, Lamie and Tomer.

"Alyssa is a basketball nut," Bretsch noted. "She has done a great job starting and she has advanced basketball skills. She has played with poise out there and she has been helped by playing with such experienced players."

The senior class may represent Quincy top players but the junior class is talented as well. Players to keep an eye on coming off the bench include Marissa Dyer, Ashley Daniels and Sam McArdle. While sophomores Alysha Dunbar, Rachel Papile and Kayla McArdle represent the new wave of young talent coming up the ranks.

Because Quincy has high expectations this winter, the team's quick 3-0 start shouldn't come as a surprise. What is scary for the rest of the Patriot League is that the Presidents have beaten three high-quality opponents already in Brockton, Duxbury, and Wareham.

Quincy opened the season by defeating the Boxers 54-45. The Presidents, on the strength of nine points from Lamie (12 points), outscored Brockton 23-12 in the fourth quarter to rally back from a 33-31 deficit at the end of the third quarter.

McDonald finished with 11 points and 12 rebounds.

"It was a good win for us against a big school," said Bretsch about the win over Brockton. "We want to play these types of games because it is a great way to get into tournament form."

The Presidents followed up the season-opening win with a 44-35 statement victory over Duxbury. Lowry was an all-around force against the Dragons finishing with 14 points, seven rebounds, seven assists and five steals while McDonald again dominated inside with a 19-point12-rebound final line.

"Caity and Kiley really stepped up against Duxbury and played tremendous,' Bretsch said.

Quincy kept the good times rolling on Monday by defeating nonleague Wareham at home, 66-55. Mc-Donald had her third straight double-double. She scored a season-high 20 points and added 14 rebounds while Lamie chipped in with 16

It doesn't get any easier for Quincy moving forward. The Presidents play at North Quincy on Friday (5:30 p.m.) before joining the Red Raiders, Weymouth and Braintree in next week's Abigail Adams Holiday Tournament at

"We wanted to make sure that we played high-level competition early," Bretsch said. "We have a really tough first-half of the schedule so we will know where we stand come the second week of January."

The North Quincy girls' basketball program began a new era on December 13 when the Red Raiders knocked off nonleague Everett, 52-50, in overtime.

The victory marked the first game on the bench for first-year head coach Jessica Worden. Worden took over for Michael Jorgensen and inherited a roster that is deep with senior experience and underclassmen talent.

Leading the way for North Quincy are senior captains Olivia Umoren (forward), Erin Renken (center) and Amber Jones (guard). Joining these three in the senior class are guard Taylor McKay, forward Courtney Timmins, center Julia Murphy, guard Rachel Chu, and forward Elaine Phomosou-

This class will be responsible for getting North Quincy back to its winning ways following a down season in

The future looks bright based on the skill that rests in a junior class, which gained considerable varsity experience last season. Starting point guard Annie Dow shares the backcourt with fellow junior Caitlin Bulger and both players bring intensity to the court on both offense and defense.

Coming off the bench, juniors Kristyin Mark (guard) and Samantha McNally (forward) provide Worden with options in the backcourt and frontcourt.

North Quincy's sophomore class is led by starting center Maya Umoren. Umoren shined against Everett, scoring a team-high 21 points to go along with 12 rebounds. Guard Jane Minton will see time filling in for Dow and Bulger.

Against Everett, the Red Raiders trailed 13-12 after the first quarter, but behind strong second quarter defense from Olivia Umoren (eight points, eight rebounds), North Quincy took a 24-17 lead into intermis-

In the second half, Dow (eight assists) continually found McKay (12 points) and the Umorens for easy buckets as the Red Raiders cut the deficit to 36-35 entering the fourth quarter. Everett had retaken the lead early in the third. Following a back-and-forth final quarter, the two teams ended regulation tied at 46-46.

But Jones (10 points) turned up the heat in overtime. The senior guard chipped in four points as the Red Raiders opened the year

Last Friday, North Quincy hosted Patriot League foe Silver Lake. Following a fast start by the Raiders (3-0lead), Silver Lake outscored North Quincy 11-4 the rest of the quarter. Olivia Umoren (14 points) accounted for all seven first quarter points for the hosts.

The Raiders scrapped back into the game in the second quarter getting as close as 19-18 behind solid play from McNally (five points), Murphy (eight points) and Maya Umoren (four points). But Silver Lake's Courtney Yost (game-high 24 points) gave Silver Lake a 22-18-advantage at the half.

North Quincy remained in contention throughout most of the third quarter, but a buzzer-beating threepointer by Silver Lake's Amy Barry pushed the Lakers' lead to 36-26 after three The Lakers used their considerable height advantage to outscore the Raiders 17-8 in the fourth quarter to win going away, 53-34.

On Monday, North Quincy traveled to nonleague Plymouth North. The Raiders got nine points each from Minton and Bulger and eight points from McKay but in the end lost a close contest. 45-43

The schedule doesn't get any easier moving forward. On Friday, North Quincy will host undefeated Quincy (3-0 overall) at 5:30 p.m. The following Tuesday (Dec. 27) the Red Raiders will take part in the annual Abigail Adams Basketball Tournament alongside Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth.

North Quincy and Weymouth will play in the 5:30 p.m. semifinal with the winner of this game advancing into the championship game on Dec. 28 at 7 p.m. A consolation game will be played at 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday.

After the school vacation week, the Red Raiders travel to Hingham on Jan. 6 before hosting Middleboro on Jan.

By SEAN BRENNAN Before the season got underway, North Quincy boys' hockey coach Matt Gibbons looked at the pre-Christmas schedule and saw a golden opportunity for his program to make some early waves. The Red Raiders have done just that. North Quincy (1-0-1 overall) opened the season on Dec. 14 with a solid 5-1 victory over Whitman-Hanson. The Red Raiders followed up that win with a hard-fought 1-1 tie against perennial state-power Duxbury over the weekend. With three points out of a possible four, Gibbons has his team moving in the right direction as North Quincy is aiming to reclaim the Patriot League regular season title.

"The Whitman-Hanson game started with both teams playing some sloppy hockey," Gibbons said Monin the first game of the year. We ended up scoring a couple of shorthanded goals and pulled away."

"Against Duxbury, who is the team to beat in the league in my opinion, we played a great defensive game and actually led 1-0 late," continued Gibbons. "(Duxbury) scored with about 20 seconds left in the third period after pulling their goalie, so that was a little disappointing. But it was a good test."

North Quincy was missing three key players against the Dragons. However, behind the strong defensive play from Tim Marks, Rudy Tryon and Nick Furey, the Red Raiders did a nice job of keeping Duxbury's skill players on the outside edge of the offensive zone. Senior goalie James Dunn made some key saves early as North Quincy limited the in close scoring chances.

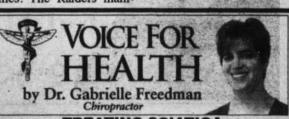

Sophomore forward Robbie Cameron broke the scoreless stalemate midway through the second period. Cameron gained position in front of the Dragons' goalmouth and was in perfect position to lift a rebound off a blue line shot from Tryon over the Duxbury goalie for his second goal in as many games. The Raiders maintained their 1-0 advantage throughout the rest of the period and throughout the majority of the third period.

But with under a minute left to play in regulation, Duxbury pulled its goalie for the extra skater. North Quincy had a chance to put the game away but just missed an open-net as a shot from center ice careened off the side of the goal. The Dragons took full advantage moments later when junior James Marcello scored a 6-on-5 tally.

Tryon took a good shot from the point and Cameron was in the right spot to bury it," said Gibbons about the second period goal. "After Duxbury pulled their goalie we had a shot go off the side of the open net; hockey is a game of inches and it just didn't go our way. It was a disappointing finish but to get three points out of four in the first week is a good start."

Against the Panthers on opening night at the Quincy Youth Arena, North Quincy flashed its balanced scoring prowess with four-second period goals to win going away, 5-1.

Trailing 1-0 after one period, the Red Raiders found themselves in a bad spot due to some untimely penalties. However, with Whitman-Hanson on an extended 5-on-3 power play it was the North Quincy special teams that came up huge.

Special teams ace James Doherty corralled a loose puck and drove up ice. His shot ricocheted and took a funny bounce before finding the back of the net. Moments later, forward Shawn Grady, just out of the penalty box, put North Quincy on top with his first of the season.

Grady would later add to his total with another second period tally and junior Martin Blake made it 4-1 before the second period horn sounded. Cameron's first of the year finished off the scoring

"Our special teams really played well against Whitman-Hanson," said Gibbons. "We took way too many penalties and that is something that we need to fix."

Dunn played well in net for the Red Raiders.

The schedule doesn't get any easier for North Quincy. Last night the team traveled to Brockton to play in a nonleague game and on December 26 the Raiders will play against rival Quincy in the first round of the Quincy Hockey Holiday Tourna-

"It has been a good start and it doesn't get any easier," stated Gibbons. "Brockton is a well-coached team and then we get Quincy."

Expanded Holiday Swimming Schedule

The Quincy Recreation Department announced a special schedule that includes daytime swimming at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool during the upcoming school vacation period.

In addition to the regular night program, the Department will supervise recreational swimming from 2-4 p.m. on Tuesday Dec., 27, Wed., Dec. 28, Thursday, Dec. 29, and Friday, Dec. 30.

Announcing the extended hours, Recreation Director Barry Welch stated that, "This additional eight hours of Recreational Swimming is open to youth, family, adults and children under age 6. An adult must accompany nonswimmers in the pool."

Those participants who have pool membership cards may utilize these existing cards. Others may purchase guest memberships, which cost $5 per adult or $2 per child in the pool lobby.

Although the holiday week will modify the regular weekly schedule, the Recreational Swimming Program will continue with its ongoing and regular schedule of programs conducted weeknights from Dec. 27-30 is as follows: 6-6:50 p.m., Family Swim; 7-7:45 p.m., Senior Swim, and 7:55-8:45 p.m., Adult Swim.

Membership information and pool membership can be obtained in the lower lobby of the Water Street entrance to the pool. Gift certificates for memberships are also avail-

All swims are supervised by Recreation Department Lifeguards who are certified according to the standards of the American National Red

Quincy Hangs On To Beat Duxbury, 50-48

By CHRISTOPHER McDANIEL

The Quincy High School boys' basketball team opened the 2012 season with a solid 50-48 win over Duxbury in a game that wasn't decided until the final possession.

In winning, the Presidents also earned some revenge. The Dragons had eliminated Quincy from the Division II South Sectionals last year. What a difference ten months can make.

The final moments were heart pounding.

With 26 seconds left in the fourth quarter, Duxbury seemingly tied the game at 49-49 with a three-pointer that banked in. But that threepoint basket was overturned and changed by the referees to a two-pointer; so Quincy held the lead, 49-48. On their next possession, Quincy senior Zerick Fadairo was fouled with eight seconds left. Fadairo missed the first free throw but hit the second to give the Presidents a twopoint lead at 50-48.

Duxbury then called a time-out. Quincy head coach David Parry had junior Jalen Green cover the inbound pass so the Dragons couldn't roll the ball up the floor and preserve time. Duxbury junior John Geary ended up getting a good look from behind the three-point line but the potential game-winning shot missed and time expired giving the Presidents a well-deserved victory.

A major factor in the season-opening win was that Quincy was able to overcome Duxbury's huge height advantage by playing a press defense almost the whole game. The Dragons had nine players listed as tall or taller than Quincy's tallest player (Fadario) but Parry said that's something to expect all season as his team is fast and athletic but not blessed with considerable height. He did add: "This is the most athletic team I've ever coached."

The press was most effective in the first quarter when Quincy forced 11 Dragon turnovers, which allowed the Presidents to end the first quarter with a 15-7 lead.

Parry also stressed that conditioning is going to play a key role in the Presidents' season: "We want to make teams prepare for us," he said. Along with the press, the Presidents expect to use their depth to their advantage all season.

Following the Presidents' fast start, Duxbury slowly rallied back and tied the contest midway through the third quarter at 33-33. But Quincy senior Nick Lepore made two key plays on back-to-back possessions. On defense, Lepore drew a charge on Duxbury's Curtis Owen -Duxbury's most effective player, which was his third foul in a game. Then on the offensive end of the court, Lepore grabbed an offensive rebound, missed a put-back, only to grab his own rebound and get two points to give Quincy the lead back for good at 35-33.

"Nick has an uncanny knack for always finding the rebound," Parry said.

Quincy also battled key injuries in the fourth quarter to guard Tino Goncalves and Fadairo. Goncalves cramped up and fell to the floor. No whistle was called so both teams kept playing and on the ensuing Quincy fast break Fadairo went up for a lay-up and was blocked from behind. The Duxbury player also appeared to hit Fadairo's head causing it to hit off the backboard.

Both players would return later in the game but while they were out, junior Jaqun

Harris made some key plays. Harris broke the Duxbury zone down with a dribble drive from the corner threepoint line and finished with his left in the lane. On the next Quincy possession he drew a shooting foul and hit both free throws to give Quincy a 46-42 lead.

Another key momentum play for Quincy happened at the end the third quarter. Duxbury had cut a President lead that was 16 points in the second quarter to just one late in the third, but on the last possession of the quarter, Green hit a three-pointer from the corner that gave Quincy a four-point lead heading into the final frame.

Fouls played a key role in the game for both teams. Parry had to call off the press in the second quarter when Fadairo got into some early foul trouble. Duxbury also had foul trouble as guard Khai Perry picked up his fourth foul in the beginning of the third quarter. Duxbury's Owen, who was the only player who could consistently get through the ultra-aggressive Quincy zone, ended up fouling out of the game with over two minutes left and Duxbury down by four.

Despite the victory, Parry said that he sees Duxbury as one of the four teams to beat in the Patriot League along with North Quincy, Scituate and Hanover.

"They are a great team," he said about the Dragons.

The Presidents traveled to Bridgewater-Raynham on Tuesday to play in a nonleague game. Quincy will tipoff against North Quincy on Friday night at 7 p.m.

Rescues Woman From Crashed Motor Vehicle

Firefighter Michael Eastwick Honored For Bravery

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy firefighter Michael Eastwick was honored for bravery by the city council during their Monday meeting.

Eastwick pulled a 71year old woman out of crashed car in Abington in November while he was off-duty. Council President Kevin Coughlin described Eastwick's actions while presenting with him with a commendation.

"Eastwick stabilized the woman's neck, administered life support, and prevented on-lookers from pulling the injured woman out of the car - holding back bystanders who wanted to move the women was very critical to this woman's safety," Coughlin said.

Coughlin then quoted Ouincy fire chief Joseph Barron who said "firefighter Eastwick risked his life going in there, stabilizing the patient, and waiting for the other emergency responders to arrive."

Eastwick thanked the council for award and said he wasn't unlike any other firefighter.

"What I did on that particular day," Eastwick said, "is nothing different than the firefighters in the city do on a regular basis. Any call we get, from very minor ones to extremely serious ones, this is what the fire department teaches us to do. This is what the firefighters in this city and all the other cities and towns surrounding us do everyday. It's very nice to be recognized for something like this."

Council Appropriates $35,000 To Maintain Police Boat

The City Council approved a $35,000 appropriation for maintenance of the city's police boats.

The council originally discussed the matter in their Dec. 5 meeting. They chose not to vote on the at the time because Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci wanted them to consider funding the maintenance with assets forfeited as a result of drug convictions.

But Police Chief Paul Keenan said it wasn't possible fund it that way. "The asset forfeiture funding is ment should be responsible fund this type of activity," he said, "that is generally used for drug investigations."

Instead, the money will be taken from the waterways improvement fund. That fund is financed entirely through the collection of excise taxes on boats - half of all such taxes go towards the fund.

The council approved the matter by 8-1 vote. Councillor at-Large Joe Finn cast the lone dissenting vote. He raised the issue of whether or not the police departnot an appropriate place to for collecting the excise tax, pointing to a decline in the collection rate between fiscal years 2010 and 2011.

Auditor Susan O'Connor noted that collections were at 72 percent in FY2010 and only 63 percent in FY2011. She also added that excise bills went out late in FY2011; they came out in May as opposed to earlier in the Spring.

But Councillor at-Large John Keenan noted that since boatowners have 60 days to pay the tax, some might've paid their fiscal 2011 bill in fiscal 2012.

Elaine Dwyer Proud Of School Committee Accomplishments

When asked what the down side of the job was, Dwyer said it was some of the hurtful things that would be said during meetings, especially during open forum.

Earlier this year, a woman spoke about having a new track at Faxon field, a heavily debated topic with a lot of strong opinions on it. The woman said that some members of the school committee weren't thinking of the kids and weren't doing their jobs that they were elected to do. Dwyer said she took the comments to heart and during the meeting reacted to the comments.

"There is nobody more that supports children in the Quincy Public School System than the people sitting at this table," she said at the Nov. 9 meeting. "I agree we need a track, and it's perfectly okay to disagree where the location is."

Dwyer said the comments couldn't be further from the truth. "What we represent is the kids, parents and teachers," she said.

Before the track issue, Dwyer had to endure other heated topics when she was the vice chairwoman of the school committee. One of the most trying times during her 10 years was when the teachers went on strike and negotiating their contracts.

"It was a very difficult time for the Quincy public school system," said School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro at the Dec. 14 meeting. "Elaine shared the utmost respect and leadership during that time. It was extraorday Dwyer said stick with her and even one that she said was the best thing that was ever done for her.

"When I wasn't endorsed by the QEA (Quincy Educators Association) I was really hurt because I was all for the teachers," said Dwyer. "Then a couple of teachers took it upon themselves to organize a group of around 50 teachers to take a picture with my sign. They were making a statement that they didn't agree with the QEA's endorsement. That was the nicest thing someone has ever done for me."

A thick skin is necessary when taking on the role of school committee member, Dwyer said, and she said she wouldn't be missing the tough subjects ahead on the agenda.

"There are new common core regulations coming out and the teachers contracts are coming up," said Dwyer. "Those are things I will be happy not to be there for."

If you asked her what she disliked the most though it wouldn't be the heated topics, or the criticisms from residents. Instead it would be having to work the campaign trail for re-election.

"That was the worst part of the job. You have to go to everything, it is very tiring," said Dwyer. "That was the worst part of the whole 10 years. I am a little shy so for me it was difficult going door to door, asking for money. That was the most difficult part of my job."

Dwyer said she enjoyed her time on the committee but that it will be difficult to watch the meetings for the first few months after she

"I am sure I will be flipping the channels to check it out once in a while," said Dwyer. "I think it will be hard to at first but they are gaining someone with children in the system."

Dwyer is referring to new member Kathy Hubley who will take Dwyer's seat come January.

"My advice to both new members (Paul Bregoli and Kathy Hubley) is don't take things personally, make informed decisions, do a little work and look into things," said Dwyer. "But don't take it too seriously."

Dwyer, who owns a travel agency out of her house, said she will dedicate more of her time running the business, and also try to volunteer in the school system.

With her last day already behind her, Dwyer hopes she has left a lasting impression on the school system.

"I thank everyone, teachand administration and all my colleagues past and present for their friendship and guidance over the years," said Dwyer. "I hope my 10 years on the school committee have made a positive difference in the school system for years to come because I know it has made a extraordinary difference in my life."

Feed The Hungry Gala Raises $60,000 For Interfaith Social Sevices

Interfaith Social Services, Quincy, raised more than $60,000 at its 14th Annual Interfaith Social Services Feed the Hungry Gala, announces ISS Executive Director Rick Doane.

Vincent's Nightclub at Lombardo's in Randolph.

Since 1947 Interfaith Social Services' has been working to feed, clothe and support disadvantaged families and individuals throughout the South Shore.

Guests enjoyed an evening of fun interactive raffles included prizes such as an iPad2 and a Lia Sophia jewelry set valued at over $500. In addition, the evening featured a silent auction, a live auction as well as fine wine and delectable dessert tastings from some distinguished South Shore retailers.

The emcee and auctioneer for the evening was NECN News Anchor Chet Curtis, who received some help cheering on the live auction item bidding from New England Patriots Braintree and Sarah Wiewel of Allston.

The hottest item during the live auction bidding.

was to have Alma Nove and Walburgers' star chef Paul Wahlberg as your personal chef for a dinner party of eight, food and wine included.

"Not only was this a The event was held at -wonderful fundraiser that will help thousands of impoverished families, it was also a lot of fun," said Do-

> "We tried to make this event as interactive and fun as possible; it is the least we can do to thank everyone for their generosity. Fundraising events depend on community support for their success.

"We had an amazing community of people that coordinated and attended this event. It was their generous donations that make it possible for hungry South Shore residents to have food on their tables tomorrow. We are so grateful to our sponsors for their support, especially our presenting sponsor Arbella Insurance Group Charitable Foundation Inc.," Doane added.

Fifth-grade students in Quincy's public schools and the Quincy Catholic Academy were invited again this year to write the answer to one question for this special issue of The Quincy Sun.

This year's theme is: "If I Could Give One Gift This Holiday Season It Would Be..."

We want to thank Colleen Roberts, Director of Cur-

It would be to give my sister the hope that her wish for Christmas comes true.

Olivia Pagliarulo Atherton Hough

It would be a new basketball for my little brother Jack. I would get Jack a basketball because he really wants one so he can practice playing basketball.

> Cole Schaaf Atherton Hough

It would be the gift of hope. There are far too many homeless people in this world, and I believe they fully deserve hope: hope for health, money and safety.

Camryn Burgio Atherton Hough

It would be to give my dog all the dog treats.

Robert Blowers Atherton Hough

It would be a phone for my mom, because my mom's phone is cracked because I dropped it. I would give her an iPhone 4, the white one.

Nathan Liang

riculum, for coordinating the public schools' participation and the principals and classroom teachers of those schools.

We also thank Catherine Cameron, principal of the Quincy Catholic Academy, for her assistance, too.

To all who took part, we extend warmest holiday greetings. Thank you all, most sincerely.

Atherton Hough

It would be to give my sister the one thing she wants most: an iPod.

> Alana O'Flaherty Atherton Hough

If I could give one gift this holiday season I would give one to my brother. I would give him a toy chest with his name, then he'd have a place to stuff all his great toys and games to play with!

> Andrew Artinian Atherton Hough

It would be the gift of happiness, joy, love and hope.

> Jason Scibilio Atherton Hough

If I could give one gift this holiday season I would give my new niece Ava all the time in the world to see her, and a new teddy bear.

Rachel Levasseur Atherton Hough

If I could give one gift to each of my siblings I would give my brother an Xbox 360 because he really wants one. And I would give my sister a Twilight movie because she loves Twilight.

> Tyler Griffin Atherton Hough

It would be money to the poor. I would make a new shelter so people would have a warm place to stay.

Robert O'Bryan Atherton Hough

It would be to give my cousins Colin, Megan, and my sister Emily one gift that they each really wanted.

> Laura Butruccio Atherton Hough

It would be to give all the homeless people a home and a holiday dinner. I would try to make their Christmas one of the best they ever had!

> Rachael Higgins Atherton Hough

It would be homes for the orphans. I would wish that kids will be warm, and have a bed and a house to live in.

Corbin Simone Atherton Hough It would be to give the joy of being free to families who live in countries with wars going on in them.

Eric Hellmuth Beechwood Knoll

It would be a loving family for orphans all across the country, so they don't have to spend Christmas alone.

> Nick Hewer Beechwood Knoll

It would be a new habitat to animals because their habitats are getting destroyed.

Shuling Guan Beechwood Knoll

It would be to give money to all of the poor people in the world.

Joseph Amendolare Beechwood Knoll

It would be a home for the homeless.

> Akima Khuong Beechwood Knoll

It would be to give freedom to countries such as Afghanistan.

Adam Tlacoxolal Beechwood Knoll It would be toys to my little brother because I am older and he is younger.

> Brian Zhang Beechwood Knoll

It would be toys for the children without any mon-

> Andrew Rooney Beechwood Knoll

It would be money to all the poor people so they have a happy holiday.

> Andrew Sullivan Beechwood Knoll

It would be a care package containing food, water, money, clothes, happiness, a laptop, and a bible to an orphan in Uganda.

> Mikey Anchan Beechwood Knoll

It would be happiness.

Everyone could use a little happiness in his or her lives.

Hannah Murphy

Beechwood Knoll

It would be the power of relaxing. I would give it to my mom because she always is cleaning and never gets the time to relax.

Aidan M.
Beechwood Knoll

It would be peace to other countries.

Michael L. Beechwood Knoll

It would be to give my cousin, Nash, a lifetime supply of Lego's because he loves collecting them.

> Katherine MacPherson Beechwood Knoll

It would be peace on earth.

Scarlett Manning Beechwood Knoll It would be a teddy bear, to snuggle with, for kids who have lost a loved one.

> Autumn R. Beechwood Knoll

I would be the gift of health to abused animals.

John Walsh Beechwood Knoll

It would be food and money to the hungry and poor. I would also give shelter to the homeless and give money to charities.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the up-per left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Change lies ahead for the brave Bovine who is ready to shuck off the tried and true to try something new. But appearances can be deceptive. Check it all out before you charge into anything.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) This week promises a peek into what the new year holds for the Gemini Twins, both in love and careers. Family matters continue to be a factor in decisions you're going to be facing.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) As you move into the new year, your travel aspects grow stronger, and you might find yourself making decisions about a destination and a traveling companion sooner than you'd expected.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The new year holds both glitter and gold. This means Leos and Leonas should begin getting the facts they'll need to separate the real thing from the sham in order to make important decisions next year.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A good way to start the new year might be to arrange for a visit to someone you haven't seen in a long time. You also might want to pick up that project you put off a while back

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) As you contemplate the new year's potential, you might want to talk things over with people who are or have been where you want to go. Their experience and advice can be helpful.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Someone close to you might feel you have no more room for him or her in your life. This calls for immediate reassurance of your love so you can start the new year on a high note.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The coming year will bring more people into your life. Some situations might not work out as well as others. But overall, everyone earns something, and that's always a good thing.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The new year could find you indulging in one or more of the hobbies you've always wanted to take up. And don't be surprised if they ultimately direct you toward a new career.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) The artistic Aquarian should find more opportunities in the new year. You might even make some potentially helpful contacts as you gather to ring in the year

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The new year offers challenges for Pisceans who want to make better use of the skills they now have and learn new ones. Personal relationships show stronger positive aspects.

BORN THIS WEEK: Although you sometimes tend to be a bit judgmental, nevertheless, you are generous and caring and very much beloved.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Christmas is one of the busiest and happies times of the year for millions of Christians throughout the world. Gifts are exchanged and Christmas cards exchanged, express ing sentiments of joy, goodwill, health and happiness.... A typical card may carry this

SCOTT DEWARE age: "Love was born at Christmas. We wish you love and joy at this beautiful season."... The custom of exchanging Christmas gifts began, we are told, in memory of the gifts the Wise Men brought the Christ child when He was born in Bethlehem.

Christians feel reverence for that momentous event that took ace in Bethlehem nearly 2,000 years ago. People enjoy singing the joyous and holy carols that have expressed that reverence in song down through the ages. . . There is a warmth of giving and the thrill of receiving. The spirit of the season surrounds us and reaches into our innermost self, brings out hidden feelings of joy and happiness that causes us to think: "Peace on earth, goodwill toward everyone."

Yes, another year has come and gone . . . almost! And so, we at the Deware Funeral Home, wish you the best. We wish you a Merry Christmas and a New Year filled with happiness health and prosperity. . .

2011-2012 Winter Parking Rules October 15, 2011—April 15, 2012

NO PARKING allowed on either side of Emergency Arteries during a snow emergency. Emergency Arteries are identified by signs.

Residents on side streets (not Emergency Arteries) are allowed to park on the ODD SIDE of the street with resident parking permits this winter season.

Overnight parking is prohibited without a resident parking permit all year. Permits are available at the Quincy Police Department.

Vehicles in violation of winter parking rules will be towed at owner's expense. Also, if your vehicle is hampering snow plowing operations (i.e. parked too close to an intersection, etc.) it will be towed.

The average tow fee is $125.00, plus cost of storage.

No exceptions can be made for short-term (10-15 min.) parking.

To find out if a snow emergency has been declared call 617-770-7669 for a recording or log onto www.quincyma.gov.

For other snow concerns call the SNOW HOTLINE 617-376-1927.

Downtown, Election, TS Irene Among Top News Highlights

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Quincy Center was the center of some major local news stories in 2011.

The $1.6 billion redevelopment of the downtown officially launched in January as Mayor Tom Koch and Street-Works, LCC signed a landmark agreement formalizing a first-of-its-kind partnership between a municipality and private developer in Massachusetts. The largest private investment in Quincy's history also reached other benchmarks in the ensuing months, including legislation signed by Gov. Deval Patrick here in Quincy that would in part provide flexibility in financing outlined in the master agreement.

After decades of being a mere blueprint, the much-anticipated cross-town connector opened in October and was dedicated to former Quincy Mayor Walter J. Hannon and termed "a transition to the future."

Hannon, credited with starting redevelopment plans when he was mayor in the early 1970s, said, "Vision is a great word, but you need commitment. We dedicate this road because we're serious about a new downtown."

Two downtown landmarks steeped in history began significant renovations.

The James R. McIntyre Government Center - Old 2011 The Year In Review

City Hall – needed major exterior and interior refurbishment, according to a local architect and city officials. Work to the 167-year-old Quincy granite structure called for a new slate roof, copper gutters and new windows outside and new electrical, pluming, heating and air conditioning systems inside as well as other updates.

Across Hancock Street, the United First Parish Church or "Church of the Presidents" also began a restoration project to its bell tower.

Politics also dominated the news as the city election featured seven contested races. Topping the campaign season was the mayor's race between incumbent Tom Koch and challenger Anne Mahoney, vice chairwoman of the school committee. The two opponents sparred over taxes, school spending, the location of a city track, the downtown redevelopment initiative and other contentious issues including charges of nepotism and cronyism in city government.

On Election Day, voters re-elected Koch as well as four new political newcomers. They also springboarded one councillor from his ward seat to a councillor at-large post and re-elected five other incumbents who faced opposition.

Weather also grabbed headlines after Tropical Storm Irene slammed the city in August. Irene uprooted many trees and damaged utility poles knocking out power for some 8,000 customers here. Officials also criticized National Grid's storm response as some Quincy businesses and homeowners went days before their electricity was restored.

Tragedy befell the city Oct. 18 when Robert DeCristofaro, a longtime employee of the Quincy Public Works Department, was struck and killed by a tractor trailer while working in a bucket truck on Washington Street near Chubbuck Street. The traffic and signal maintenance technician and electrician was mourned as a devoted father and family man and dedicated city employee.

The city was also saddened by the loss of other pillars of the community, including retired North Quincy High School Principal Peter Chrisom and longtime Quincy Park and Recreation commissioner Gerard A. Coletta, Jr.

A month-by-month review of the major news highlights of 2011 begins on Page 2.

Koch Lays Out Ambitious Mid-Term Agenda

JANUARY 2011

In his mid-term address, Mayor Thomas Koch announced plans to build a new Central Middle School, renovations to other school buildings, and an ambitious flood prevention program for West Quincy and other city neighborhoods.

The mayor also pledged to repair crumbling sea walls along some of the city's shoreline.

"If nothing happens, if no progress is made, you can hold me accountable," Koch told those seated in the Council Chamber of City Hall during his "State of the City" address. The audience included colleagues in municipal and state government.

"We have a responsibility to protect our residents, and I intend to live up to it," the mayor said while pledging to make progress on major traffic improvements around the city.

"Our strength of community is our willingness to chart our own course toward prosperity," Koch said.

In related news, the mayor's administration agreed to terms to purchase the closed St. Ann's School as part of the site for the new Central Middle School. The remaining parcels needed for the school appeared set to acquire without using eminent domain.

Koch said he expected to have a full land acquisition package before the City Council within the next several weeks, which would include $4 million for the St. Ann's site, and an additional amount for a neighboring home, a chiropractor's office, and a large parcel owned by Eastern Nazarene College.

John Sullivan, the lead coordinator of Quincy's innovative new trash collection and recycling program, was named the city's first energy manager paid for by a grant from the federal government.

Sullivan, who helped author the three-city trash collection contract with Weymouth and Braintree, moved into a new policy role aimed at reducing city government's energy usage by 20 percent over the next several years.

Mayor Koch pressed state transportation officials to ensure the design of a new Fore River Bridge in Quincy Point takes into account its vital importance as a gateway to the city and the surrounding commercial areas and neighborhoods.

"The top priority is obviously that the bridge be more functional and more efficient than the old one, but that does mean this bridge cannot be designed and built in a way that it makes it a centerpiece gateway to our City.

The City Council honored local National Guard members who recently returned home to Quincy after serving abroad. Council President and councillors saluted the returning military and offered prayers for the 1,899 members of the Massachusetts National Guard who are still overseas.

tion were sworn into office: state Sen. John Keenan and state Rep. Tackey Chan. Keenan succeeded Michael Morrissey, the new district attorney for Norfolk County. Chan is the first Asian-American to be elected to office in Quincy and the first Democrat Asian-American elected state representative in Massachusetts history.

Robert Hudson, 17 yearold North Quincy High School senior, received his Eagle Scout Award. Hudson helped build a raccoon enclosure at the New England Wildlife Center to earn Scouting's highest honor.

The Quincy-based Cradles to Crayons - a youth-focused charity visited by President William Clinton in April, 2005 – announced plans to move to bigger quarters in Brighton.

John M. Gillis, longtime Quincy Point resident and respected public servant for more than a half century, was selected to receive The Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award. Gillis, who served as Quincy city clerk for 33 years before being elected a Norfolk County commissioner, was chosen for the award from among 22 nominees. He was be honored at a reception in the spring.

An eight-year-old boy, Brandon Yang, died from carbon monoxide poisoning in his Yardarm Lane home in a murder-suicide plot, police investigators said. Yang's mother, Li Rong Zang, pled not guilty of first-degree murder charges at her bedside at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Norfolk County Dist. Atty. Michael Morrissey said the carbon monoxide poisoning was caused by a hibachi that was burning charcoal inside the home at the time of the firefighters' response.

Both mother and son were unresponsive when firefighters found them in a smoke-filled back bedroom.

Firefighters responded in 2 and a half minutes to the home, but their rescue attempt was hindered by a large bureau from the floor to ceiling that blocked the door and prevented them from entering the second-floor bedroom.

Firefighters used a Halligan tool to break into the room where they found Zhang on the floor and her son on the bed in what police called a murder-suicide attempt.

The Atherton Hough School celebrated its centennial with an open house at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall.

"So many generations of Houghs Neck families have attended Atherton Hough that the school is really a common bond that unites local residents," said Principal Dorothy Greene, noting Atherton Hough is the oldest elementary school building still operating today. "We wanted to celebrate the school's history and the role it has played in the community."

At the open house, Atherton Hough students and alumni shared their memories of attending the school and growing up in Houghs Neck.

Two early season snow storms were expected to cost up to $750,000 in snow removal. By month's end, more than 50 inches of snow had already fallen this season.

Mayor Koch and Street-Works Development, LLC, signed a landmark $1.6 billion Quincy Center redevelopment agreement that is expected to create nearly 10,000 jobs and dramatically reshape how urban renewal projects executed in Massachusetts.

The agreement, signed by Koch and Street-Works founding partner Kenneth Narva, formalized a first-ofits-kind partnership between a municipality and private developer in Massachusetts and set in motion the largest private investment in Quincy's history.

Officials said the project would create 4,100 construction jobs and 5,700 permanent jobs as part of a new mixed-use downtown featuring more than one million square feet of office space, more than 700 housing units, two hotels, a cinema and entertainment complex, and 575,000 square-feet of new retail and restaurant space in Quincy Center.

At the heart of the master agreement is a financing mechanism called "purchase model." It would require revenue from the new private development to pay for $227 million in public infrastructure costs. The city will purchase the public infrastructure – including parking garages – from Street-Works only when new buildings are occupied and producing enough revenue to cover the city's debt costs.

The fifth annual John Hancock Plunge attracted about 50 brave souls who dipped, waded and splashed the waters of Quincy Bay off Wollaston Beach. The event raised about $7,000 for Interfaith Social Services.

Deaths during December, 2010 included John A. Caporale, Jr., 62, a retired Quincy Police Officer; Beryl Jane Nicholson, 93, a retired receptionist and former proofreader for Banker and Tradesman; Rick Torraco, a retired radio and television technician; and Anthony Oriola, 71, a former photo engraver for The Boston Globe and a U.S. Navy Reserves veteran.

Deaths during January 2011 included: George DePaulo, a custodian at the Sterling Middle School for 60 years and decorated World War I veteran; Roswell S. Clarke, Sr., 74, a retired

U.S. Postal Service supervisor; Patrick J. McAuley, 88, retired Quincy fire lieutenant; Claire V. McGaffigan, a retired Ouincy school teacher; Faye G. ## McCauley's Quincy Yesterdays Finale ake a good look at Page 5 this week.

The Quincy's Yesterdays column - a Quincy Sun staple and one of the paper's most popular features since it debuted nearly 37 years ago - is the last one written by Frank McCauley.

McCauley - a former mayor and Quincy political historian - is stepping down as the Yesterdays columnist after five and a half years. He informed us months ago that he would be retiring at the end of this year but he wanted to continue until this final week of 2011.

The column - we'd like to point out - will remain featured on Page 5. We'll either find someone to follow in Frank's footsteps (no easy task) or we'll work something else out.

For Frank, writing Quincy's Yesterdays was a natural. He says it was one of his favorite columns to read in this newspaper.

"It was an excellent flashback to what was going on in Quincy over the years. Once in a while, I would see my own name in the column," Frank says.

"Shortly after I left the City Council in January, 2006, Henry Bosworth, founder and publisher of The Sun, called me and asked me if I would take over preparing the column. Although I liked the column I was skeptical about taking on this responsibility. Henry, however, persisted and I finally agreed to doing a couple of columns on a trial basis."

Frank's columns first appeared in the April 20 and April 27, 2006 editions of The Sun. "I found preparing the columns very interesting and so I accepted the assignment.

"My final column appears in the Dec. 29, 2011 edition of the Sun. I am proud to say that I will have completed 297 columns without ever missing a deadline.

"Since I will be celebrating my 82nd birthday Dec. 27 this year, I felt it was time to step down from this assignment," he explained.

Frank says he was often queried about how he prepared his Yesterdays columns. "All of the back issues of The Patriot Ledger and The Quincy Sun are on microfilm and are on file at the Thomas Crane Public Library on Washington Street.

"I choose a date that corresponds to the month and week that the column will appear in The Sun. From the microfilm I jot down items that I think might be of interest. My good wife, Sandra, then types up my notes on the computer and when she is finished I proof "Around the 15th of each month I deliver the completed columns for the next month to The Sun's office. I retain a copy with my work sheets.

"I have always tried to keep the content of the columns on a positive basis and both Sandra and I have enjoyed the opportunity to do the column over the past five and a half years.

"We hope that you have also found our columns interesting and informative. Thank you for allowing us to come into your homes for the past almost six years," McCauley added.

We'd like to thank Frank for his dedication and professionalism as the Quincy Yesterdays columnist. He's been more than a columnist - he's been a trusted custodian of a feature that dates back to 1975.

Frank, we'll leave the door open in case you get the itch to write again.

THERE HAVE BEEN two other Quincy Yesterdays columnists: the late Paul Harold and the late Tom Henshaw. Paul was a beloved public servant who served as a city councillor and a state senator for many years. Tom worked many years as a Quincy Sun newswriter and was among the best in the business.

Checking our archives, it appears the Quincy Yesterdays column debuted in The Sun on March 13, 1975.

came up with the idea for the feature. (Found that fact reading an old Sunbeams column written by my Dad after Paul passed away in August, 2002.)

The

headline

for the first Quincy Yesterdays: "Coolidge Invited to Quincy's 300th Birthday." Paul chronicled the week of March 13-19, 1925 - 50 years ago that same week.

Also mentioned that week:

The Coddington School PTO and Quincy Women's Club opposed locating the new Quincy Police station on Coddington Street at Newcomb Street. And how about this tidbit: "A resolution debated at the meeting of Clan McGregor - whether the saxophone should replace the bagpipe as the national musical instrument of Scotland."

Paul Harold wrote more columns but in the fall of 1975 he was elected to the city council. So, the column torch was eventually passed to Tom who wrote many more Quincy's Yesterdays. Paul also contributed to Quincy Yesterdays years later because he liked it so

We know newspapers are primarily about reporting today's events. But recalling the city's past has proven to be popular with our readers.

As such, Quincy Yesterdays will continue into the foreseeable future.

WE'D ALSO LIKE to recognize Tom Galvin, city historian, who is starting his 19th year with another Page 5 reader favorite: The Scenes from Yesterday postcard. Tom has been gracious - and informative - sharing his collection of postcard scenes from Quincy's past with Sun readers.

Seems a week doesn't go by without someone telling us how much they enjoy seeing his postcards printed in the paper.

We've said it before and we'll say it again: The Sun is fortunate to have friends like Tom and Frank, too.

We're sure our readers will agree.

QUICK PAUL HAROLD story - When Paul was a young guy, and the Sun was located above the old Kincaide Furniture store building, he bounded into the editorial office one day in 1969 or 1970.

He asked my dad if he could be a reporter.

"I want to get out and meet people and get to know them and write about them," he said.

Henry told him he liked his enthusiasm but knew that the Sun was only in its second year and things were tight money-wise.

"We don't have anything open right now."

Paul was determined.

"I really want the job."

Paul then uttered the magic words: "I don't want any money."

Henry told him "Well, maybe we can find something for you."

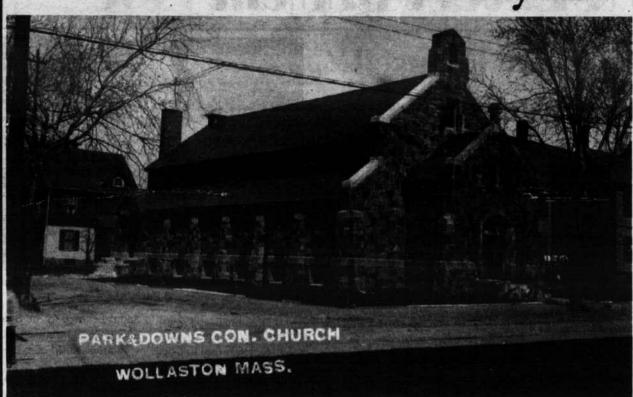

That's how Paul came to work for The Sun as a reporter. And he met people including future voters most Henry and Paul often laughed about the day he came running up the stairs. Especially when Paul started picking up a paycheck.

Henry, in a tribute to Paul after his passing, said, "Paul would have made a good reporter if he stayed. He would have been a good diplomat. He had as good a grasp on the world scene has he did on the local."

Readers can also thank Paul as the pioneer of the Quincy Yesterdays column.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 real photo postcard view of the Park and Downs Union Congregational Church on the corner of Rawson Road and Hamilton Street in Wollaston. Like so many churches of that era it is made of Weymouth seam-face granite. The name "Park and Downs" was used to identify this neighborhood because it was where the Norfolk Downs and Wollaston Park residential real estate developments met. Before it was developed into house lots in the 1890's, this land was part of the Quincy family colonial land grant and was used by them for farming for over 250 years. It was known as Massachusetts Fields as it was originally the planting grounds of the Massachusetts tribe of Indians. That name survives only on the old school building across the street from the church that is now condominiums. Since this old photo the church has added a wing in the rear and a privet hedge that has adorned this corner for many years. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

As part of his ongoing efforts to make his office even more consumer userfriendly for the public, Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti has installed a new inmate account kiosk in Quincy.

The kiosk gives family and friends of inmates who deposit money in phone or canteen accounts the option of doing so in Quincy instead of driving to the jail in Dedham to use the kiosk

The new kiosk is located in the front lobby at Sheriff Bellotti's Community Corrections office at 191 Parkingway in Quincy. It is open to the public from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The automated kiosk similar to an ATM - allows a person to deposit funds in an inmate's canteen or phone account using cash or a credit card.

"The new kiosk allows us to alleviate some of the traffic at our main facility in Dedham while simultaneously improving the convenience for people," Sheriff

Parking at the Quincy location is available in a rooftop lot atop 191 Park-

"This installation of this kiosk reflects our philosophy of using the latest technologies to increase convenience," Sheriff Bellotti

Visitors Impressed By Holiday Illumination

By FRANK McCAULEY

Quincy's business center will glow again this evening (Dec. 23) and the remainder of the week with thousands of colored lights along Hancock Street and thousands of vigil lights in the Granite Trust Building.

The strings of colored lights together with electrical wreaths, which are illuminating the White Way, were lighted last week while the vigil lights were lighted Saturday evening for the first time this

Visitors declare that there is no center in any city in New England that has so appropriate a Christmas display and that the beauty of its arrangement surpasses by far that of other years! SANTA CLAUS PAYS VISIT TO CRANE LIBRARY

Old "Kris Kringle" paid an early visit to the city this morning and left a sack of gifts for the librarians at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

It was the annual Christmas party of the corps of clerks and assistants at the Main Library on Washington Street, Quincy Square. Carol singing was enjoyed and refreshments too were on the program. Santa Claus was given a hearty welcome by Librarian Galen W. Hill who assisted the ladies in making the morning fun and enjoyable for all.

The librarians managing the party included Miss Violet Johnson, chairman, Miss Margaret Herbert, Miss Marie Corayer, Miss Carol Wilmore and Miss Laura Duncanson.

Quincy College Professor Focused On Teaching And Learning

Quincy College Adjunct Faculty Member Gerry Beaudoin has known since the age of 14 that he was going to be a musician.

Beaudoin was fortunate enough to have excellent music instructors in high school who guided him to what would end up being his passion in life. He received early acceptance from Berklee College of Music where he received a Bachelor of Music Degree in Applied Music.

Shortly after graduation, Beaudoin quickly became known in the jazz scene in and around Boston. As a young student, he looked to jazz guitar legends Bucky Pizzarelli and Kenny Burrell and combined their music styles to eventually make his own.

Beaudoin's career as a band leader, arranger, and guitarist truly began in 1990 after founding the Boston Jazz Ensemble and releasing his first recording with them titled 'In a Sentimental Mood.'This record was so well received that it inspired two more recordings, 'Sentimental Over You' and 'Sentimental Christmas'. He then went on to make two critically acclaimed recordings with David Grisman, an award-winning mando-Beaudoin has received many accolades including: Honorable mention by the National Association of Independent Record Distributors in 1992 for 'In a Sentimental Mood', The Cadence Editor's Choice Award in 1993 for 'In a Sentimental Mood' and for 'Sentimental Christmas' in 1995. He has also been placed on the Grammy Awards Ballot in 2008 and 2009 and his latest CD "The Return" featuring saxophonist Harry Allen has been submitted for a Grammy Nomination this year.

Beaudoin is now able to apply his many years of experience in the music industry to Band Management and the Music Business, a three-credit course being offered at Quincy College this spring. Students will be presented with the opportunity to learn about the many facets of the music business including: managing a band, recording and record deals, touring, writing and publishing music, merchandising, knowing pertinent laws, selecting a manager/ advisor or attorney, selling music on the internet, and entering the motion picture music field. The course will prepare students to make knowledgeable, practical decisions while pursuing a career in music.

"Gerry is a top performer who has played with legendary musicians. He is an example of the high caliber of talent we have right here at Quincy College," said Dr. Henry Rubin, Dean of Liberal Arts at Quincy College.

Beaudoin has been teaching music at Ouincy College for ten years and said that it is a fulfilling task to be able to teach students who have an interest in music. His students are fortunate to have an instructor who is a musician as well as an instructor of music and are able to attend his shows and see him perform outside of the class-

"Teaching music at Quincy College has truly has changed my life," said

For the 12th straight year, the employees of the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office have reached deep into their Santa gift bag to make sure that Christmas morning is a happy one for more than 50 kids in the South Shore

Each year, the Braintreebased Dianne DeVanna Center, which helps at-risk families, sends a Christmas wish list to the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office. The list contains the names and ages of youngsters served by the center. Beside each child's name is the gift they hope Santa will bring them on Christmas day.

The list is posted at the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office right after Thanksgiving, and staffers sign up to fulfill the various youngsters' wishes.

"All the children are chosen in a matter of hours," Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti said. "The DeVanna gift drive truly is a favorite among the employees. They deserve all the credit for making Christmas day happy and wonderful for kids who are less fortu-

During the 12 years that the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office has been involved with the DeVanna Center, approximately 600 kids have awakened on Christmas morning to find their favorite toy under the tree. The total cost of gifts purchased during that period is estimated at $30,000.

"However, that kind of happiness is priceless," Sheriff Bellotti said. "In the spirit of the season, I'd like to thank everyone - in all the organizations and agencies throughout Norfolk County - who give of themselves to make this such a great time of the year."

School Committee Recognizes Education Essay Contest Winners

By EMILY TAFT

Quincy public schools recently celebrated American Education week.

Students were asked to write an essay on the theme of "My education, my writing, and my responsibility." The 10 best essays from each school were submitted to the judges, who were retired teachers, and split up into five categories: kindergarten and grade one, grade two and three, grade four and five, grades six through eight, and high school.

The winners of each category were able to present their poster or read their essay to the committee and then received a certificate of achievement and a gift card to Barnes and Noble. When it came to what to write about many winners seemed to write about struggles in their lives.

One winner Anxhelo Taho, grade 8, wrote about his journey to America and learning to adapt to the English language, another winner Lettycia Smith, grade 10, wrote of her grandmother who she said picked cotton and never received an education. Smith said in her essay she wants to make the best of her education and be able to thrive on her own.

The first, second, and third place winners were recognized at a recent School Committee meeting.

The winners are: Kindergarten Grade 1

1st Place: Mrs. Patricia Hickey's and Ms. Patricia Sullivan's kindergarten from Snug Harbor.

2nd Place: Mrs. Tanya Norris' and Ms. Breanne Therrien's grade 1 class from Wollaston School.

3rd Place: Mrs. Mary Kay White's kindergarten class from Francis W. Parker School.

Rita's Chicken Wings & Barbecue Sauce Appetizer

While at a weekend at my daughter Rita and son-in law's home in Scituate, I tasted the best barbeque sauce ever. She is a great cook and enjoys making a variety of different kinds of food.

I am not a fan of barbeque sauce because most of the time, they are too salty

She made this particular barbeque sauce for chicken wings that would be great for a New Year's Eve appetizer. It can also be used as a marinate for ribs or whatever- as well as a salad.

BARBEQUE SAUCE FOR WINGS

3 tablespoons brown sugar

½ cup ketchup

1/3 cup Dijon mustard

1/3 cup apple cider vinegar ½ cup apple cider

2-tablespoons soy sauce (low sodium) ½ medium onion (chopped)

1/3 cup grated apple Salt and pepper to taste

Sauté the onion in one-tablespoon butter. Add the remaining ingredients and cook for 8-10 minutes. Store in a container in refrigerator for 1-2 weeks.

To prepare the wings put the sauce in a bowl and place wings coating each one thoroughly. Bake on a cookie sheet or baking pan in a 350-degree oven until done. Keep in a warming oven until ready to serve.

Spiced Apple Cake

When we were all at home, my mother, who was the best baker ever, made a delicious apple cake.

Last week, my niece Daria called and told me she had found a great apple cake recipe. When she brought it over, the only difference from the one my mother had made was an addition of cinnamon, but equally as deli-

We each made one and instead of a large baking pan, I used a baking pan with four individual large tins. They came out so different and so easy to serve.

SPICED APPLE CAKE

3 cups Granny Smith apples (chopped) or Courtland apples)

3 cups flour

1-teaspoon baking soda

1-teaspoon salt

3 eggs (slightly beaten)

1 1/2 cups sugar

2 teaspoons cinnamon 2 teaspoons vanilla

1 ¼ cups vegetable oil

1 cup chopped walnuts (optional)

Preheat oven to 325 degrees

Chop the apples and mix the cinnamon and vanilla and toss well coating the apples. In a mixing bowl, place the oil and sugar together and mix well. Add all the rest of the dry ingredients alternately with the eggs and mix for one minute. Add the apples and walnuts, and mix by hand for another minute. In a bundt pan or other large baking pan, butter bottom and sides.

Pour the mixture in the pan and bake for 1-1/2 hours, or when a toothpick comes out

My pan only took 50 minutes.

Learn To Cope Support Group Coming To Quincy

By EMILY TAFT

Learn to Cope, a support group for parents and family members dealing with a loved one addicted to heroin, Oxycontin and other drugs, is coming to Quincy next month.

Meetings will be held Tuesday evenings from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Eastern Nazarene College, 180 Old Colony Ave., Wollaston, beginning Jan. 10.

"We do so much for each other at these meetings, amazing friendships are formed," said Learn to Cope Founder and Executive Director Joanne Peterson. "There is hope, there is encouragement, and we teach you there are ways to have your life without drugs."

Peterson founded the program after a number of family members suffered from the disease of addiction, and she found herself looking for help.

"You have to take it one day at a time," said Peterson. "I am always going to be a learn to cope parent. It has given me a lifetime education."

The program welcomes family members of addicts educating them on how to help and deal with the addiction.

Since its inception in 2004, every meeting has been attended by at least 50 individuals, according to Peterson, and each meeting has a different theme or feel. The flow of each meeting is determined by what is said during the crisis discussion. During that time, people in the room will discuss something their family is going through, such as overdose, a death, the addict stealing, among many other topics.

"We try and let it flow naturally," said Peterson. We try to make the people there feel better when they leave these meetings, not

The program also teaches how to use the overdose reversal drug Narcan. Narcan completely or partially reverses the effects of narcotics. It works within one to three minutes and has saved over 50 lives so far in Quincy. Narcan is distributed in the form of a nasal spray and is given free of charge to family members after learning how to use it.

"I started fighting for families to be allowed to have Narcan in their homes back in 2007," said Peterson. "In a lot of situations the family member is the first responder." Police officers have also been trained on how Narcan.

Impact Quincy teamed up with Peterson and her program after receiving a grant. In 2006 the Department of Public Health found Quincy to be 7th on a list of cities with a high number of fatal and non-fatal drug overdoses, and now Impact Quincy is able to hold a programs addressing the issue.

"The program shows family members they are not alone," said Impact Quincy Program Coordinator Arlene Goldstein. "It shows you there are other ways to approach the problem, that you're not on this island by yourself."

Director of Impact Quincy Alejandro Rivera said that Quincy was lucky to have the program set up meetings in the city. According to Peterson, there is a waiting list of towns and cities asking for the program.

According to Goldstein for every one addicted person there is seven people who are directly affected. For many families Peterson said it is a feeling of shame and feeling isolated.

"Addiction takes your family on a roller coaster ride," said Peterson. "You become desperate for help. At these meetings you find that every family has the same struggle, the same story you do.'

Peterson said that she finds many families think it won't happen to them, but it doesn't matter how you are brought up - it just takes one bad decision.

"You can have all the right tools but it still can happen," said Rivera. "It's not always a matter of choice, it can go beyond that. It can be a pill given by a doctor to help a pain. It can happen to any-

Meetings are also held in Brockton, Gloucester, Lowell, Salem, and now Quincy. Peterson said that those looking to attend don't have to sign up and don't have to be a part of the community where the meetings are held. They offer knowledge, respect, compassion, and support for the many families who are battling the disease of addiction.

Peterson said her goal was never to have people in all states participating in the forum that hosts around 2,600 families, some nationally. She said she hopes that even when she isn't around anymore there will be help for those families who need it because that is what the program is all about.

"The most rewarding part of my job is when I see these kids come in as guest speakers who are four or five years sober because their parents were able to come to these meetings and help their child," said Peterson. "We see a lot of recovery, and that isn't talked about enough."

For more information on meetings or to talk with other families visit the Learn to Cope website www.learn-

LEARN TO COPE - Impact Quincy Program Coordinator Arlene Goldstein (left), Joanne Peterson (center), founder and executive director of Learn to Cope, and Alejandro Rivera, director of Impact Quincy, are coordinators for the new Learn to Cope program that will begin Jan. 10th. ## Commit To Quit For New Year's

By JACKIE DOANE Greater Boston Tobacco-Free

Community Partnership

Each year the decision to quit smoking remains one of the most popular New Year's resolutions. In a recent survey by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, 77 percent of adult smokers in Massachusetts say they want to quit and the New Year's holiday provides many of them with the fresh start needed to quit for good.

Quitting smoking will be hard, but there are ways to make it easier. If you've made the decision to quit smoking in 2012, try these five steps to improve your chances of quitting for good:

1. Make a quit plan. Decide on a specific date when you will quit. If you've tried to quit before, use your past experience to think about what helped you the first time and what you'll do differently this time. Visit makesmokinghistory.org to learn more about creating a quit plan.

2. Know your triggers. Triggers are certain times, places, people, or feelings that make you want to smoke. Common triggers include: stress, drinking alcohol, driving, and after eating a meal. Plan ahead to deal with your triggers.

3. Get support from family and friends. Think about who you want to tell about your plans to quit smoking. Ask them for positive support and encouragement. Think about how they can help, whether it's going for a walk, calling you, or if you'd rather they didn't make a big deal of it, tell them that too.

4. Get help from a trained professional. Using counseling support or cessation medicines can make you twice as likely to quit for good. Ask your insurance provider what types of benefits you are eligible for or ask your pharmacist about over-the-counter stopsmoking medicines. You can also get free support through the MA Smokers' Helpline at 1-800-QUIT-NOW.

5. Don't give up. If you slip and smoke a cigarette after your quit date, it doesn't mean you have failed. Many smokers have to try several times before they quit for good. Remind yourself of the reasons why you want to quit and keep moving forward with your plan.

The Greater Boston Tobacco-Free Community Partnership, a program of Bay State Community Services, is funded by the Massachusetts Tobacco Cessation and Prevention Program and serves as a resource for local coalitions, health and human service agencies, municipalities, and workplaces on tobacco intervention efforts.

City Wins National ( Development Award Community

The City of Quincy's Department of Planning and Community Development has again won the Audrey Nelson Community Development Achievement Award from the National Community Development Association (NCDA).

The city won the same award three years ago for its efforts in transforming the former St. Boniface Church into the Germantown Neighborhood Center.

The Audrey Nelson award recognizes exemplary uses of Community Development Block Grant and "HOME Investment Partnership" funds in meeting the needs of families and neighborhoods.

The award is being presented to the City of Quincy for the "Housing First for Families" project, in collaboration with Quincy Community Action Programs. which rehabilitated a former church on Granite Street into five units of affordable housing for very low-income and "at-risk" families. Tenants receive case management services designed to connect them to resources that will foster successful tenancies, and help them achieve self-sufficiency.

The award will be presented at the annual Winter Legislative Meeting of NCDA next month in Washington, D.C.

The award is called the Audrey Nelson Award, in memory of the first Deputy Executive

Secretary of NCDA. Audrey Nelson's intense commitment to her neighborhood, her local program efforts, and her drive to serve low income people was cut short by death from cancer at the age of 29. NCDA created this award in her honor in 1987.

To Recognize Individual For Outstanding Community Service

Saturday Last Day For Henry Bosworth Citizen Award Nominations

Saturday (Dec. 31) is the final day to submit nominations for the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award presented by The Quincy Sun.

The award - formerly known as the Sun Citizen of the Year - was renamed in 2010 in memory of Mr. Bosworth, The Quincy Sun's founder and longtime pub-

Last year, John M. Gillis, a lifelong Quincy Point resident, was recognized as a "champion of the little guy" during his public service career that has spanned more than 50 years. Gillis served 33 years as Quincy city clerk before he was elected a Norfolk County commissioner in 1992, a post he has served nearly 20 years.

Gillis was selected for the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award by a judging panel among 22 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

Gillis is the first recipient of the Bosworth Award and the 28th individual overall to be recognized by the Sun for outstanding community service. The other recipients received the award when it was known as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below in this week's issue of The Quincy Sun.

After nominations close Saturday, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

Capital Improvements Planned City-Wide

FEBRUARY 2011

Mayor Tom Koch presented a broad plan for capital improvements across the city to the City Council, including school roof repairs, flood relief projects, road construction and seawall repairs.

The first part of the flood relief project targeted was in West Quincy, hit hardest by last March's flooding as well as flood relief projects in other parts of the city.

Also on the front-burner: addressing long-standing seawall problems, including those hit hard by the Dec. 26th blizzard.

The plan also called for several million dollars of roof repairs to city school buildings, water main replacements, and road projects.

"We are an old city, and we cannot afford to let these needs idle, even during difficult economic times," Koch said.

A one-two winter storm punch Feb. 1 and 2 would likely push Quincy's snow removal spending so far to more than $2 million with more than two months to go in the snow season.

Between Dec. 20 and Jan. 26, the city received nearly 57 inches of snow.

Harry Williams, the City of Brockton's library director since 2004, was named to Quincy's top library post succeeding Ann McLaughlin who retired after 40 years in the city's library system, including the last 17 as director of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

"I want to build on the excellent work that Ann McLaughlin did," Williams said who described himself as a "shameless" promoter of libraries and believes one of the major jobs as director is "to get out the word of what we do."

McLaughlin was honored by library colleagues at a retirement reception at the Crane Library.

"I'm going to miss all these people. I grew up with them. It's like moving away to school," McLaughlin said.

State Rep. Ron Mariano was promoted to House Majority Leader by Speaker Robert DeLeo.

"It's a great opportunity to be involved in major decisions," said Mariano who was elected state representative in the Third Norfolk District in a special election December, 1991.

"As part of Speaker De-Leo's team, I hope to help lead the House of Representatives in the next session in a positive and productive way," he said.

The City Council voted 7-2 to authorize a $9 million bond allowing the purchase and preparation of a four-acre site off Hancock Street for a new Central Middle School.

The vote signaled the first step toward the construction of a $39 million middle school to replace the 110-year-old Central Middle School labeled one of the five school buildings in the worst conditions in the state.

Movie scenes for an upcoming Kevin James movie would be filmed in the interior of the former Quincy High School under a deal signed by Columbia Pictures and Mayor Koch. The deal would provide $180,000 for the Quincy Public Schools music program.

Coop's Bar & Grille took home the title of Quincy's Champion Chili at the second annual "Chili Lovers Cook-off" held at Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

The Quincy Center $1.6 billion revitalization effort received the backing of U.S. Sen. Scott Brown who lauded the efforts of Mayor Thomas Koch in securing a public-private partnership between the city and Street-Works

"Mayor Koch is doing a great job and I've met with his team. This project should generate good construction jobs and help drive the local economic engine," Brown said in a phone interview from his Washington, D.C. office. "As you know, I oppose earmarks, but stand ready to help the mayor and other local officials through the normal grant process for funds."

Resources featured traditional lion dance and live performances representing five Asian cultures. The festival, was held at North Quincy High School.

A study showed old City Hall - officially named the James R. McIntyre Government Center - is in critical need of a monumental makeover - inside and out - and should undergo its first significant restoration in some 90 years.

Architect James Edwards said the 167-year-old building needs exterior and interior upgrades including a new slate roof, copper gutters and downspouts and new windows. Inside, every system should be replaced: electrical, plumbing, heating and air conditioning.

The work also called for a new fire alarm and fire prevention systems along with an elevator with handicap accessibility.

Also under consideration: restoring the City Council chamber to its original "Great Hall" status when it was first built in 1844.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci asked the town of Milton to reconsider its plan to erect a 450-foot wind turbine 100 feet from a Quarry Hills Golf Course property

"I'm not opposed to Milton putting up a wind turbine," Palmucci said but said the proposed turbine - the size of a five-story building - is too close to the Quincy line and would hover lover the golf course and recreational area.

City Appeals $3M Judgment In Adams Trust Lawsuit

MARCH 2011

The city filed an appeal of the $3 million judgment against the city ordered by Judge Robert Langlois in the Adams Trust Lawsuit.

'We do have some particular issues with the decision. that we intend to review," said City Solicitor James Timmins.

Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines cited possible areas for appeal, such as the current incorporated status of the Woodward School and property, as well as the history of the trust which, until 1953, directed funds to the Quincy Public Schools.

The suit against the city claims the city did not adequately protect the trust or properly compensate the Woodward School, which was designated beneficiary in 1953.

The suit claimed the city sold 11 of the trust's 15 properties for less than their fair value, failed to provide proper income to the Woodward School and refused to provide an accounting of the trust to the school.

Quincy's first Hollywood Casting Call "boomed" with excitement at the Kennedy Center as some 1,300 people turned out for a shot to be extras in the new Kevin James movie set to film scenes at the old Quincy High School later in the spring. Many of the 13,03 hopefuls - including 700 from Quincy - arrived by bus, some with photos and resumes in hand.

City councillors reviewed a request by Mayor Thomas Koch to apply for and disburse grant funds for renovating historic McIntyre Government Center (old City Hall). The vote for authorization was 8-1 with Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi casting the lone dissenting vote.

"Is this an $8 million project or a $10 million project. We still don't know what this project is going to cost," Raymondi said.

The mayor sought state funds to help fund the restoration, including a $30,000 grant from the Massachusetts Historical Commission.

Councillors expressed support to protect the 176-year-old historic building, but several questioned the cost.

North Quincy High School dedicated its auditorium to Peter Chrisom who served as the school's principal for 26 years.

for the city's population as counted by the federal census. It was also near the number determined by the city's own census or street-listing taken in 2010 which counted 92,700 Quincy residents.

State-wide, Quincy moved up a spot to eighth place in the ranking for the most populous cities in the Bay State. The "City of Presidents" ranked 8th behind Brockton - known as the "City of Champions" - which ranked 7th with 93,073 residents. Quincy, which 10 years ago was ranked 9th - leapfrogged Lynn which is now in the 9th spot with 90,329.

Some 150 family, friends, past and present elected officials and other invited guests attended the tribute to Gillis who served 33 years as Quincy city clerk before being elected a Norfolk County commissioner in 1992 – a post he continues to serve.

"I am truly honored to receive this award," Gillis said. "Henry Bosworth and I grew up together. We were friends. Henry Bosworth you could depend on day to night. He was such a great guy."

Gillis was also praised by friends and colleagues in government.

"I appreciate what happened today. I'm grateful and I'm happy and I thank God for being a part of this great community. I love it," he said.

The City Council approved an amendment to the city's Public Safety Enforcement ordinance allowing the city to charge property owners for private details assigned to unruly addresses after eight reports of "arrestable" offenses.

"Nobody wants one of those properties next to him or her," said Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci who filed the revised ordinance. He said the change added teeth to the 10-year-old statue that allowed the assignment of police details where illegal activity occurs.

The new federal census showed Quincy's Asian population accounted for 24 percent of the city's 92,271 residents. "Whites" totalled 67.3 percent. In 2000, the white population was 76.66 percent and persons listed as Asian was 15.79 percent.

Several Hollywood stars arrived in Quincy to film scenes for the upcoming comedy, "Here Comes the Boom." Among those on the set inside the old Quincy High School were actors Kevin James, Salma Hayek and Henry Winkler.

The film is scheduled to be released in theaters nationwide Oct. 12, 2012. A rental arrangement between the production company and the city generated revenue that the city will use to fund the high school music program.

Mayor Tom Koch proposed what he labeled a $237 million "stabilization" budget for fiscal year 2012 which would maintain city services through all departments, increase public safety, and continue to provide a top-notch school system.

The $237 million spending plan represented a 3.5 percent or $8.1 million increase over the current budget and assumed approximately a two percent increase in the property tax as well as a $2.5 million increase in new growth. The total property tax levy revenue will increase to $172.4 million.

On the plus side, Koch allocated a $4 million increase for the school system, a $1 million increase for police department with five new hires and no layoffs across the board.

The budget also called for small percentage increases in all other departments to cover salary adjustments and equipment hikes while maintaining services.

"The FY 2012 budget stops major cuts, but most departments will not be funded at pre-2010 levels," according to the budget summary presented to the City Council.

Three new department heads appointed by Mayor Tom Koch were introduced at a City Council meeting. They were: Assessor Peter Moran, who was also named chairman of the board; Library Director Harry Williams; and Mark Cavanagh, director of Municipal Finance.

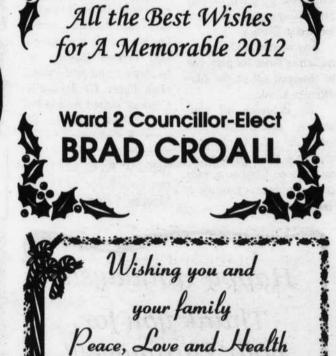

The city's election – which observers believed could be a quiet one – started to percolate with two major political announcements

Raymondi Won't Seek Re-Election; Mahoney Announces Mayoral Bid

Longtime Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi announced he would not seek re-election this fall. Raymondi, the longest-serving member of the current council and also an eight-year member of the School Committee - said he was "immeasurably proud" of his two-decade volume of work as a ward councillor but said it was time to pursue other opportunities.

The council was expected to appoint an interim Ward 2 city councillor to fill out Raymondi's unexpired term until a successor is elected in November.

The other major political news in May:

School Committee Vice Chairwoman Anne Mahoney tossed her hat in the ring as a challenger to Mayor Tom Koch.

"It's become apparent that this administration puts hiring and promoting friends, family members and political cronies ahead of the best interests of the average resident." Mahoney said in her announcement. "When elected, I will ensure that our city government serves all the people, not merely the well-connected few."

Koch, who announced earlier in the spring his intentions to seek a third twoyear term, said he looked forward to the mayoral cam-

"This is the people's seat, and I welcome the opportunity for a serious discussion about the many challenges and opportunities facing our city," the mayor said.

Mahoney, who topped the school committee races in 2005 and 2009, added:

"The hard-working citizens of Quincy deserve better. It is time for a mayor who will focus on the needs of residents and lead this city by delivering innovative solutions in an unsure economy."

Raymondi was offered to head the Department of Public Works under a budgetneutral restructuring plan proposed by Mayor Koch.

"Dan Raymondi has the experience and love of this city that are precisely the right fit for this role," Koch said. "I know I will be judged by the results, and I expect those results to be substantial. He's the guy I want for the job."

After a one-week rain delay, the city celebrated the 60th anniversary of the Quincy Flag Day Parade. Among the marchers: some 2,000 city young people from groups across Quincy waving American flags.

The celebration also featured a 30-foot by 60-foot American flag raising at Pageant Filed, the presentation of the Richard J. Koch Youth Service Award and a patriotic performance and sing-a-long and fireworks display over Black's Creek. Dave MacMillan, a Babe Ruth Baseball coach for 49 years, received the Koch Service Award, Ray Cat taneo, former director of the Quincy Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department Stanley Cup fever gripped the city as the Boston Bruins' ended a 39-year championship drought defeating the Vancouver Canucks in a heart-stopping NHL Finals, four games to three. Local fans rejoiced as some carried Bruins' banners and make-ship Stanley Cup replicas while marching in the Flag Day Parade. Even John Adams showed his Bruins' loyalty: the statue of the second U.S. President outside City Hall was adorned with a Bruins' home jersey.

The South Shore YMCA announced plans for a new $30 million facility adjacent to its present home on Coddington Street. The new 120,000 square-foot YMCA - with a Main Street community center feel - called for a new aquatic center, two basketball courts, a turf field for indoor soccer and field hockey, and a 200-meter track.

After three years of work by the Zoning Task Force he commissioned, Mayor Tom Koch signed a comprehensive renewal of building and construction rules in the city.

The Year In Review

It was the first overhaul of the city's Zoning Ordinance since the early 1970s.

Ground was broken at Holmes and Burgess Streets for a $9 million, 21,000-square-foot facility for South Cove Health Center. The need for the new facility was partially a result of the influx of Chinese residents who have moved to North Quincy and other locations on the South Shore from Boston. The project called for eight pediatric rooms, four behavioral health consultation rooms, five dental operatories and an optometry suite. The third floor would be held for future development or a possible lease to a third party.

Deaths during June included:

Rev. Thomas F. Keane, former pastor, St. Ann's Parish; Dorothy C. Kelly, 95, community activist; Leo Santoro, past president Montclair Men's Club; Arden Tuttle Schofield, 93, teacher, musician and World War II ex-POW; Elizabeth A. Elias, 74, active at Bethany Congregational Church; Joseph Dormady, 84, owned roofing company; Eleanor M. Reidy, 96, administrative Court.

Mayor Thomas Koch appointed Daniel Raymondi, who had served more than 30 years as a ward councillor and school committeeman, as commissioner of the Department of Public assistant for former Mayor Francis McCauley; Warren S. Kirkland, industrial engineer and Senior Olympian; Beulah Wiltshire, member of Central Baptist Church; and John J. Daniels, Jr., 64, employee of Quincy District

The appointment completed a restructuring the mayor said would build on operational improvements in recent years by placing a renewed focus on the administrative functions of the department.

Raymondi resigned his Ward 2 council seat before being sworn in as commissioner. He had held the seat for nearly 22 years.

Lawrence Prendeville, the commissioner whom Koch credited with being the "best operational leader in the Commonwealth," was also sworn in as superintendent of Public Works, which expanded the duties of the previously existing superintendent of Sewer, Water and

The Raymondi appointment also sparked sharp criticism from mayoral candidate Anne Mahoney. She called Raymondi's appointment to the $110,000. position a "million dollar pension grab" that damaged both morale and the city's reputation.

Mahoney, who had previously called upon Koch to withdraw the job offer, also blasted the Koch administration for making no formal announcement of the controversial appointment prior to Raymondi's swearing in the morning after the long Independence Day holiday weekend.

"This proposed appointment was first mentioned nearly two months ago, yet Tom Koch waits until the July 4th long holiday weekend to try and slip it past the voters," Mahoney said. "I've got news for you, Mayor: The voters of Quincy are paying attention."

To fill Raymondi's unexpired term, the City Council chose Francis Orlando as interim councillor by an 8-0 vote.

Orlando, who had worked as an aide to former Sen. Michael Morrissey, "has the right combination of energy and experience. He can hit the ground running," said Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci in his nomination of the 25-year-old Alton Road resident.

23 Candidates File Nomination Papers

AUGUST 2011

A total of 23 candidates filed nomination papers with the Quincy Election Department setting the stage for contested races for mayor, councillor at-large, school committee and ward councillor in four of the city's six wards Nov. 8.

There would also be a preliminary election for Ward 4 and Ward 6 city councillor where three-way races formed after the nomination deadline passed Aug. 2. The top two-finishers in those Wards Sept. 20 would advance to the final election Nov. 8.

Candidates who filed and the offices they sought are:

Mayor: Incumbent Tom Koch and challenger Anne Mahoney, school committee vice chairwoman.

Councillor at-Large: Incumbents Joseph Finn and Michael McFarland; Doug Gutro, who is vacating his Ward 5 council seat; and John Rodophele, Sr.

Ward 2 Councillor: Stephen Kozlowski, Steve Perdios and Brad Croall.

Ward 3 Councillor: Incumbent Kevin Coughlin and challenger John Cain, Sr.

Ward 5: Kirsten Hughes and Neil McCole.

Ward 6: Incumbent Brian McNamee and challengers Brian Radell and Michael Miller.

School Committee: Incumbent David McCarthy and Paul Bregoli, Kathryn Hubley, Linda Perry and Jay Davis. Not seeking re-election were current School Committeewoman Jo-Ann Bragg and Elaine Dwyer.

A final architectural study of Old City Hall – also known as the Mayor James R. McIntyre Government Center – detailed a litany of structural and safety issues in the 167-year-old historic building that formed the foundation of a major renovation project and the temporary relocation of some city offices,

Quincy architectural firm Holmes and Edwards, Inc., concluded the building is in "very poor condition in almost every imaginable way," including inadequate fire protection, termite and beetle infested support beams, ceilings heavily damaged by leaks, poor heating and cooling systems, non-code compliant electrical and wiring systems, nonexistent handicapped access, asbestos and mold in several areas, and "emergency egress from all levels of the building (that) is inadequate and illegal by current building code standards."

No significant work has been done to the building in more than 100 years. The project cost was pegged at between $6 and $8 million.

SEPTEMBER 2011

As Quincy continued cleaning up after Tropical Storm Irene left debris, fallen trees and branches in its wake, Mayor Thomas Koch announced he would apply for federal assistance to defray the costs of the city's storm response.

Officials assessed damage and costs related to the city's coordinated response by the police, fire and Public Works and Park Departments that handled more than 200 calls for fallen trees and dozens of other emergency calls during the storm. With a disaster declaration already issued, the city filed an application to recover its costs associated with the storm, officials said.

Some 8,000 National Grid customers in Quincy lost power during Irene which felled more than 250 trees and downed more than 50 power lines across the city. Power was slowly being restored but Mayor Koch called National Grid's response "deeply flawed and totally unacceptable" with a lack of manpower and unreliable communication to both customers and city officials.

"The City was prepared, and we expected the same of National Grid. There's little doubt in my mind that they weren't," Koch said. "I just hope that this isn't a case of a major corporation sacrificing serving to its customers in an effort to protect the bottom line. Regardless of the reason, National Grid's response was totally unacceptable."

Koch noted that through the duration of the storm, the city activated five individual tree crews to handle emergencies, while National Grid used a total of three crews for both Weymouth and Quincy during the heart of the storm – when falling trees and power lines posed the most serious threat.

City officials pressed National Grid repeatedly to provide more resources to get the power back on to its Quincy customers.

Employees in the City Clerk's office, License Board, mailroom and Housing Rehabilitation began their first full week working in the newly opened City Hall Annex at 1259 Hancock St.

The move was necessitated by planned renovations to the 187-year-old City Hall building (James R. McIntyre Government Center).

School bells rang Sept. 7 for students in grades 1-9 while grades 10, 11 and 12 attended their first day of class Sept. 8.

"In order that we attain our system goals for each and every one of our 9,300 students," Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said In his annual back to school message, "we need your involvement. The most meaningful factor in assisting students to have a successful school experience is the concern, participation, and involvement of their parents."

The Quincy Police Department opened a substation in the heart of Quincy Center in a small storefront office space donated by the city's downtown redevelopment partner, Street-Works Development, LLC.

The substation, located at 1416 Hancock St. in one of the storefronts that's part of the Granite Trust Building, will be headquarters for community police beats that comprise downtown's daily police staffing.

Enrollment at Quincy College was up nearly eight percent according to College President Peter Tsaffaras who cited the economy, quality and word-of-mouth recommendations spread across the world through students from 98 countries as the main factors in the increase in the number of students.

"The economy plays a major role," said Tsaffaras but he emphasized that the quality of education, courses, convenience and faculty at Quincy College are primary reasons that the college's enrollment that he projected would surpass 4,000 students this academic year.

Local residents, public officials and Quincy firefighters joined together in a solemn observance of the 10th anniversary of the tragic events of Sept. 11, 2001.

"This morning is earily similar to that morning 10 years ago," said U.S. Rep. William Keating at the remembrance beneath sunny skies at Fire Headquarters on Quincy Avenue. "We must remember that day. If we don't then we will be doing ourselves — and the country — a dishonor."

At the ceremony, the American Flag was lowered to half-staff and a bell was rung in memory of the 343 New York City firefighters who lost their lives responding to the attacks at the World Trade Center. A bagpiper also played "Amazing Grace."

"It is likely this change in ownership could occur toward the end of September, right around the time of our annual walk," said Mark O'Neill, Chief Executive Officer, and Grace Murphy-McAuliffe, chairwoman of the Board of Trustees said in a joint statement. "As such, Quincy Medical Center would become a for-profit entity and would not be eligible to use charitable donations for its operation."

Supporters of the charity event pledged the walk would return next year.

Mayor Tom Koch approved the City Council's bid to remove the two-term limit imposed on members of Quincy's Community Preservation Committee.

The council voted 7-2 to repeal the term limit. Voting against the measure were Councillors John Keenan and Brian McNamee. In opposing the change, Mc-Namee said that a city of 90,000 residents must have an abundance of candidates to replace members limited by two-terms.

Ryan Nadeau, director of Hockey Administration and a scout with the Boston Bruins, shared part of his day with the Stanley Cup by bringing the iconic trophy to two Quincy schools: the Sterling and Atlantic Middle

"To be able to have the Cup and just to watch everyone's expression is unbelievable," Nadeau beamed as groups of students gathered around the Stanley Cup and mugged for cameras as parents, school personnel and other photographers snapped photos for poster-

"To be able to share it with people, that's what it's all about. To give them a chance to see the Cup is a pretty special feeling."

Preliminary election winners were Brad Croall and Steven Perdios in Ward 2 and Brian McNamee and Brian Radell in Ward 6. Croall and Perdios were nominated for Ward 2 city councillor while McNamee, the incumbent, and Radell were nominated for Ward 6 city councillor. They four advanced to the final election Nov. 8. Voter turnout in the Sept. 20 runoff was only 14.33 percent in those two wards: 2,696 out of 18,814 registered.

City officials touted what they described as a first-of-its-kind joint venture between Street-Works Development and National Realty and Development Corporation, a leading real estate owner/developer in the Northeast. More than 2,000 turned out for the Houghs Neck Community Council's seventh annual Chowdafest. Topping the chowda contest was a recipe submitted by John Crosta, a Houghs Neck resident and Quincy firefighter.

Nearly 1,000 runners and walkers and many other volunteers turned out in support

OCTOBER 2011

Quincy's newest street
- the Walter J. Hannon, Jr.
Parkway - opened to much fanfare as state and city dignitaries lauded the new downtown roadway as a "transition to the future."

Officials called the parkway, an $18 million, fourlane road spanning from Burgin Parkway to Southern Artery, a crucial step in the planned redevelopment of Quincy Center.

Cong. William Keating dubbed the new parkway "a transition to the future."

The parkway's namesake former Quincy Mayor Walter J. Hannon – took the first motor vehicle ride along the parkway in a 1951

Mercury. Affixed to the vehicle's door was one of Hannon's old campaign signs.

Hannon served two terms as the city's chief executive from 1972 to 1975. The former mayor who also served as a ward 5 councillor and state representative is credited with starting redevelopment plans when he was in office.

"Vision is a great word," Hannon said at the ceremony on the first Sunday in October. "But you need commitment. We dedicate this road because we're serious about a new downtown."

Among the other elected officials attending the ceremony were Cong. Stephen Lynch, former Cong. William Delahunt, state Treasurer Steve Grossman, former Lieutenant Gov. Frank Bellotti, former state Treasurer Tim Cahill and six Quincy mayors: Walter Hannon, Arthur Tobin, Francis McCauley, James Sheets, William Phelan and current mayor Tom Koch.

"So many contributions from so many folks" made this parkway possible," Koch said, noting he was baptized into local politics when he delivered Hannon campaign flyers as a kid.

In his remarks, Hannon said naming the parkway after him was a great honor, "but today I speak for all the men and women and served our City since 1964. Their names are not here today, but they made the decisions, painful at times, to move ahead; no one person does this alone. I thank them."

Hannon also said it will take more than vision to revitalize the downtown - it takes commitment.

"The next few years will be challenging, sometimes unpleasant, but the end result is worth the challenge. Don't ever give into the naysayers, failure is not an option. In the end, no one's going to thank you but at the end of the day you're going to say, 'I was on the team and I won the fight.'

"I predict that, within the next 10 years, Quincy Center will be the place to work and live and will be the envy of the South Shore. The ball is passed to you, its citizens and elected officials. It's your turn. Don't drop the ball."

In a tribute written for The Quincy Sun, former Mayor Francis McCauley said Hannon championed the cause of economic and business development in Quincy as a way of easing the burden on Quincy residential property owners. Both McCauley and Hannon were elected to the City Council the same year: 1963.

McCauley also said Hannon worked hard for development of the Montclair area bordering the Neponset River. His efforts led to the construction of the State Street South development which is now one of the largest taxpayers and employers of Quincy residents.

Hannon also, McCauley

Hannon also successfully fought to bring the South Quincy MBTA Station to South Quincy.

"At long last, the crosstown connector and now the Walter J. Hannon Parkway is a fitting tribute to a former mayor, councillor and state representative: Walter Hannon," McCauley said.

Bill Roberts was recognized by the City Council for his 50 years of service to Quincy as the city's election accountant. He has also served as a trustee of Union Congregational Church for 40 years.

The Legislature approved a supplemental budget bill that contained $5 million for the Downtown Quincy project.

The money was part of the Infrastructure Development Fund, a new state initiative to provide funding for "shovel-ready" infrastructure projects across the Commonwealth designed to jump-start additional economic activity. In addition to appropriating $37.95 million for these projects, the Legislature also transferred $350 million in the state's "Rainy Day Fund."

DOVE - an acronym for Domestic Violence Ended - marked 33 years as the local agency dedicated to identifying, aiding and protecting victims of domestic violence.

Public awareness is an essential factor in reducing the number of victims which has been growing, according to DOVE Executive Director Sue Chandler. A number of events were planned throughout October to mark Domestic Violence Awareness Month including a candlelight vigil at United First Parish Church in Quincy Center.

volleyball teams teamed up to raise awareness for breast cancer. They paired up with the Side Out Foundation's Dig Pink Initiative in an effort to raise $5,000. The two teams wore pink during one of their matches on the court and attendees were asked to donate at least $5 to watch them play.

The city mourned the death of Robert DeCristofaro, 58, of Braintree, a employee of the Quincy Public Works department, who was struck and killed by a tractor trailer while working in a bucket truck on Route 3A.

DeCristofaro was working in the bucket of the truck at an overhead traffic signal at the time of the collision on Washington Street near Chubbuck Street in Quincy Point. He did not survive.

A traffic and signal maintenance technician and electrician, DeCristofaro had worked for the city for more than 30 years. He could be seen before and after every Flag Day proudly and patriotically mounting the flags along the parade route. For decades, he was the man behind the annual Quincy Christmas lights display wiring lights throughout the city and proudly making sure the lights came on perfectly as the crowds completed the lights-on countdown.

Mourners attending De-Cristofaro's wake at the Keohane Funeral Home remembered him as a devoted father and family man as well as for his love of Quincy.

"As a father and a husband, he is irreplaceable," said DPW Commissioner and friend Daniel Raymondi. "No one knows this city as well as he did. He was a great individual and dedicated city employee."

Mayor Tom Koch and Boston Mayor Tom Menino reached an agreement that would limit the hours of operation for the Boston Police Department shooting range on Moon Island off Squantum. Range hours would be from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. instead of 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services celebrated its 30th anniversary at the Quincy Marriott. The public-private partnership was created in 1981 to revitalize low-and-moderate-income neighborhoods in Quincy. Over the last 30 years, it has expanded to provide services in 24 cities and towns across the South Shore.

Mayoral opponents incumbent Tom Koch and School Committee Vice Chairwoman Anne Mahoney squared off at their first of two televised debates at North Quincy High School.

Among the issues dominating the forum were property taxes, the $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center, crimes and siting a new city running track at Faxon Field.

the two candidates each asked voters for their support on Election Day Nov. 8:

Koch said: "Consider the work we've done and let us continue to make great progress."

Mahoney said: "Keep an open mind and vote for me, because truly if you do I will work for everybody in the city of Quincy, not just the connected few."

Deaths during October included:

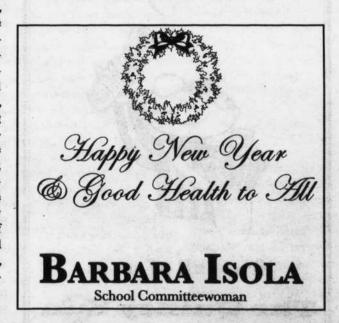

Jean F. Bettinson, 86, former deaconess of Bethany Congregational Church; Geraldine DiGravio, 87, secretary at Quincy shipyard; Anita M. # Koch Wins 3rd Term; Gutro, Croall, Hughes, Bregoli, Hubley Win Seats

NOVEMBER 2011

Mayor Thomas Koch was re-elected to a third term defeating challenger School Committee Vice Chairwoman Anne Mahoney by 2,170 votes.

Koch won 27 of the city's 30 precincts enroute to a comfortable re-election margin of 55.58 percent to Mahoney's 44.11 percent. He received 10,510 votes while Mahoney polled 8,340 votes.

The 2011 mayor's race was contentious as Koch and Mahoney sparred over municipal finances, public safety, education and the redevelopment of Quincy Center. Mahoney also lashed out at the incumbent for what she called patronage and cronyism in city government.

But on Election Night, Koch called his victory an affirmation of his mayoral agenda and "voters agreed with us in moving our city forward."

Voters also re-elected five current office holders, elected four political newcomers and spring-boarded one ward councillor into one of the three council at-large seats.

In the councillor at-large race, incumbents Joseph Finn and Michael McFarland were re-elected. Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro – who vacated his ward seat to run at-large – picked up the third at-large seat. Finn was the top vote-getter city-wide gathering 11,007 votes. Gutro was second in the council at-large field with 10,823 votes and McFarland third with 10,143 votes.

Two political newcomers were elected to the city council.

Brad Croall defeated Steven Perdios for the Ward 2 council seat opened by the departure of Dan Raymondi who was sworn in as DPW commissioner in July. It was the closest race on Election Day as Croall edged Perdios by 56 votes.

In the Ward 5 council race, Kirsten Hughes defeated Neil McCole and made some local political history. Hughes will become the first woman to serve as Ward 5 city councillor and the sixth elected a city councillor in 122 years.

In the other two contested council races, Kevin Coughlin defeated John Cain, Jr. to retain his Ward 3 council seat and Brian McNamee was re-elected in Ward 6, defeating Brian Radell.

The three seats on the School Committee were won by incumbent David McCarthy, who topped the school ballot with 10,101 votes; and political newcomers Paul Bregoli (8,800 votes) and Kathryn Hubley (7,212 votes).

Re-elected without opposition were Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci.

Only 34.91 percent of the city's 54,632 registered voters cast ballots on Election Day.

In other political news, redistricting plans at the federal and state levels caused some ripple events in the City of Presidents.

First, Cong. William Keating announced he would seek re-election in a new Cape Cod and South Coast district after a proposed redistricting plan revealed Quincy would be placed in a new Boston-anchored district.

Keating said he would seek a second term as a resident of Bourne. That Cape Cod community will be part of a new 9th District that includes much of the South Shore, Plymouth, the rest of the Cape and New Bedford.

Quincy, beginning after the 2012 election, would be part of the 8th District. Much of that district is currently represented by Cong. Stephen Lynch of South Boston.

The redistricting process which is conducted every lo years after the federal census – also forced Quincy's Ward 3, Precinct 3 to be realigned into a Boston state representative district.

As a result, some 3,222 North Quincy and Montclair residents will become part of the 13th Suffolk District as of Jan. 1, 2013. That district is represented by Dorchester's Marty Walsh.

However, they will still be represented by Rep. Bruce Ayers during 2012 until next fall's election.

Quincy College Governors voted unanimously to lease over 85,000 square feet of space in Presidents Place on Hancock Street in Quincy Center. College officials said the move would increase the school's total space by 35 percent and increase the amount spent on rent by 20 percent. But officials said the college would realize savings by consolidating college space on Newport Avenue, Saville Avenue and Temple Street.

"The reason the board has been working so hard is it's going to be a great move for Quincy Square, getting all the students in one place," said William Grindlay, chairman of the college Board of Governors.

Robert Guarnieri announced he would retire as president and CEO of Colonial Federal Savings Bank in January. Guarnieri joined the bank in 1975. The lifelong Quincy resident has served as bank president for the past 22 years.

Succeeding Guarnieri will be Michael McFarland, a lifelong Quincy resident who most recently served as superintendent/director of the Norfolk County Agricultural High School. A current city councillor, McFarland has been member of the Colonial Federal Board of Directors since 1995.

By a 4-3 vote, the School Committee approved construction of a city running track at Faxon Field adjacent to Quincy High School. Casting votes in support of the project were Mayor Tom Koch, who serves as chairman of the School Committee; and members Jo-Ann Bragg, Emily Lebo and Barbara Isola.

Proponents of the Faxon Field site rejoiced after the long-awaited project which had faced a myriad of obstacles including lawsuits — cleared its final hurdle.

"This was not a sprint, it was a marathon, and like a track meet we had some twist and turns," said Quincy Track Club director Geoff Hennessy. "We finally hit the finish line. This was a long time coming."

Veterans' Day keynote speaker James Fratolillo, a U.S. Army Vietnam combat veteran, said America owes a debt of gratitude to its veterans that can never be repaid.

Fratolillo, a past state commander of The American Legion, also spoke of his experience during and after the war at the Quincy Veterans Day observance outside the Adams Academy near the World War I Doughboy Statue.

The city also lost another long-time pillar of the community: Gerard A. Coletta, Jr., 81, who died Nov. 25. Coletta served 32 years as a Quincy Park and Recreation commissioner. He, like Chrisom, also served in the Marine Corps during World War II.

Home Maintenance in the New Year

Ready for the new year? Me neither. It's too soon after what's been a really long and frenetic holiday season, starting with a pre-Halloween snowstorm that had me and my neighbors juggling snow shovels and carved pumpkins, and then moving straight into Thanksgiving and Christmas almost too fast to blink. I'm looking forward to catching my breath this week, however, and putting together my home maintenance plans for next year.

January will be pretty quiet, except for the monthly furnace filter change and making sure ice dams and snow aren't building up on the roof and gutters. Melting or removing them quickly will prevent much more expensive repairs. February is more of the same, but I'm also laying out what I'll be planting in the deck garden this year. If there's no snow on the ground, I'll be scattering grass seed over bare or thin patches in the lawn and protecting it from the birds with a light layer of

In March I'll be inspecting the exterior and yard for damage from fallen limbs or wind-blown debris, and if the snow has melted, clearing those debris from the yard. Garden tools will come down from the highest shelf of the garage, ready to be put to use in a few weeks, but the snow shovel will stay near the side door just in case.

April is still iffy for some garden plants, but once there's no danger of a hard frost, soil can be turned over and, in the meantime, the lawn can be treated and prepared for the growing season. It's also time to start repairing any exterior damage to the roof, eaves, gutters and downspouts, as well as remove and repair storm windows and put up screens in their place.

That's the first four months of the year: gradually getting busier, hopefully with no major storms or unplanned home repairs like busted furnaces or hot water heaters. May will bring much warmer temperatures and more maintenance work, but that's a thought for another quiet day.

HOME TIP: Keep a home maintenance calendar in your workshop with important projects highlighted so that you can plan for them well in advance.

Don't Just Respond To Power Outages: Prevent Them

(NAPSA)-Some 30 million Americans suffer through extended power outages a year and that number is expected to rise-but you don't have to be among them. While storms, an aging electrical grid and freak occurrences can all contribute to significant power outages, getting a backup generator can make the difference for you.

An Answer

It's all well and good to have some extra batteries put aside but it's even better to not need them in the first place. The answer, many families have found, is a stationary home backup generator that can keep the power running during and after a storm.

A stationary backup generator connects to a home's existing natural gas or LP fuel supply, automatically turns on after the electrical power goes out and provides power to the home until the electrical grid returns. A stationary generator isn't just part of an emergency preparedness kit-it can actually help prevent an emergency.

Power isn't just a luxury for many people with electronic medical devices, it's a necessity. In addition, many work from home or remotQuincy Sun Featured Home of the Week

Freshman Pat Freeman Scores Twice: Quincy Presidents Improve to 1-4

Freeman, Quincy Outlast NQ, 2-1

By TOM LAYMAN

As far as first impressions go, Quincy freshman Patrick Freeman had himself quite the welcoming into the Quincy vs. North Quincy hockey rivalry.

The young forward potted a pair of goals, including the game-winner late in the third period, to give the Presidents a 2-1 victory over its cross-town rivals on Monday night in the Quincy Christmas Tournament at Quincy Youth Arena.

"That was the best feeling I've ever had," said Freeman. "From the time I stepped on the ice to the time I got off of it, it was just excitement the whole entire time."

Freeman's efforts, as well as a 38-save performance from senior goalie Justin Keenan, gave the Presidents their first game of the season, and with the win got the first victory for head coach Timothy Lewis over North Quincy in his coaching career.

Quincy is now 1-4 on the season. The Presidents played Milton in the finals of the tournament on Wednesday. North Quincy fell to 1-2-1 with the loss. The Red Raiders played King Philip in the consolation round.

The game belonged to North Quincy for the first 29 minutes of play as the Red Raiders out-slugged, outshot and seemed to be all over the younger Presidents at every turn of the ice.

But the puck wouldn't go in the net, and Freeman capitalized on a big North Quincy miscue.

Freeman pounced on a sloppy pass by the Raiders' defense, skated down the end of the ice on a break and scored a shorthanded goal with 50.4 seconds remaining in the second period to give the Presidents a 1-0 lead.

"(Freeman) is a gamechanger and he brings a lot to that locker room," said Lewis. "We are just really happy to have him."

The Red Raiders would have an answer in the third period when Andrew Currie scored off a rebound on the 4-on-4 at 8:03 to tie things

Freeman showed off a veteran move when he positioned himself nicely to break the tie and put home the game-winner later in the third period when overtime looked like a sure thing. The freshman hung in traffic when the puck was serviced in from the blue line and ripped home the winning goal with 2:24 left on the clock in regulation.

"I was in the right place," said Freeman. "I was in front of the net and the puck came out and I was right there."

The opportunities were there for the Red Raiders as they held a 39-18 shot advantage during the game and seemed to be the aggressor for the majority of the contest. However, the shots from the point missed the net one too many times and supreme scoring opportunities fell by the wayside, especially in the second period when Keenan had to make several sprawling saves on point blank attempts by Red Raiders' forwards.

"I thought we were all over them for pretty much most of the game and that is going to happen when you can't bury and can't score," said North Quincy head coach Matt Gibbons. "It's going to end up coming back to bite you."

Keenan was sharp from the opening faceoff when he faced a barrage of shots in the first two periods of the game. The Presidents were outshot 10-0 during the first eightplus minutes of the game and Keenan had to hold on long enough to give his offense an opportunity to capitalize off a mistake, which is what they did.

"You can't ask for a better night then he had tonight," said Lewis. "He let one past him that wasn't his fault. They slipped in backdoor and we had a breakdown down low. If not for that he's got a shutout. But another great effort by a great kid."

Quincy Defeated Red Raiders, 53-51; Lowry High-Scorer With 16 Points

Lamie's Buzzer Beater Tops North Quincy

By SEAN BRENNAN

Nicole Lamie's shooting touch has saved her teammates from running end-of-practice sprints numerous times already this winter. Last Friday against North Quincy, the senior guard's ability to knock down the clutch shot saved the Presidents from an early-season upset by the Red Raiders.

Lamie and Quincy (4-0 overall) watched as North Quincy rallied back from a 42-32 fourth quarter deficit to tie the score at 51-51 on an Olivia Umoren layup with 6.7 seconds left in regulation.

But on the game's final possession and, off a pass from fellow senior Caity Lowry (16 points, nine rebounds), Lamie drove the length of the court before banking in the game-winner off glass as the final buzzer sounded to give undefeated Quincy a thrilling 53-51 victory.

"I heard shoot and then there was nothing else," said Lamie who finished the game with ten points, "and it happened to go in. (Playing North Quincy) brings out the best in all of us and these games are always close. It feels good to win."

That the Red Raiders were in the position to send the game to overtime was a testament to the type of aggressive game plan they used against the Presidents. North Quincy never relented even after trailing 20-12 after the first quarter, 26-18 at halftime, and 40-32 entering the fourth quarter. However, the Presidents, with four returning starters, used their big-game experience to take North's best shot before bouncing right back.

"We got it done but we didn't do it well," said QHS head coach Jeff Bretsch. "North Quincy played really hard tonight and I have to give them a lot of credit for coming out confident and aggressive. They never gave up even when early on we had the game in hand."

"We just pushed the ball up hard before they could dig in their defense," continued Bretsch explaining that Lamie's game-winner was unscripted. "Nicole is a great leader and she is the kid we want taking that shot."

The Presidents came into the tilt riding a three-game winning streak and early on it looked liked the game would be over by halftime. Quincy used a 16-8 scoring run to break open a 4-4-tie in the first quarter as Lamie (four points), Lowry (three), and sophomore point guard Alyssa Lydon (three) continually broke down the North Quincy defense with backdoor cuts and pick-and-pops.

Back-to-back 3-pointers from Lamie and Lowry accounted for all of the offensive fireworks in the second for Quincy as the two teams combined for just 14 total points in the quarter. Red Raider sophomore center Maya Umoren (15 points) poured in four of her team's eight points, but North Quincy still trailed 26-18 at the break.

The game took on a faster pace in the third quarter. Lydon (nine points) buried a 3-pointer on the first possession to give Quincy a 29-18 lead and senior Kylie McDonald (nine points) extended the Presidents' advantage to 31-18 - the largest lead of the game - with a put-back layup.

But the momentum swung back to North Quincy as the Red Raiders used a 10-0 run to cut the lead to 31-28.

Junior guard Caitlin Bulger drained a 3-pointer to start the run; Olivia Umoren then made one-of-two free throws before Bulger and sophomore Jane Minton converted back-to-back layups to pull North Quincy to within 31-26. Olivia Umoren's short jumper forced Bretsch to call timeout with the score 31-28.

The timeout worked. Quincy and Lowry (four points) responded to North Quincy's spurt with a 5-0 run of their own. McDonald, Maya Umoren and Quincy senior Maria Berberan traded late-quarter buckets as the Presidents took a 40-32 lead into the final eight minutes.

The fourth quarter began with Lydon slicing through the North Quincy frontcourt for a left-handed layup (42-32) before Maya Umoren cleaned up an offensive rebound (42-34). A driving layup from Lowry made it 44-34, but Red Raider senior Amber Jones answered back with a rainbow jumper (44-36). Two free throws from Olivia Umoren made it 44-38 and another Lowry jumper gave Presidents an eight-point lead at 46-38.

Quincy sophomore Kayla McArdle's three-point play pushed the lead up to 49-38, but the effort of Jones, Olivia Umoren and junior Sam McNally closed the gap to 49-44 with 1:11 left in regulation. A Lydon free throw gave the Presidents a 50-44 lead but a five-point spurt from Minton, which included an off-glass 3-pointer, pushed the score to 50-49 with forty seconds remaining.

Lamie made it a one-possession game (51-49) with a free throw and then McDonald blocked a Taylor McKay layup attempt on the other end and got fouled. However, she missed the front end of her 1-and-1 allowing North Quincy to take back possession down two with 16.9 left.

Tim Liuzzo Key Performer For North Quincy; Brendan Cunningham's 12 Points Led Quincy

Red Raiders Outlast Presidents, 59-56

By CHRIS McDANIEL

It wasn't easy but the North Quincy Red Raiders rallied in the final two minutes to earn a 59-56 win over rival Quincy on Dec. 23 at a packed North Quincy gymnasium.

In the biggest game of the young season, North Quincy senior Tim Liuzzo made the key plays in the final minutes to help defeat the Presidents. With under two minutes remaining and Quincy leading 53-49, Liuzzo grabbed an offensive rebound and converted the put-back while getting fouled. He also converted the and-one to put the Red Raiders within one with a minute and 30 seconds left on the clock. On the next North Quincy possession, Quincy's Zerick Fadairo fouled Liuzzo on a drive. It was Fadairo's fifth foul, so he had to leave the court, which ended up being a momentum swing for the Raiders.

"Zerick fouling out took away our inside game and emotionally, it lifted North Quincy up," said Quincy head coach David Parry.

Liuzzo converted both the free throws to give North a 54-53 lead, which they would hold for the rest of regulation.

After the game, North Quincy head coach Kevin Barrett said, "We rose to the occasion." Barrett also described Liuzzo as the Red Raiders' version of the Boston Celtics' Kevin Garnett because of his leadership and ability to help organize the defense. "He's one of the most intelligent players I've ever coached," Barrett said of Liuzzo.

The team captain finished with seven points, but all of his baskets were clutch and he also made big plays on the defensive end of the court.

Despite the loss, one player on Quincy stood out more than any other: sophomore Brendan Cunningham. Cunningham had 12 points, all off 3-pointers. Two of his threes came in the fourth quarter with the game still up for grabs.

"It's a lot of pressure, but it's also a lot of fun," Cunningham said of playing in front of a packed crowd. Cunningham credited his success to good passes from his guards, Jaquan Harris and Tino Goncalves, and good screens from his forwards. "I brought him up because he scored 38 or 40 in a game against Scituate last year," said Parry.

Once Fadairo fouled out for Quincy, Cunningham was the man North Quincy had to stop. Down 56-53 with under a minute left, everyone in the building knew the ball would be going to him. Cunningham got open off a screen and it looked like he would hit a three-pointer to tie the game but the shot missed. It was Cunningham's first and only miss of the game as he finished four of five from the field.

"I was impressed by [Cunningham] to do that in this atmosphere," said Bar-

North Quincy was down most of the game, but continued to battle and literally stole the game from the Presidents in the final two minutes. Quincy led after every quarter, except the final one.

"Our defense became our offense," said Barrett referring to some of the late game steals by his defense.

The first half was a trying time for both teams. Quincy ran into major foul trouble with 15 fouls in the first half compared to North Quincy's nine. Despite this, the Red Raiders hit just 16-of-27 from the charity stripe.

"We lost the game in the first half with all the fouls," said Parry. "They weren't good fouls and we had all our guards with two fouls. There's a lot of excitement with a big game like Quincy versus North Quincy, but I think we came out with a little too much excitement and emotion."

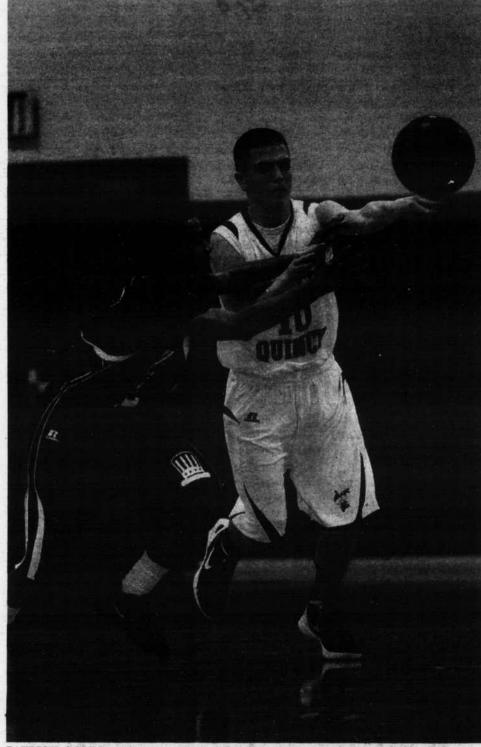

The over-aggressiveness showed up in the foul count for both teams; the teams combined for 24 first half fouls. Twice in the first half a foul was committed during a 3-point shot, one on each team. Both times all three free throws were made by Fadairo and North Quincy's Patrick Gould.

North Quincy's Marquis McClendon was one of the few offensive spark plugs early in the game. McClendon had seven of the Red Raiders' 25 first half points.

The offenses were lackluster until the fourth quarter. But when it mattered most North Quincy put up 22 points while Quincy put up 17:

Many of North Quincy's early shots were in the corner behind the three-point line. Despite only making one first half three, the threat of the three-pointer opened up space on the floor in the second half.

"With their trapping defense we used the corners to exploit that. In the second half we used the corners as a decoy to stretch their defense," explained Barrett.

North Quincy also had an impressive performance from a sophomore Efthim Butka. Twice, Butka had nice passes from inside the post to set up forward Paul Cunniff with two good looks, both of which he converted.

basketball standout Catherine O'Connell, a junior center playing for Newbury College, has been collecting accolades and awards like she did with rebounds while playing for the Red Raiders.

Earlier this month, O'Connell, for the second time in her collegiate basketball career, was selected to the Division 3 National Hoops Team of the Week for her performance on the court for the Nighthawks during week three of the regular season.

O'Connell became Newbury College's all-time leading rebounder as she helped the Nighthawks open up New England Collegiate Conference (NECC) play at 2-0. O'Connell collected a game-high 18 rebounds in Newbury's 69-61 victory over Becker College on Dec. 10 and, over the course of two games, the North Quincy native averaged a doubledouble with 12.5 points per game and 16.0 rebounds per game in addition to registering five assists, six steals and seven blocks.

year's ago; O'Connell became the first player in Nighthawk history to earn national honors with her selection to the D3 Hoops Team of the week. As a freshman, she helped guide Newbury College to a 1-1, which included a 62-61 come-from-behind victory over Rivier - averaging 18.5 points per game and 21.0 rebounds per game at the end of January 2010. In addition, O'Connell swept the conference weekly awards and earned the New England Women's Basketball Association (NEWBA) Rookie of the Week that week.

Already this season, O'Connell has stamped her name in the Newbury College record books as the school's all-time leader in rebounds. During her team's 69-61 win over Becker, she leapfrogged over Taraja Laws by collecting her 819th career rebound just minutes into the first half. O'Connell finished her record-breaking evening by recording a game-high 18 rebounds for her fifth consecutive double-double; she also scored 13 points to guide the nighthawks to a third straight cy swimming and diving team captured three of the top four spots with its final three chances culminating into a one-two sweep of the ultimate event to seal an 85-84 victory over visiting Cardinal Spellman's co-ed squad, Thursday, Dec. 22 at the Lincoln Hancock Pool. The QNQ girl's team improved its record to 2-1 after defeating Silver Lake, 80-66, Thursday, Dec. 15 while the boys fell, 67-56, to the visitors.

"When you win by one point, it's a total team effort," said third-year coach Bob McGillicuddy of the Cardinal Spellman win.

After trailing by as many as 19 points, QNQ, down 12 heading into the final swim, grabbed first with its relay contingent of freshmen Sabrina Rauch (Quincy) and Carolyn Schwartz (NQ), sophomore captain Elio Daci (QHS) and junior Kat O'Connor (NQ) in the 400yard freestyle relay.

Before the meet's deciding race, freshman Marina Chafa (QHS) placed second in the 100-yard breaststroke followed by senior captain

The Quincy/North Quin- Phil Zeng (NQ) and sophomore Marlena Forrester (QHS) in third and fourth. In the 100-yard backstroke, Carolyn Schwartz and Leslie David, a Quincy sophomore, finished first and second respectively with times of 1:24.02 and 1:25.09 while NQ junior Rose Bennett bolstered the team's showing with her time of 1:33.22, good enough for fourth. QNQ collected 33 of its 85 points in those final three events.

Earlier in the meet, Sabrina Rauch garnered gold in the 200-yard individual medley (2:24.01) and 100yard butterfly (1:07.50). Her relay mate, Kat O'Connor, was first in the 200-yard freestyle (2:15.08) and second in the 100-yard freestyle (1:01.75).

The Silver Lake meeting told a different story when QNQ jumped out to onetwo finishes in the first three events en route to winning eight of 12 events by a score of 80-66 on Dec. 15. Quincy senior Olivia Goldson earned a pair of firsts in the 200-yard individual medley (2:33.16) and 100-yard butterfly (1:09.72).

NQ senior captain Samantha Enbar-Salo helped the 200-yard medley relay team to prevail then finished first in the 50-yard freestyle (31.25) and second in the 500-yard freestyle (7:37.10). Sophomore Lauren Thorne (NQ) topped the 100-yard freestyle field with her 1:10.44 effort, and senior captain Taryn Urbanus (QHS) amassed an eventwinning 295.90 points for the one-meter dive.

In the 67-56 loss to Silver Lake, Elio Daci picked up two individual wins in the 200-yard individual medley relay (2:44.69) and 500-yard freestyle (6:20.50) events after joining sophomore Jack Fischer (QHS), senior captain Phil Zeng (NQ), and freshman Mike Mullaney (NQ) for the meet-opening, victorious 200-yard medley relay (2:23.22).

Additionally. senior Sean Lerkvikarn (NQ) won the 100-yard breaststroke (1:28.47).

QNQ will host Scituate and Cohasset on Tuesday, Jan. 3 at the Lincoln Hancock Pool. Meet time is 3:30

Dr. Michael Snyder Quincy Medical Center Medical Staff President

Michael Snyder, MD, of Hanover was recently named president of the Quincy Medical Center medical staff.

Dr. Snyder, who succeeds Thomas E. Fitzgerald, MD, will serve a two-year term as president of the medical staff.

The medical staff also elected cardiologist David Dobroski, MD, of Milton, as vice president, and oncologist Barry Miller, MD, of Sharon, as secretary/treasurer.

Dr. Snyder has been emergency room physician at QMC since 2002. He has served as vice president of the medical staff and chairman of the Credentials Committee.

Dr. Snyder completed his residency at Boston University Medical Center and his internship at Faulkner Hospital. He earned his medical degree at Tufts University School of Medicine and his undergraduate degree at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Dr. Synder is a Clinical Instructor in Emergency Medicine at Boston University and is a member of the American College of Emergency Physicians.

Healthy Holiday Recipes, Food Tips

The holidays are in full swing and festive food is everywhere.

Some are naughty, some are nice, and some may even help fight cancer.

While these so-called holiday foods are delicious to eat, they can also have the added bonus of containing cancer-preventing nutrients," says Stephanie Meyers, MS, RD/LDN, a nutritionist at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston. Meyers and her colleagues have put together a list of foods and recipes that definitely belong on the "good" list this holiday season.

Go nuts

Dust off that family nutcracker. Recent research finds that walnuts may help to prevent kidney and colon cancers. In addition, the study suggests that walnuts are a rich source of antioxidants that may help protect cells from oxidative damage. Walnuts contain essential fatty acids, or the so-called "good fats," which are known to help reduce blood pressure and boost the immune system. So go nuts with this simple pesto http://www.dana-farber. org/Health-Library/Walnut-Pesto.aspx

It's not just for pie

Pumpkin is a holiday staple for many families. It is also one of the tastiest ways to enhance the body's own natural cancer-fighting ability, notes Meyers. Pumpkins are packed with nutrients called carotenoids, which have been linked to the prevention of colon, prostate, breast, and lung cancer.

Although many people only eat pumpkin when it is made into a pie, it can also be enjoyed in a variety of other ways, including roasted pumpkin, pumpkin soup and these high-fiber pumpkin muffins.

http://www.dana-farber. org/Health-Library/High-Fiber-Pumpkin-Muffins.

It's the bright color that gives pumpkins their rich nutrients, so look for other orange vegetables, like sweet potatoes, carrots and butternut and acorn squash. All are also high in carotenoids.

"It is more beneficial to consume carotenoids from whole foods rather than from supplements, because carotenoids in pill form do not appear to have the same protective properties," explains Meyers. In fact, that is true of many of the nutrients in foods. Eating whole foods typically provides greater health benefits than taking a dietary supplement. An apple a day

Apples are another food packed with cancer-preventing properties, thanks to the nutrient quercitin, which protects DNA in the body's cells from damage that could lead to the development of cancer. Recent research suggests the carbohydrates in apples may help prevent colorectal cancer development as well. To get the most protection against cancer from apples,eat them with the skin on and not combined with sugar and fats, like in a pie.

Not just for the holidays

Meyers reminds her patients at Dana-Farber that cranberries aren't just for the holidays and encourages them to eat the berries yearround. Cranberries contain benzoic acid, which has been shown to inhibit the growth of lung cancer, colon cancer, and some forms of leukemia.

She recommends buying bags of fresh cranberries now, while they are in season and at their nutritional peak, and popping them in the freezer for later use. This will help ensure that the berries will provide the highest level of cancer protection whenever they're used.

Shoveling Snow Is Hard on Heart

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband is 73. I am sure he's going to die this winter. He insists on shoveling our snow, and we have lots of it. He says it's good for him; it gives him exercise. This from a man whose other exercise consists of popping open a beer can. He comes in after he's cleared the walk, puffing and exhausted. Please talk some sense into him. - M.L.

ANSWER: After every snowstorm, city emergency rooms fill with older men who have had a heart attack after cleaning their snow-covered walks. Snow shoveling is strenuous exercise. It burns 420 calories an hour. The heart rate of a shoveler rises to 170 beats a minute, and the systolic blood pressure (the first number of a reading) exceeds 200. Of course, the demand depends on the depth and weight of the snow. Older hearts cannot support such stress.

In addition to the work of shoveling, cold weather adds more demands on the heart.

Unless a man your husband's age has had medical clearance for such exhausting exercise, he is tempting fate.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: A friend has a case of constant hiccups. Can you suggest any possible cures? - P.W.

ANSWER: Hiccups come from involuntary contractions of the diaphragm, the horizontal muscle sheet that lies between the chest and the abdomen. It is the principal breathing muscle. Sometimes persistent contractions can be traced to gallbladder problems, diseases of the pancreas, reflux of stomach acid

Color your world

The overall key to finding cancer-fighting foods is to look for a lot of color. In the winter, root vegetables like carrots, parsnips and beets can add a burst of color and taste. The brighter and richer the pigment, the higher the level of nutrients. "You want to load up your plate with as much colorful plantbased foods as you can," explains Meyers. "Eating a plant-based diet is the best way to help lower your risk of cancer all year long."

Try this tasty, colorful roasted vegetable salad:

http://www.dana-farber. org/Health-Library/Warm-Roasted-Winter-Vegetable-Salad.aspx into the esophagus (heartburn) or an abscess on the abdominal side of the diaphragm. However, most of the time, no cause is found. For temporary hiccups, gulping food and simultaneously swallowing air sometimes brings them on. So can carbonated beverages.

Through the years readers have provided me with hundreds of home remedies for dealing with hiccups, and I welcome new additions. Swallowing a teaspoon of sugar irritates the throat, which sets in motion a reflex that can end hiccups. Breathing into a paper bag raises the blood carbon-dioxide level, which, in turn, raises blood acidity, and that triggers a release of calcium. Calcium can spark nerve signals to stop hiccups. Putting angostura bitters on the back of the tongue is another sometimes-successful trick.

Hiccups that last longer than 48 hours aren't likely to respond to home remedies. Medicines have to be turned to. Chlorpromazine, omeprazole, metoclopramide and baclofen are often successfully used.

In cases that are resistant to medicine treatment and that are disrupting a person's life, doctors can interrupt, in a number of ways, the transmission of nerve signals conducted to the diaphragm by the phrenic nerve.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 34 and have been jogging for 10 years. I do it yearround. I've noticed this winter that my knees feel stiff before I run. They don't hurt during the run or after. Could this be a sign that I'm getting arthritis? -B.C.

ANSWER: It's not likely that at age 34 you're coming down with arthritis. It's more likely a weather thing. Cold weather thickens joint fluid. That makes joints stiff. Warming the fluid by exercise relieves the stiffness.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available hi newsletters at P.O. Box 536475. Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

ANECDOTAL EVIDENCE A recent survey of users of alternative therapies by a nationally renowned consumer organization indicates that health consumers find chiropractic treatment to be useful in treating more than just back pain. While chiropractic treatment came out on top as the most useful treatment for back pain, users of chiropractic for the treatment of neck pain found it to be similarly effective. Sixty-five percent of those who received chiropractic treatment for back pain found that it "helped a lot," and 64% of those getting chiropractic treatment for neck pain made the same claim of effectiveness. It is also important to point out that chiropractic treatment ranked third among headache and migraine sufferers (behind those taking prescription and over-the-counter medication) in effectiveness.

At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we are seriously concerned with the education of our patients about health and the body's natural state. ARE YOU DIGGING A HOLE FOR YOURSELF? Do you wonder how caviies actually form? Tooth decay begins with harmful bacteria in the mouth that feed on sugars and carbohydrates. If poor oral hygiene allows these bacteria to continue to grow without interference, the acid they produce (as a by-product of metabolizing sugar) can deminer-alize (dissolve) tooth enamel. Ordinarily, this process happens slowly, giving the body time to replenish (remineralize) the enamel. However, when populations of bacteria outpace the body's ability to rebuild enamel, the first stage of tooth decay (dental caries) results, appearing as a spot discernible only to the dentist or on an x-ray. The dentist may stop this decay process by applying fluoride, but once the decay has penetrated the tooth enamel, a cavity forms.

A Job Well Done

On Wednesday, Dec. 14, at approximately 12:15 p.m., Detectives Dentremont and Pieper were operating an unmarked police vehicle in the area of the Quincy Center MBTA station. As they drove through the bus way towards the rear parking lot of Quincy City Hall, they observed two males standing underneath a tree at the foot of the pathway running adjacent to the MBTA tracks.

The two males, standing 10 to 15 feet from the unmarked vehicle, passed what appeared to be marijuana back and forth after taking a puff. Detective Piper approached the two males and immediately smelled the odor of burnt marijuana emanating from the two individuals. Detective Piper approached suspect #1, who had the item in his hand in between his index finger and thumb. The item turned out to be a brown "blunt" that had been smoked down to the size of a "roach."

After identifying himself as a Quincy Police detective, displaying his badge which was on my belt, he questioned the suspects about having more marijuana. Suspect #1 threw the marijuana "blunt" to the ground and stated that they would leave the area. When questioned again, suspect #2 reached into his pocket and pulled out a small glassine baggy containing marijuana. The baggy was knotted at one end. When asked if there was more, suspect #2 grew nervous and evasive. Detective Piper told suspect #2 to remove the backpack so that he could look inside. At this time, suspect #2 glared at the detective and then shoved him with his two hands to the Detective's chest, knocking him

Officers Ryan Donnelly and Mark Millane arrived on scene. Detective Dentremont conducted a search of the backpack and recovered $409 (rolled up and secured with an elastic band), a cell phone, and another glassine baggy filled with marijuana. Upon a further search of the backpack, a .32 caliber silver plated pistol with a black handle was discovered. There wasn't a round in the chamber, however, the pistol was loaded with a magazine containing 6 (.32 caliber) bullets. Detective Dentremont made the gun "safe" and se-

Once at the station, Detective Piper checked the firearms serial number through NCIC and it was determined that the firearm was reported stolen on 10/20/06 in Winder, Georgia. The money and cell phone were seized pending civil forfeiture since it is believed that the money is proceeds from drug sales and the cell phone was used to facilitate such sales. The suspect, a 21 year-old Randolph resident, was charged with "Assault and Battery on a Police Officer and Receiving Stolen Property over $250, Carrying a firearm without a license, Illegal possession of ammunition (6 rounds) and Possession with intent to distribute class D Marijuana."

Nice Work!

THINK BEFORE YOU DRINK

The consequences for drunk driving can be extraordinary. Aside from bodily injury and death, consider the following estimated costs for a drunk driving conviction:

- Towing $100 Car storage per day $30
- Bail fee $40 (min) Defense attorney fee $5,000
- Minimum fine $500 Victim's Trust Fund $50
- Loss of two days work $250
- Victim's witness fee $35
- License reinstatement $300 Head injury surcharge - $125
- Driver alcohol education $600
- Insurance increase (3 years) $5,000
- Court Costs $250 Probation fee $360
- Personal embarrassment priceless
- Public humiliation priceless

TOTAL: minimum $13,000

There is also the possibility of being incarcerated for "not more than 2 1/2 years House of Correction," for the first offense. There are significant increases for each additional offense. Your license will be suspended for 180 days for failure to take the breathalyzer test. This can be added to the one-year license suspension for the conviction. There are circumstances that would bring the cost considerably higher.

Remember, these numbers reflect the basic drunk driving charge. If there is an accident where someone is injured or killed, the penalties are much stiffer.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

The New Year is a time of challenge to our younger citizens who look upon the year ahead and all the years to follow as a time to build the foundation on which their future lives will be determined. . . For those in their DON McCARTHY middle-years the New Year presents still another opportunity to set those, whom they love so dearly, upon the course which will determine their future happiness and the fulfillment of their hopes and dreams... And to the elderly to whom the New Year can be a melancholy time when they recall those dear ones who are no longer with us and whose loss increases our sorrow with each passing year. . .

And so the New Year truly means different things to everyone - yet with all the varying emotions the one constant. shared and binding feelings... is the feeling of hope... that with God's help our lives and the lives of those whom we love ... will be happier and more useful lives in 2012....

Ring out the old - ring in the new. HAPPY NEW YEAR EVERYONE ... FROM ALL AT THE DEWARE FUNERAL HOME.

DECEMBER 2011

A myriad of non-profit organizations sought holiday donations as demands increased for food, toys and other necessities for local needy families.

Organizations including Quincy Community Action, Quincy Crisis Center and the Salvation Army among others reached out to the community to help them serve those who need the most help.

More than 80 community leaders - including elected officials, business people and directors of social service organizations and educational institutions, rallied together to ring the bell for the Salvation Army at two downtown locations.

Kettles were voluntarily manned outside Quincy City Hall and the Granite Trust Building on Hancock Street  for the Salvation Army. This year's kettle campaign was running some $16,400 behind last year's efforts, said Captain Heather Odom. Money collected by the kettles helps fund holiday assistance initiatives including toys and clothing for children and food vouchers for families.

The City Council voted 7-2 in support of a $248,900 appropriation to construct a salt storage shed at the Department of Public Schools on Sea Street. The shed is part of an all-salt strategy to fight icing on Quincy's streets, said DPW Commissioner Daniel Raymondi.

The new shed will hold up to 3,000 tons of salt double the amount that the current shed's storage casought before Raymondi had planned to have the shed constructed.

Nobel Laureate H. Robert Horvitz visited Quincy High School and told students that he felt lost studying biology his first year at Harvard University.

But Horvitz, who shared the 2002 Prize for Physiology or Medicine for research into apoptosis, said he persevered until the science became more familiar and "my interests had blossomed."

The City Council unanimously approved Mayor Tom Koch's proposed increase of residential property tax rate from $13.42 per $1,000 of valuation to $13.75, an increase of 2.2 percent. This equals out to a $98 increase on the average proved a commercial tax rate of $28.66, an increase from the previous rate of $27.85 per $1,000 valuation.

Sen. Scott Brown heard testimony at City Hall during a field hearing of the Senate Committee on Veterans' Affairs. Brown said "veterans and their families should never be forced to wait for their well-deserved benefits, or in some instances live in poverty, because of bureaucratic red tape."

School Committeewoman Jo-Ann Bragg introduced a resolve at her final School Committee meeting that would make community service a high school graduation requirement. The resolve was referred to the committee's Policy Subcommittee for further study and evaluation.

Bragg, who is stepped down from the school committee after 16 years of service this month, said she would advocate for the requirement as a private citizen.

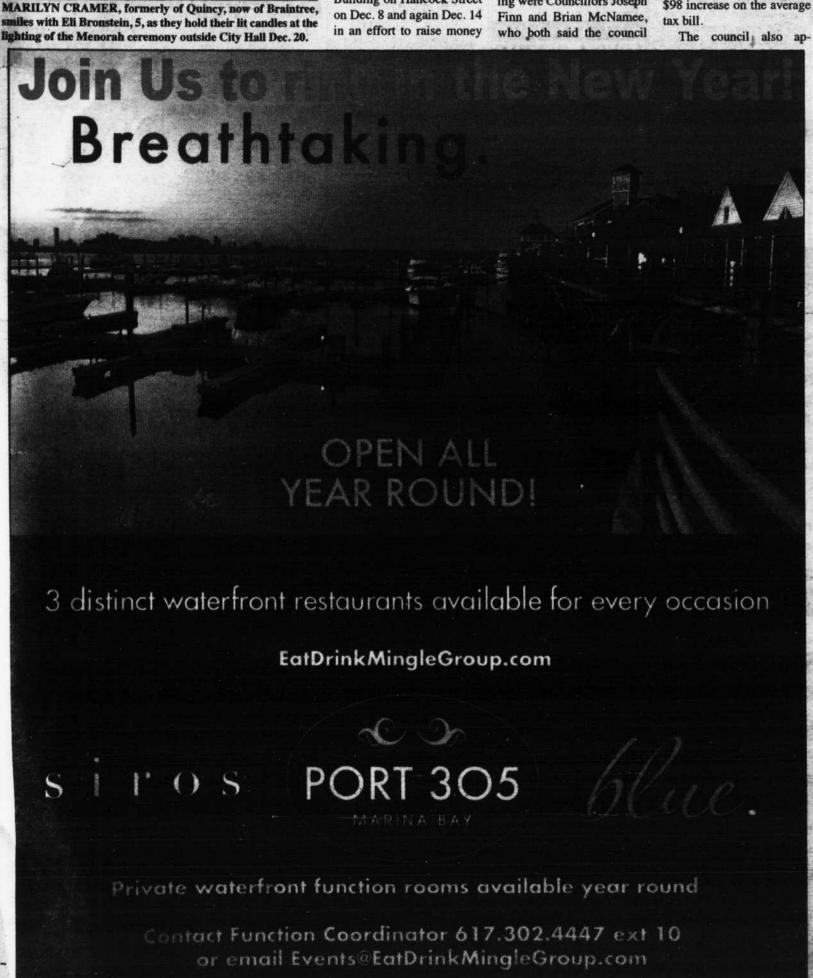

Quincy Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon told city councillors that improvements are ongoing on and around the Hannon Parkway. Gillon was called before the council after councillors received numerous complaints from residents about traffic congestion and poor signal timing along the new roadway.

Installation of a new water main on Sea Street reached completion but repaving the entire road would wait until the springtime to allow the ground to settle.

The Point-Webster School Robotics team made history by becoming the first middle school in Quincy to compete in the state championship. In the competition, held at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, the team finished 63rd out of 72 teams. Point was one of the few middle schools in the state final.
